NEWS MEDIA FOCUS ATTENTION ON TWU

In recent weeks, both statewide and national news media attention has focused on Texas Woman's University. Reporters for newspapers and television have made inquiries concerning the university's admissions policy, particularly at the undergraduate level, pertaining to males on campus. While administrators have explained the admission policy and informed reporters that applications are accepted from all interested students and evaluated on a case-by-case basis, President Carol Surles has reassured everyone that the institution's mission will remain unchanged -- that TWU will continue to uphold its special and unique mission of serving as an institution of higher education primarily for women.

A summary of the history of admissions policies, pertinent federal laws and a reiteration of TWU's mission is detailed below.

General history of admissions policies

As its name implies, Texas Woman's University has been historically a single-gender institution in which student enrollment formerly was limited to women. Since fall 1972 -- as a result of the enactment of Titles VII and VIII of the federal Public Health Service Act -- TWU has admitted both qualified women and men to all programs offered through the Institute of Health Sciences. The institute offers undergraduate programs in the College of Health Sciences, College of Nursing, School of Occupational Therapy and School of Physical Therapy.

Since 1973, following enactment of Title IX of the federal Higher Education Act Amendments of 1972, the university has admitted both qualified women and men to all graduate programs. As permitted by exceptions to Title IX, qualified women can enroll in the University General Divisions, which offers undergraduate programs in the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Education and Human Ecology and the School of Library and Information Studies.

Title IX of the federal Higher Education Act Amendments of 1972 states that Subpart C (which refers to discrimination that is prohibited on the basis of sex in admission and recruitment) does not apply to any public institution of undergraduate higher education which traditionally and continually from its establishment has had a policy of admitting only students of one sex. (Secs. 901, 902, Education Amendments of 1972, 88 Stat. 373,374; U.S.C. 1881, 1882)

The Texas Legislature enacted no law in 1972 regarding admission of men to the undergraduate General Divisions of Texas Woman's University, as reported in some newspapers. The articles apparently intended to refer to the U.S. Congress but wrote about the Texas Legislature instead.

In summary, TWU:

■ Admits qualified women and men to the Institute of Health Sciences (since fall 1972) -- which includes graduate programs such as kinesiology, communication sciences and disorders, nutrition and food sciences, nursing, occupational therapy, physical therapy and others; and includes undergraduate programs in human biology, kinesiology, nutrition and food sciences, nursing, and communication sciences and disorders;

■ Admits qualified women and men to all graduate degree programs (since fall 1973) -- which includes programs such as drama, business, government, education and others;

■ Admits qualified women to the University General Divisions -- which is allowed under federal law by Title IX of the Higher Education Act Amendments of 1972. Within the last five years, this policy has been under review by the university and, since 1992, applications for admission to the undergraduate General Divisions have been evaluated on a case-by-case basis.

Admissions policy and the TWU mission

Texas Woman's University is a comprehensive public university primarily for women. A teaching and research institution, the university emphasizes the liberal arts and specialized or professional studies. TWU is accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to award bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees.

TWU will continue to review its admissions policies to ensure that citizens of the state of Texas have appropriate access to higher education. TWU has never and intends not to waver from its special and unique mission of serving as an institution of higher education primarily for women. The dynamic mission of this institution recognizes the individual dignity of all students and seeks to provide those students with access to higher education in order to help them -- including almost 900 male students -- grow both personally and professionally.

TWU's policies have been and are evolving, and they will continue to be reviewed as TWU seeks to fulfill its primary mission to serve as an institution of higher education primarily for women. The diversity of educational opportunities in the state of Texas also allows TWU to maintain its mission and to provide its citizens with multiple opportunities to pursue higher education. A lack of educational parity has existed between the sexes, and TWU's mission at the undergraduate level is a legitimate way to redress some of the educational inequities of the past, many of which still exist today.

ENROLLMENT EXCEEDS 10,000; BREAKS RECORD

The cars, the classrooms and the lines are obvious indications that enrollment is up at TWU this fall -- more than 10,000 students are attending classes in Denton, Dallas and Houston...a new record for the university. According to preliminary 9th-day class figures from the office of admissions, 10,100 students were enrolled -- representing an increase of 4.2 percent.

"We are extremely pleased with the increase this fall," said Dr. Paul Travis (enrollment management). "Our office is analyzing the results, so we do not have any specific information related to targeted groups and enrollment at this time. However, I feel that the efforts of recruiters from admissions, as well as a year-long campaign titled 'Just Register' that has been designed and implemented by the office of public information, has had an effect on the increase."

President Carol Surles commented that TWU will continue its efforts to recruit new students -- particularly first-time college students and freshmen -- as the university seeks to achieve a balanced enrollment across all academic disciplines in TWU's colleges and schools.

Enrollment at the TWU Institute of Health Sciences Houston Center rose by 12.1 percent (representing an additional 115 students). The number of minority students also increased: African American -- up 11.54 percent (123 more persons); Hispanic -- up 12.3 percent (an additional 78 students); Asian -- up 17.8 percent (38 extra persons); and Native American -- up 34 percent (17 more students).

Figures for fall enrollment remain preliminary until the 12th class day.

HUMAN RELATIONS INTERCULTURAL AWARENESS PROGRAM SET

The TWU human relations committee will present its first program for the 1994-95 year on Fri., Sept. 16. The event, titled "Preparing for the Year 2000," is an intercultural awareness program that will be held from 9 a.m. to noon in SC 006 and 007. The program is free and open to the public; TWU faculty, staff and students are urged to attend.

The featured speakers will be Alisa Sample (intercultural services) and Monica Mendez-Grant (student development). "The objective of this program is to make participants more aware of our changing society through the use of statistical information, group exercises, lectures and handouts," said Mendez-Grant, who is director of student development. Sample currently serves as assistant to the vice president for student life for intercultural services.

The goals of the workshop are to educate participants about issues related to developing positive intercultural relations; to facilitate the creation of a culture that enables all participants to contribute their full potential to the university's success; to encourage the creation of a culture that celebrates and capitalizes upon the diversities of each individual; and to assist in the creation of a culture that encourages participants to explore their own diversities. For more information, call the TWU office of student life at ext. 3601.

CONFERENCE WILL EXPLORE "HEALTHY PEOPLE 2000"

Health care plans, immunization programs, maternal and child care, women's health, patients' rights and health insurance will be only a few of the many topics discussed as part of a regional conference titled "Healthy People 2000: Delivering the Promise," scheduled at TWU on Thurs. and Fri., Sept. 22 and 23, in Denton. The program is co-sponsored by the TWU department of health studies and department of family sciences, as well as the Texas Society for Public Health Education, the Texas Institute for Research and Education on Aging and the Consortium for Health Research and Policy. Coordinated by the TWU office of continuing education, the conference will be held in buildings throughout the campus. A special program on Sat., Sept. 24, has been designated as "Faculty/Student Day -- Eta Sigma Gamma."

The cost to attend is $109 for the conference; students who wish to register for only the Saturday program will pay $5. Conference fees include refreshment breaks and conference materials; lunch is extra -- $8 per day. For registration or information, contact the TWU office of continuing education at ext. 3408. TWU will award 14 contact hours or 1.4 continuing education units (CEUs) to participants who attend the conference.

"Healthy People 2000" will feature more than 30 sessions for participants; the conference will be useful to health educators, nurses, physicians, social workers and others who choose to attend. The symposium will provide health professionals with an opportunity to gain current information in four broad areas: aging, chronic disease, maternal and child care, and injury prevention and control.

"Health professionals who attend the symposium will provide a multidisciplinary approach within the conference as we attempt to address the nation's health goals," said Dr. Bill Cissell (health studies). "This forum will enhance collaboration for the purpose of improving the quality of life for all Americans."

Among the presenters are four keynote speakers: Dr. David Smith, commissioner of health for the state of Texas, who will discuss "Healthy People 2000: Opportunities through Health Care Reform"; Dr. Nina Chappell of Victoria University in Victoria, British Columbia, who will talk about "Social Support and Care Giving for the Elderly"; Dr. Marshal Kreuter of Health 2000, Atlanta, Ga., who will respond to Smith's ideas and presentation; and Dr. Ron Anderson of Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas, who will discuss "Disparities in Health Care Between Ethnic and Cultural Groups." A number of TWU faculty will participate in the three-day event.

RESTRUCTURING HIGHER ED IS FOCUS OF FNTAU EVENT

Dr. Robert Zemsky, director of the Institute for Research in Higher Education at the University of Pennsylvania, is "A Witness to Reform." He will discuss his ideas during the 17th annual fall seminar of the Federation of North Texas Area Universities on Fri., Sept. 30, at TWU. The seminar, titled "Restructuring the University," begins with a plenary session at 10:30 a.m. in the MCL auditorium. Interested faculty, staff, students and members of the community are invited to attend. For more information, contact the TWU Graduate School at ext. 3400.

Zemsky, who is founding director of the institute, heads one of the country's leading public policy centers for post-secondary education. Established in 1980, the institute's major projects have included development of the College Board's Enrollment Planning Service, the federal government's study of corporate employee training and development of the Association of American Colleges' national curricular database. The guest speaker also serves as director of the federal government's National Research and Development Center on the Educational Quality of the Workforce and as chair and convener of the Pew Higher Education Roundtable.

Zemsky is senior editor of Policy Perspectives, a national quarterly publication that covers the nation's higher education agenda. He has served on numerous national and international boards and councils, is an educational consultant and authored Merchants, Farmers and River

MUSIC FACULTY PREMIER WORKS, ENSEMBLE AT RECITAL

A program of original contemporary works for a variety of chamber music settings will highlight a recital featuring TWU music faculty members on Tues., Sept. 20. Faculty, staff, students and the general public are invited to attend this free event, which will begin at 8 p.m. in Margo Jones Performance Hall.

Pamela Youngblood (performing arts-music), instructor of flute, has planned a program that will feature Robert Muczynski's 1960 and 1963 compositions for woodwind trio ("Fragments") and solo flute ("Moments"). Original arrangements of Native American Indian music for soprano and flute by Lanelle Stevenson (performing arts-music) will introduce audience members to her work and prepare them for her solo recital scheduled in October.

Youngblood will be joined by her husband, clarinetist Jesse, and department chair Dr. Richard Rodean (performing arts) on bassoon for the debut of the TWU faculty woodwind chamber ensemble in "Fragments" for a woodwind trio -- "...a work idiomatically and uniquely suited to this instrumental grouping," according to Rodean. Additional works for solo flute and piano include Gary Schocker's "Green Places" and Louis Ganne's "Andante et Scherzo." For more information, call the department of performing arts at ext. 2500.

"PEER" PRESSURE: JOIN THE FUN!

Painting, pictures and procedures will be the focus of two PEER programs that are open to the campus community and general public this fall. The TWU Program for Education and Enrichment in Retirement (PEER) -- normally reserved for students ages 55 and older -- will open two classes to anyone interested in participating in October: "Art Appreciation: Understanding the Visual Arts," with Dr. John Calabrese (visual arts) and "PEER into Parliamentary Procedure," with Dr. Ruth Amend, who is a certified parliamentarian and a resident of Fort Worth. The cost to attend is $25 per course; for registration, contact Silvia Lesko at ext. 3408.

Learning to look at art and to break it into its component parts will be the goal of Calabrese's nine-hour art appreciation course, which will be taught from 6 to 9 p.m. on three consecutive Tuesdays: Oct. 4, 11 and 18. Class will be held in room 101 of the Arts Building. Calabrese will lead the class through exercises that will help them discover how a work of art is put together and how to find meaning in the work. He will teach class members to go beyond "knowing what they like" and will take them to the point of appreciating what they see -- whether they like it or not -- in painting, sculpture and architecture. The instructor, an associate professor of art, holds a bachelor's degree in art from Catholic University, an MFA from Pratt Institute and a doctorate in comparative painting and art history from Ohio University. He is also a practicing artist, has published several articles and conducted a two-week walking tour of Rome this summer. Calabrese currently is involved in research on film noire.

PEER's course on parliamentary procedures is designed for club and organization presidents, as well as boards of directors. The class will examine the basics of parliamentary procedure using Robert's Rules of Order, Newly Revised. Basic principles for conducting business, pointers for presiding officers, duties of secretaries and treasurers, programs and protocols, and bylaws and other rules will be discussed and demonstrated. Amend -- who is president of the Fort Worth Unit Parliamentarians, the Golden Gavel Unit Parliamentarians and the Texas State Association of Parliamentarians -- will conduct her class on Mon., Oct. 3, from 1 to 4 p.m. in ACT 601. She is also editor of Texas Parliamentarian and chairman of the review committee for National Parliamentarian. Amend holds a bachelor's degree in education from Slippery Rock University of Pennsylvania, a master's degree in zoology from the University of Pittsburgh and a doctorate in higher education from the University of North Texas.

FIT FOR FALL

TWU employees who want to be fit for fall (the semester, that is!) are reminded that they and their family members receive a discount at the TWU Wellness Center. Membership in the Wellness Center includes access to the fitness room, swimming pools and exercise classes (yoga, water aerobics and many aerobic and bench classes). An employee of TWU pays $10 per month to join the Wellness Center or $35 for four months. The center also has new, expanded hours -- offering four extra hours on the weekends: Monday through Friday, 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday, 1 to 6 p.m.

SHARE THE VISION FOR DENTON IN OCTOBER

All TWU faculty, staff, students -- as well as members of the community -- are urged to attend several meetings in October that will update the city on its "Vision for Denton" project, which began last year. Six impact groups, comprising volunteers from across Denton, will present public updates next month at Denton High School -- Ryan Campus, located at 5101 E. McKinney; each meeting is scheduled at 8 p.m. TWU is one of seven major entities sponsoring the project.

Meeting dates and presentations include: Oct. 6 -- Business City and Transportation City impact groups; Oct. 13 -- Functional City and Education City impact groups; and Oct. 20 -- Hospitable City and Cultural City impact groups. The purpose of each update is to let the public know what has been accomplished during the past year and to obtain some feedback through questions and answers from the audience. Anyone interested in seeing related exhibits and plans can visit the Vision Room, which is located at 601 E. Hickory St.

NEWSBRIEFS

TWU gymnastics will sponsor children's gymnastics classes -- five sessions -- on consecutive Saturdays this fall: Oct. 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29. Class times are 9 to 9:45 a.m. for co-ed pre-schoolers, ages 3 to 6; and 10 to 11 a.m. for girls, ages 7 to 17. Students will be tested and grouped according to their ability. Instruction will be offered from beginner to advanced on: floor exercise and dance, vaulting, uneven parallel bars and balance beam. Staff will comprise Frank Kudlac (athletics), Pioneer gymnastics head coach (who is a safety certified gymnastics instructor by the U.S. Gymnastics Federation) and members of the TWU gymnastics varsity team. The fee for all five lessons is $38, and registration is limited. For pre-registration, call the TWU department of athletics at ext. 2378 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. before Sept. 28.

Health care and dental hygiene are the focus of two programs currently offered by the TWU office of continuing education. "Patient-Focused Care: A Team Approach to Health Care Delivery," scheduled throughout the fall, is offered at the TWU Institute of Health Sciences Houston Center; graduate credit is available. "Dental Hygiene Treatment of Periodontally Involved Patients" will be held on Fri., Sept. 16, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Scottish Rite Hospital in Dallas. For more information about either program, call ext. 3408.

A September special "All You Can Eat Buffet" currently is offered for faculty, staff and students who wish to dine in the Pioneer Room. The $2.99 special -- available Monday through Thursday from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. -- features soup, drinks, salad bar, desserts, hot entrees, fresh rolls and vegetables. NEWSBRIEFS, continued

The Denton division of the American Heart Association will hold its annual American Heart Walk on Sat., Sept. 24, at 8:30 a.m. in Corinth (exit 460, I-35 East) at City Hall. The Heart Walk will help raise money to support the American Heart Association's fight against heart disease -- the nation's number 1 killer. TWU will organize two teams of walkers, one led by Dr. Linda King (Wellness Center) and the other by Dr. Barney Sanborn (kinesiology). Anyone who would like to join a team or start their own can call King at ext. 2900 or Sanborn at ext. 2596. As a Heart Walker, each person obtains sponsors who pay in advance for that participant's walk. Based on the amount they collect, walkers can win prizes as they support the work of AHA.

Reminder: The first meeting of the health fair committee for the 1995 TWU Health Fair (scheduled Feb. 28 through March 4, 1995) will be held on Tues., Sept. 20, from noon to 1 p.m. in the Student Health Center; lunch will be provided. Members are reminded to attend; anyone with questions should call the center at ext. 3826.

Fall Career Day will be held in the southwest room of Hubbard Hall on Thurs., Sept. 29, for students interested in visiting with a number of employers who participate each year. The event, which is sponsored by the TWU office of career services, is scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon. For more information, call ext. 2950. (Additional career days include: "Nursing Career Day" on Oct. 14, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Dallas-Parkland; and "Teacher Interview Day" on Nov. 18, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Hubbard Hall.)

Reminder: The authors of TWU's most recent report on "Gender Differences in Career Attitudes for Female Dominated Professions: The Case of Physical Therapy" were interviewed for Dallas public television's program "The McCuiston Show" in late August. Dr. Mona Hersh-Cochran (business and economics), Dr. Carolyn Rozier (Physical Therapy) and graduate student Audrey Whitright (business and economics) were interviewed as part of a program that will focus on "Women in Business: Historically Underutilized." The first segment of this two-part series will address the issues of discrimination, harassment, and fair and equal pay. (Part II is titled "Successful Women Entrepreneurs and Executives.") The program will air on KERA-TV (channel 13) and KDTN-TV (channel 2) at 1 and 11 p.m. on Sun., Oct. 1. (Note: this is a change in date and time since the last issue of Update was published.)

Reminder: Dr. Emily Harbold (academic support services) has changed her telephone number to ext. 3950. The assistant dean's previous number was ext. 3328.

Reminder: The TWU Child Development Center again is seeking participants for the "Rivers, Rocks and Trees" volunteer program. The program gives faculty, staff, students and community members an opportunity to share their special talents, interests and time with children ages 18 months to five years. Volunteers may give from one hour per semester to weekly participation in the classroom. "Rivers, Rocks and Trees" represents the CDC staff's desire to foster children's learning through the experience of others. For details, call graduate assistant Beverly Sue Griffiea at ext. 2321.

The TWU Blagg-Huey Library is presenting a photographic exhibit titled "The Deep South, The Daleville Series, 1950-1951," by Ferne Koch of Dallas through Sept. 29 on the first floor of the library. This series of photographs was taken of community life when Koch's husband was stationed in Daleville, Ala. The exhibit, which is free and open to the public, includes 13 photographs and comments by the photographer's subjects. For details, call ext. 3752.
