Take Time To Stop Here

Got a minute? Sure, everyone has . . . that's what the best years of our lives are made up of . . . minutes that together make up a time we'll never forget. And so the 1953 Daedalian has taken those magic minutes—and the uncountable everyday campus minutes—and woven them into this year's theme, Time.

This year, minutes and hours take on added meaning as we in the Golden Anniversary year look back at a half-century of progress and forward to what is yet to come. For you the 1953 Daedalian is made up of the best of this year—and every year—at TSCW.

To Yesterday

We pause a moment here to pay tribute to those who have gone before us, who with their hands, their hearts and their minds built the school which is now in our trust.

We remember the founders, men and women of vision who saw the need for a great women's college and worked to make it a reality . . . members of the faculty and administration whose constant guidance through the years kept alive the dream . . . and the students for whom the dream was built.

To every person who has ever loved or lived for TSCW . . .

We give our thanks.

To Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the day we are building for. To those of tomorrow we leave the dream that we have cherished and added to in four years of college . . . to them we turn over the material things we have built and the intangible spirit that is TSCW, knowing they will make it better for having been here.

Tomorrow others will walk where we have walked down campus lanes. Where we have built well, they may gain. Where we have built poorly, they may build again.

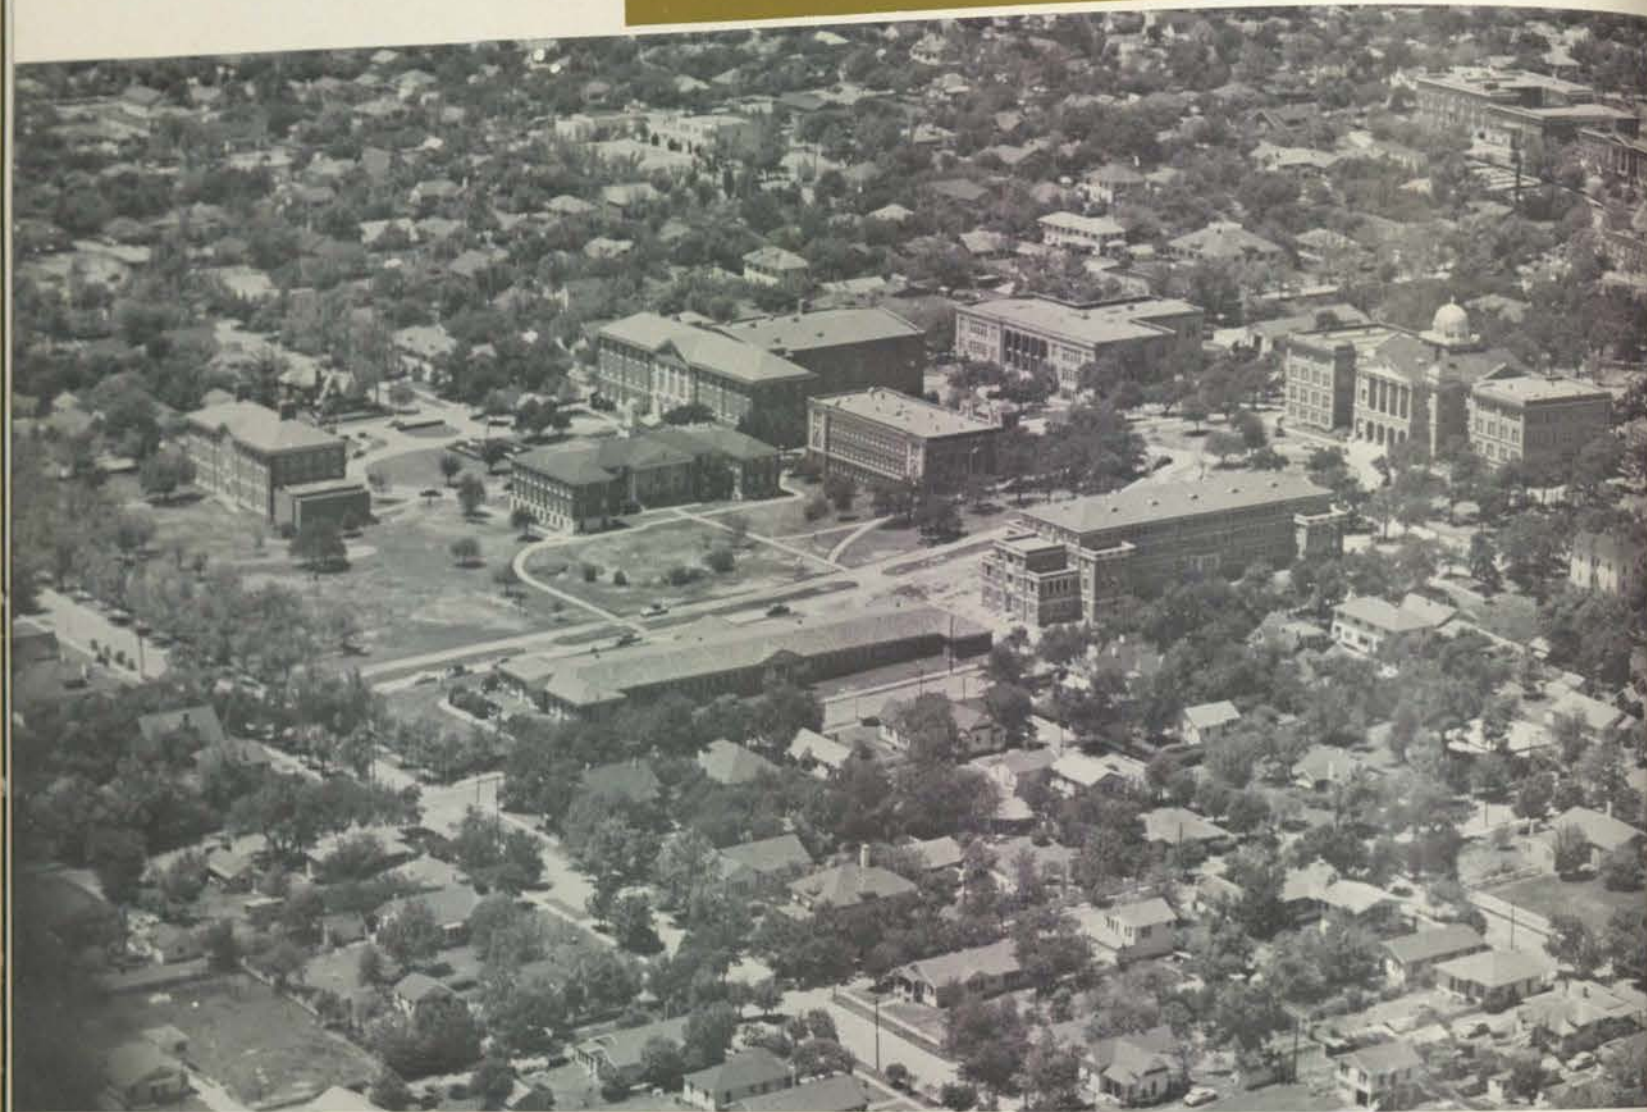

To every person who will love or live for TSCW . . .

We give our heritage.

TSCW through the Years

Through Tessie Lanes Go We

"On broad and rolling plains

'neath Texas skies"

... lies the campus of Texas State College for Women.

We, your daughters, have learned to love your natural beauty. It is engraved in our hearts, and we shall not soon forget

Redbud Lane in March...

Dormitory Row at dusk...

The hill leading to Stoddard...

Botanical Gardens in early fall...

The awakening of the campus to spring...

Trees silhouetted against a TSCW sunset...

The light on the Ad Building's dome...

These, and many other things, will we remember,

O, Alma Mater.

"We have the building ready . . . and the girls will be here"

It was early September of the year 1903 when Cree T. Work, first president of what now is Texas State College for Women, reined up as he traveled the tree-bordered, sandy road leading to the single class building just completed.

"I'm Cree Work, president of the new girls' college over on that hill," he introduced himself to a rider in from a ranch to the northwest. "Going to open in two weeks."

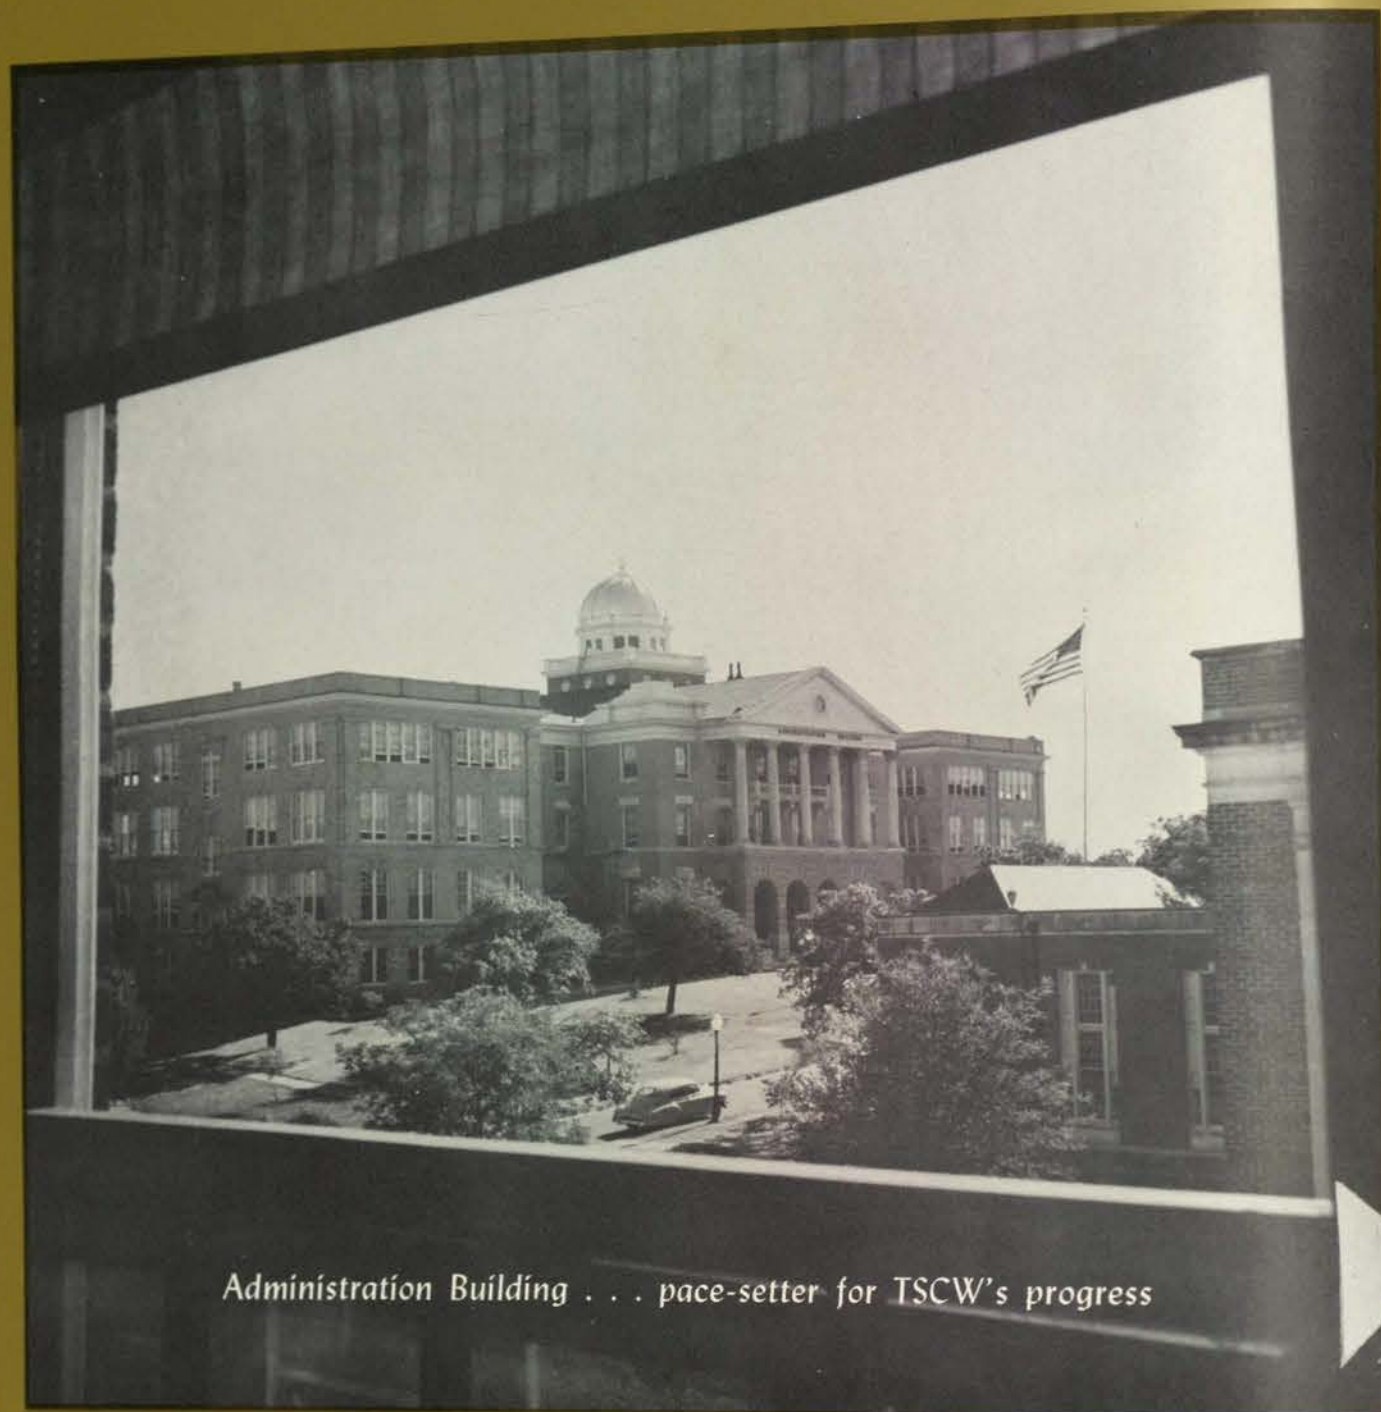

"Sure, I've seen all the building over there," the other replied. "But how do you know the girls will come to Denton?"

Work's eyes sparkled.

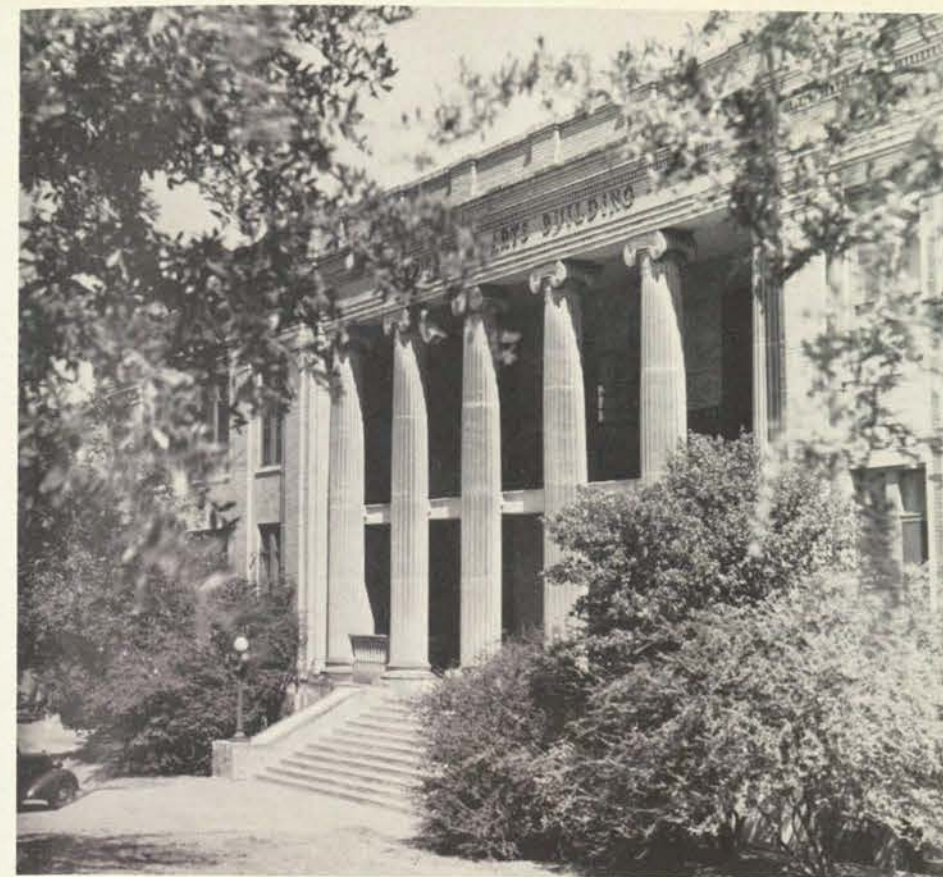

"We have the class building ready for them," he said. "And I've hired the faculty . . . the girls will be here."

And they were—186 of them the first year—and more and more after that until TSCW exes now number more than 50,000 with the college in its fiftieth consecutive session.

Those who came watched the new women's college grow from Work's first vision into a beautiful 220-acre wooded campus of sixty-five buildings . . . buildings where all of them "learned to do by doing."

Administration Building . . . pace-setter for TSCW's progress

Household Arts Building . . . from domestic science to scientific research

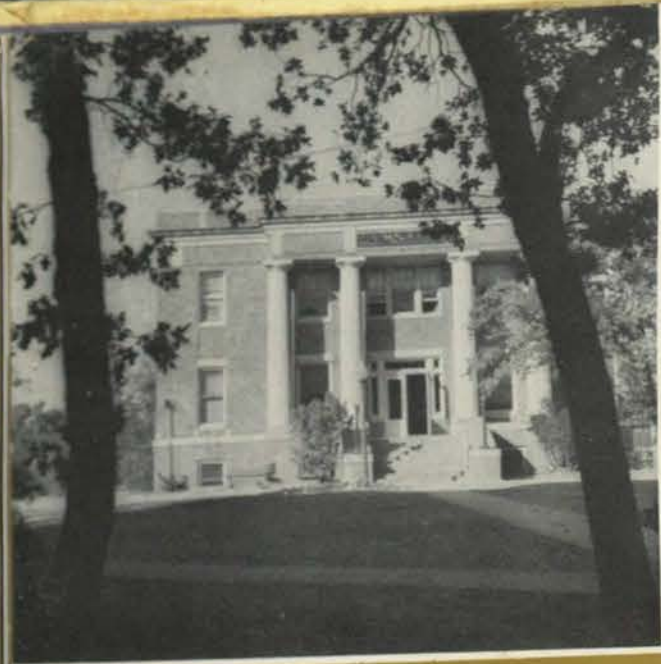

The yellow-bricked Household Arts Building, second of the educational buildings to rise on the TSCW campus, was completed in 1914. At that time courses in home economics were the most popular the college offered, giving truthful boast that TSCW installed the first laboratories in Texas for the teaching of cooking and sewing. These two subjects made up the backbone of the first home economics department, but early students also learned weaving, dairying, poultry-raising, laundrying and gardening, all centered under domestic arts.

During the almost forty years that home economics was taught in this building, an impressive list of firsts was credited to the college in that field, and TSCW's Department of Home Economics became recognized as one of the leading ones in the nation. Early basic courses in cooking and sewing grew into an integrated department offering degrees in eight phases of home economics.

Today the Household Arts Building that for so many years was the root of home economics at TSCW stands as an adjunct to the new College of Household Arts and Sciences, sheltering the most modern of its fields, scientific research. It also is the home of the Occupational Therapy Department, one of the newest of the professional fields open to TSCW students . . . a sharp contrast to the building's early days when women's activities primarily were focused on sewing and cooking.

Denton County's courthouse was surrounded by sand and flanked by an old-fashioned hitching post when wagons creaked back and forth from the brickyard to the wooded hill that was someday to become Texas State College for women. Those wagons were carrying the bricks for the building that would be the key-stone of TSCW's campus . . . the building whose dome would cover the center of knowledge of the world's foremost women's university.

The "class building" with which Cree Work began his dream of this great women's school was enlarged in 1914 by the addition of two wings, but its central portion is the same now as in the days when a stable stood nearby to shelter professors' horses and buggies. Even as it was completed, the Administration Building seemed destined to herald the opening of a new era, for at that same time the Wright Brothers were putting to sky their revolutionary "aero-plane," and Henry Ford was perfecting his motor car. TSCW, too, would stand for progress in its truest form.

Gymnasium . . . where we learn to live most and serve best

The Gymnasium, home of many of the facilities that make TSCW's Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation one of the finest in the nation, was built in 1922, coinciding with colleges' first offering in Texas of degrees in health and physical education.

Names of the department throughout the history of TSCW reveal growth in scope of curriculum as well as leadership in developments toward the present curriculum. "Education, physical culture and music" offered in early years of the college gave students opportunities to cultivate "correct poise and good presence." Later the department was formally organized under the heading of physical education. During this time active sports were taught for the first time.

As the department's activities widened, its name was changed to health and physical education, and in 1940 it became the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, a name that fully indicated the broad scope of its program.

Rural Arts Building . . .

where culture and horticulture meet

The Department of Rural Arts has undergone many changes in name, only to return to its first name, which indicates its real service. Of the 240 staff members and home demonstration agents serving Texas today, 30 per cent received their training at TSCW's department, centered in the Rural Arts Building that was constructed in 1920. The department offers a four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree in home demonstration—the only institution in the Southwest giving a major in this field.

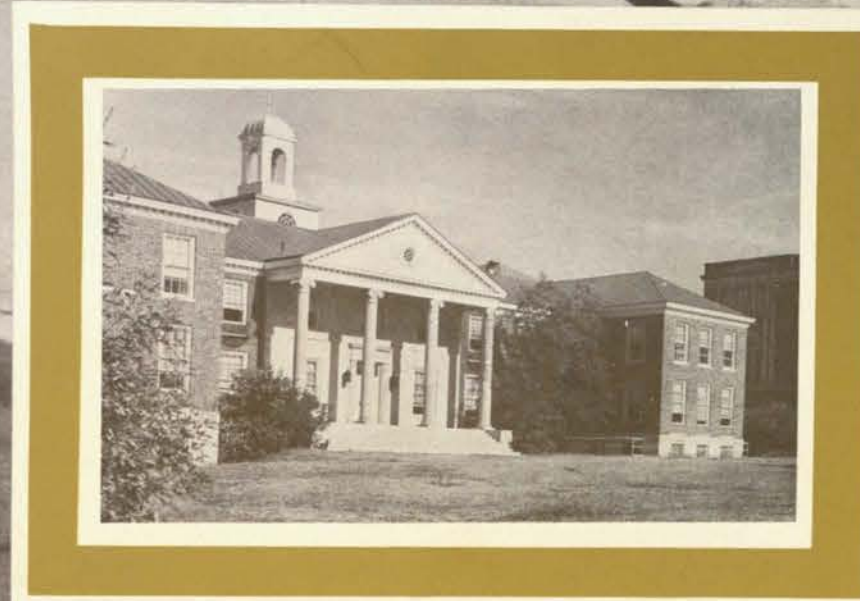

Willard Nursery School . . . where teaching isn't work at all Recognized as one of the finest nursery schools in the country, the Willard school was built in 1920, making TSCW the first state college in Texas to establish a nursery training program with a fully-equipped nursery school. Children ranging in age from two and one half to five years provide laboratory experience for students majoring in child development and nursery education and in home economics education, and also for students who elect courses in these fields in preparation for parenthood.

Bralley Memorial Library . . .

where archives of the past serve for the future

President F. M. Bralley's dream of a fully-equipped library came true in the autumn of 1926 when work was begun on the building that would bear his name but that he would never see before his death. After it was completed, the library enjoyed a constant book collection growth that eventually necessitated the addition in 1946 of two new wings, doubling the original stack space. The book collection of 135,000 volumes is growing now at the rate of 5,000 volumes annually.

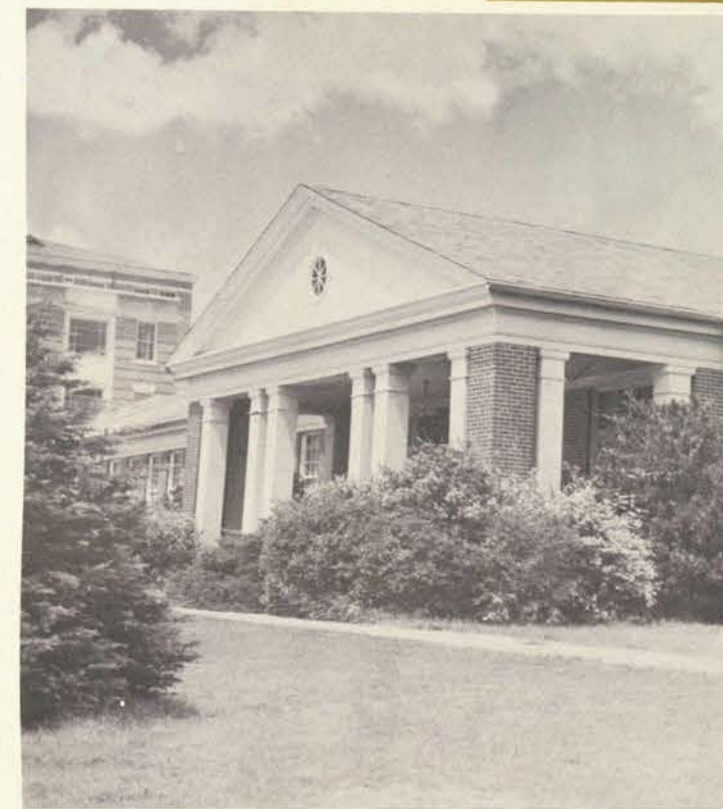

Music-Speech Building . . . where sound becomes artistic expression

Since it was completed in 1936, the Music-Speech Building has earned a place in all Tessies' hearts as one of the most well-known campus buildings. We remember it from our first assemblies, from the click of heels along its foyer at evening concerts, and from the drift of music that carries through its windows to the night air while lights in practice rooms burn long and bright.

Demonstration School . . . where the twig is bent

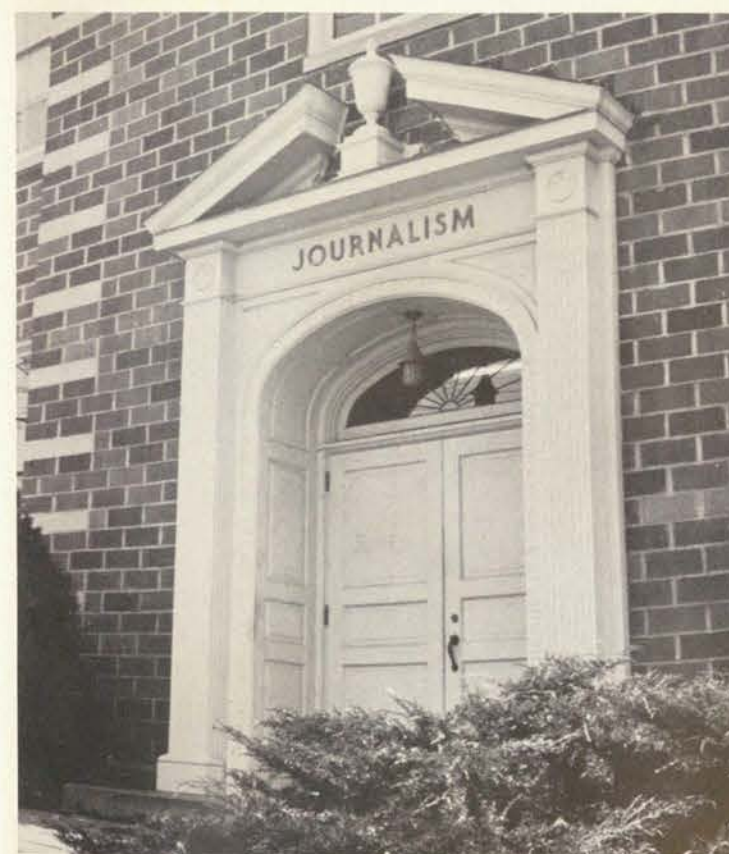

Student teaching, which began in 1916-17, was rewarded in 1941 with the completion of a modern and well-equipped school which provides supervised experience for students who plan to teach kindergarten, first, second, third, fourth, fifth or sixth-year classes.

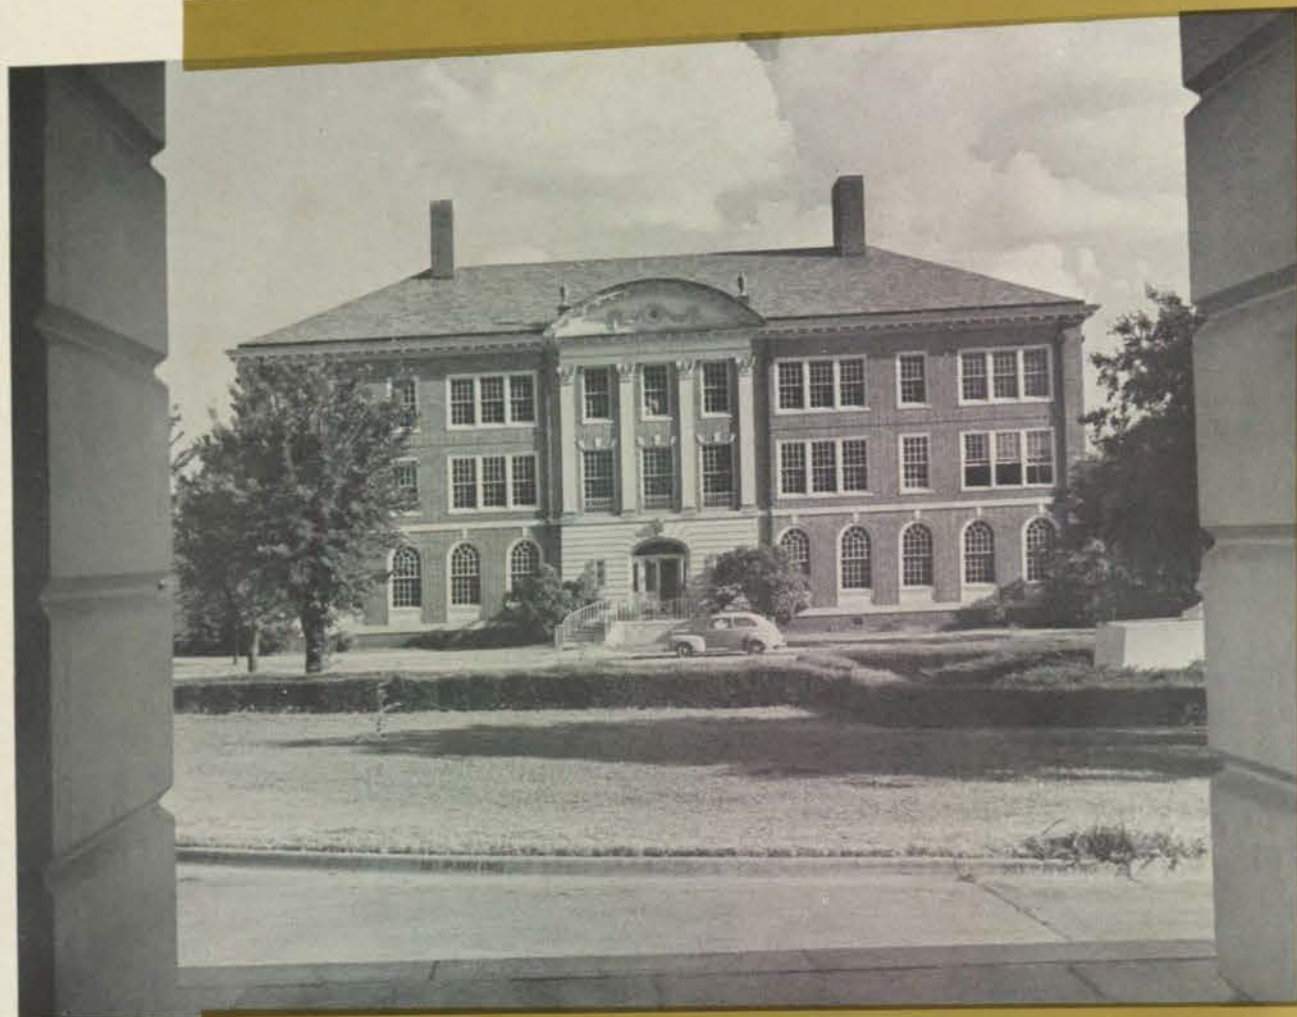

In the beginning, one of the college's departments was called "Psychology, Ethics and Manual Training." From this has grown a curriculum designed to fit the teacher for the honored place she holds in today's world.

Journalism Building . . . where beats the pulse of campus thinking

The humming of modern linotypes and the roar of fast presses that sound daily from the Journalism Building are a far cry from the first days of journalism at TSCW—days when journalistic work was placed under the Department of Manual Arts and a small bi-weekly sheet was the only written news dissemination. In 1925 the Department of Journalism was created, combining courses from English and manual arts, and soon after the Lass-O, a weekly newspaper, rolled from the presses. In 1941 the expanding department moved to a building equipped with facilities that patterned on a smaller scale a modern newspaper plant, and in 1945 the Lass-O became a daily newspaper designed not only as the best laboratory experiment for students but as a top-flight instrument for campus news coverage. Also within the walls of the Journalism Building, inspiration is initiated for the Daedalian Annual and Daedalian Quarterly . . . vital news about TSCW students is released to cities and towns over the Southwest . . . and the thoughts and ideas of those in the TSCW community are put into print.

Art Building . . . where the works of the masters mold the art of our age

In 1936 because of the increase in enrollment, teaching staff and courses, the Art Department left the crowded east end of the Administration Building to take up residence in a new and modern three-story structure which offers up-to-date equipment and more exhibition space.

Art was one of the original courses of study at TSCW. Like the college itself, the Art Department has not only kept abreast of the times, but has pioneered in its field. As the years passed, several degree groups were developed in the various branches of art to supply the needs and wants of the students. TSCW was the first college to offer graduate work in art.

Science Building . . . where test tubes and formulas melt into the science of tomorrow

Both major fields offered in the Science Building have deep roots in the past history of TSCW, since courses in chemistry and biology were offered at the first session of the college in 1903. The Department of Biology was one of the original areas of instruction, then called "Department of Biological Science and Geology." It has grown through the years until today degrees are offered in bacteriology, botany, pre-medical, zoology and introduction to medical technology.

Courses in chemistry and physics originally were offered as a service parallel to home economics, but today that department trains students for vital jobs in the vast field of professional chemistry. The Science Building, home of test tubes, microscopes and laboratories so important to these subjects, was built in 1935.

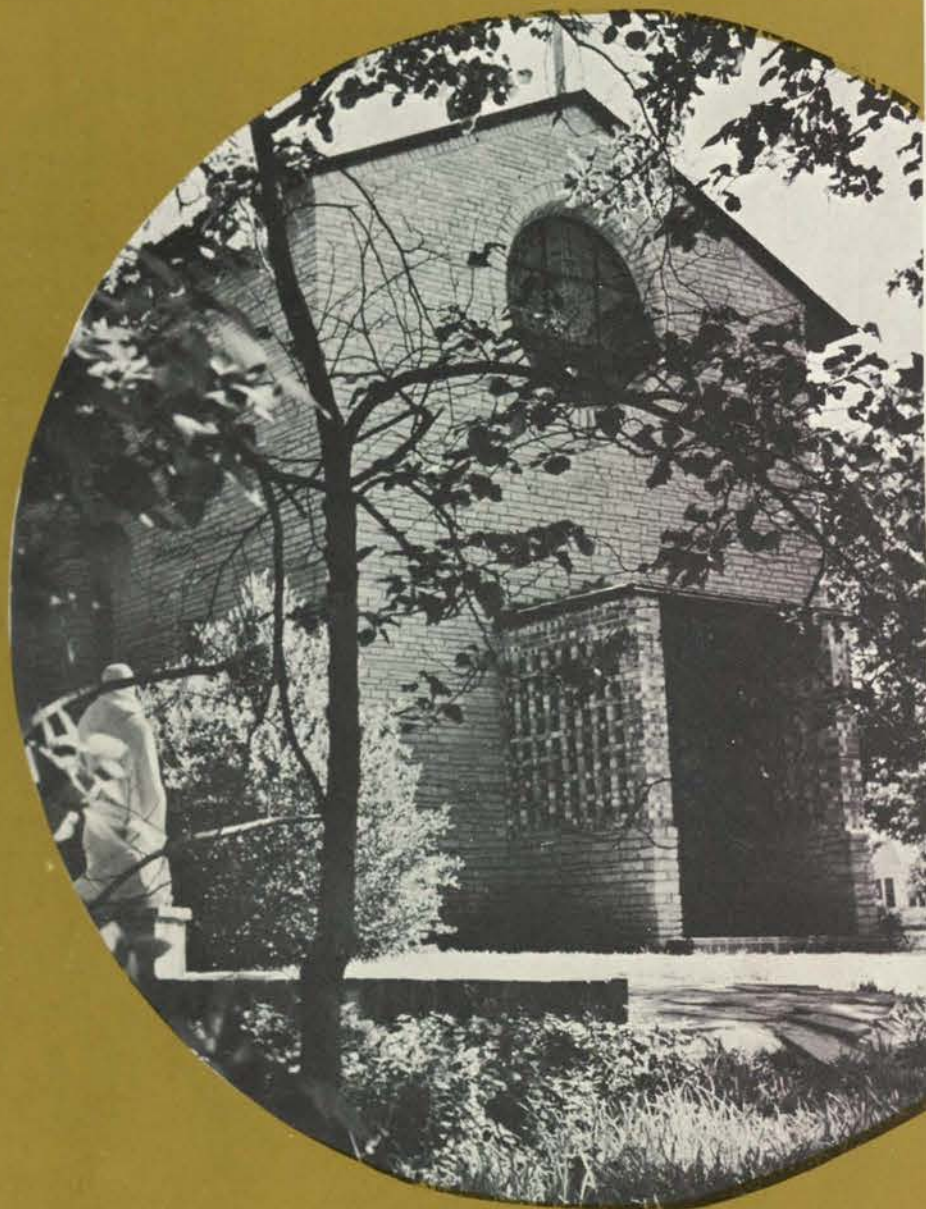

Hygeia . . .

home of inhalers, heat lamps and little white pills

Located at the crest of Lowry Woods, the modern, 25-bed College Hospital, dubbed Hygeia by students, was opened in the fall of 1935. Before that time, a smaller infirmary had been placed in old Burnett Hall.

Students suffering with anything from a bruised thumb to a sore throat, and all points between, may receive professional service from Hygeia's resident physician and five registered nurses. The hospital is equipped with two heat lamps, two ultraviolet lights and a laboratory and lab technician for necessary tests. Free health examinations also are given students as part of the college's modern health service.

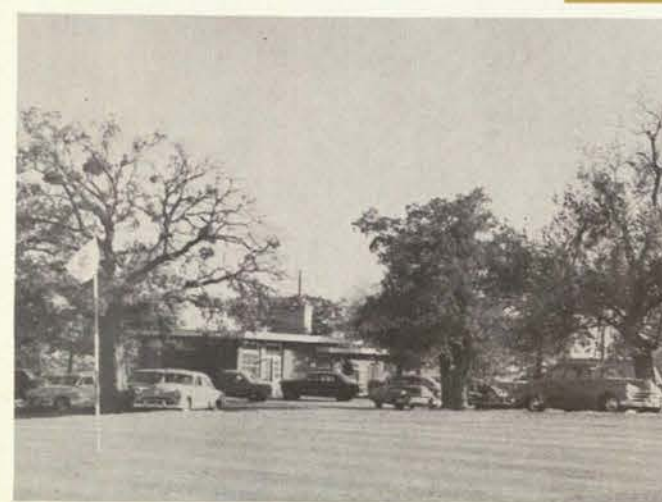

Little Chapel-in-the-Woods . . .

Though it is not a campus building she walks into every day . . . though it lies away from the regular paths of her campus . . . though it plays no role in her classwork and makes no mark on her degree, the Little Chapel-in-the-Woods early finds a special place in every TSCW student's heart. She may first see it from a classroom in the Ad Building . . . nestled against TSCW trees . . . or on a Sunday afternoon as it catches the sunlight. She may first go inside when the Chapel is alone, with lacy shadows moving gracefully beyond its stained windows . . . or she may choose a morning service, when shadowy stillness speaks with her own thoughts. And it is then she shares a closeness with every other person who has been a TSCW student since the Chapel was built fourteen years ago. For as it was fashioned by students, so has it been loved by them. And so it will be loved by those who come.

Union Building . . . where the twain of recreation and good fellowship meet

"Buy a brick for the Union Building" went the slogan . . . and Tessies bought, chipped in dimes and dollars or talent for fundraising campaigns until a long-time dream of the students' own Union Building came true. In 1941 the green-topped building was finished, complete with a spacious ballroom and recreation room for leisure hours. Its popularity is just payment for a long-term campaign to build "your U.B."

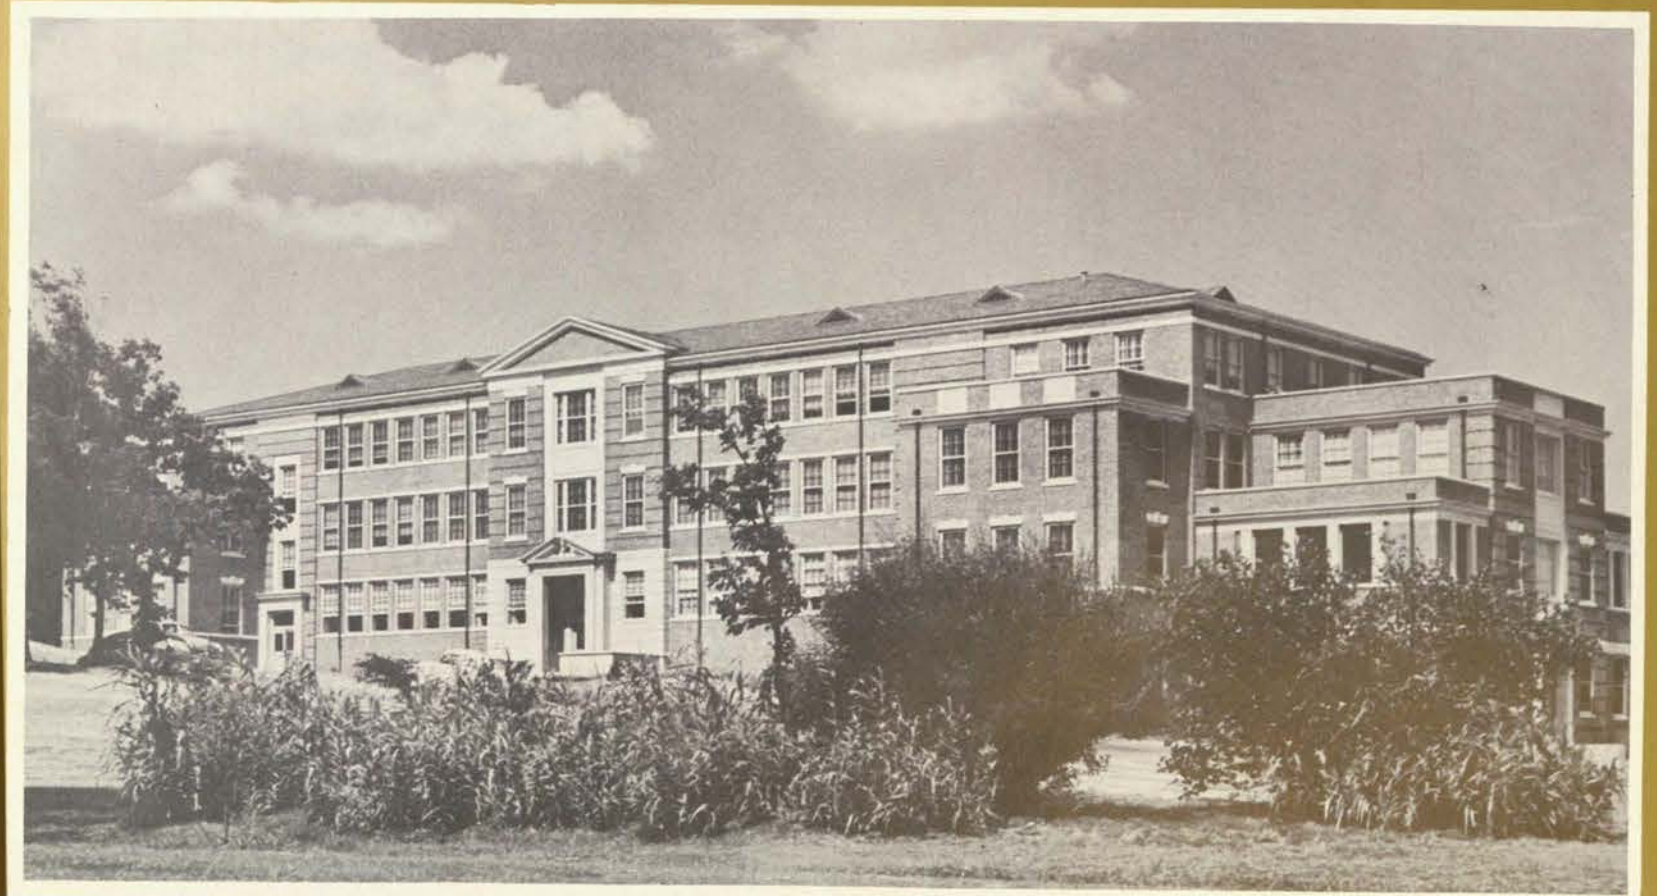

Golf Club House . . . keystone of TSCW's own golf course

The club house and TSCW's beautiful 18-hole wooded course were opened in 1939. Today the course, stretching beyond Smith-Carroll and the Union Building, is recognized as one of the finest on any college campus. The television-equipped club house serves as a recreation center, and its large open fireplace is a perfect invitation for parties and informal gatherings of students.

And So The Campus Grows

Hubbard Hall . . . Pride of the campus is the air-conditioned central dining unit that stretches into the size of a city block. Finished and formally dedicated in 1950, it was named in honor of President Emeritus L. H. Hubbard and in memory of his wife, Bertha Alitzer Hubbard. The spacious dining hall divides into four student dining rooms that can seat 2,500, a cafeteria, two banquet rooms and a vast central kitchen equipped with the most modern facilities.

College of Household Arts and Sciences . . . This newly-created College, housed in TSCW's newest instructional building, boasts completely modern equipment with ample laboratory and classroom space to enable continuing leadership in home economics training and research begun almost as soon as the college was founded fifty years ago. The four-story building, finished in 1952, includes an air-conditioned assembly hall, air-conditioned student lounge and a museum to house historical costumes and other household articles.

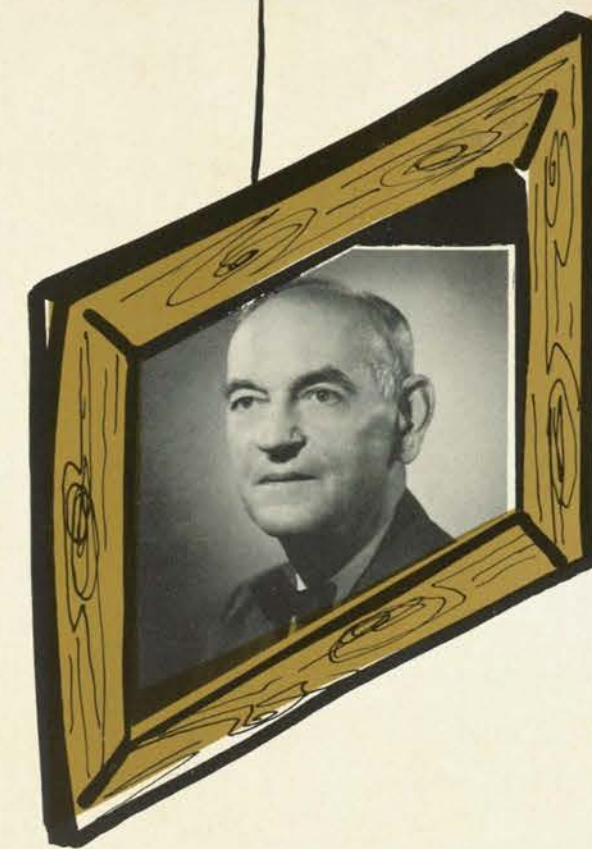

Profile of the Presidents

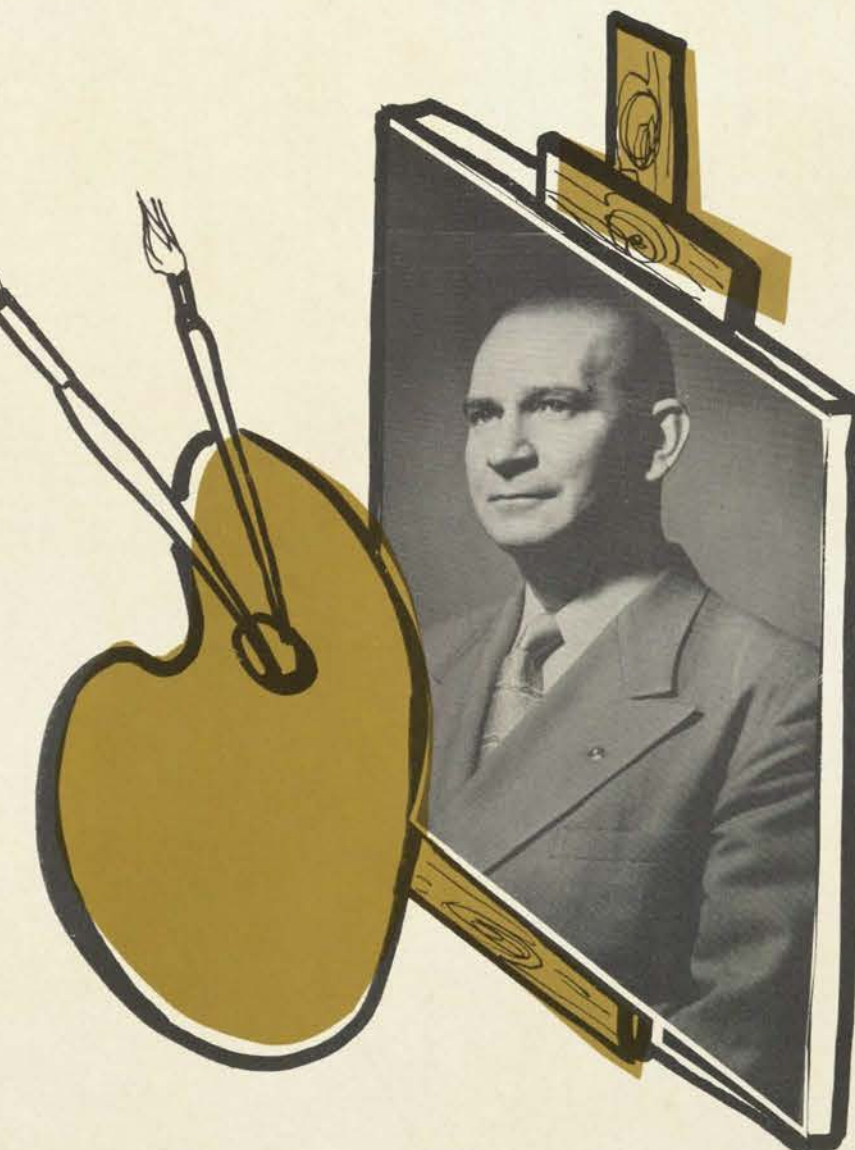

Cree T. Work, a small, mustached man with a firm belief in individual effort, was sworn in to pilot what is now TSCW during the first seven years of its existence . . . he molded practical courses never before dreamed of in colleges . . . and provided early incentive for TSCW's famous motto, "We learn to do by doing." Young, handsome and affable W. B. Bizzell gave new prestige to the school both in the state and before the legislature . . . he strengthened admission requirements and saw the first offering of full college degrees.

F. M. Bralley came to the helm of CIA in 1914 . . . a man of great vigor and eloquence. His dreams for the college came true as CIA was granted membership into the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The school continued its growth under the short administration of Dr. Lindsey Blayney . . . gaining admission into the American Association of University Women.

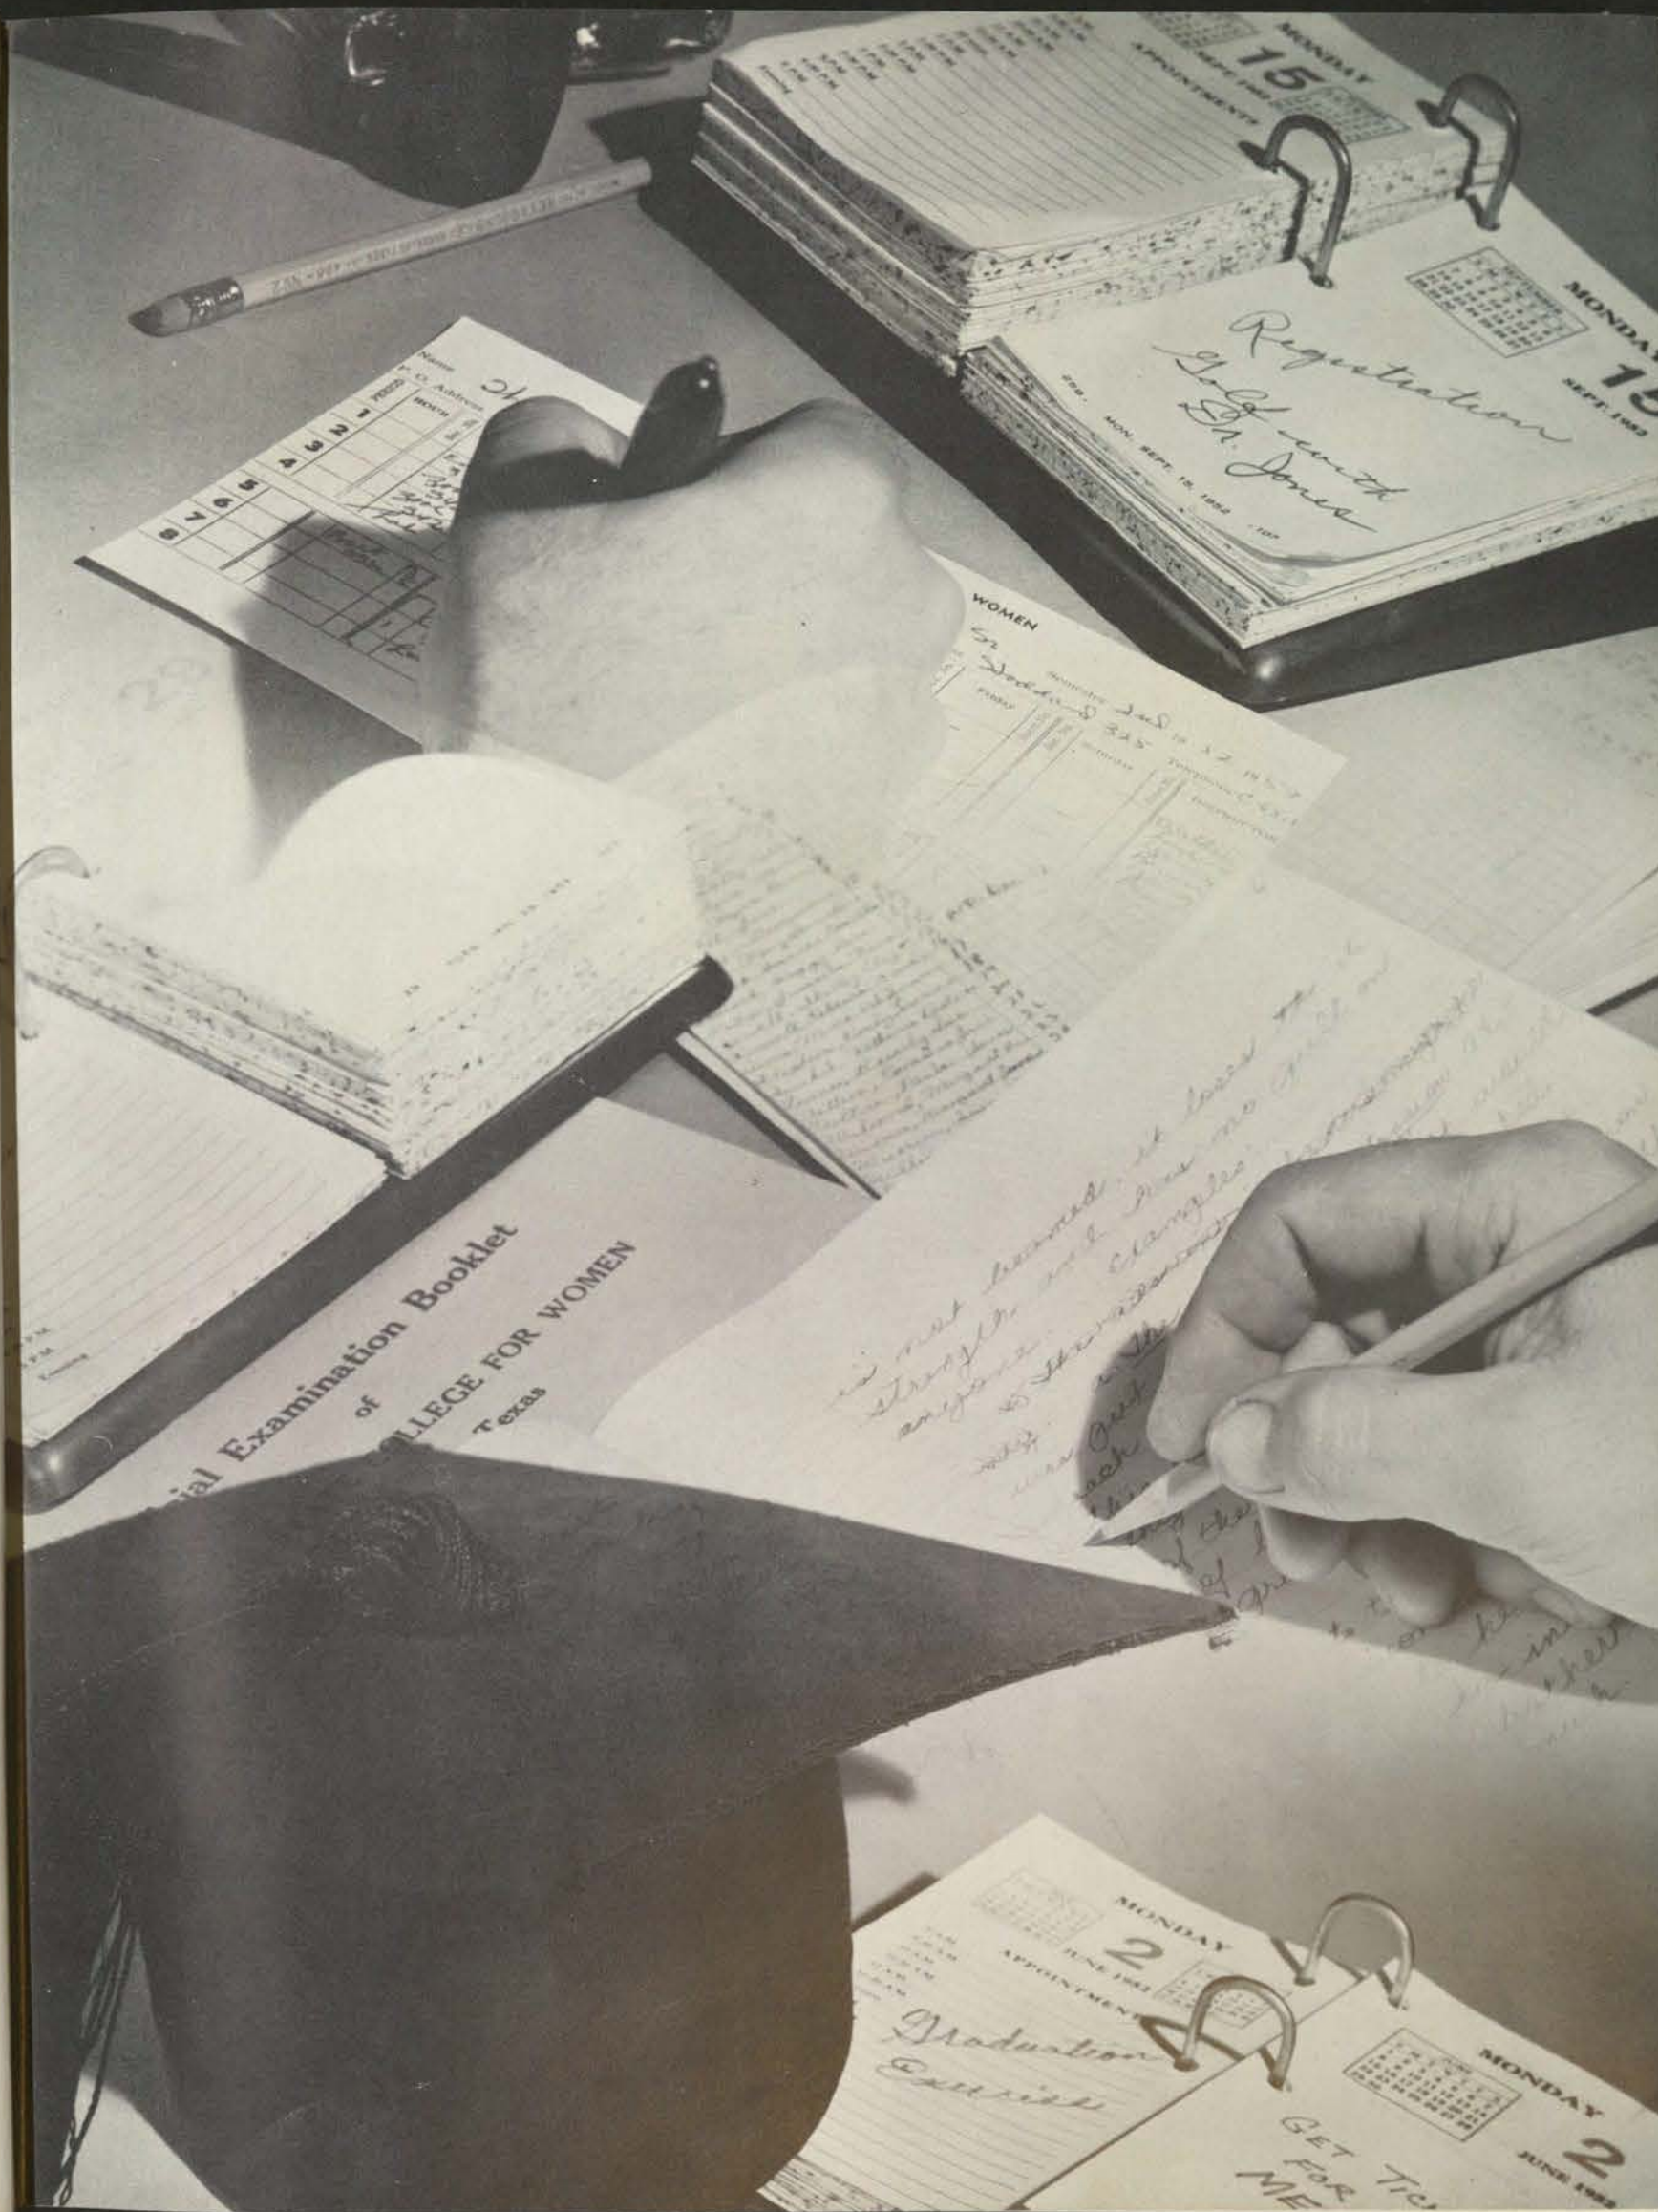

The man who had the greatest share in molding TSCW into the college it is today came quietly to the president's chair in the summer of 1926. Soon all Texas would hear of the record of President L. H. Hubbard at TSCW . . . his strengthening of college standards, his adding of a score of new major subjects, and his almost single-handed efforts toward securing legislative action for many of the modern buildings that now dot the campus. The portrait of John A. Guinn, TSCW's leader since 1951, is not yet complete, for today he still is on the easel of time, busy making a dream come true . . . a dream of a university that will be second to none in the training of women.

Since its organization June 5, 1905, the Ex-Students Association of TSCW has had an important part in the growth of the college. Projects now underway include aiding the college in development of the TSCW Foundation and establishment of additional local chapters throughout the nation.

Serving with Mrs. Ben Boyd, Ex-Students Association president, are Mrs. T. G. McGee, first vice-president; Miss Kate Adell Hill, second vice-president; Mrs. Henry Hodges, third vice-president; and Mrs. Myrtle D. Negy, fourth vice-president. Miss Tommie Walden is recording secretary and Mrs. L. G. Russell is treasurer.

MRS. BEN BOYD
President

MRS. T.G. MAGEE
First Vice-President

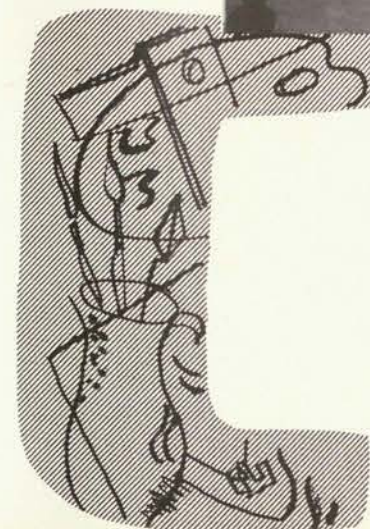

Listening to an album of TSCW records in the living room of the Ex-Students Center are Pat McGruder, resident of the center; Donna Tag, student assistant; and Mrs. Joyce Gassaway, secretary.

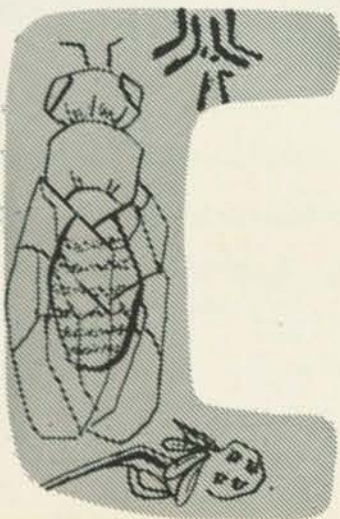

Mrs. Cara Boswell, director of the center, and Mrs. Gassaway, must keep accurate count of the cards that bulge in a general file listing all ex-students who have been affiliated with the Association. Their work helps strengthen the link between the college and its more than 50,000 former students.

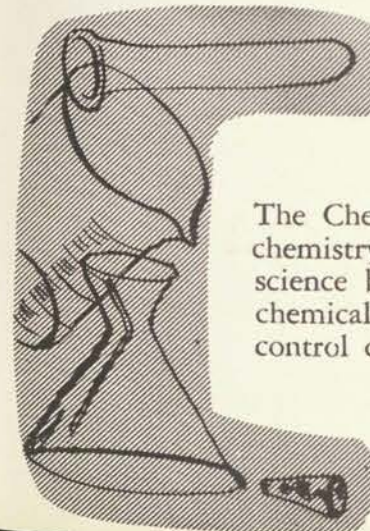

The record of TSCW's art department is one of art pioneering in the Southwest. The first state college in Texas to offer college credits and give degrees in most of the art fields, TSCW now offers majors in advertising design, art education, ceramics, costume design and fashion illustration, history of art, interior design, jewelry and metalwork, painting and sculpture.

More and more the fields of the biological sciences are providing opportunities for women in research, industry, education, technical and government positions. The biology department, one of the original departments of instruction of the college, includes the divisions of bacteriology, botany and zoology. A degree in biology from TSCW means thorough and sound training in the biological sciences.

The Chemistry Department has expanded steadily since the days when one year of chemistry was offered for home economic majors. With the future of women in science brighter than ever before, the curricula prepares students for employment as chemical research assistants, chemical librarians, chemical laboratory technicians and control chemists.

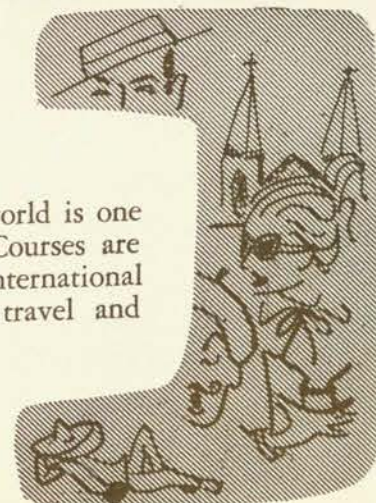

The need for new and greater skills in the fields of business is being successfully met by the Economics and Business Department. Offering more than a technical education, this department prepares its graduates for high-paying positions in secretarial service, merchandising, accounting, business education, foreign trade and general business.

Today's teacher finds herself growing into the position of being the balance wheel of the social order. The Education, Philosophy and Psychology Department, realizing this, has begun an even more intensive program of teacher preparation with more use being made of philosophy and psychology. Vocational opportunities as guidance counselors and directors of testing programs also attract the student trained to teach.

The English Department, continuing the philosophy that has guided it through 50 years of service, offers students the chance to master effective expression in writing and speaking English and to study the literary masterpieces. English is the only liberal arts subject that has been required throughout the years in every group of courses leading to a diploma or a degree.

To train young women to live in this international, ever-changing world is one of the principal objectives of the Foreign Language Department. Courses are designed to train specialists in foreign languages who may enter international economic and professional fields as well as for those who plan to travel and study abroad.

Every survey made of Health, Physical Education and Recreation Departments throughout the nation places that of TSCW at the top. This recognition comes on the basis of training offered, breadth of program, prestige of the staff, placement of graduates and facilities. TSCW was the first college in Texas to offer diplomas and degrees in health and physical education and one of the first three in the United States to offer majors in recreation.

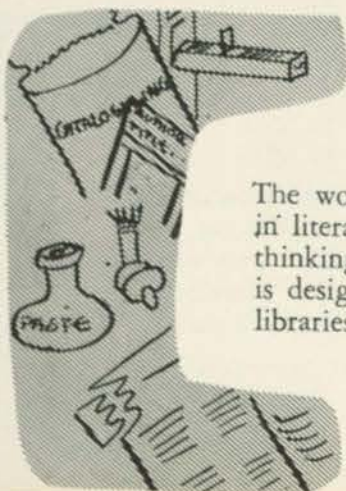

In an age trying to preserve the American way of life, the History and Government Department prepares students for careers in teaching and government service by helping them understand the institutions, human relationships and problems of the present as well as a basic knowledge of the past. The department is also concerned with history and government as an important field of study for all students.

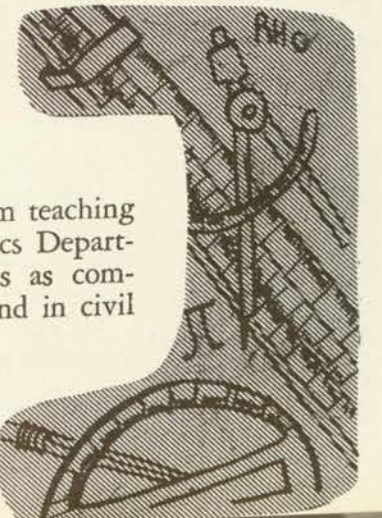

One of the best known divisions of any college in the country is the College of Household Arts and Sciences. The original field of textiles and clothing and foods and nutrition constituted the nucleus around which the additional areas of child development, home economics education, home management, housing and institutional administration have been added through the past half century. Most recent addition is a full-scale research program in the various fields of home economics.

The Journalism Department correlates its work with that of other departments to provide training in home economics-journalism and radio-journalism, as well as newspaper writing and advertising. It also works closely with Texas newspapers in planning a curriculum packed with maximum laboratory practice; it publishes the only daily newspaper in the world put out in a woman's college.

The world of ideas is explored by students of library science. Courses in literature provide personal and professional familiarity with the best thinking of all ages. The curriculum of the Library Science Department is designed to study all the services and possibilities for service which libraries of today offer.

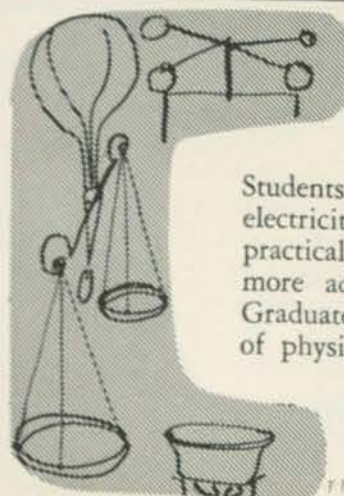

Training in mathematics opens fields of employment ranging from teaching to positions in industry and business. Graduates of the Mathematics Department, one of the college's original departments, obtain positions as computers for oil, geophysical and aircraft manufacturing companies and in civil service.

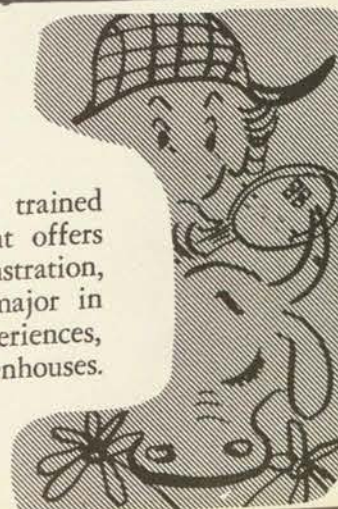

Opportunities for women in music have increased beyond all expectations in the past decade. TSCW, with one of the most outstanding music education divisions in the United States, emphasizes the development of the individual with specialization in piano, voice, violin, organ and orchestral music as well as music education. The symphony orchestra, concert band and various choruses and choirs are important all-girl music organizations at TSCW.

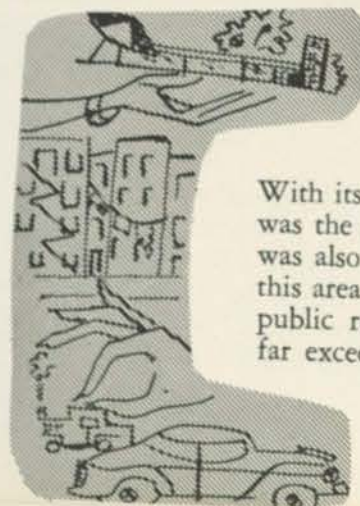

One of the newest departments is that of Occupational Therapy, often called a "work cure," which is the treatment of the ill or injured by means of some mental or physical activity. Training consists of courses in theory of occupational therapy, basic sciences, various medical subjects, psychology and design and crafts with actual clinical experience for advanced students.

Students majoring in physics delve into the laws of sound, light, heat and electricity. The Physics Department offers courses which deal with the practical application of physical phenomena to everyday living as well as more advanced courses that range from electronics to x-ray technique. Graduates in this department have a thorough understanding of the field of physics.

The Rural Arts Department is dedicated to supplying adequately trained young women to do home demonstration work. The department offers a four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree in home demonstration, and TSCW is the only institution in the Southwest offering a major in this field. In addition to regular classroom and laboratory experiences, TSCW offers practical facilities in its departmental gardens and greenhouses.

With its Sociology Department ranking among the best in the country, TSCW was the first college in the Southwest to offer a degree in pre-social work; it was also first to offer a major in church service. Few other state colleges in this area offer majors in either of these fields or in the fields of industrial and public relations; therefore the demand for sociology graduates from TSCW far exceeds the supply.

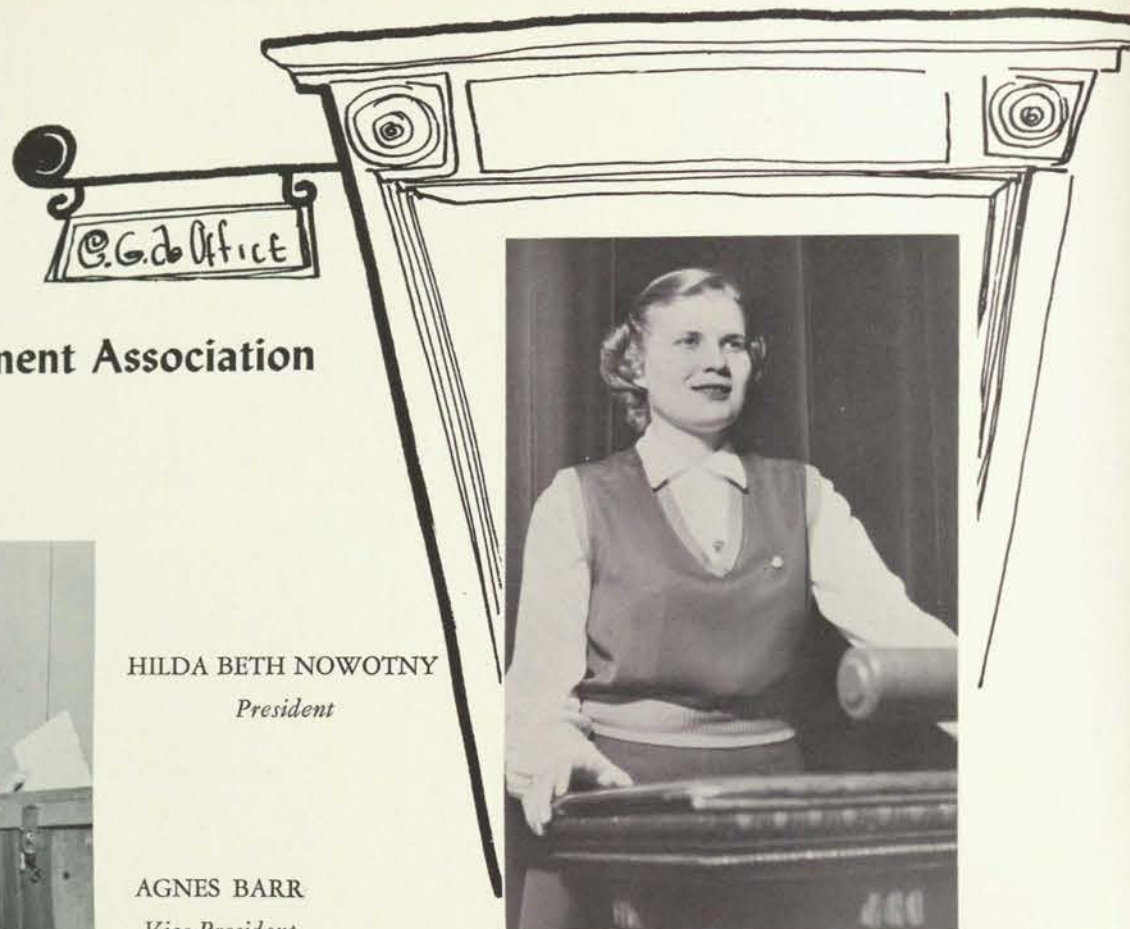

The speech department offers an opportunity for the student to specialize in the artistic and scientific lines of speech activity. The curriculum has come a long way from the days when the department was called "Elocution, Physical Culture and Vocal Music." Sequences include drama, speech education, speech therapy and radio.

Local Students

There's no place like home, agree members of the Villagers Club, Denton girls who choose TSCW as their alma mater. Like regional clubs, this group has as its purpose promoting fellowship among its members. However, its governing board is set up like the dormitory system with a president and other officers and counselors. The president represents the local girls on Student Council.

As time Goes By

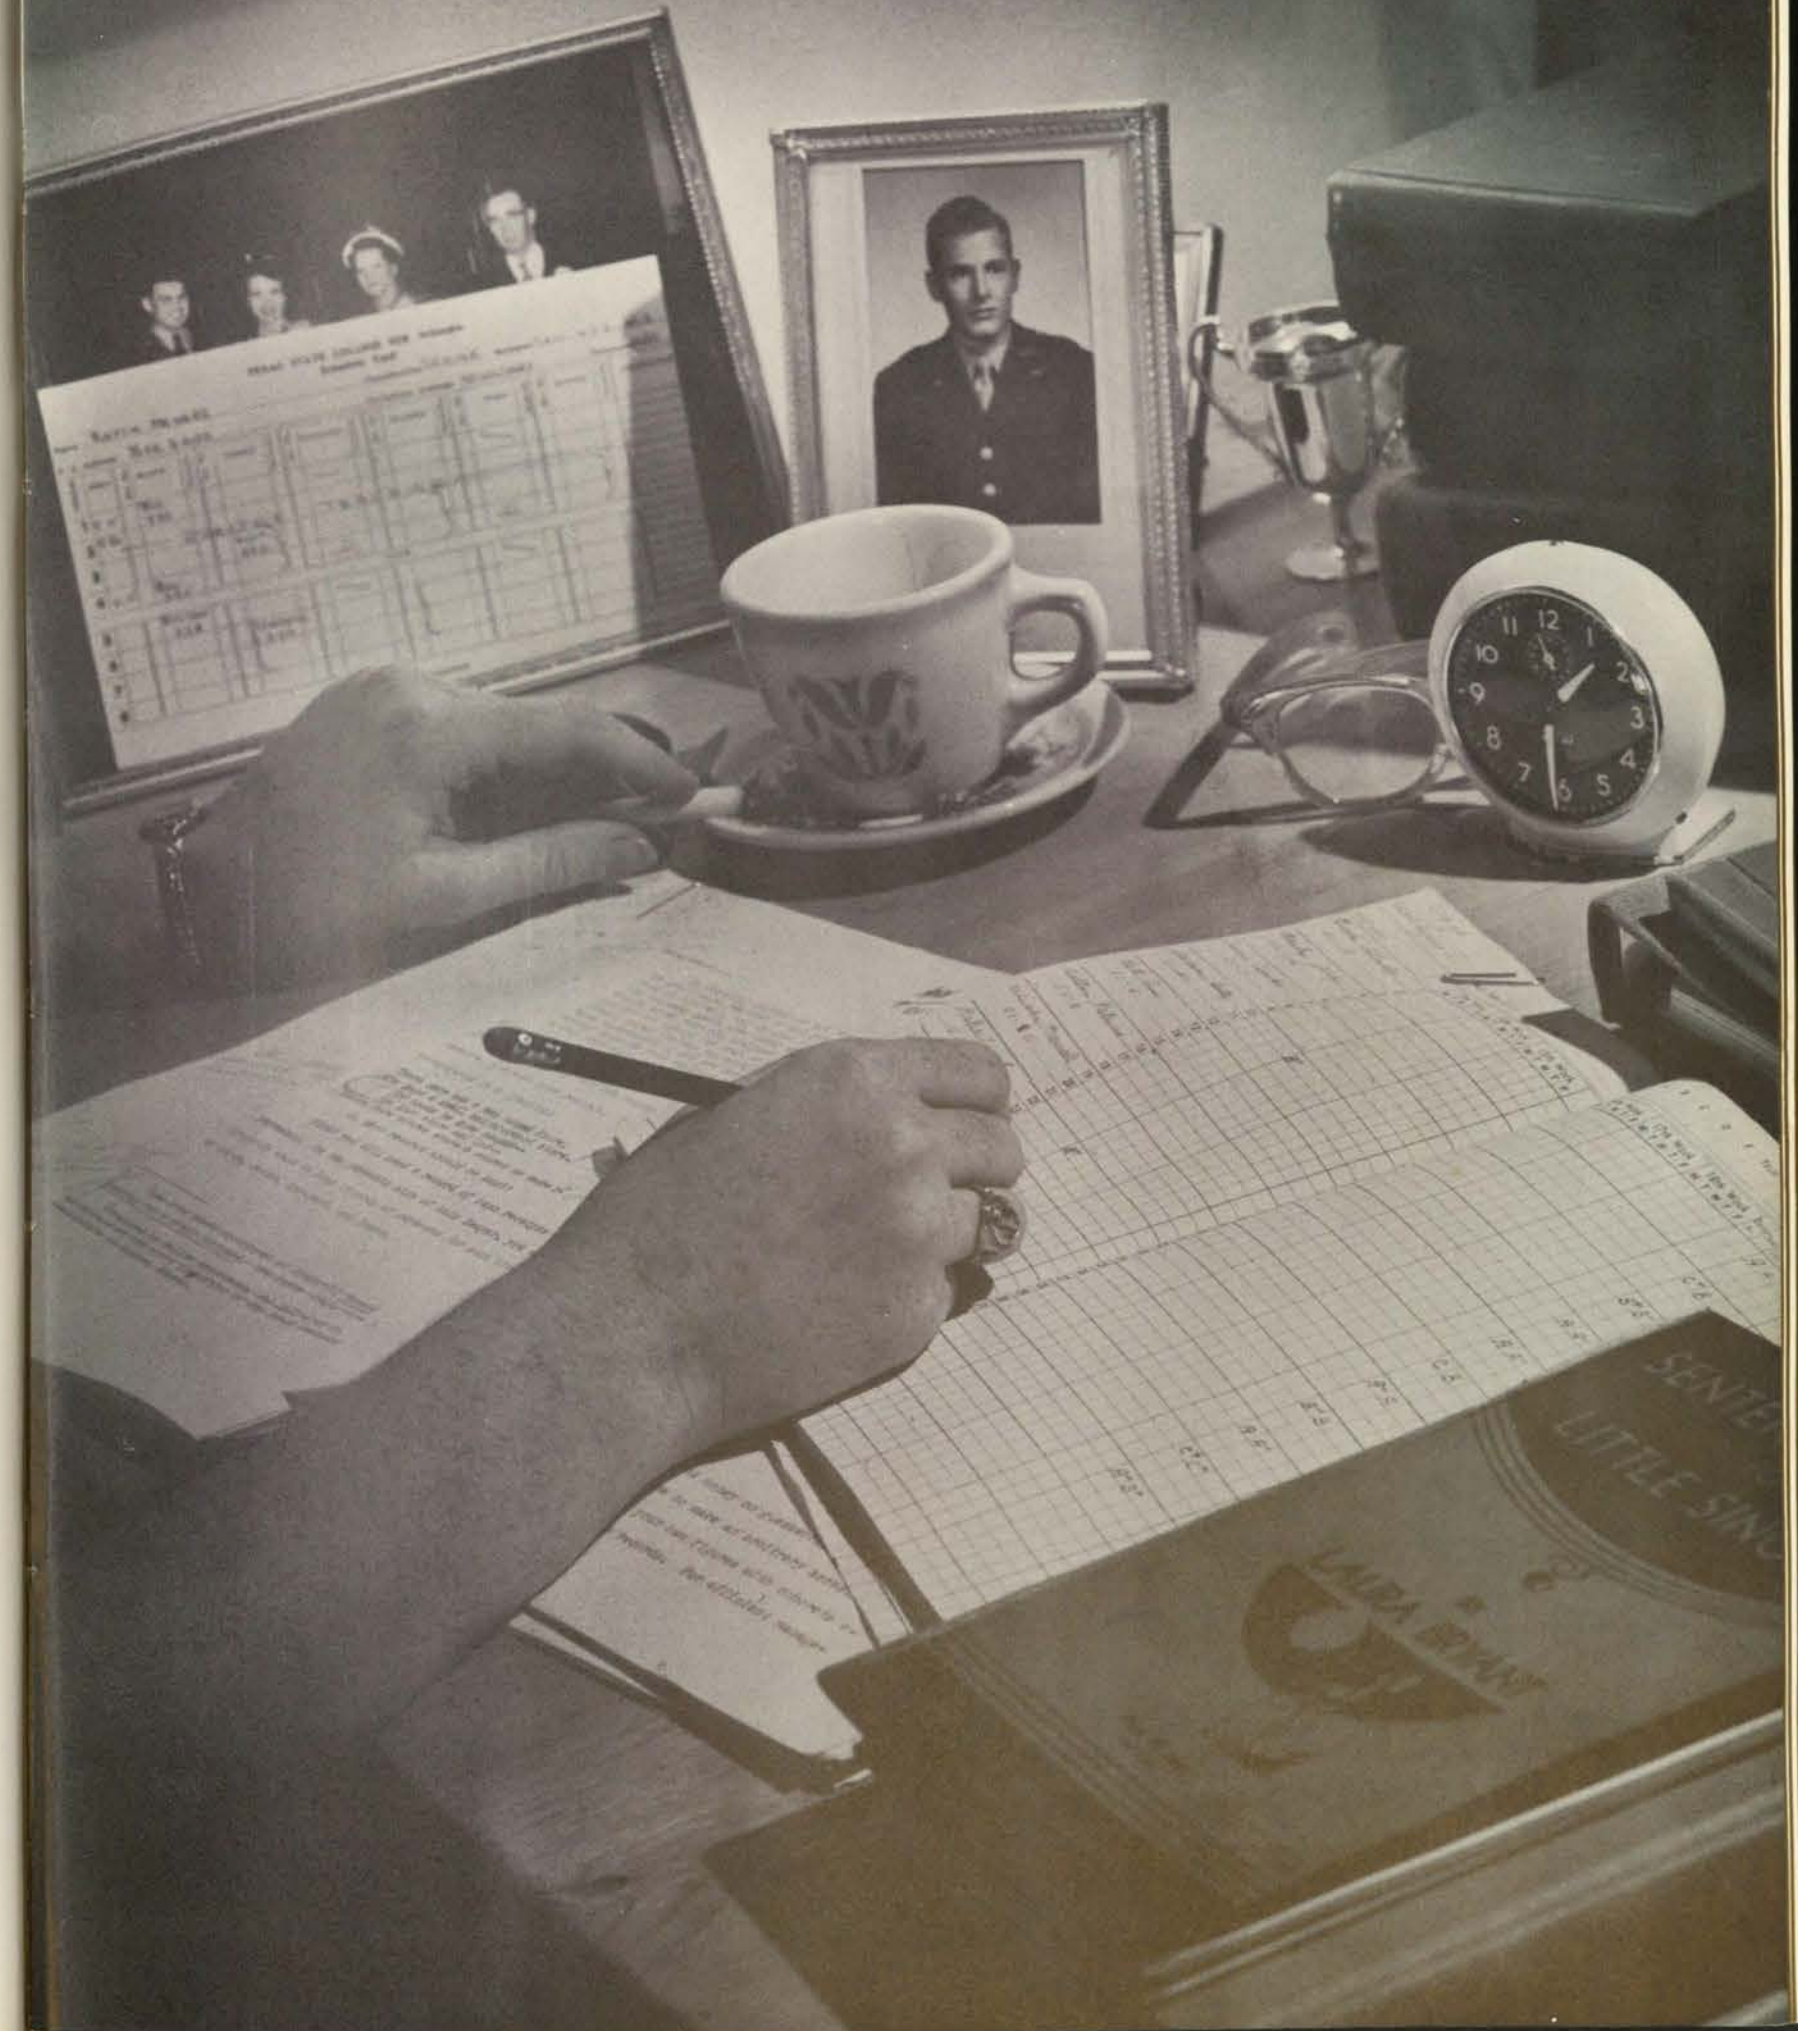

She Led The Rest

Mrs. Beulah Kinkaid Fry has been first in many things at TSCW . . . Fifty years ago, she came to the new Denton college with 184 other students who made up the first class, and in 1904 she was the college's first graduate. Then Mrs. Fry was chosen as first president of the Alumnae Association, which she had helped organize.

The first graduation program from Girls' Industrial College in June of 1904 listed only one name—Beulah Kinkaid. And today Mrs. Fry still treasures the faded program, predecessor of those that some day would bear well over 200 names.

The wiry little first president still lives in the shadow of the college and takes active interest in its program. With Mrs. Ben Boyd, current president of the Ex-Students Association, she checks steady progress of the organization which today includes over 50,000 former students.

It didn't take long for the rumor to get around that senior rings had arrived . . . and then February graduation came quicker than you could slip a ring on a finger. Sandwiched in between was a calendar circled with dates for important senior activities. As seniors watched part of their class graduate, they realized it wouldn't be long 'til June.

From Hell's Belles to Senior Ladies

Alarms rang early and black coffee was the order of the morning when seniors put on heels and hose for their first dress-up get-together, Senior Breakfast. The line seemed long, but the hearty breakfast gave class members enough strength to "sing right out" on highlight songs from past stunts. And everybody said there'd be "Blue Skies, '53."

Senior Class At Home

A bottle of floor wax and a day's worth of elbow grease put Stoddard rooms on shining exhibition for freshman inspection. The traditional Open House, with its receiving line, punch bowl and dormitory tour gave the Class of '56 an official welcome and made seniors feel like real Stoddard ladies, too.

Shades of Raccoon Coats and Flapper Bobs!

Seniors and faculty members said it was the cat's meow when they turned back the clock for an evening of Charles-ton, and visits from flicker favorites. Speakeasies flourished, suffragettes stormed and vamps slinked. And seniors just had one thing to say—"I love my prof, but, oh, you kid!"

When shall we three meet again?

Texas State College for Women leads in another FIRST, in its half century crusade toward the improvement of higher education for women. During the academic year 1952-1953, curricula leading to Ph.D. and Ed.D. degrees in various areas of the Household Arts and Sciences were introduced.

Work leading to these degrees in the Household Arts and Sciences, or Home Economics, is available in no other college or university in Texas, and in but few institutions of higher learning in the country.

The offering of the doctoral degree in the College of Household Arts and Sciences at Texas State College for Women was made possible by the inauguration in this college of an extensive program of research in the various areas of interest included in the teaching program. The research program is housed in the Household Arts and Sciences Research Building—a building situated near the new building used for instruction in the College of Household Arts and Sciences.

The research program has two major objectives:

a. To aid individuals and families as well as many of the industries in Texas by finding many new facts in such important fields as food, clothing and shelter, as well as personal and group problems which appear in the every-day task of living; and

b. To give graduate students the opportunity of rounding out their education by working on research problems of every-day interest, using the most modern techniques and equipment available for finding new basic facts.

Those in charge of the research program in the College of Household Arts and Sciences at TSCW have had rich past experience in supervising similar research programs and in directing the doctor's and master's research programs of many young persons who now hold positions of leadership in academic, industrial, and governmental positions. Truly the homes and industries of Texas will profit by this new venture in higher education.

Of 10 women who now are working actively on doctor's programs, three will complete their work during the current year. These are: Alice Knapper Milsom, who is working on several aspects of child nutrition as her research project; Mae Yoder Moore, who is conducting a study on the technology of silk, and Euclid Smith, who is finding some of the relationships of the incidence of dental caries to food intake and nutritional status.

These three women, and the other seven who also are working on doctoral programs and who will complete their work at a later time, are in the vanguard of those who will follow in their steps toward this highest phase of scholastic achievement in the academic field.

The complete list of students taking graduate work during the 1952-53 long session is given below and on the following page.

Time for Work and Play

The Stars We'll Remember

The 1952-53 star-studded Concert and Drama Series presented outstanding artists in every field of art as well as the best in campus talent.

EDMUND GIESBERT

"Painting is silent poetry"

Edmund Giesbert has the rare gift of lecture appeal that captivated his TSCW audience. Recognized as one of America's foremost portrait painters, he further delighted his listeners by doing a portrait as he talked.

OGDEN NASH

"Poetry is speaking painting"

The light verse of Ogden Nash is the cartoon of poetry, TSCW discovered when the original writer visited the campus in April. He proved conclusively that laughter is the world's best medicine as he read his sharp and witty poems and commented on what prompted their creation.

ALFRED AND HERBERT TELTSCHIK

"And the night shall be filled with music"

The Teltschiks, brilliant brother keyboard team, were applauded here, as everywhere else, for the dazzling unity of their two-piano performance. The one-time Texans brought their own pianos in specially built bus in order that the two would be evenly tuned.

NATIONAL OPERATIC SEXTET

"Music is the speech of angels"

A group of six soloists each famous individually, on Broadway, radio, opera, or the concert stage, presented best-loved selections from opera and operetta in one of the high notes of the C&D series. The informality and stage personality of the sextet, individually and as a group, made the program one students will not soon forget.

Dublin Players

"The Play's the thing"

The Dublin Players, new Irish company regarded as the finest to come to the United States from abroad in over twenty years, romped through two performances on the campus with typical humor and finesse.

The Players held the audience spellbound in scenes like this one from "Pygmalion." One of the delightful Dublin actors commented backstage that the audience-actor relationship was one of "Loving affection."

BENNO AND SYLVIA RABINOFF

"Music is love in search of a word"

A magnificently talented violinist and his equally accomplished accompanist wife appeared in a joint recital, part of their world tour.

HERVA NELLI

"Song is more lasting than riches"

TSCW thrilled to Herva Nelli's great soprano voice. Her flawless program of lovely arias and songs in four languages plus a charming stage presence enchanted her audience.

HARRIETTE ANN GRAY AND DANCE COMPANY

"On with the dance! let joy be unconfined"

TSCW welcomed a return performance by one of the nation's outstanding dance groups, recognized for superb technique combined with the freshness of youth. Three former students are among the dancers.

From the series, "Dance Cartoons," Miss Gray dances "Our World Today?", a humorous interpretation of the world situation.

"Say it with music . . ."

THE CURIOUS SAVAGE

by JOHN PATRICK

For a Fair Vote

The qualifications for officers of the College Government Association are easily discernible to students who take an active interest and part in this all-important organization. The vital necessity in choosing the best leaders for next year is that students are permitted to see objectively and impartially the qualifications of each candidate and then cast their votes, keeping in mind the good of the organization and the college.

The candidates who are able to conduct their campaigns impartially on their own qualifications, beliefs, plans and experience are the ones who will make it possible for students to vote fairly and impersonally. Through their integrity, their high standards and ideals, their fairness and justice, students will be able to form clear pictures in their minds of the true qualifications and abilities of nominees, and thus avoid the relevant rumors and facts.

And in return for the fair and accurate picture they have a right to expect from candidates, great responsibility of deciding what qualifications, what characteristics are vital in the selection. It is their job to see that they do not cast a vote of the value of their decisions.

Every student, be she a candidate or a voter, has a vital responsibility in seeing that campaigns are conducted on the high plane which is necessary for college government next year.

WELL-INFORMED STUDENTS

CGA Vice-President Outline Qualifications

By CAROL KOENIG

A well-informed student body is considered essential for good college government. by Gloria Bendy, Ethel Coffee, Jane Ginnison and Ann Jenkins, candidates for president of the College Government Association.

"Students should understand and take part in any action taken by CGA," said Miss Bendy, radio-speech major at Smithville.

Miss Bendy has been vice president of the Speech Club and the Radio Guild, secretary of Tessa Players, and a floor chairman in Smith-Carroll. She has taken part in Stunts and is a Cotton Ball Duchess this year.

Meet Problems Practically

"I believe that the CGA should meet in a practical way problems that the students feel are important," Miss Coffee, music education major, said.

It's quittin' time for Johnnie Marie Jackson, '53 Daedalian editor-in-chief, as she puts her "pet project" to bed.

How many pictures has Judy Whitson, senior editor and photographer, snapped during this school year?

It's the usual exit for June Sherrill, art editor, who has (as usual) outstayed Jaybee closing time.

Freshman and sophomore class editors, Margaret Ann Earp, Marion Bennett, Margaret Nobles and Betty Brown, match faces to names, and names to faces.

Pasting up last-minute layouts are Ruth Ann Tipton, co-organizations editor, and Mary Ann Carwile and Pat O'Brien, feature editors.

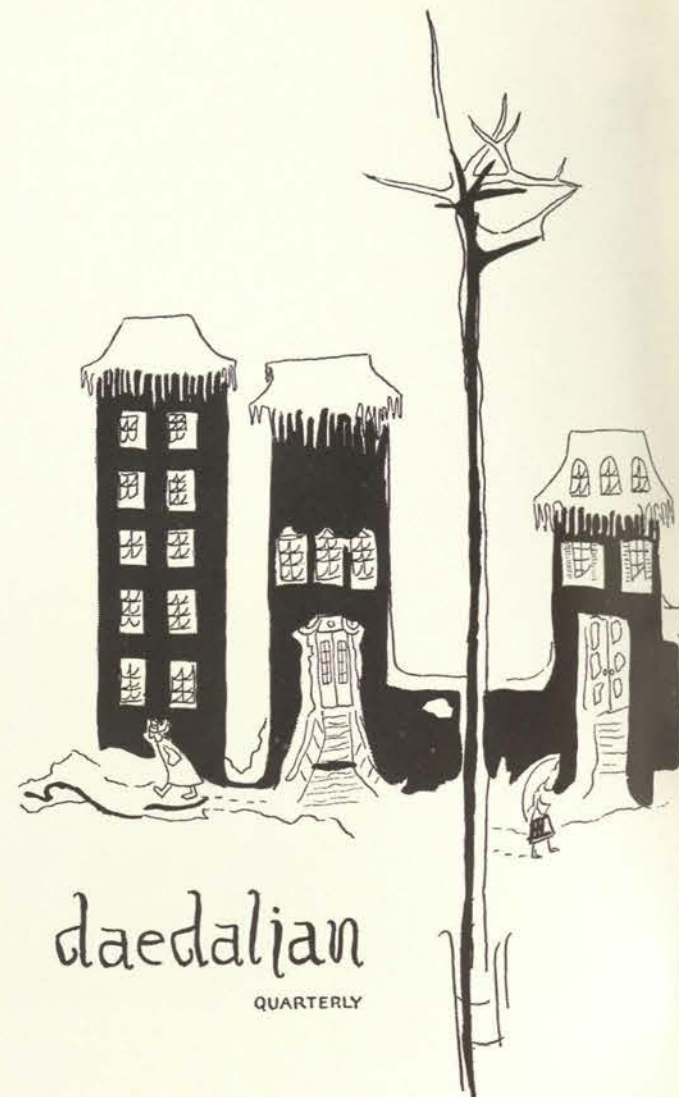

Cecilia Garcia, co-organizations editor, and Sandra Mitchell and Ione Weisberg, activities editors, get tips on how it's done in annuals from past years.

Hikes to town, ledger sheets, balanced books and bills were all in a day's work for June Hazlip, business manager.

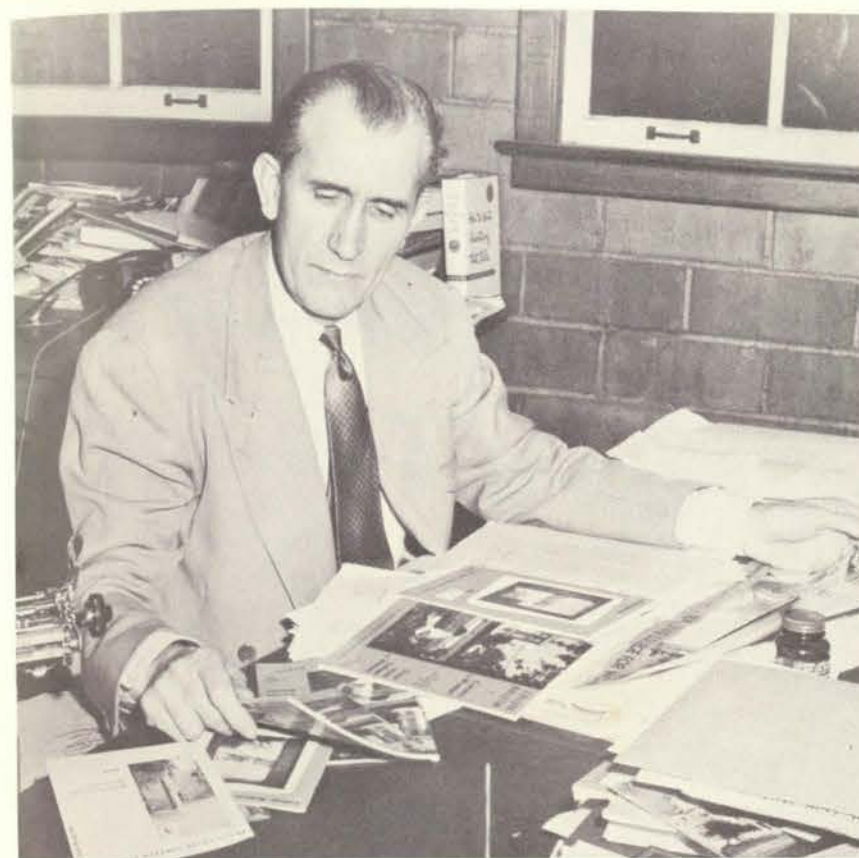

Billie Johnson, editor, assembles covers for the latest quarterly.

Literary Editor Rita Melder picks out manuscripts for the next issue.

Margaret Sellmeyer, art editor, gets inspiration for a cover design.

Whoever saw Frank Rigler, News Bureau director, when he wasn't working on or thinking about a new college bulletin?

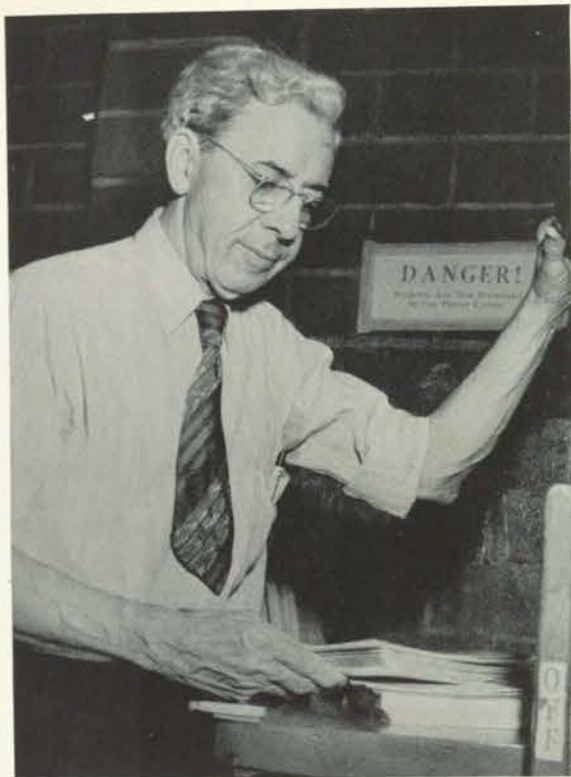

Campus Publicity Center

Lynn Tisdale, assistant, gets out a story for the Denton Record-Chronicle.

Student assistants Margaret Ann Earp and Cecilia Garcia get information for home-town stories.

Henry Blagg, director, trims a stack of bulletins.

Printers Ink Means-- The College Press

Bascom Dove readies the press for a run of college programs.

Mary tells Weldon Church there's a correction on page one.

Herbert Church, linotypist... how many stories have his busy fingers set up?

The two Bills of the print shop load up a fresh batch of Daily Lass-O's to deliver to dorms.

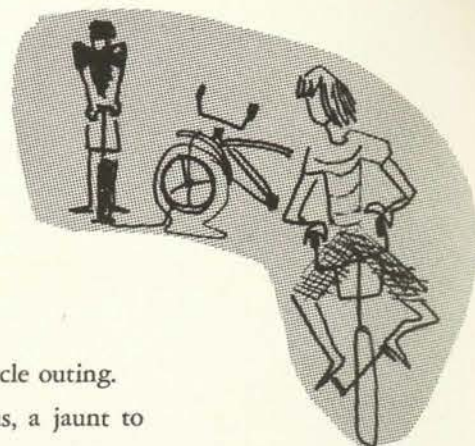

High points of any college picnic at the Hundley campsite on Lake Dallas are thrilling rides in the school's Chris-Craft. Students also enjoy sailing and aquaplaning there.

Tessies Get in the Swim

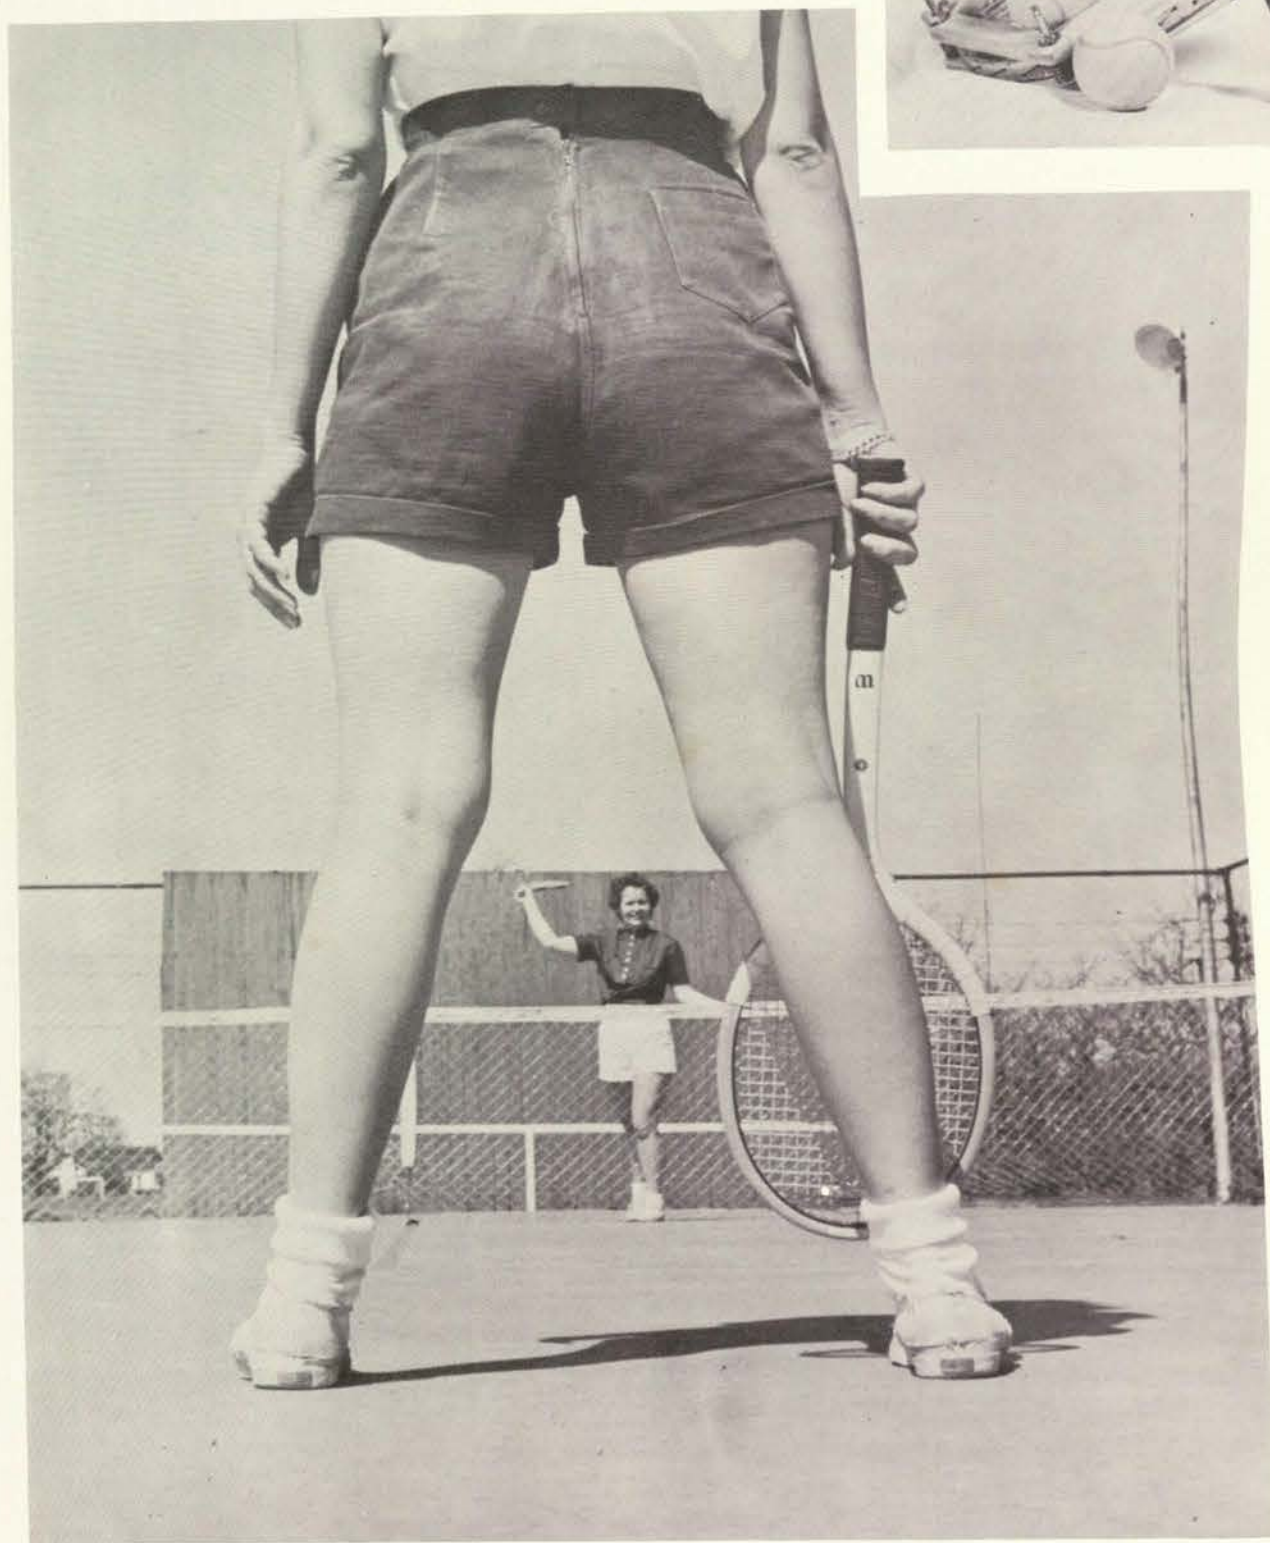

Many a spring and summer afternoon is splashed away at TSCW's outdoor pool. Whether perfecting their diving form or trying for a golden tan, students rate swimming tops in entertainment.

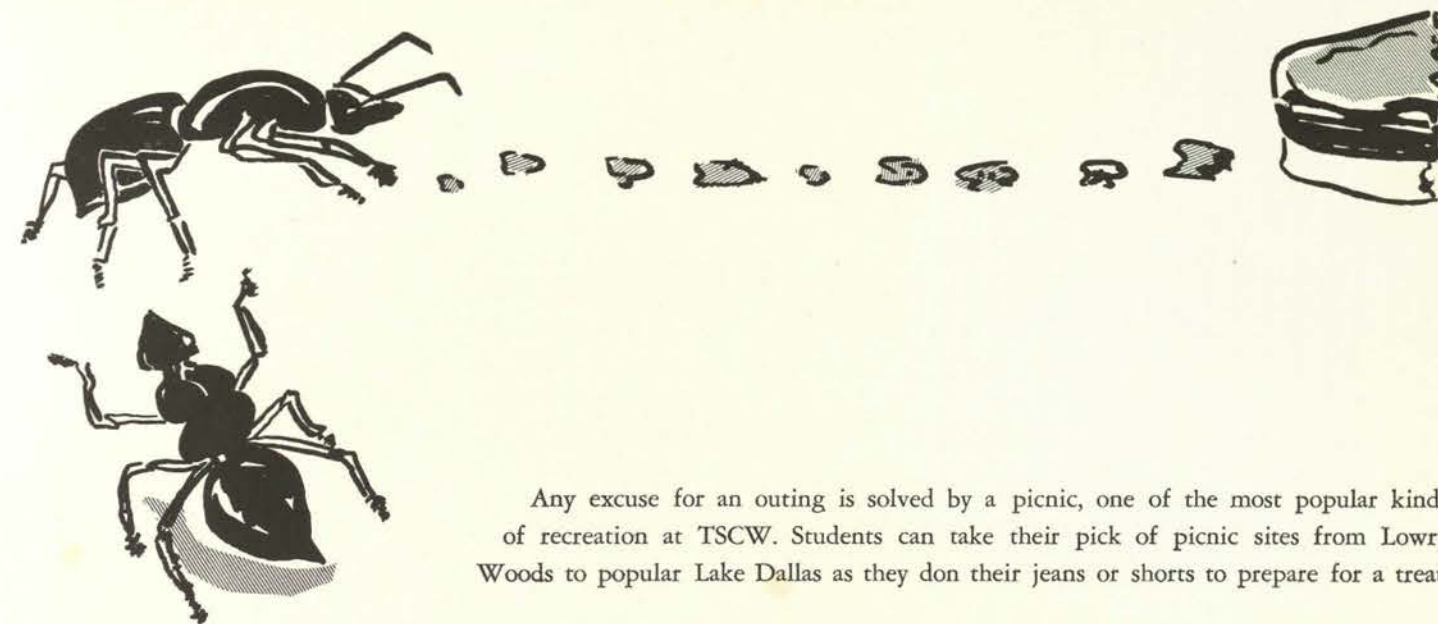

Comes any warm day on the campus and students get the urge for a bicycle outing. Bikes can be checked out at Burnett Hall for a spin around the campus, a jaunt to the city park, or even a longer ride to Lake Dallas.

Who's for a Saturday afternoon of horseback riding? Most TSCW girls are at one time or another . . . even though they usually pay with aching muscles, while liniment sales soar in the stores on the Drag.

Tennis beckons any sports-lover, whether she's a novice or an experienced smasher. TSCW's well-equipped courts are always filled with shouts of "Serve!" and "Your game!" The popularity of tennis is proved by the stacks of entrants in the annual singles and doubles divisions of the Leman Tennis Tournament.

Any excuse for an outing is solved by a picnic, one of the most popular kinds of recreation at TSCW. Students can take their pick of picnic sites from Lowry Woods to popular Lake Dallas as they don their jeans or shorts to prepare for a treat.

It's eighteen holes of golfing pleasure at TSCW's beautiful course. Whether prof or student, who can resist the challenge of the well-kept links where the only pre-requisite's a desire for fun in the sun?

"Sun and Sage: The Saga of a Texas Cowboy," known more simply around the campus as "Sam Bass," has pushed its way into the traditions of TSCW and today is probably one of the best-loved modern dances ever presented at the college. Typically western as sagebrush and as popular as the folklore tales about the beloved bandit himself, the dance has successfully captured the thrilling saga of Sam's life in a permanent art form.

Janyce Martin and Sara Hardy do a twirl from "Pizzicato Polka," part of the "Suite of Dances for the Theatre" included in this year's repertoire for the modern dance group.

Another dance from "Suite of Dances for the Theatre" and another outstanding soloist, Tillie Garcia, in "Celebration."

Regina Mitchell's solo in "Suite of Dances for the Theatre" humorously depicts "The Belle of the Ball."

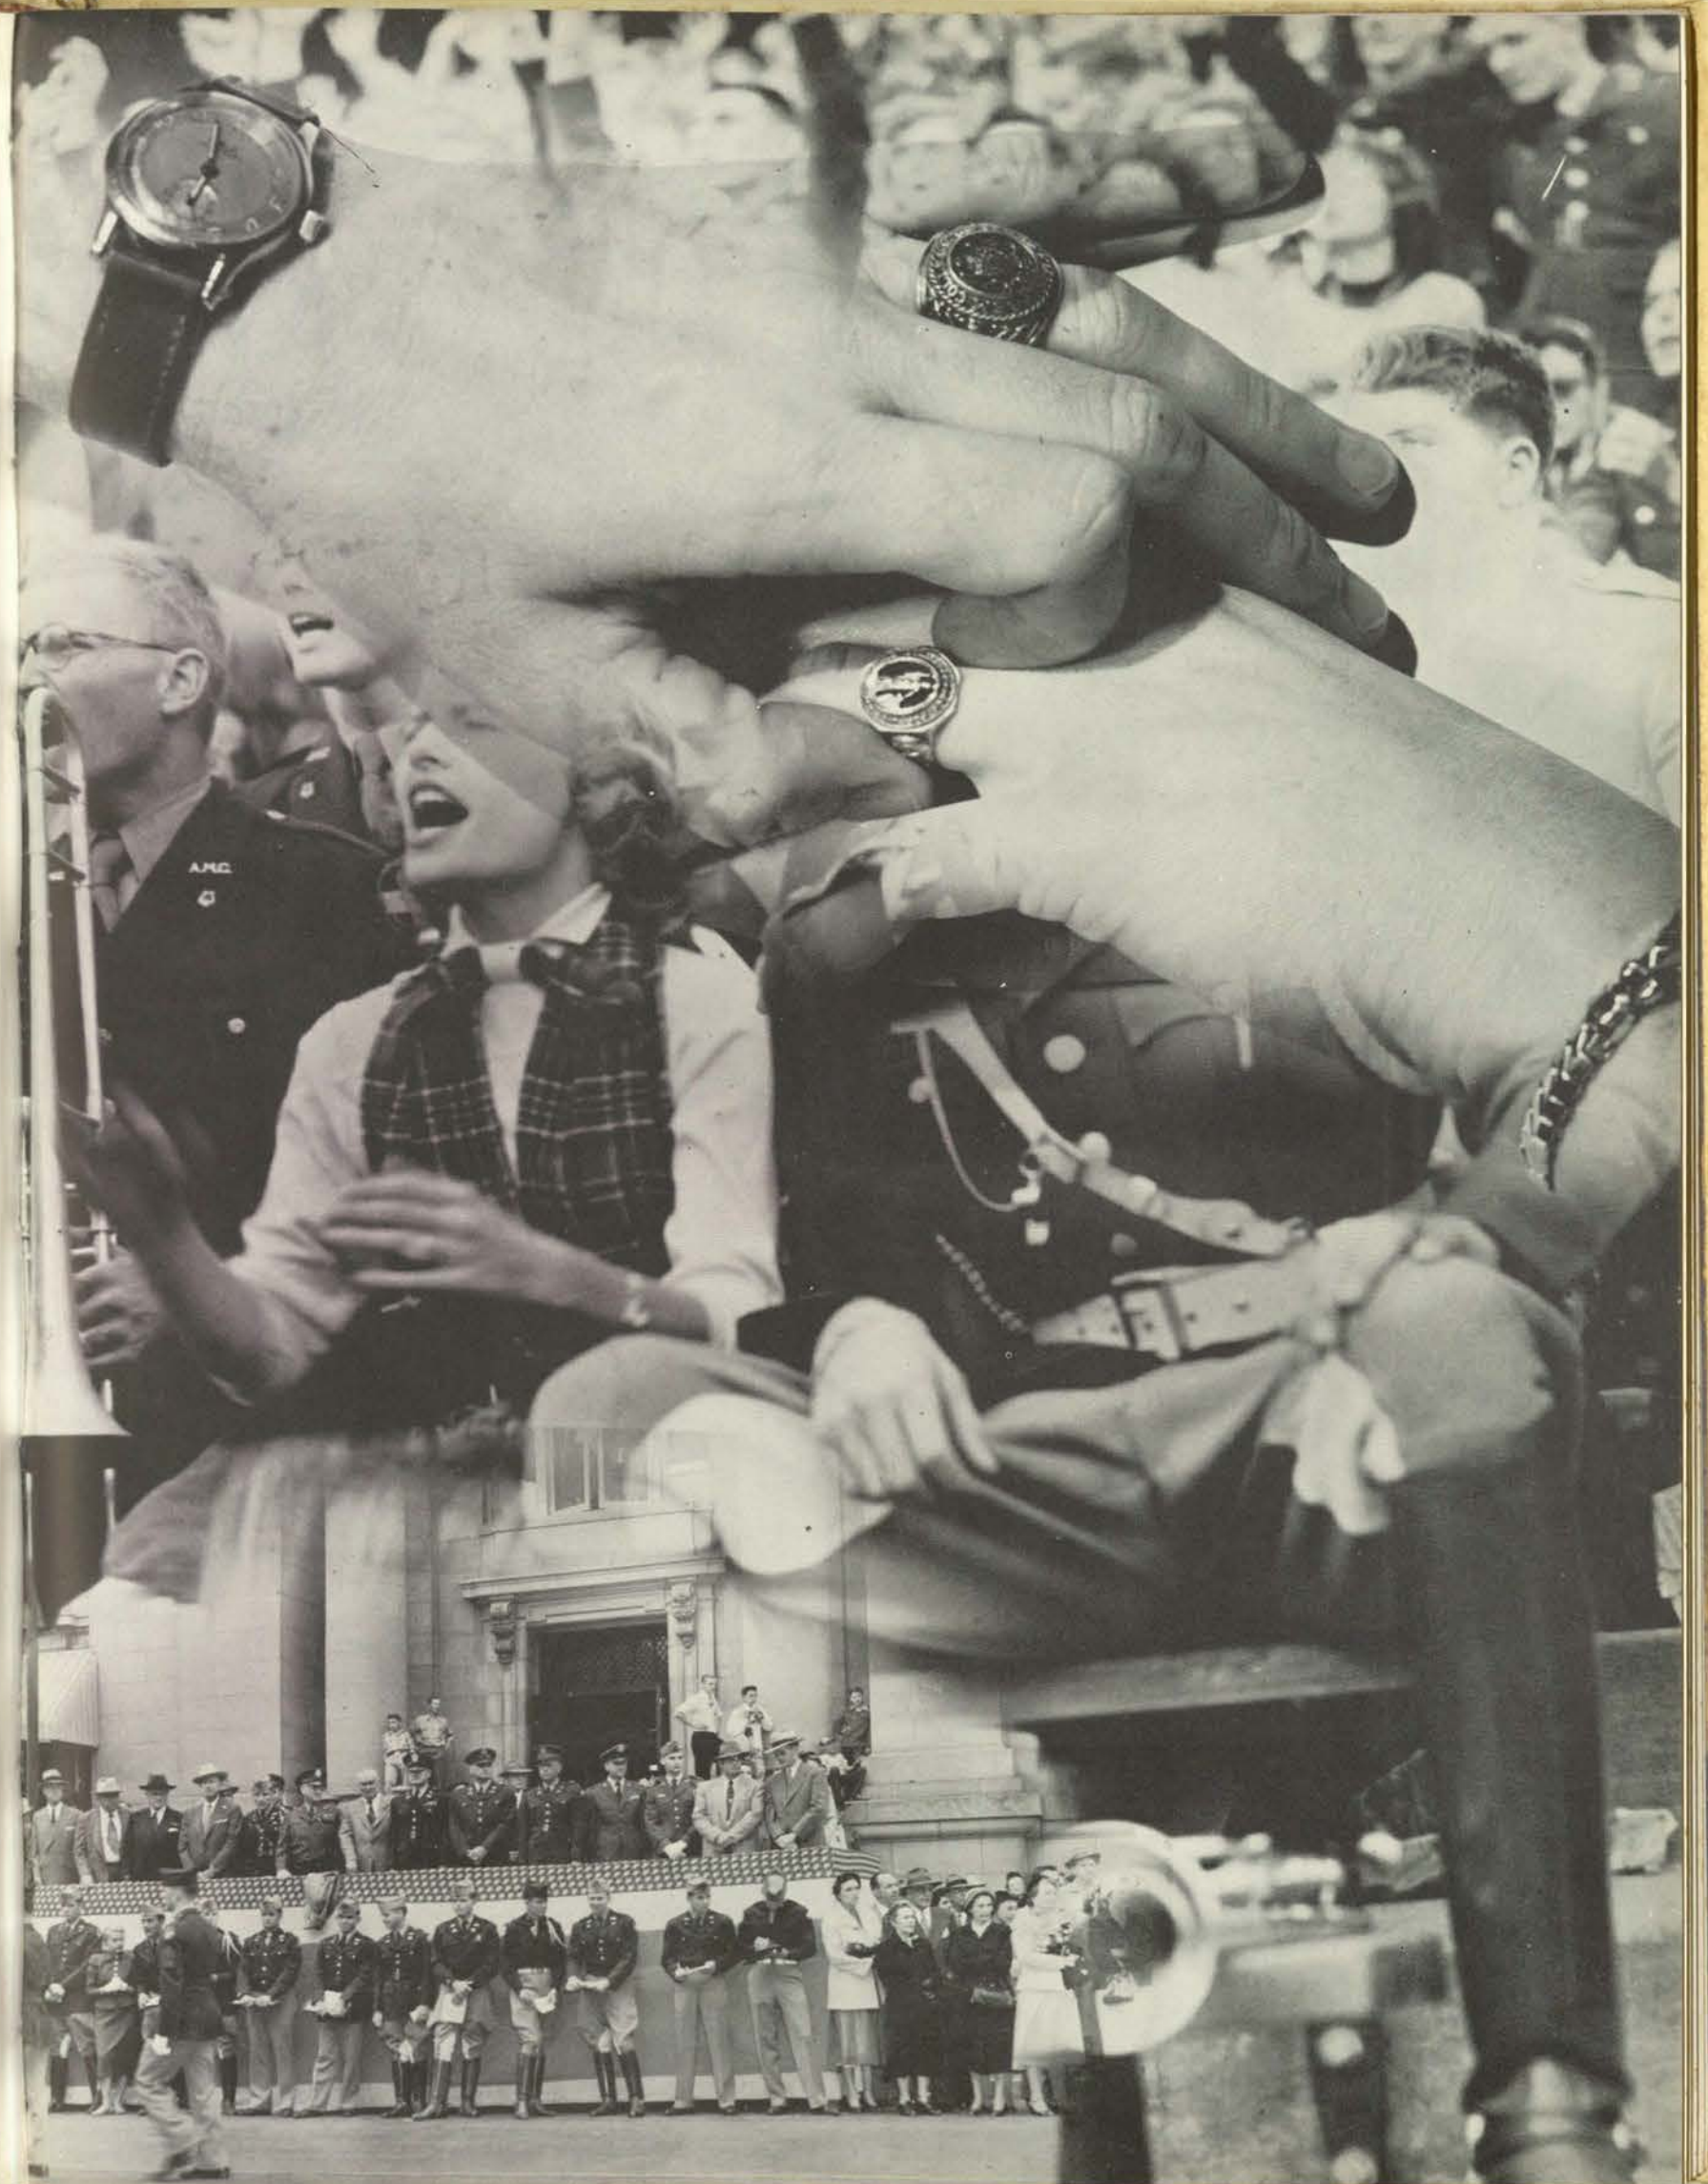

Nan Harrington solos in the whimsical "Chopsticks," one of the favorite numbers from "Suite of Dances for the Theatre."

Another traditional performance with the modern dance group is the flowing "Waltz of the Flowers."

Time On Our Hands

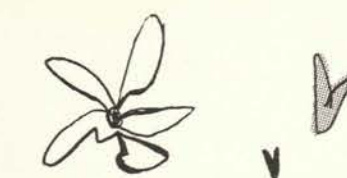

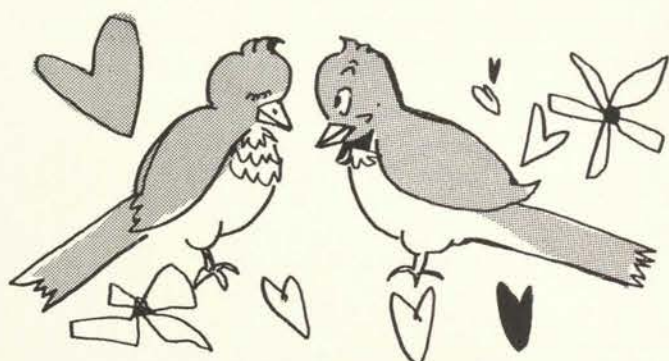

"Good morning to you," says Don Gary to Pat Martin . . . "This is the way to start a new day."

After Sunday dinner in the dining hall . . .

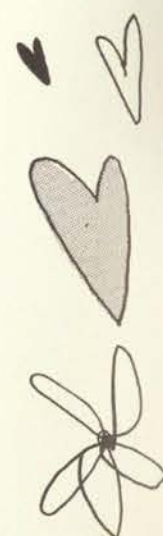

Sunday Date With Her Sunday-Best Beau

Don reads the Sunday sports section while Pat clips an ad for a new spring dress.

The couple starts the afternoon with a tour of the Little Chapel and a walk in the Botanical Gardens.

Pat and Mr. Loomis give Don a first-hand look at modern art.

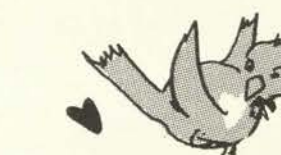

"And this is why you didn't hear from me all last week!"

Don still says Pat's prettier than any picture.

"Let's stop at the Hub for some coffee."

"Every time we say goodbye . . ."

Timmie almost feels "typecast" as she finishes up a notebook for her 9:15 . . .

But she still has time to press a dress . . .

270 Before starting her class in children's lit.

When you're a Stoddard lady, signing out is a must . . .

. . . And so is writing Smoky . . . When your name is Timmie.

Around the Clock With a Typical Tess

Timmie's plans shape up, via telephone for a Saturday night date . . .

But she can still fit "just one more hand" into her schedule . . .

And what day would be complete without a trip to the P.O.?

Saturday afternoon's a good cleanup time.

"An orchid . . . He shouldn't have, really!"

And so to sleep again.

... those inevitable dining hall lines, where we sang, read the Lass-O ... or just stood.

... those Saturday trips to the laundry for a week's (or semester's) supply of sheets.

... how the inside of a P.O. box looked—especially when it was empty.

As If We Couldver Forget...

... breaking into "Pals" ... "Maybe" ... or "Moonlight and Roses" at the drop of a hand on a ukulele chord.

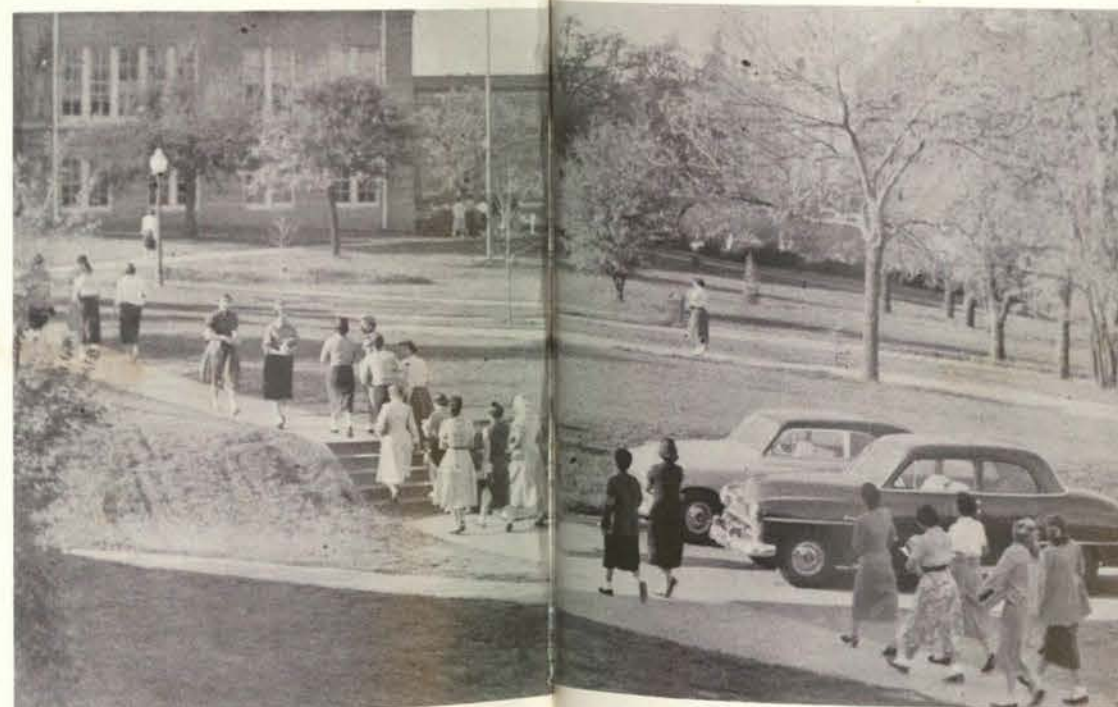

... how quickly coke bottles stacked up in the room—particularly after midnight snacks or Saturday afternoon bridge sessions.

... minutes that grew into hours at the Pub.

... shutting off the alarm clock to sleep "just 15 more minutes" ...

... following the crowds to 8:15's—in Building or on down the hill.

... that dining hall cake—and how we learned to cut it.

Mr. Ramsey . . . "Sure, we'll build you a new set by dress rehearsal."

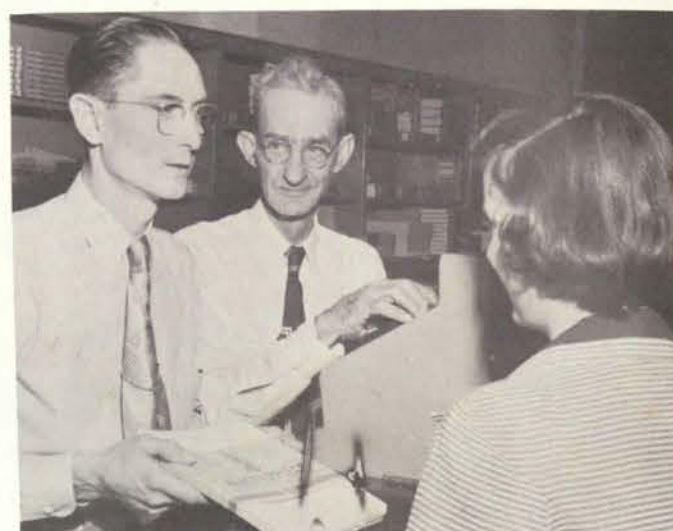

Jewel Starnes . . . "Coffee's hot this morning."

Carl . . . "Goin' to number four, pal?"

Mr. Hurst, "The Dutchman," and Mr. Weaver . . . "Yes, all the 10:15 mail's up."

Mr. Robertson and Mr. Douglass . . . "Better get those books. It's time for blue slip quizzes."

Familiar Faces of 1953

Pop . . . "What's goin' on here?"

Walter . . . "Good mornin', Miss . . ."

. . . heard everyone say "I wish . . ."

. . . "I wish this room were dirty . . ."

. . . "I wish I had some studying to do . . ."

. . . blew king-sized smoke rings from king-sized cigarettes in king-sized holders . . .

. . . deserted required readings for Pogo and Dennis the Menace . . .

That Was The Year We...

. . . stayed up nights listening to—and laughing with—"New Faces" . . .

. . . judged campus wheels by how much their clipboards would hold . . .

. . . cut the hair . . . just a while.

You can tell she's not well.

Words fail the dean . . . and seniors hardly know what to say.

One coke coming up.

Terrell turns queen for a day.

And he can sing, too.

So can Mary Guinn . . . but not very much.

Armistead ropes Liz into helping her rig lights.

Caught By A Flash

Ring out the old, ring in the new.

HPE&R profs practice what they teach . . .

While seniors sit one out at the Corn Huskin' Bee.

The Gold Dust Kids . . . they put the gold in anniversary.

Nan gets ready to shine 'em up.

Diane finds out why Hockey Club steaks have become a legend.

Exam exemption assembly . . . a study in reactions.

Jo, Connie and Mary live it up at the Chap "come as you are" party.

'Sno fooling . . . Dodie really fell for that one.

Ann plays it her way.

Turn About's Fair Play

Boodie agrees that Johnnie and J-Dith should stick to taking pictures instead of posing for them.

After the Redbuddies, Cg's nearly a dead buddy.

Johnnie's "up and atom" in the annual office.

"I've been sick!"

Shucks . . . what a corny place to catch forty winks.

Sleeping again! This could get to be a habit.

Corn huskin' photographers get "shot in the back."

Golden

Out of mass confusion come organized classes . . . but no one knows how until it's over.

First Stop: Registration

And registration can claim to be the best introduction to TSCW's line-standing tradition.

Things always seem rosier when you talk to the faculty advisor . . .

. . . Then you begin to wonder.

All-College Night

Playing a 1975 freshman-to-be, Nancy Garner finds out about TSCW traditions from her '53 graduate mother, portrayed by Connie Jenkins.

High Points from a TSCW Year

Another Night For Newcomers

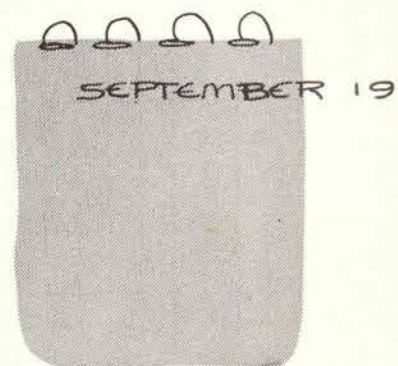

Local students, hostesses for Newcomers' Night, serve punch to freshmen and faculty members.

President Guinn, newcomer Verna Qualls and local student president Jackie Fuller get acquainted.

Clownish antics of Ann Jenkins and Margot Purdy amuse carnival-goers.

WRA Carnival Time

And it wouldn't be a carnival without popcorn and chocolate cake.

Bobbie Lee gets in some practice while standing in line for the hair-braiding contest.

Julia Rodriguez comes back for a third encore of her inimitable Spanish dances.

Lanterns Light The Way

Leading the parade are Hilda Beth Nowotny and Dorothy Gene O'Hara.

Aggies get initiated to TSCW tradition.

Seniors pass out lanterns of friendship.

Moonlight and lanterns and singing all the way.

Just Rummaging Around

She should have bought an extra room while she was at it.

Barbara Harwell—an emcee with south in her mouth at the SFC Howdy Dinner.

Speaking of south in the mouth . . . pass the biscuits and southern fried chicken!

June Ford carried us back to Old Virginny.

Clerk Elia Pena tries a hat on one of the customers at the annual SFC rummage sale.

Prelude to Rush Week

Club members and prospective rushees chat around the table in the Redbud Room at the Pre-Rush Tea.

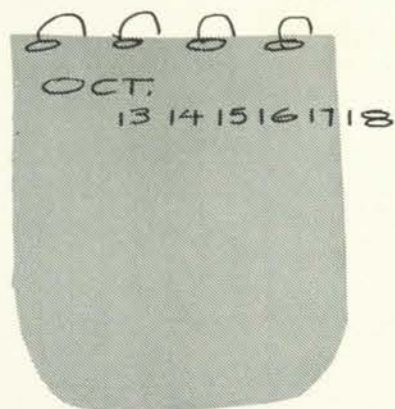

There's one at every tea—that inevitable guest book.

Small talk at the punch bowl by Margot, Beverly and Sarah.

It's CGA Forever

William Skadden delivers keynote address for College Government Association Week.

Students of yesterday learn how the honor system came into being.

Charlestoning in the dorm may have brought on the first house council . . . and student council members show how it happened with their skit on college government at TSCW.

Gussy and Toe welcome Margot to the steak fry at the Chaparral Lazy-C Ranch.

Who would know that Whistler and his mother are really Helen and Jo Ann at the AFP rush party?

Tessies Get Rushed

Delian pirates live it up with a great exuberance.

The two Barbaras show Ag-laian rushees what to expect in the way of club activities.

Athenaeums take a page from a housemother's diary and revive the Charleston.

Annie Laura and Shirley open TSCW's thirty-minute television show—one of the activities planned for TSCW Day at the State Fair in Dallas.

"That's the ring I made," Flo tells Mary Louise as they look at the exhibit of outstanding student work on display in the Women's Building.

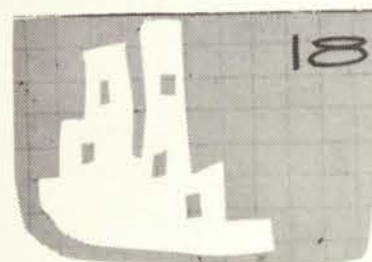

Future Tessies wonder if the campus will be the same when they arrive in 1961.

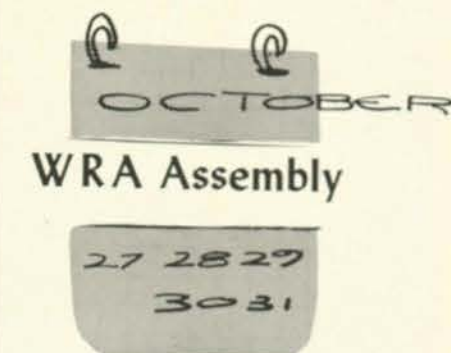

Carol, LaVerne, Sara and the whole Modern Dance group tell the T-V audience about TSCW's favorite desperado, Sam Bass, in a dance suite that has brought them (and Sam) wide recognition.

Hi Ho! Come to the Fair!

Outing Club members, Jo, Delores, Martha, Mary, Sylvia and Ellie, sing of what they'll do in the evenin' by the moonlight in an assembly tracing the historical development of WRA.

Religious Emphasis Week

Rev. H. Guy Moore schedules individual conferences with students after his talk in General Assembly.

SCRA committee works out final plans for Religious Emphasis Week programs that include speakers from every religious faith.

Shucks, It's Corn Huskin' Bee

It's confusin' choosin' for Denton businessmen as countless contestants walk by.

Maybe it's 'corny, but these girls took Corn Huskin' Bee literally.

There's them that have it and them that don't—these are the ones that did. Margie Crawford and Jo Ann Duncan, costume winners; Mimi Wilson, director, Capps singsong; Barbara Atkinson, hog callin'; Sue Wagley, husband callin'; Lohr Varner, chicken callin'; Sybil Bates and Jane Hunter, corn huskin'.

The girls with the galvanized tonsils who put them to good use calling hogs, chickens and husbands.

"Gents to the center and back to the bar . . ." calls Dr. Duggan as corn huskers take time out to dance their favorite "Texas Star."

"Sou-eeeeeeeee!" That's the way they do it in Arkansas, insists Allie Jeanne.

Husks fly when Sibyl and Jane go to work on a bushel basket of corn.

Remembering the past
with A&M's President
M. T. Harrington

Fifty years of glory to remind us of those who went before to make possible our procession to the anniversary celebration . . . our part in the anniversary day, the anniversary year. What more fitting prelude could be found than a majestic procession with black caps and gowns coated in golden sunlight from a warm November day. Strains of jubilee music from the bandstand matched beat for beat the marked steps of faculty and administration members and seniors of the Golden Anniversary Class. A parade of distinguished speakers hailed the past and saluted what is yet to be, but none surmounted the love of 1500 students as the notes rang out . . . "Thy daughters sing to thee, praises today."

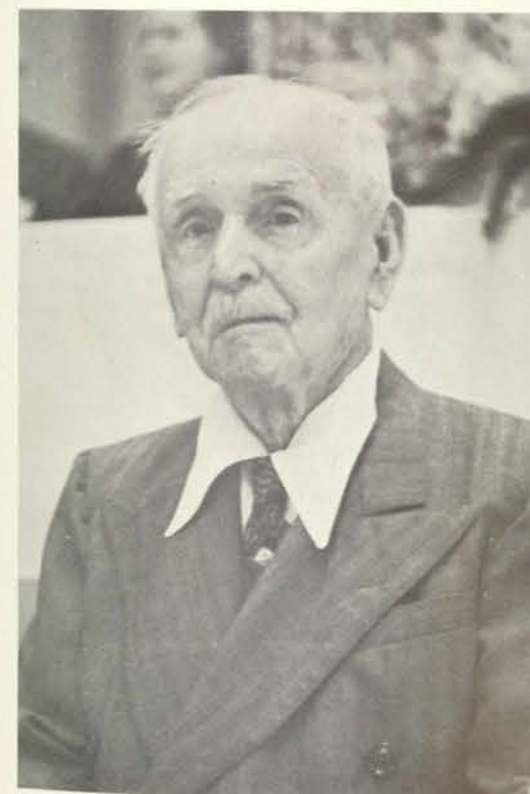

Texas leaders in education, law, industry, theater and women's clubs were among platform guests who saluted our golden birthday.

Fifty Years of Glory Are Behind Us

Always a hit in her own right, Margo Jones, celebrated ex, proved it again when she captivated the audience with her delightful recollections of TSCW.

Prominent among anniversary guests was C. N. Adkisson, member of the first faculty.

Looking to the future with Nora Waln, keynote luncheon speaker.

Six hundred students, faculty members and distinguished visitors helped further celebrate the Golden Anniversary as they thronged to a luncheon highlighted by Miss Waln's stirring address. Also at the luncheon, Mrs. Edgar Deen, regent from Fort Worth, reviewed the traditions and firsts of the college. That afternoon gala displays of departmental achievements beckoned campus visitors who saw that integral part of TSCW which has made it the world's foremost women's university. Departments in action ended a day long anticipated and longer cherished, and students looked back on it as a symbol of their fifty years' heritage to think once more . . . "Hail, Alma Mater, guide us on our way."

A picturesque display by the Foreign Language Department entertained holiday visitors.

Couples at the all-college dance got an idea of the tough job that the Aggie judges had picking one sweetheart from these twelve beauties.

President Guinn gets in the sweetheart spotlight and becomes the life of the party as he entertains in his own inimitable way.

Aggies Say They're All Sweethearts

Making the sweetheart selection were Corps Commander Weldon Krueger, Joe Mattei, Charles Scott, Charles Blank, Gene Steed, Bruce Gibson, Glenn Black, Bill Highsmith, Charles Hornstein, Don Gary, Lamar

McNew, Frank Manitzas, Bill Henderson and Gene Perkins.

Corps Commander Weldon Krueger makes a November 8 date with Aggie Sweetheart Claire Williams.

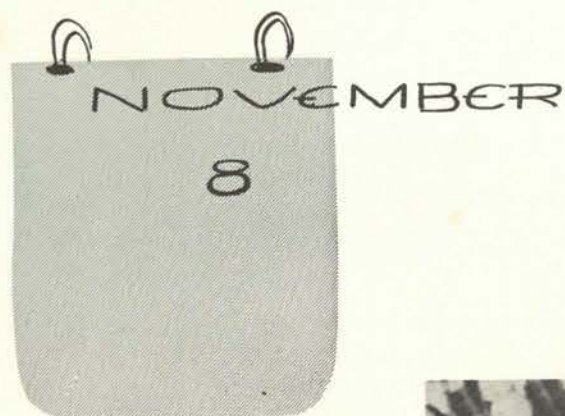

Weldon calls the signals as the Aggies form a huddle to pick their sweetheart.

Weldon plays "harem"—an Aggie's idea of the situation he'd most like to spend twenty years in! The nominees (who aren't too unhappy either) are Betty Ann Timmerman, Peggy Phillips, Patsy Potts, Claire Williams, Erika Heidmann (back row); Colette Clifton, Cora Jane Becker, Carolyn Hammond (left); Ann Herring, Pat Martin, Jane McBrierty, Marshalene Green (right).

Connie finds it was two Aggies for every girl at the Friday night Corps Trip Dance.

Claire and President Guinn review A&M troops at the morning parade.

Even band members have time to yell "Farmers Fight!"

... And Dallas goes Army for a day.

That Day the Corps Became The Claire Force

... And a kiss from the heart of Aggeland.

The band spells it out for TSCW.

Cadet Colonel Weldon Krueger does the honors for the corps as he presents Aggie Sweetheart Claire Williams with the traditional red roses . . .

Tired feet . . . shattered mums . . . wrong score but we'll win the party!

Lantern Parade, just one of the College traditions pictured float-wise. The class of '56 did the honors.

What carnival would be complete without candied apples, cotton candy and little boys to get sticky from them?

Live clowns walked the midway—this one brought a performing Pekingese in one hand and balloons in the other.

The laughing clown (and he really did) gets finishing touches from painters.

Dem-schoolers atop the gaily-decorated clown float led the parade which officially opened the Gold Rush Carnival.

The prize winning green and gold Philomathia float.

Gold Rush --TSCW Style

Big guns and big "cee-gars" were much in evidence as western heroes and their assorted girl friends cavorted in "Two - Gun Mama."

"It's in the Pot" found faculty members in a stew for the many sided variety show.

"Away, you villain . . ." Nothing more serious than variety show "Pot-boilers" in the throes of dramatic interpretation.

"Off to a fire . . ." but no farther than the midway "Kiddi-cars."

"And it came to pass in the days of Herod, the king . . ." Ann Fouts, herald angel begins the story of the Christ Child.

Simeon's prayer, a plea and a prophecy, portrayed this year by Merline Bonner, with grandchildren Sherwyn Bennett and Carole Willett.

Mary, interpreted by Clara Cooper, and her handmaiden Miriam, played by Patsy Jo Nash, are in the garden at the magic moment of the Annunciation.

"Blessed art thou among women . . ." the handmaidens tell Mary when she relates what has just happened.

The Story of the Christ Child

New sets, new faces, new ways of saying the familiar beautiful words; but still it was the "Nativity Pageant," written by Dr. L. H. Hubbard, beloved president emeritus, and dedicated, this fiftieth production year, to Mr. Earl C. Bryan, director of the Speech Department.

"You will long be remembered for your kindness tonight," Mary says to the innkeeper (Pat Whipple), as the weary travelers accept lodging in a stable.

Simeon, his grandchildren and the travelers come to worship.

Mary and Joseph (Ann Hemphill) wonder at the miracle of the Christ Child.

"And there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be taxed . . ." herald angel (Pat Brown) continues the age-old story.

"A new king?" thunders Herod (Jean Armistead) at the wise men who are searching for the Christ Child.

"And there were in the same country shepherds keeping watch over their flocks by night . . ."

In a Holi-Daze

With the coming of the Yuletide season, life on the campus touches a new peak. A fine sense of joy felt everywhere is re-emphasized by services that reach deeply into the true meaning of Christmas. Chimes ringing familiar songs peel from the Little Chapel-in-the-Woods . . . chapel services and dormitory vespers add a spiritual note . . . and the sacred-like atmosphere of the White Breakfast and the beauty of the Christmas dinner lend their own unique appeal. All the thrilling traditions so keen at Christmas are alive everywhere . . . the smell of fir . . . gay room and dormitory decorations . . . students bubbling with the excitement of gift-buying . . . dormitory parties . . . and that unsurpassed tingle of between-class caroling. The tradition of Christmas is at its best the TSCW way.

Dead Week's Here ... And So To Bed

"The Star Spangled Banner" . . . sung by the audience and platform guests as a fitting opening to New Voters Day.

"To an American, the ballot is sacred," says Peggy Robinson, president of the Campus League of Women Voters.

Judy Whitson, Campus League vice-president, closes the program with the new voters' pledge.

Honoring New Voters

Mrs. William Ruggles, prominent Dallas civic leader, tells 300 TSCW new voters of the growing importance women play in government today.

And from the Singing Stars . . . "This is My Country."

Stunts ~ It's Time To Shine

Freshmen Say "My Tomb Is Your Tomb"

"We are the very models of modern archeologists."

"Egypt's queen is awakening."

"There's no tomb like our tomb."

A chorus of sphinxes guards the mysteries of an ancient Egyptian tomb where things happened that even a modern archeologist never dreamed of.

When the slumbering queen awakes, so does her galaxy of slaves who entertain the exploring visitors.

Even an Egyptian tomb had its court jesters.

"Watch them as they shake their tummies. Would you think they once were mummies?"

"Up and Atom," Sophomores!

"Science, since the birth of reason . . ."

"Mr. Atom, of thee we sing."

"My lady, alone on Jupiter."

"Mr. Atom, the world's new king!"

"I'll step inside each factory and modernize machinery."

"The supersonic rage of the atomic age . . . the lady who's known as Jet."

"We'll just have the little man divide."

"The world will shout 'Up and Atom!'"

Juniors Crown "De Prince O' Whales"

"Roll 'em in de' gutter, on de' street . . . and on de'
sidewa'k."

"It's not so easy to say goodbye."

"My son went fishin' in a boat with a sail . . . ridiculous!"

"Oh, Jonah, I must be looney to trust a lower than low two-timer like you!"

"Well, I think that you're absolutely right about that—
And agree with all you say.
Mr. Jonah was the nicest man on dis here street—
And he proved it ev'ry day."

"I'll be true to my gal—
And I won't cheat my old pal."

"He's in the good Lord's hands,
He's seen de' promised land . . ."

And it's promised land for the juniors as they net the coveted silver stunt cup for the second year in a row.

"Assorted Nuts," Senior Style

"Subway trains and traffic jams shore do distress me...don't fence me in."

"Nothing can quench... that doggone love of fire!"

"It takes two... it takes two."

"Good morning, good morning,
We've sat an hour through,
Just sitting and waiting for you...
and you... and you... and you."

"All the doctors say I've got them stumped... because I'm sick!"

"Forget your troubles, come on, get happy—
Get ready for a better day!"

"Grabbed the pilot from a silver plane
... he belongs to me."

"They have asked me for prescriptions of all sizes and descriptions."

COVER EVERY NEED—Can't do without handy coveralls. Must for painting sets or going to lab.

SOMEWHERE BETWEEN DENTON AND FORT WORTH, April 14 (SPL)—Just shoved all the final Daedalian copy in Ruby (that's her on the left with Mary, J-Dith, Junie and me) and we're roaring off to Fort Worth to beat the last-minute deadline at the printers.

Judy and our artistic Miss Sherrill are harmonizing on "Oh, Happy Day" while June draws deadline time on a tired old clock. Sometimes I almost believe her when she tells me we're working time to death.

It just wouldn't be the same somehow if we weren't using every minute of the last few miles working against time (if you'll pardon the expression) to write "30" for Daedalian, 1953.

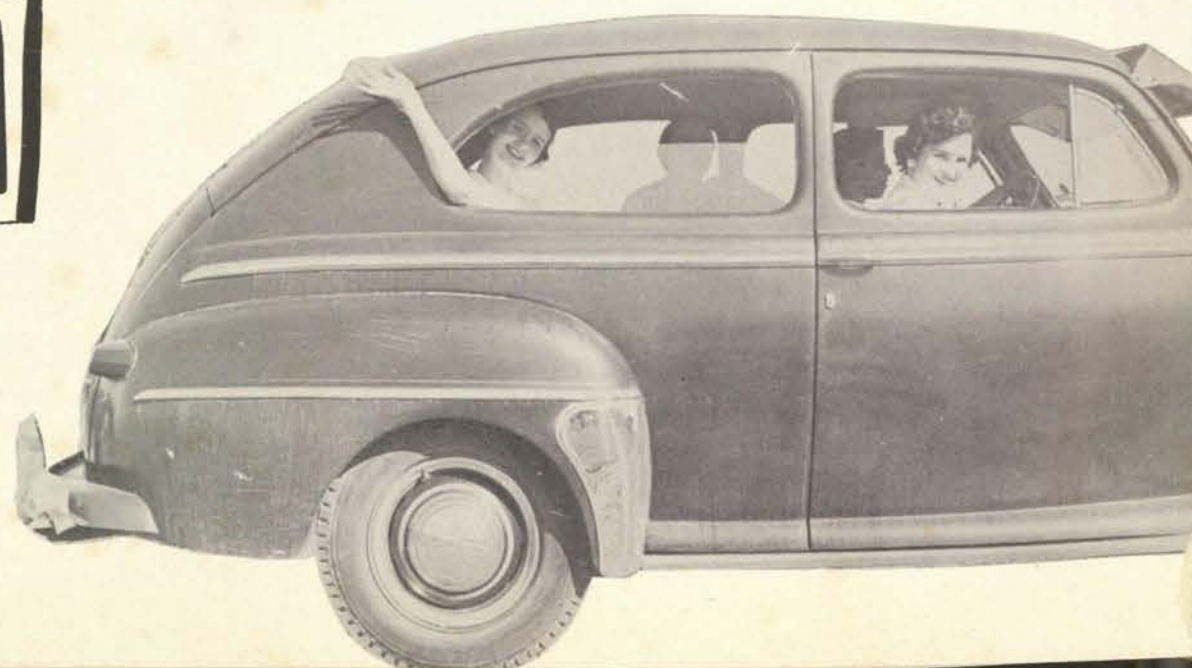

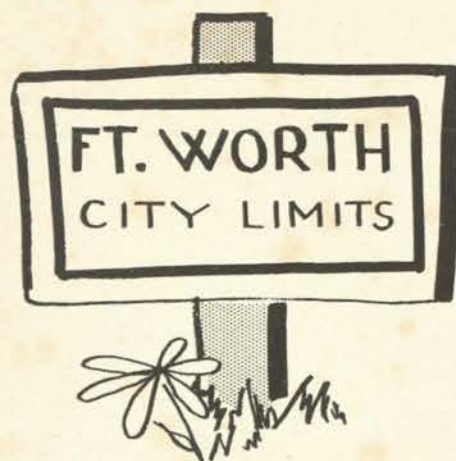

Wouldn't you know this would be a stormy day? Maybe it's a good thing, because it's slowing Ruby down—and besides, it's raining memories . . . like the day we took our very first annual picture and the flash bulb wouldn't go off—and that's how we learned about time exposure . . . Or when the juniors had their hayride and we weren't having any film—and that's when we learned about Johnny Ingram. There were other things the annual taught us, too. When hand-setting type for the nameplate, we discovered that "yrasrevinnA nedloG" is Golden Anniversary spelled backwards.

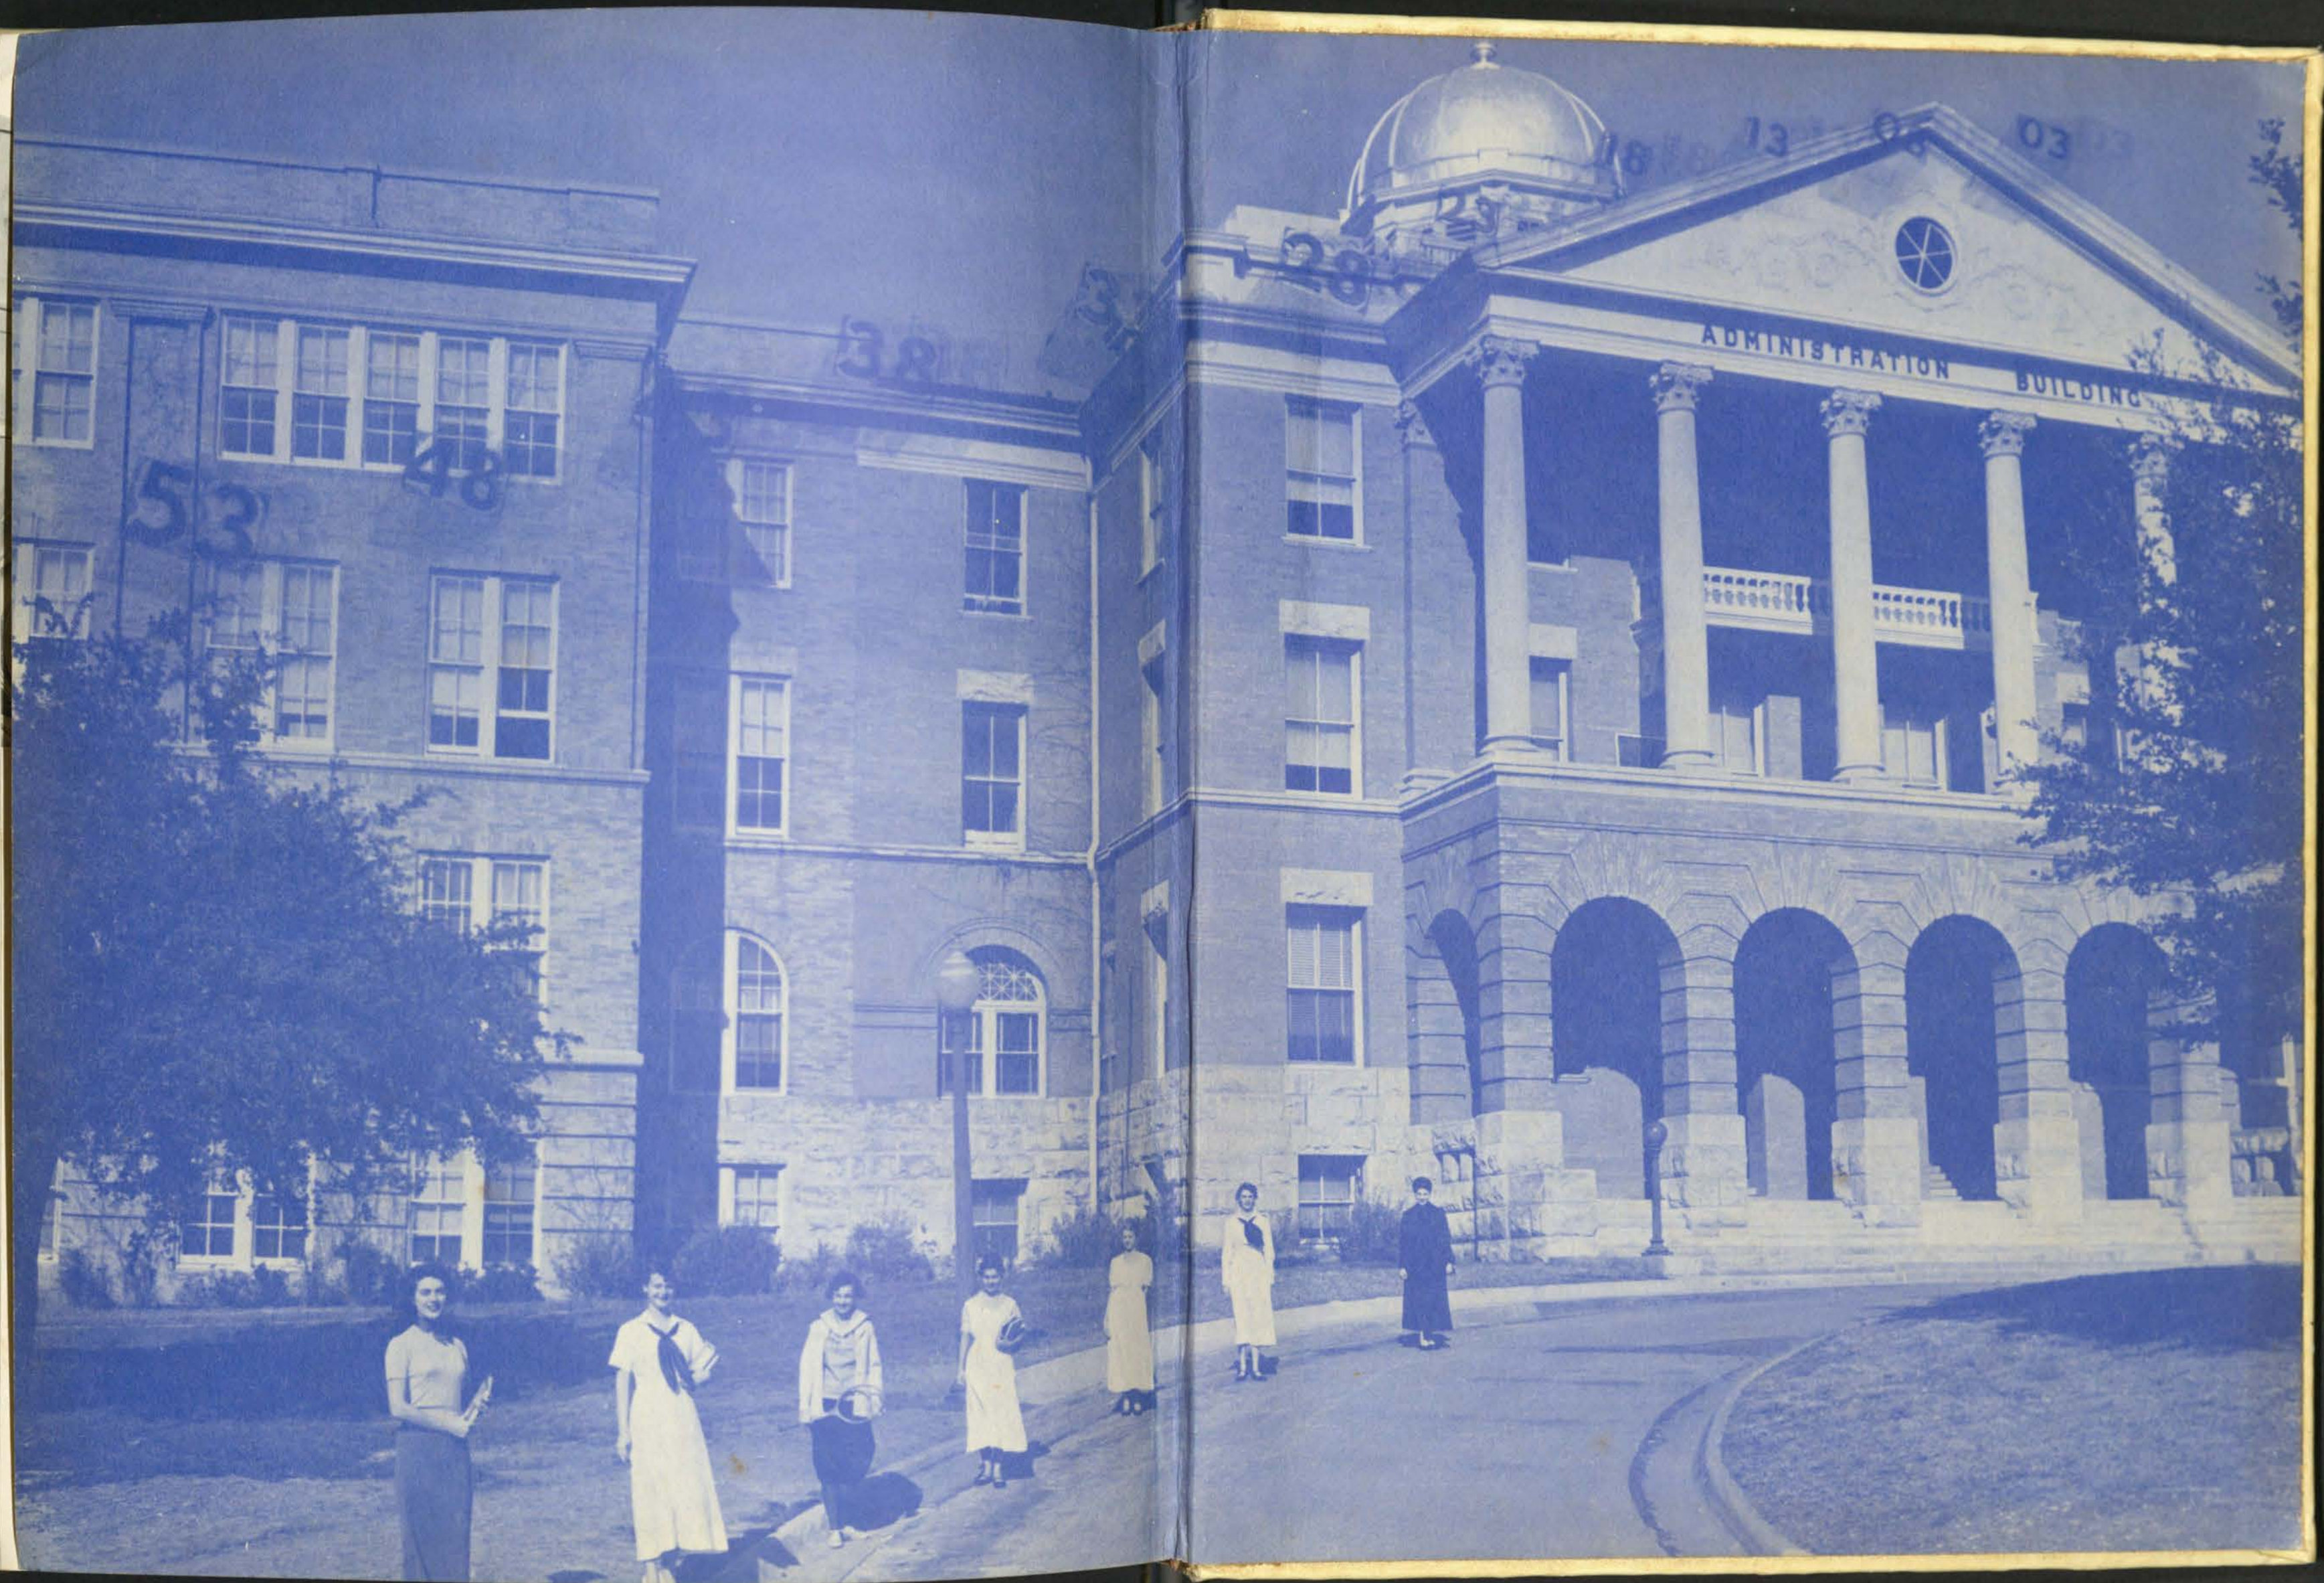

This has certainly been a golden year, any way you spell it . . . from the kickoff (that was the day we had to break down the darkroom door someone had mysteriously locked to get film and cameras) to the other hundreds of anniversary activities that we recorded in picture and print. And each one has made us feel a little luckier that we were the ones to put out a Golden Anniversary Daedalian.

Time waits for no one or no thing—least of all a final annual deadline. The staff never could have made it without . . . Mr. Rigler's enthusiastic guidance . . . Max, whose superb division pages we love as much as his sparkling good humor . . . Mr. Burchard, who, besides taking outstanding class and beauty pictures, was never too busy to cover some of the college's main events . . . Miss Corpron's technically and artistically perfect building pictures. And there are others whose names belong here . . . Mary, who wasn't too involved in one publication to give able assistance on this one . . . our parents (and the letters they didn't get) . . . our profs (and their classes we didn't attend) . . . our friends (whom we turned down bridge games and shows with to finish up another section) . . . Mrs. Denman, who waded ankle deep in annual copy to "check" the room.

It's five o'clock, and we're rolling into the printers just under the wire. I hardly know what else to say . . . except that I hope you'll find your 1953 Daedalian a memory treasure chest of golden days. And now . . . it's quittin' time. I've loved every minute of it.
