FACULTY SENATE SUPPORTS SURLS, ADDRESSES CLASS SCHEDULING

At its Jan. 20 meeting, the Faculty Senate unanimously approved a motion to draft a resolution supporting TWU President Carol Surles' plan to reconstitute the Strategic Planning Committee as a body whose primary task will be to preserve the university's mission.

In a report to the senate earlier in the meeting, Surles said the new Strategic Planning Committee "essentially will be the task force requested by the regents." Its charge, she explained, "will be to preserve the mission of Texas Woman's University and to mitigate any adverse impact on the mission by the recent changes in the admissions policy."

Surles said she hopes the committee will be able to meet for the first time around March 1.

Also in her report to the senate, Surles said she wanted to assure senators, as she has been assuring alumni, community leaders and others, that the university continues to function with purpose and determination during the legal challenge to the regents' decision to change TWU's admissions policy.

"We're disciplined. We're focused," she said. "We have 10,000 students to educate; we have a university that we must operate economically. My posture is to move forward and to work with students and all of our other constituencies to ensure that we don't allow ourselves to be derailed during this process."

Surles also told senators she wants TWU to become a resource and a repository for information on women and women's issues. Two initiatives that soon will be announced, she said, are the appointment of a university historian and the selection of the first TWU Ambassadors -- outstanding students who will represent the university at official functions. The minimum SAT test score for admission to the university also has been raised to 800, she said, in keeping with similar requirements at other state universities.

Among other initiatives under consideration, Surles added, are incentives to encourage faculty scholarship; human resources training for faculty and staff; the creation of an honors program; increasing environmental awareness and compliance; and forming a quill and scroll club.

Regarding the issue of class scheduling, the senate approved a resolution recommending the appointment of a task force of administrators, faculty, staff and students charged with "examining and considering the scheduling of classes" and with the additional "responsibility of proposing any changes to be made in the format of classes or the way in which classes (are) scheduled."

The resolution calls for the task force to complete its work during the spring and summer semesters and to report to the senate and the university during the fall semester. The resolution was approved by an 18 to 5 vote, with 2 abstentions.

In reports from standing committees, Dr. Stan Ivie (educational leadership), academic freedom and responsibility, said the revised document to evaluate adjunct and part-time faculty would be voted on at the next meeting. Peggy Lazurus (early childhood and special education), elections, reported that her committee had clarified the parameters of the various senate committees and will complete a chart for distribution.

Dana Gibson (business and economics), budget and planning, said she had been told by Surles that faculty salaries are a "top priority." Gibson also said the response to the course fee survey was excellent. Roger Shipley (health studies), administrator evaluation, asked for suggestions to improve this year's evaluation process, which will take place April 3-14. Security is again of the utmost priority, he said, and it is imperative that those who chose not to complete the survey return any blank forms.

The senate's next meeting is scheduled at 10 a.m. on Fri., Feb. 10, SC 207.

TWO ADMINISTRATORS GET NEW TITLES

Dr. Michael Laman and Dr. Kathryn Stream, executive directors for the Institute of Health Sciences Dallas and Houston Centers, respectively, have been reclassified by Dr. Carol Surles (president's office) as associate vice presidents, effective immediately.

"After my arrival, I discovered that the previous administration had initiated a review of the executive directors' positions at the Dallas and Houston Centers, but they were held in abeyance until my appointment," said Surles in a Feb. 3 memorandum to university administrators. "Having completed the review, I have taken steps to laterally reclassify the executive directors of the Houston and Dallas centers to associate vice presidents. The title changes were made to describe more clearly the function of these positions within the university and to clarify their relative standing within the present administrative structure."

Surles added that the relationship of the centers within the university will be discussed during an upcoming retreat of the executive staff as they review the operational needs of the Dallas and Houston centers. "Our objective is to maximize their efficiency," she explained. "The title changes of the directors also will convey more clearly to the service areas in which the centers exist, the authority of these positions to speak on behalf of the executive staff in a broad range of matters."

While TWU's vice presidents will retain line authority for the functions that presently report to them, Stream and Laman will have more clear authority to make daily operational decisions in many areas at the Houston and Dallas centers.

"Responsibility for quality of service and matters related to compliance at all TWU sites is retained by the vice presidents," said Surles. "In this context, the newly-classified associate vice presidents will confer and consult with the vice presidents on functions that report to them. Thus, the associate vice presidents retain their dotted line to the vice presidents and continue to report directly to the president."

ACTIVITIES FOR BLACK HISTORY MONTH SLATED

While several programs were held last week, a full calendar of activities at TWU celebrating Black History Month has been scheduled so that students, faculty, staff and members of the community can share experiences throughout February. The year's theme for Black History Month at TWU is "Empowered by the Past, Focused on the Future." A number of events are slated this week:

- Movie night -- Mon., Feb. 6, "Imitation of Life," 7-9 p.m., Guinn Hall TV room;
- Film series -- Mon., Feb. 6, "Black Achievements in American History," facilitated by Dr. Evelyn Curry (Library and Information Studies), 12:15 p.m., SC 207-208;
- Panel discussion -- Tues., Feb. 7, "Can Blacks and Whites Be Friends," 4:30 to 6:30 p.m., SC 006-007;
- Panel discussion -- Tues., Feb. 7, "Black History Month: A Month of Celebration or a Lifetime Learning Experience," featuring faculty, staff and students, 7 p.m., Guinn commons;
- Concert -- Wed., Feb. 8, 7 to 9 p.m., SC "Underground";
- Soul food dinner -- Thurs., Feb. 9, $2 per person, 5:30 p.m., SC "Underground";
- Trip to the Museum of African-American Art and Culture -- Sat., Feb. 11, 10 a.m., depart from SC lobby.

These and other events are sponsored by SOAP's multicultural committee, talks and topics committee, concert committee, and trips and travel committee. Other sponsoring organizations include TWU's residence hall association, office of intercultural services, human relations committee, TWU Anointed Voices for Christ, the African-American Student Alliance, the Ryan High School department of performing arts, the University of North Texas and Marriott dining services. For more information, call the office of student activities at ext. 3611.

CHICAGO SHARES CENTER STAGE WITH ART

TWU's award-winning production of the musical vaudeville "Chicago" will share center stage with the visual and performing arts when the gift of a TWU alumna is dedicated during special ceremonies on Sat., Feb. 11. "Trajectory," a bronze statue cast by internationally renowned sculptor Victor Salmenes, will be dedicated in the courtyard of Redbud Theatre at 7:30 p.m., followed by a reception and that night's performance of "Chicago." Tickets for the evening's events are $25 per person, and all proceeds will benefit "Chicago's" trip to Fayetteville, Ark., this month for the regional competition of the American College Theatre Festival.

"Trajectory," donated by Carol Frierson Johnson, has an impressive history. At one time, the bronze dancer sat silhouetted against the Manhattan skyline in a window of the Olympic Towers as part of a collection owned by Octaviano Longorias. More recently, it was installed in the lobby of the Dallas Repertory Theatre in Northpark Center in Dallas. When that theater closed its doors, Johnson rescued the bronze and donated it to Redbud Theatre at TWU to honor her father, James Eugene Frierson, who, as his daughter says on the statue's inscription, "lovingly taught by example that living itself is an art form."

Johnson began her career at TWU as a dance major, interrupted that course to create her own business and then returned as a drama major to complete her studies. "The statue not only brings together several areas of the alum's interests, but also points the women of TWU toward similar mergings of art with life," said Charles Harrill (performing arts-drama).

"The bronze is an apt symbol for the work of play-production that always is in progress at Redbud Theatre," added Harrill. "Its strong female figure holds up the mask of art not only as a shield but also as the very object of her life's trajectory. The theatre is grateful to Carol Frierson Johnson for her continuing love of art and for her faithfulness to TWU." Glenn McFadden (campus architect) designed the pedestal, base and viewing area in the Redbud Theatre courtyard.

"Trajectory" is one of Salmones' many works that have garnered national and international attention. The sculptor, who trained under the famous Bauhaus master Hoffman at the Mexican National Institute of Fine Arts, creates mainly in bronze, using the exacting, centuries-old lost wax a process of casting. Each of his bronzes is a numbered original in a series of 10. His themes are as varied as humanity, and his aim is "capturing emotion in motion," according to a European critic. Some of his other works are displayed in Colombia, Switzerland and other U.S. cities, including Houston and Los Angeles.

For more information, call ext. 2525; for tickets to the dedication, reception and Saturday performance of "Chicago," call the theatre box office at ext. 2020. Other performance dates for the vaudeville production are Feb. 8-10 at 8 p.m. and Feb. 11 at 2 p.m. Tickets for those performances are $10 for adults (non-students); $7 for students, senior citizens, and TWU faculty and staff; and $5 for TWU students with valid identification.

A "Chicago" note: TWU's production is one of 52 plays selected nationally for presentation at the regional festival level, according to John Lion, director of the Kennedy Center/American College Theatre Festival. More than 900 plays were entered in KC/ACTF competitions this year. From the 52 regional plays, five to seven will be selected for presentation at the non-competitive showcase at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., April 17-25.

MAKE A DATE FOR INAUGURAL ACTIVITIES

As the inauguration of Dr. Carol Surles as the ninth president of TWU draws near, all faculty, staff, students, alumni and community members are invited to make plans to attend the event in Margo Jones Performance Hall at 2 p.m. on Fri., Feb. 17 -- also Founders' Day. A week of programs and activities is scheduled that will celebrate both the university and Surles' inauguration. The Academic Festival, a tree planting ceremony and the procession to inauguration will be memorable. (See the Jan. 30, 1995, issue of Update for the Academic Festival schedule.)

Remember: The entire campus community may attend the inaugural ceremony. Classes will be canceled in Denton only from 2 to 3:30 p.m. so that students can participate in the ceremony; Denton offices will be open all day, except from 2 to 3:30 p.m., for the event. Units that provide essential services -- for example, central meal service, the Child Development Center and the department of public safety -- will remain open throughout the day.

During the inauguration, Dr. Lavon Fulwiler (professor emerita, English) will present the history of TWU, which she also wrote for the printed program. Greeters will deliver brief messages to the university and Surles upon her inauguration; they will represent faculty, staff, students, former students, the city of Denton, the state of Texas and several other states where the president previously worked and lived. Several musical pieces will be performed, and Surles will deliver the inaugural address.

Preparations and materials have been planned by the inauguration committee, chaired by Dr. Wilkes Berry (academic affairs). Other committee members include: Carl Anderson (community representative, Bill Utter Ford); Yolanda Armstrong (graduate student, counseling and development); Dr. Thomas K. Brown (performing arts-music); Rosena Clarke-Turner (sociology and social work); Dr. Ronald Fannin (Faculty Senate); Dr. Lavon B. Fulwiler (Cornaro professor emerita, English); Dr. Carole Funk (educational leadership); Dr. Nancy Glick (dental hygiene); Kay Goodman (Denton County National Alumnae Association); Roy Harline (performing arts); Ann Hatch (public information); Judy Hildebrandt (Student Center); Dr. Michael Laman (Dallas Center); Dr. Frank Longoria (English, speech and foreign languages); Dr. Carolyn Rozier (Physical Therapy); Donna Ryan (alumnae office); Dr. Kathryn Stream (Houston Center); Bobby Trevino (physical plant); Dr. Veva Vonler (Graduate School); Mark Washburn (food services); and Ann Wilkinson (president's office).

Reminder: The platform party, marshals, presidential escort and the president will process from the ground level of ACT (weather permitting), beginning at 1:50 p.m., down Redbud Lane to Margo Jones. Faculty who plan to participate in the procession should arrive at 1:30 p.m. in their regalia at ACT. If the weather is bad, everyone is asked to meet at 1:30 p.m. on the second floor of Margo Jones. The platform party will robe in a separate location and join the faculty, escort and Surles before the procession begins.

LIST OF RECYCLABLE PAPERS HAS EXPANDED

TWU faculty, staff and students who wish to recycle paper on campus are reminded by the conservation and recycling committee that the list of recyclable papers has expanded to include white and muted color office paper, computer paper, carbonless forms, white envelopes, coated papers (except wax- and plastic-coated), fax paper, and manila and pastel file folders (without self-stick labels).

"We ask everyone to reduce, reuse and recycle paper on campus," said Dr. Harry Meeuwssen (kinesiology), who chairs the committee. "Thank you for your continued commitment to recycling and to improving the environment we live in."

The following materials should not be recycled: pressure-sensitive glue labels, brown kraft paper, waxed or plastic-coated papers, paper ream wrappers, newspapers, magazines, telephone books, carbon or trash.

It is estimated that Texans bury approximately six million tons of paper (41 percent) in landfills each year. The average cost of landfilling solid waste (of which 60 percent can be recycled) is $18 per ton but is likely to go up as space becomes more difficult to find and regulations become more strict. Reducing and recycling 40 percent of landfill volume will extend landfill capacity across Texas by 8 years, according to Clean Texas 2000.

To reduce waste at the source: make photocopies on both sides of the paper sheet; use electronic mail or route slips in the office; centralize files to eliminate duplication; respond to memos on the bottom or the back of the same sheet; and drink from a reusable coffee cup or mug at work...bring it to meetings.

Some other tips include: reuse packaging to ship materials; recharge toner cartridges and ribbons; purchase refillable cartridge pens instead of disposables; pass magazines and newspapers around the office instead of duplicating subscriptions; and reuse envelopes and file folders.

NEWSBRIEFS

The service recognition program in Denton for faculty and staff has been moved from Feb. 9 to March 6, 1995, at 3 p.m. For details, call Tony Crow (human resources) at ext. 3555.

Transfer Day for prospective students will be held on Sat., March 4, by the office of admissions. "This event targets students who have attended other colleges or universities and who would like to complete their studies at TWU," said Norma Martinez (admissions). Faculty representatives will discuss degree plan options, and staff members from both admissions and financial aid will offer advise to participants about transfer of credits and financial aid information. An optional campus tour will be scheduled. For details, call Martinez at ext. 3016.

TWU may have a "first" on the Internet when the office of academic computing puts digital photographs of events on line. Staff using the university's digital camera will cover events, load about eight shots from each program and feed them to the world of cyberspace. Bobbie Ferrell and her staff will provide more information about accessing the digital images at a later date.

An exhibit that focuses on women in the Pacific War will open on Feb. 15 on the second floor of the Blagg-Huey Library. The free exhibit will feature a photographic essay that portrays the experiences of women in the military reserves and as civilians during World War II. For details, call ext. 2665.

The human relations film series will present "Leadership: 20 Skills for Women" on Wed., Feb. 15, at 12:15 p.m., SC 006-007. The series, sponsored by the office of student life, will present several films and programs throughout the semester. Any member of the university community can attend free of charge. For more information, call ext. 3601.

Reminder: Financial Aid Awareness Week begins Feb. 6 with a faculty and staff financial aid workshop from 12:15 to 1 p.m., ACT 601. Bring questions and a brown bag lunch; participants will find out about the impact of financial aid eligibility in relation to students who drop classes, fail classes or enroll less than full time, plus student teaching, undecided majors and the non-degree seeking status. Call ext. 3056 for details. Other activities this week include:

- Tues., Feb. 7 -- Financial aid information table, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., Student Center.
  - Wed., Feb. 8 -- Financial aid open house, 2 to 4:30 p.m., office of financial aid.
- Refreshments and tours will be offered, and students can see how their files are processed. Also...Financial aid information table, 4 to 7 p.m., Guinn/Stark Commons.

- Thurs., Feb. 9 -- Financial aid information table, 3 to 6 p.m., Blagg-Huey Library.
- Sat. and Sun., Feb. 11-12 -- A spring 1995 financial aid hotline will be open for calls from students who have financial aid questions or who need help filling out forms. Interested persons can call 1-800-323-3961 for assistance on this statewide line, which is sponsored by the Texas Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators and Texas Commerce Bank.

The SITE Lab will open on Feb. 14 from 2 to 4 p.m. The SITE (Software and Instructional Technology Exploration) Lab is designed to stimulate the creative development and use of multimedia applications. Staff and faculty members from the office of academic computing and the Blagg-Huey Library invite the campus community to attend the "official opening" of the SITE lab, located on the garden level of the library. Visitors will learn more about the "availability of specialized hardware and software in the lab that provides opportunities for discovery and innovation in the use of instructional technology," said Elizabeth Snapp (library). For additional announcements about tours, reservations and hours, call ext. 3789.

School of Library and Information Studies students will present two nights of "Preschool Storytime" for 3-, 4- and 5-year olds in the library science library on first floor of Stoddard Hall on Feb. 21 and 28 from 6 to 8 p.m. The first evening's stories will include tales about pigs, balloons, mice and dinosaurs. On the second night, students will highlight stories about lions, dogs, colors and the beach. Each presentation, about 25 minutes long, will be done by students in Dr. Frances Dowd's class "Youth Programs in School and Public Libraries." For more information, call Ruth Dishnow (Library and Information Studies) at ext. 2602.

Note: The Wellness Center's exercise and movement sessions from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m., JH 119, on Tuesdays and Thursdays are open to members only. (These classes should not be confused with actual stretch breaks done by Wellness Center staff who visit offices and departments on site for faculty and staff.) "The lunchtime sessions are going great. Take 30 minutes from your lunch and join the group for only $10 per month," said Dr. Linda King (Wellness Center). For more information, call ext. 2900.

A "Sweetheart Book Sale" will be held on Thurs. and Fri., Feb. 9 and 10, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Blagg-Huey Library. "Come to the garden level of the library and fill up a box with books, periodicals, tapes, videos, teaching kits and records for $3 per box," said Dr. James Galloway (library). "Fill as many boxes as you wish." Boxes will be supplied, and -- if needed -- help will be available to load selections from the library dock into cars. Any proceeds will go to the Friends of the TWU Libraries. First come, first served...while selections last! For details, call Galloway at ext. 3707.

Reminder: TWU's sixth annual retirement dinner will held on April 25 at 6:30 p.m. in Hubbard Hall. Names of retirees should be submitted as soon as possible. Anyone who has questions should call ext. 3555 or 8-1-3555.

SOS: The Student Opinion Survey was mailed today to 1,200 randomly selected TWU students who were enrolled during the fall semester to find out more about their campus experiences and thoughts about life at TWU. Faculty members are asked to encourage those students who received forms to fill them out and return them by March 1. For more information, call Dr. Glenda Simmons (student life) at ext. 3601.

Reminder: TWU is seeking nominations of staff members who may be selected to receive the 1995 Outstanding Achievement Awards and the Award of Excellence. Anyone who is interested in nominating a staff member for either award must submit the name and appropriate information to the department of human resources no later than Fri., Feb. 17, 1995. A nomination form can be requested from that office by calling ext. 3555.

Hypnosis for stress and hypnosis for smoking are both available through the TWU Wellness Center for interested persons. Each area of need requires three sessions, conducted by Ann Schiola, certified medical hypnotherapist. For more information, call the Wellness Center at ext. 2900 or Schiola at (817) 387-2980.

Construction of the Movement Science Complex was approved by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board on Fri., Jan. 27. The $15 million building will replace the HPER Building. The department of kinesiology and programs in dance will move to the new complex, which also will house classrooms, offices, research laboratories, dance studios, a gymnasium, racquetball courts, a weight room, pool and locker rooms within its 137,000 square feet of space.
