Campus Government Association

Mikell Murphy
President

From the moment you enroll at Texas Woman's University you are a citizen in our Campus Government Association. This means that you have a deep responsibility to fulfill by doing your part to keep our CGA active and effective.

One of the most important ways that you as a Freshman can work in CGA is to take full advantage of the outstanding Sponsorship Program planned and carried out by CGA to help Freshmen during that ever-so-busy first week of school in September. The day you arrive an upperclassman especially selected for the honor of serving as a Sponsor will meet you and your parents. She will attend the campus functions with you through Friday night when we have our traditional Lantern Parade and University Review. This Sponsorship program provides you with an excellent opportunity to get into the swing of things in the best way possible—active participation in campus affairs.

Another aspect of serving in CGA is living under our Honor Tradition. This Tradition applies to every phase of our student life, for it is the foundation upon which our University standards are built. Upholding the Honor Tradition as it is described for you in the Handbook means remembering always that your personal standards now reflect upon the whole University. It is by this code of ethics that we uphold the rules of our school. We know that you will soon share our pride in our Honor Tradition as you note how well it works. It not only raises the standards of our school, but it also is excellent training in good citizenship.

CGA is an organization strictly devoted to you. Your needs give it a purpose, and your interest and support give it strength. The voice of your CGA is the Student Council, an organization composed of the presidents of the all-campus organizations (those described for you in this bulletin), the presidents of the four undergraduate classes, presidents of the residential units, editors of the campus publications, the manager of our radio station, two Freshman Class representatives, and the four officers of CGA.

Each week at the Student Council meeting ideas and suggestions are discussed concerning every facet of campus life—from milk machines in the dormitories to the giant Gold Rush Carnival given each fall by CGA to raise money for our school. You will find that attending these meetings gives you a true insight into the problems and plans of our University. This is also your golden opportunity to share your opinions in open discussion. It is this enthusiasm and interest in sharing ideas that has

Women's Recreation Association

Joyce Lawson
President
WRA

The Women's Recreation Association is an all-campus organization to which every student on the campus belongs. Through WRA you can gain new friends, skills, happiness, health, and a worthy use of leisure time.

WRA means a lot to us and we hope that when you arrive on campus it will become as much a part of your life as it has of ours.

We wish you had a crystal ball so you could see in it our plans for you and WRA. But, since you haven't a crystal ball, we'll try to tell you what we see in WRA for you. The verbs know, feel, see, can, and think will outline our plans for you.

We are members, and you will be as soon as you arrive on campus.

We know there are many things offered through WRA that you will be interested in (Fun Night, Lantern Parade, Corn Huskin' Bee, Swimming Meets, Christmas Door Contest, Treasure Hunts, and many others.)

We feel that through WRA freshmen may get further acquainted with upperclassmen as well as their own classmates. This is easily accomplished by playing and participating in seasonal and year-round clubs, such as basketball, softball, golf, archery, badminton, fencing, tennis, tumbling, rifle, aquatics, and volleyball.

We see interest in our folk, ballroom, modern, and ethnic dance clubs, as well as our bridge and bicycling clubs.

We can promise you plenty of fun, friendly competition, companionship and relaxation through play with WRA.

We think you can learn a lot through WRA, and that WRA has a lot to offer you as an individual and as a member of a class.

So——why don't you come out and play the WRA way? You'll enjoy it, you'll have a lot to gain, and you'll become a part of the campus more quickly through participation in WRA.

See you at Fun Night!

made our CGA the dynamic, progressive organization that it is today.

Life at Texas Woman's University is as wonderful as you yourself make it. If you take advantage of the opportunities, fulfill your new responsibilities, and accept our challenges, you will find yourself growing into an intelligent, reverent, useful citizen.

These next four years will be the busiest, most enriching time of your life. On behalf of all the members of CGA, the Student Council, and its four officers—Gaye Hatinger, Pope Franklin, Betsy Le Bleu and myself — I welcome you to Texas Woman's University.

The Daily Lass-O

Marsha Pyle
Editor

The staff members of the only woman's university daily in the world, The Daily Lass-O, welcome you, the Class of '62, to Texas Woman's University. We hear you are going to top all other classes in enrollment, and we are sure you are going to create a lot of news for us to print.

After being at Texas Woman's University for only a short while you will find The Daily Lass-O is of vital importance in your every day life. Monday through Friday you will have an opportunity to read the four page tabloid.

Something new has also been added to The Lass-O this past year, a section entitled "Featuring Freshmen" which appears once a week. This section is written for freshmen and about freshmen, and we hope to be reading about you.

The Daily Lass-O is published five days a week and extras are published on special occasions. All of the work that goes into a paper is done through the efforts of what are known on campus as "J" majors. They gather the news, read copy, write headlines, work in the Journalism Building's own print shop, and take, develop, print, and engrave their own pictures.

Putting out the paper is a laboratory project, and the journalism majors and minors get a chance to apply and practice what they learn in the classroom.

As well as campus news and events in The Daily Lass-O, you will also find local, state, and national news. Features, campus cartoons, columns, editorials, sports, amusements, church, clubs, and social happenings are also a major part of the paper.

Through us you will read for the first time campus election results and receive first hand information on all campus happenings. We invite you to join the list of our many readers and become truly a part of Texas Woman's University.

Student Finance Council

Beverly Blount
President
SFC

The letters SFC are familiar ones to the students of Texas Woman's University. They stand for Student Finance Council and it in turn stands for much more.

SFC is the all-university organization responsible for raising money for scholarships, and this is achieved through carrying out various projects during the school year. SFC scholarships go to future students who show real desire for a university education.

The first project undertaken by the council each year is a Rummage Sale held in the Recreation Room of the Union Building. Many students find this an ideal way to furnish their rooms with extra bookcases and other furnishings. The next event sponsored by SFC is the Howdy Dinner, our way of welcoming every student, both new and old, to the new year at Texas Woman's University. Other projects are continued throughout the year and many of them prove to be a lot of fun as well as being worthwhile.

It is nice to think that SFC is able to bring girls to school who might not be able to attend under any other circumstance. Each year the Council increases the scholarship fund as much as possible and because of the wonderful work that has been done this year, the coming year looks very good. It is our intention to contribute so that students may enjoy the opportunities and enriched university life that is to be found on our campus. The friendliness and democratic spirit of the student body attributes greatly to the past success of SFC and it is perhaps through these efforts that you are going to be one of us.

You will find that our University is filled with unlimited opportunities and beautiful traditions of which SFC is proud to be a part. Here you will find a challenging spirit of the young women who are being trained to take their places in this modern world of ours.

SFC welcomes you; we'll be looking for you at the Howdy Dinner in the fall!

activities. We have counselors on each floor, who are here to assist the incoming freshmen in any way they can.

This oversized home has a beautifully decorated living room, several lounges, and many bedrooms. Each of these bedrooms is built with two girls in mind. These girls have a desk, two dressers or built-in drawers, two closets, and a lavatory. In the Rusk System the rooms are arranged for three girls.

We are proud of our university, as it offers both curricular and extra-curricular activities. We welcome you to share in our University Life.

Texas Woman's University: Report by a New Student

*For the girl desiring a truly stimulating educational experience,
Texas Woman's University — with its ability to custom-tailor its program to her needs —
offers unparalleled advantages*

Mother and Dad and I drove onto the campus and parked in front of the beautiful new Administration Building where an upperclassman was waiting to take us on a tour of the campus.

As we left the Ad Building, as our guide called it, we saw Hubbard Hall across the driveway. In this building are located separate air-conditioned dining halls for each class, plus a cafeteria, several banquet rooms and the like.

Next we toured Dorm Row, six dormitories for freshmen and sophomores. Junior and senior dormitories and the Cooperative System were farther up the hill.

The dorm room I visited was so cozy—just as I had dreamed a university room would be! This one had a built-in dresser, twin beds, a big study desk, two chairs, and a closet for each girl. The two freshmen living there had brought their radio, hi-fi set, wrought-iron bookcase and stuffed animals to complete their room furnishings. From the big windows I could see Lowry Woods, where girls have picnics and class parties.

While Mom and Dad talked to the dormitory director, I glanced at the bulletin board. There must never be a dull moment at TWU! Seems there are quite a few opportunities for leadership here; there were announcements of special interest clubs; sports organizations; student government meetings; departmental, regional, and literary - social clubs and national honorary and professional fraternities and societies.

Our guide was anxious for us to see the Little Chapel-in-the-Woods. And when I saw it, I could see why the students were so proud. They did the art work, metal work, and the stained glass windows. I could just imagine a wedding here. My guide said more than 2,000 former students had been married in this beautiful chapel.

Non-denominational Sunday morning services held by the students themselves are evidence that religion is an important part of TWU life.

Leaving the Chapel and Botanical Gardens which surround it, we drove past the University sports field, 10 tennis courts, the University Hospital, and the new block-square College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation Building.

I was fascinated by the huge gym, beautiful locker rooms, and well-equipped Modern Dance and Folk Dance studios. I wanted to stay longer and watch the world-renowned Modern Dance Group practice one of their original dance commentaries, but the family decided it was refreshment time.

Our guide said we could find cool drinks in the Union Building Recreation Room which has a fountain, juke box, dance floor, TV and other recreational facilities—or we could go to the Pub where students gather between classes.

Since I wanted to see what university girls did with their spare time between classes, we went to the Pub which adjoins the Post Office, University Hill Station. There I found that all I had heard about the friendly spirit at Texas Woman's University was true.

There was a "hi" for everyone—even for me and they had never seen me before! Another thing I noticed was that even though the enrollment is considerably more than 2,000, almost all the girls seem to know each other. I'll remember that warm, friendly atmosphere for a long time.

As we talked to the girls who came by our table, I was surprised to meet students from almost every state and several foreign countries. But no matter where they were from, they all seemed to possess that certain poise, charm, competence, enthusiasm, and ambition that I am seeking in my university career.

Leaving the Pub, we saw the rest of the 18 residence halls, Bralley Memorial Library, where a new addition is being constructed, the Main Auditorium where drama students present plays each semester and internationally famous artists appear, the Demonstration School where students learn to teach, and the 18-hole golf course, always available for relaxation.

I could go on all day describing the Fine Arts, Music-Speech, Education, Household Arts and Sciences, Journalism, Science, Library Science, and Classroom buildings. And the University is in the middle of a big expansion program right now.

As I summed up all these advantages I imagined the fee at Texas Woman's University would be tremendous. But when we went back to the Administration Building, the Dean of Admission-Registrar explained the charges to me.

Charges for two complete semesters (the nine months' long session are only $650.00 for Texas girls, $900.00 for out-of-state and foreign girls

This includes room in the regular dormitory system, meals in the central dining unit, tuition, medical and activity fees, and bed linen which is laundered free. It also includes your textbooks and a season ticket for the fabulous Concert and Drama Series. Only extras are your personal expenses. My parents just couldn't get over it!

In the Administration Building foyer, I thumbed through the University's 368-page yearbook, the Daedalian, while my parents glanced at a copy of the Daily Lass-O, TWU's daily newspaper produced entirely by the students.

Soon it was time to talk to the president, Dr. John A. Guinn. He made us feel so much at home and told us more about Texas Woman's University, its superior programs and values.

Before returning home, I reserved my room for the session which starts with a gathering of all new students Monday morning, Sept. 15.

I'm sure I've chosen the right school for ME, and my parents agree. What about YOU?

Study and Recreation combine at Texas Woman's University for effectiveness, resourcefulness, distinguished achievements.

The Daedalian Yearbook

Bobbie Conner
Editor

A climax to your first year on the campus of Texas Woman's University will be receiving your Daedalian Yearbook, a book packed with the memories of your first enriching year as a university student.

The Daedalian is your book and every page is filled with the activities you will have participated in and will have become a part of from the day of your arrival at Texas Woman's University. It is a pictorially portrayed book of your life here on the campus.

The Redbud Festival, Corps Trip, All-university dances, Religious Emphasis Week, Corn Huskin' Bee, Stunts, Gold Rush Carnival, Concert and Drama programs, and other important events fill the 400 page book.

The book also contains formal pictures of all members of the university classes, administration and faculty members.

The staff, composed of students, does all the copy, art, photography, and advertising. Members of the staff are chosen from each class. Freshmen are appointed to assistant positions and two freshman journalism students are selected in the fall to edit the freshman class section.

What better way is there to end your first year of university life than to receive a book packed with all the wonderful memories of that year?

Student Council of Religious Activities

Jo Ann Wooton
President
SCRA

"Hi"—welcome to our university. A university which promotes and stimulates growth spiritually, mentally, and physically.

It is the purpose of the Student Council of Religious Activities to promote the spiritual life of the students on the campus and to cooperate with the local churches in accomplishing their various activities.

Two representatives from each Christian denomination and two from Jewish religion are selected from the student body to serve on the SCRA. Their interest in spiritual life and their cooperation brings about unity in purpose, and action.

Non-denominational in scope and outlook, SCRA sponsors Sunday morning services in the Little Chapel under the leadership of dormitory religious

Student Council of Social Activities

Susan Maxwell
President
SCSA

There will be many activities to look forward to when you are a freshman. The Junior Class (your sister class) will have an open house in your honor. You will enjoy the Concert and Drama Series, famous name bands which play at the all-campus dances, Corps Trip Weekend with our "brothers" from Texas A&M. You may be chosen one of the princesses to reign at the Redbud Festival and Coronation Ball. Prepare to be anything from a giraffe to a Polynesian in class Stunt productions put on each February. Your skill as a carpenter or lighting technician may also be put to use here.

When you are a sophomore there are literary-social clubs to pledge. This is an excellent way to become better acquainted with upperclassmen, girls in other dorms, and girls you already know. The Student Council of Social Activities sponsors the pre-rush tea which acquaints the prospective pledges with literary-social club members. Each club then gives a rush party which may be a carnival or a steak fry. Rush parties are a preview of the fun offered by the literary-social clubs.

The social aspect is a part of every phase of University life—in your relationship with others in your dorm, your classes, or at innumerable university functions. SCSA works to make each relationship more enjoyable and worthwhile. Texas Woman's University offers all that is necessary in the social life of a university girl to develop poise, self-confidence, and the ability to adjust graciously to many social situations.

There are also many departmental and special interest groups which will benefit you after you have graduated. We encourage freshmen to join in and take an active part in them. There are the Citizenship League, Philosophy Club, Le Cercle Francais, Daughters of Alumnae, and many others.

Dating rules are those of a normal home. There are plenty of opportunities to meet boys from "Aggieland" and other colleges nearby.

SCSA welcomes you to the social life of Texas Woman's University.

chairmen, and special programs at Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter. We also sponsor All-Campus Vespers, held late one spring evening on the Chapel lawn. Religious Emphasis Week—the highlight of the year—is held in the fall. This week in the year we set aside to emphasize our religion, but in reality every week should be Religious Emphasis Week.

Your days and years in our university are an opportunity to strengthen your spiritual life and mature in your faith. You are challenged to be a part of the development of a spiritual atmosphere on our campus.
