FOREIGN LANGUAGE

A student who does not offer foreign language for admission is ad-mitted to freshman standing. It is advisable, however, for a student to plan her high school work so as to include at least two admission units in a for-eign language. Failure of a student to offer two admission units will not deprive the student of full college admission, but such a student will be required to take six hours of foreign language, before receiving a degree, above that required in the group in which the student is majoring. The six hours exacted because of failure to offer admission units in language may be counted as an elective toward graduation.

Information as to removal of conditions and other details are given in the regular catalogue.

The College of Industrial Arts, being the only State supported college for women in Texas, is in no sense of the word a local institution for the students come from every section of the State—more than 200 Texas counties.

The College of Industrial Arts pioneered in the field of home-making by establishing the first State-supported department of home economics in Texas. C. I. A. at present trains more teachers for the work of Vocational Home Economics Education and assists in securing positions for a larger percentage of those thus trained than any other college or university in the State. Texas employs 10 per cent. of all home demonstration agents in the United States. In the past decade from 33 to 40 per cent. of those employed in this State were trained at C. I. A.

C. I. A. maintains one of the strongest departments of music in the State. Four groups of courses leading to degrees afford the student opportunity to major in piano, voice, violin or organ. Practical courses are also arranged for those who wish to elect music.

The fine art department of C. I. A. offers work that is recognized to be on a par with that offered by ranking institutions throughout the United States. Prizes for creative work and for criticism have been won by C. I. A. in national competition with colleges, art schools and professionals.

C. I. A. is the only State-supported school in Texas offering a major in costume design, interior decoration, art in advertising, ceramics, crafts and illustration and painting.

C. I. A. stresses simplicity and economy. Students wear uniform dresses varied enough to permit individuality and modified each year to conform to the prevailing styles. Uniform conserves the student time and money and promotes a democratic spirit. The students themselves like the uniform, and have voted, by an overwhelming majority, to retain it whenever the question has been submitted to them.

In the whole Southwest there is no finer set-up for the development of many-sided interests in outdoor recreation for young women than is to be found at C. I. A. Over twenty acres have been set aside for athletic fields and for space for recreational activities. Instruction in golfing, horseback riding, tennis, volley ball, camping, swimming, canoeing and practically every type of recreation of interest to young women is offered.
