Spokation with the whites. Lord MULGRAVR's dissolution of the Assembly has only introduced four new members into the House, consisting of fifty, and, we believe we may safely state, from authority upon which we can thoroughly rely, that NO SUCH BILL as that which Mr. STANLEY requires will be passed, although we are equally satisfied that no body of men would more readily adopt a safe and feasible plan for the abolition of alavery altogether than the Assembly; in which opinion we are borne out by the observations contained in the paper which weaker unatted are borne out by the observations contained in the paper which we have quoted. It is our decided opinion that the next meeting of Par-liament will find affairs quood Jamaica exactly where the prorogation has left them, and that the entire question will be to be agitated de noro. It is the duty, therefore, of the Jamaica men to make the best use of the intervening time.

Jamaica men to make the best use of the intervening time, to get better terms for themselves, and for the country, whose fate is so intimately interwoven with theirs. We cannot conclude these remarks, arising, as they have done, from the powerful protest of the DuKE, without ob-serving upon the conduct of certain Noble Lords, who de-sire to be accounted Concervatives, but who absented them-selves upon a division which, had they attended, would have forced his Grace's amendment upon Ministers. If, as we are told, their refusal to vote upon a great national question areae from pique, because his Grace upon some other occasion had declined dividing their Lordship's House, it is the more to be regretted, inasmuch as it should seem It is the more to be regretted, inasmuch as it should seem that their Lordships in so doing, did their best to prove them-selves useless; which there is little doubt it will soon be proposed to vote them.

THE Times is grown foolish—it twaddles: at this time of day conceive its telling its readers that statutes exist against the interference of Peers in elections for Members of the House of Commons, and quoting them too—Prodigious !! !--Why, the stupidest briefless barrister in London, who had Why, the stupidest briefless barrister in London, who had been driven from the bar by the direful impossibility of getting salt to his porridge by sitting belind it, could have told us this. Why did not the Times, in attacking Lord WARWICK, who we sincerely believe to be perfectly inno-cent of everything alleged against him, tell us of all the proceedings by which its friend BROUGHAM sat in Parlia-ment—how the Duke of CLEFLAND's men sat in Parlia-liament—or any of the Whigs' men sat in Parliament, if it were not by the interference of Peers, contrary to the sta-tutes which it quetes. were not by the interference of Peers, contrary to the sta-tutes which it quetes. We find in the Morning Post the following extract from

t is highly creditable to that journal that it will not do the irty work of the Radicals; indeed Lord ALTHORP himself the dirty work

As the evidence on KEY's case has been published in all the newspapers, it seems hardly worth making any extracts from it. The complete exoneration of Mr. CHUNCH, and the entire be-devilment of everybody else concerned, are suffi-cient for those whose object was to shew the falsehood and the entries of the set was to show the falsehood and injustice of the allegations made against that gentleman, merely because he happens to be a Yory. The Times, loudest in the time of his impudence and folly, in the praise of the twice-elected LORD MAYOR, the Right Honourable Sir JOHN KEY, Baronet, turns round upon the wretched man, and suggests the immediate nullification of his Baronetcy in a separate Gazette—these people are never satisfied. Every suggests the immediate nullification of his Baronetcy in a separate Gazetle—these people are never satisfied. Every-body knew what Sir JOHN KEY was, when he was made a Baronet—all that has happened creates no surprise whatever —no, not even in the mind of Lord GREY—who, now that the Worthy Alderman has duped, betrayed, and disgraced him, cannot, let him do what he may in his hours of sober sadness, cease to remember him in his cups—the penny sub-scription cups, we mean; one of which, graces the sideboard of Howick, deeply engraven with the name of Sir JOHN KEY, Baronet, to whose exertions and pence the Noble Premier was entirely indebted for its existence and presentation.

WE have heard a great deal of the cutting down of expenditure, and the turning out of elerks, and all the rest of the curtailing system upon which the professing Gorvern-ment have been obliged (to keep in, with their unwashed triends of the Political Unions) to adopt. As a proof of the expediency of all these changes and curtailments we can do ittle better than exhibit two instances of inaccuracies, blunders, ignorance, and stupidity, which have displayed themselves in consequence of the new arrangements during the last week.

The first is this :-

order of the House of Commona, in consequence of a motion by Mr. Ald. Thourson, the duty for the year 1832 is only 212,853. 11s. 2d., making a difference of 97,6381. 0s. 1d. —A bagatelle. The next in order is the return of news-paper stamps :— "Newsparsa Stawrs.—Mr. S. Ricz, in consequence of the inac-curacies in the returns of the number of stamps issued to the London newspapers, wildrew the returns, and moved for an accurate one, which the Hon. Member then brought up." Here we have it again—and most certainly nothing can be more incorrect than the returns even now; for there are several papers, weekly ones in particular, which appear to have a great circulation, when in point of fact they have a very limited one, but which is mystified, and their apparent sale wonderfully encreased by their proprietors taking stamps for different country papers, which appear in the returns as if they were used for the London journals, under the names of which they are entered. No possible criterion can be formed of the circulation of these papers while such a system is carried on; but the blunders of the newly regulated Stamp Office, so soon after Mr. PRESTON WOOD's expensive ele-vation to the throne of the tax-gatherers, is comical. As a forther proof of the ludicrons ignorance of everybody connected with the wretched herd, we only beg to submit the following from the Cambridge Chronicle of Friday. The Cambridge Paper says— " The House of Lords has done one good thing, before the close of the Session, in throwing out the Bill, passed by acclamation in the House of Cords has done one good thing, before the close of the clerky have commenced in order to try the question of a modus, before the expiration of the period after which ho proceed-ing could be commenced. Not even the Lord Chancellor held up bis hand in favour of the measure. In fact, it appeared pretty clearly that the whole scheme was devised principally to create an outry against the clerky. dare say if any thing is wrong, Lord PALMERSTON, in whose particular department it seems to be, will see to it. THE Times on Friday published an original poem, in the form of a speech of the Member for Odium, by Miss F. Yesterday the Post publishes the same, announcing that it OHIGINALLY appeared in that paper on the lst of April-ominous day for the poor Times-somebody has been hoax-ing it again. What the Post says upon the subject deserves to be extracted, not for the sake of explosing the Times in its wholesale borrowings, but for the sake of exhibiting the change which must have taken place in political affairs, and which could induce a community of feeling between a Conservative and Constitutional journal and a Ministerial and Destructive newspaper. The Post says :-" "We reprint the following clever piece of satire which appeared in the Morains Post of April 1, as we now find our original estimate of its melic continued by such excellent judges of this species of composition as our contemporaries of the Times to us the we direct public attention to the matter, for we bee not only to assure our worthy contemporaries that they are quite welcome to this trife-but to inform them that, by recurring to our file of the last and present year. Our motive for meuting in the information of their readers. It is not file purpose of claiming was thelenges to us that we direct public attention to the matter, for we bee not only to assure our worthy contemporaries that they are quite as good, some in our judgment even better than that which they have now honoured by their selection, and all of which, of course, are en-tirely at their service. Our motive for meutioning an affair appa-rently an frivolus (in addition to the appoley it alfords us for repeating the bagatefle, of which we own ourselves al little prond) is merely the pleasure of noticing so salutary a change in the public mind as that of which the altered taste and conduct of the Times and Globe presents an unequivocal proof

We give the following from the Medical Gazetter-STATE OF CHOLERA IN THE METROPOLS.- According to the information which we have been able to collect from authentic sources, the number of cases of cholera during the week just concluded is rather less than occurred during that which preceded it, showing the disease to be slowly on the decline; and this view is further corroborated by the returns in the bills of mortality, the number of deaths having dropped down from 156, the week before last, to 125 in the last week. Various circumstances have concurred to give prise to a general opinion that cholera is and has been more prevalent than we believe to be the fact. It is undenlable that to judge from the number of patients affected with the disease, who have been attended by private practitiones, we should be warranted in declaring the malady to have been considerably more rife than last season; but it is to be kept in mind that this depends in a great measure upon the discontinuance of the cholera hospitals, in which many of the poorer classes were provided for on its first irruping; and also, it must be added, upon its visitations having been more frequently extended to those ranks of life in which the assistance of the medical practitioner is immediately had recourse to. recourse to.

We have to announce, with the sincerest regret, the death of the Right Hon. HARNET Countess of ABERDERN, which took place in Arkyle-street, on Monday. Her Ladyship has been for some time declining in health, and for some months very little hope had been entertained of her recovery. Her Ladyship was the daughter of the Hon. JOHN DOUGLAS, and married, 25th Nov. 1809, JAMES Viscougt HAMILTON, eldest son of JOHN JAMES first Marquess of Absacous, HARAILTON, clust son of JOHN JAMES inst inst inarquess of ABERCOR, by whom she had issue, the present Marquess of ABERCOR, Lay HARRIER, and Lord CLAUBE. The Noble Viscount dying May 37, 1814, her Ladyship married, on the 8th of July, 1815, the Farl of A BERDEEN (who had previously married the sister of her Ladysbig former hushand), and by him leaves issue, GEORGE JOHN JAMES Led HADDO, and four other children, the youngest not five years ddy-Her Ladyship was one of the most amiable and exemplary of women, and her loss, independently of the severe blow which it inflicts upon her immediate relations and connexions, will be most severely kit by a nunerous class of persons who were in the habit of receiving assistance from her charity, which was dispensed widely and nobly, but without parade or ostentation. Her Ladyship's remains will be deposited in the Mausoleum at Stanmore.

DEATH OF SIR HARRY GOODRICKE, BART .-- An express arrived on Sunday night in Arlington-street, London, announcing the death of Sir HARRY JAMES GOODRICKE, Bart., of Ribston Hall, Yorkshire, a gentleman well known and highly esteemed by a numerous cirde of friends, particularly in the sporting world. Sir HARRY, who was only in the 36th year of his age, left Yorkshire a few weeks ago, fr only in the 36th year of his age, left Yorkshire a lew werks age, we the purpose of visiting his extensive estates in Ireland, which devolved to him on the death of his uncle, the late Viscount CLERMONT, and on which he had given instructions for great improvements, benefiting a numerous and industrious class of the poorer orders. His demise took place at Ravensdale Park, on the 21st inst., and will be seriously regretted by many individuals in that country as well as to seriously regretized by many individuals in that country as wells as in this. Sir Hanny is stated to have derived a clear income of upwards of sixty thousand pounds oper annum from the propery left him by his uncle and his paternal estates in the comfue of Norfolk and Yorkshire. He was passionately fond of the sports of the field, and his stud at Melton Mowbray usually averaged between 50 and 60 of the finest hunters: at the close of last season bad 52. We believe Sir Lisary measured an order to be a close of a state of the field, anorefly had 52. We believe Sir HARRY possessed no great landed property in Leicestershire; but his hunting box at Melton was the constant scene of profuse hospitality during the hunting season. The decased Baronet was the only son and heir of the late Sir HARAY GOODMER, the sixth Baronet, by Chantorre, eister to Viscount CLEANON, and succeeded to the title and estates in March, 1802. He was unmurried, and we believe the baronetcy becomes extinct. The greater portion of the landed property, we understand, devolves to the Fortrascus family. Sir HARRY had promised to join a numerous circle of noblemen and gentlemen in the Highlands during the pressil shooting season. Many of them have already arrived at his shooting for x. Marr Lodge, which he recently purchased of the Barl Firs; and the feelings of the guests may be better conceived or described on the second hox. uning and the feelings of the guesta may be better concentration described on the receipt of intelligence of the premaure demise of their hopitable host. The late Baronet was made esteemed by a numerous tenantry, to whom he acted as a literal and indulgent landlord, and his loss will be greatly deplored. Sir HARRY was one of the most spirited fox hunters of the day and master of the Quorn hounds for the three or four last seasons. He was a thorough sportsman, in the fullest sense of the word, and literally fell a sacrifice to a favourite amusement—otter-hunting-in biterally fell a sacrifice to a favourite amusement—otter-hunting-in the indulgence of which last week, in Ireland, he caught a secret cold, and was carried off in forty eight hours. By the Madras papers, which have arrived to the 30th of March, itappears that, in consequence of the great losses military men have sustained by the late failures in Calcutta, a memorial is in course of signature through the Bengal Presidency, soliciting the Government to consider the hardships they endure in being compelled to remit money home at a very heavy discount, or to place it in the hands of agents in Calcutta, by which so many, after a long expatriation from their country, and after many years' hard service, have been com-pletely ruined. These memorialists therefore pray that in considerafin of their long residence in India, and being obliged, by the nature of the climate, to send their families home at a very early age, and consequently forced to remit money for their education, the Government will allow them to transmit the whole or a portion of their pay, for family purposes, by Government bills on the Court of Directors.

Why should not a similar line of conduct he adopted everywhere else to put an end to these nuisances ?"-That the Magistrates of Lewes were extremely wise and active in putting down these booths we have no doubt, because, in the abstract, play is a vice; but we must say that upon a race-course, where the whole spirit of the sport is gambling, and a ecies of gambling in which more cheating and rascality occur than in any other, where the "knowing ones" will always beat the honest and unwary, their skill and activity were somewhere misplaced. We hate prejudices. If gaming is a sin, as the Temperance So-ciety says brandy and water is, put it down altogether; but don't let us praise the Duke and his noble spirit on the turf or the middle of the field, and vituperate those who, on the side of it, practice the same art, but only in a different way. age of othe''

Dr. Chatakens had acknowledged the great service to the Church from the opportunities of learning afforded by the endow-ments of cathedrals, and regretted that the want of it was felt to Scotland. " As to lay impropaiations, the Bishop said that if they were not liable to increase the endowments, at least they should not convert their charge of paying the minister into a benefit; and the Bishop, as we understood him, proposed that some plan should be adopted for augmenting these small livings, but which we do not like to abridge their charge of paying some erroneous impression. " On the subject of pluralities the Bishop said it was entisfactory to hear that they were to be altogether extinguished; that in princi-ple the English law was always against them; and that he should be rejoiced to find that the Government were prepared with some plan to make the sholition practically possible. " The Bishop then proceeded to make some very satisfactory state-ments from the returns of this diocese, in contradiction of the great exaggerations of the non-residence of the Clergy and the small ati-pends of the curates. There were, he said, forty parlishes in the diocese with a population of not more than one hundred. He stated the proportion of parishes having resident finumbents, or resident: curates, showing that the proportion who had not a resident minister, or, as we understood, not within two miles, we not above a sixticith part of the whole diocese. We also understood his Lordship to say that there were not above two or three curates having the charge of a parish, who had a lower stipend than 751.; and that out of 170 curates, 120 had sloreds of 1001, and upward. The Bishop touched on many other subjects, particularly as to schools, and expressed his regret to find that there were the ather were wany parishes with a large population where there were no schools on the National Society plan, and urged the adoption of that plan. " We are sensib

MAYOR, when a discussion followed; and it was at length agreed that the Meeting should adjourn until Tursday, to give time for Surbac consideration of the subject. The Board of Works, it was stated would give a loan for the purpose; and an available piece of ground near Harolds's Cross was mentioned as very suitable for a burying ground,—Dubléra Times.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 8.

ON Monday His MAJESTY visited Hampton Court, accom panied by Colonel BOWATER. On Wednesday the KING came to town attended by L FALKLAND and Sir HERBERT TAYLOR.

FALKLAND and Sir HERBERT TAYLOR. Soon after his arrival His MAJESTY held a Chapter and Investiture of the Most Honourable Military Order of the Bath. The Knights Grand Crosses were robed by Messra. HUNTER and WEBB in the Eatrice Galley in their crimson robes, wearing also the collar of the Order. They were afterwards called over in one of the State Rooms (GEOROBE the Third's), when there appeared— General Sir John Doyle, Bart., General Sir William Henry Clinton, the Right Hon. Sir James Kempt, Lieutenant General Sir George Townsend Walker, Lieutenant-General Sir Thomas Byam Martin, Lieutenant-General Sir Willougbby Gordon, and Viscount Palmerston.

Palmerston. The Officers of the Order present were ALGERNON GREVILLE, Esq., Bath King of Arms, and Sir WILLIAM WOODS, Clarencieux King of Arms, Deputy Registrar, and Secretary of the Order. Attwo o'clock the middle door of the Throne Room was opened, and the Knights Grand Crosses, with the Officers of the Order, pro-ceeded into the presence of the Soversergw, making the usual whisence obeisances.

Obelsances. The Kino stood in front of the Throne. Near His Malestry were several of the Cabinet Ministers, the Officers of State and of the Household. The Honourable Corps of Gentlemen Pensioners, bear-ing their battle-axes, formed in two lines, between which the proion passed.

By command of the King, the Right Hon, CHARLES MANNER By command of the KING, the Right Hon. CHARLES MANNERS SUTTON was introduced to the presence between Sir WILLOUGHBY GOBDON and Viscount PALMERSTON, the two Junior Knights present, preceded by Bath King of Arms, hearing the riband, badge, and star of the Order upon a crimson velvet cushion. Sir John Dovlæ deli-vered the sword of state to the KING, when His MAJEST was gra-ciously pleased to confer the honour of knighthood upon Mr., now Sir, CHARLEM MANNERS SUTTON. His MAJEST made an address to the Knights, pointing out the Bervices and conduct of Sir CHARLES, which had merited his appro-bation.

Sir John Dovis having received from Bath King of Arms the riband and badge, presented them to the Sovenstan, who was gra-ciously pleased to put the same over the rightshoulder of Sir CHARLES, kneeling. Sir CHARLES SUTTON had afterwards the honour of kissing the Marsary's hand, and received from the Soversion the Holdi of Rissing the Order of a Civil Knight Grand Cross. The Knights Grand Crosses and the Officers then withdrew.

The KING afterwards held a Privy Council and a Levee, nich was but thinly attended—indeed London is comwhich pletely deserted.

WE are still without any official news from Portugal. WE are still without any official news from Portugal. It is said that a mercantile house in the city is in possession of a letter stating that Marshal BOURMONT is actually in Lis-bon. We doubt this, merely because we cannot exactly un-derstand how one house could get one letter from Lisbon, and nobody else get any. The question of the destruction of the wines at Villa Nova,

The question of the destruction of the wines at Villa Nova, like all questions connected with this stock-jobbing revolu-tion, is so mystified, that we cannot pretend to unravel all its intricacies. The plain fact seems to be, that Don PEDRO, the Brazilian, thought proper to raise a loan upon the secu-ity of wines, which were lodged in the Royal Company's stores at Villa Nova, and to which he had as much legal right as Lord BROUGHAM has to those of MAXWELL and KEY, or BAXTER and MARJORIBANKS, here. The loan—supported as it was by the name and character of the Marquess de PALMELLA—failed; but Don PEDRO subsequently, having put himself at the head of the Com-pany, and appointed new directors, sold as he wanted money, wines, not only not his, but is point of fact, not belonging to the people from whom he stole them, all of the wines having been mortgaged long since.

mortgaged long since. bee

The lawful Government of Portugal, finding this to be the The lawful Government of Portugal, finding this to be the case, and that the attempts of the rebels and mercenaries to obtain possession of the wines were fruitless, opened a nego-ciation with the Brazilian Pretender's Government, the object of which was, to ship these wines for England, to have them sold, and the produce deposited in the Bank, to await the issue of the contest now going on, and at its conclusion, to be paid over to the legal claimants. The rebels could not accede to this fair proposal, for they had pawned the wines before they had got possession of them, and being somewhat elated by the successes of their bired foreiguers against the KING and people of Portugal, they ridiculed the idea of a danger of having the wines destroyed if they did not comply with the equitable propo-sition which had been made. Pending these negociations, the KING's officers withdrew sition which had been made. Pending these negociations, the KING'S officers withdrew their heavy artillery and a great proportion of their force, and the rebels at Oporto remained congratulating themselves on their departure, seeing that they considered the question of the wines abandoned, and believing that by building the golden bridge for their flying enemy they should come in for all the produce in the stores at Villa Nova; in which calcula-tions they were, however, bitterly mistaken, for on the 10th, finding that the Pedroites exhibited nothing but chicanery and bad faith, and that our Consul. Colonel SORELL, was tions they were, however, bitterly mistaken, for on the 10th, finding that the Pedroites exhibited nothing but chicanery and bad faith, and that our Consul, Colonel Sor BeLL, was not inclined to involve himself in any responsibility on the occasion, the King's troops destroyed the wines-1,512,000 gallons of port, with the warehouses which contained them, were blown into the air; a measure which we find to have been inevitable from the fact of the impossibility of trusting the men to stave or bore the pipes with any regard to the safety of their lives under the effects of intoxication. Long correspondences have ensued upon this subject, for which we have no room. The act is fully justified by the necessities of war-of a war maintained and created by our Government; and when it is known that the sufferers by the explosion are chiefly, if not altogether royalists, it will be explosion are chieffy, if not altogether royalists, it will be easily conceded that such a step would not have been taken without the strongest and wisest political reasons.

HIS MAJESTY has, it will be seen, been pleased to confer upon the Right Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Com-mons, the dignity of a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath. Nothing can be more gratifying to the SPEAKER, nothing more acceptable to the country, who see in this distinction not only the reward of eminent services, but a proof that

JOHN BULL the KING still has the power to confer such distinctions without the assistance of advice from his Ministers. The command for this appointment and investiture were, we are told, given by His MAJERTY to Lord GREY without any previous consultation with his Lordship, who, when he found it useless either to remonstrate or suggest, executed the KING's command with all the urhanity and politeness for which his Lordship, when he pleases, is so eminently distinguished. Indeed, upon the occasion of his so strangely postponing the peerage, to which the SPEAKER must in common justice eventually succeed, the reason his Lordship gave for his conduct was in itself, however unjust and unjustifable its effect, a high compliment to the Right Hon. Gentleman whose elevation at that period his Lordship opposed. "He could not," his Lordship said, "recommend "the KING to bring so powerful an opponent of His MA-"JESTY'S Government into the House of Lords." To the SPEAKER, in his public capacity, Lord GREY and his Government are perhaps more deeply indebted than to any individual in the country. If Sir CHARLES MANNERS SUTTON (as we must now call him) had refused to comply with the earnest entreaty of Lord ALTHORP to resume the Chair, it is evident to everybody conversant with the sub-field, in the REGORMER and have annihilated itself in its first Session. Nothing but the firm, dignifed

ject, that the Reformed Parliament would have annihilated itself in its first Session. Nothing but the firm, dignified manner, the perfect knowledge of his high duties, the strict impartiality and the indefatigable patience of the present SPEAKER, could have kept that assembly together; and it is natural that the KING (whose disposition to do kindnesses and acts of grace to those by whom he is faithfully served, is proverbial) should feel the obligations under which the country and the Government have been laid by Sir CHARLES SUTTON's acceptance of the Chair—and, placed as he is, high above the petty jealousies of his Ministers, bestow a mark of his special favour upon the SPEAKER, not only as a tribute to his merits and character, but as an earnest of His MAJESTY'S intention, when the political objections of the present Caintention, when the political objections of the present Ca-binet shall have passed away, of graciously fulfilling the request of the House of Commons presented to the KING, in an address unanimously voted at the termination of last Parliament

In an address unanimously voted at the termination of last Parliament. It must be highly gratifying to the SPEAKER to find that upon this occasion, like that of his re-assuming the Chair, no difference of opinion exists. All parties combine in com-mending the gracious conduct of the KING; a few there are who regret it,—they are very few—first, because they can claim no share of its merit; and secondly, because it proves to the country that the KING is not entirely ruled by his Ministers: but even they cannot refuse an acknowledge ment of the SPEAKER's deserts, and limit their regret to the fact of his being so openly and so distinctly honoured. The Times was rather unfortunate on Monday; it attacked the SPEAKER for something like want of courtesy, and a slight, and "a piece of great indecorum" if intended, be-cause he omitted to notice, in his speech to the Throne, any portion of "the LORD CHANCELLOA's admirable law re-forms, although the SOVEREIGN thought them worthy of a very distinguished notice."

very distinguished notice."

very distinguished notice." As Lord BROUGHAM had his full share in making the KING's speech, the compliment from the Throne loses some of its value. The omission of the subject by the SPEAKER probably arose from forgetfulness. His address was not writ-ten for the occasion, like that called the KING'S Speech, but made at the moment. For our own parts, we think that the SPEAKER did the kindest thing he could; for when it is recollected that BROUGHAM'S Registration Bill was lost in one House, and his Local Courts Bill thrown out by the other, there seems no great room for compliment. To the Chancery Reform Bill we suppose nobody who admires his Lordship's great public virtues would think of referring : for the whole spirit of it is the cutting down everybody's salary to an extent which, we hear, has driven out many of the old officers of the Court, and of increasing his own reiting pension by two thousand pounds per annon. The Times made a bad shot, let the gun have been level-led by what hand it might. However, to shew that the Times is equally ready to do justice to the SPEAKER. What the Times is equally ready to do justice to the SPEAKER whole support the commission of executing the King's commands in his favour, we shall select, from that paper of Friday, the observ-ations which we there find upon the investiture of the new Kinght of the Bath :— "All those who are acquainted with the laborious and important As Lord BROUGHAM had his full share in making the LORD ANGLESEY has, we presume, been exhibiting some of his old symptoms of restlessness. His Excellency came from DUBLIN and went to Staffordshire because he was ill-so ill, that it was thought he must resign. Lord WELLESLEY so in, that it was thought the must resign. Lord WELLESLEY is then sent for by Lord GREY, and the general talk is, that his Lordship is to go to Ireland, and some of his friends go the length of saying that he went to Court on Wednesday to be declared Lord Licutenant in the Council. All at once, however, Lord ANGLESEY gets "charming well again," and the Dublin papers say he is coming back to the Castle and the Government the Government.

the Government. Perhaps a Dukcdom—or the House Guards—or something of that sort, was wanting. Lord WELLESLEY was again with Lord GREY on Friday, but nothing scems known, and per-haps the Premier will have to postpone, or defer, or do some-thing to keep matters going, and so prevail upon the Lord Lieutenant to remain where he is.

IT is generally said, that Lord MULGRAVE is recalled from the government of Jamaica. Whether this is the case or not, we cannot say. The ground for his Lordship's emoval is reported to be, that he has acted upon private letters and communications from Lord Howick, not is strict accordance with his public instructions from Colonial Office.

Colonial Office. THE LORD CHANCELLOR left town immediately after the prorogation, for his villa with a tower to it, on the North Road, called Bird's Nest. But the most extraordinary cir-cumstance occurred during and after bis Lordship's journey that perhaps ever occurred to man. His Lordship fal asleep in his "new travelling carriage," and slept, unwake, ably, for upwards of fifty hours. At Doncaster it was found impossible to rouse him to a consciousness that somebody wished to speak to him; and we are told that after his arri-val at home, it was a long time before animation could be restored, and not before the most violent means, such as tickling and beating the soles of his feet, had been resorted to. His Lordship seems to have been in the condition of great clock, wound up for regular work for a certain time, but then, when down, perfectly quiescent until wound up the pain of a very distressing disorder, the CHANCELLOR has recourse to the use of landanum. Nothing is more dangen ous, however soothing for the time, than such an addiction; it grows upon the patient so rapidly that he is forced to en-the source the dastred effect, until at her here.

Lord BROUGHAM, how-ever, is again awake, and as happy as such a man can be,

WE last week made an observation or two upon the Tom. foolery of the honours done by the Yacht Club of Cowes to the Citizen-Usurper of the French Throne, at Cherbourg. We have received information of a fact which somewhat changes the character of the expedition, as relates at least to one of its members one or its members. During the festivities at Cherbourg, Lord DURHAM hoistee the Royal Standard of England at the mast-head of his beat, the Louisa, which was then hauled down and re-hoisted, surmounted by a flag of his own arms. This, coming as it does immediately after the publication of certain new resultions touvhing the observations of the

This, coming as it does immediately after the publication of certain new regulations touching the observances of re-spect to the Royal Standard in His MAJESTY'S Navy, is curious. These regulations direct that no flag whatere shall fly on the same mast with that banner; and Lord DURHAM, not content with seizing the first opportunity in his private boat of degrading the Standard by hoisting an-other flag with it, completes the wilful indignity by hoisting his own-the Lambton arms-over it. Remonstrances were made to his Lordship by seven members upon this astronouting conduct but in via

Remonstrances were made to his Lordship by several members upon this extraordinary conduct, but in vaia. As we last week prophesied, this Club will fall to piece —the loyal subjects of our good KING will not continue in a Club converted not only into a political society, but into a society, the object of which appears to be to de-grade that which it is the pride as well as the duty of every Englishman to uphold. We do hone and trust that His MALESTY, who has se

We ought perhaps to add, that in the French papers the following paragraph appears:— "Lord DURMAN wisted the Minister of the Marine, at Cherbourg, to whom, it is said, he declared that the King of EXULAND had ex-pressly commissioned him and LOY dy ANADOUGH to Cher-bourg to compliment Him Majesty Louis Participe on the occasion."

OUR readers will find in another part of our paper a detail of the dreadful shipwreck of the Amphitrite convict-ship, of Boulogne.

of the dreadul shipwreck of the Amphibile convict-ship, su Boulogne. It is as difficult as it would be unjust to decide upon the merits or demerits of the conduct of the Captain or the Sur-geon (who, as agent of convicts, is invested with a high discretionary power in such ships)—they have both paid the extreme forfeit of their imprudence or ignorance, supposing them to have existed in the highest degree. The English Consul is, however, alive to answer for his share in the tragedy. It certainly appears that a Consul should be resident on the spot where, as upon an occasion like this, his services might be required, and be eminently serviceable. An investigation will of course take place. With respect to the class of vessels to which the Amphi-trife belonged, we are of course not aware of the circum-stances under which our new-fangled Boards and ecomonied Commissioners took her up; but this we know, and it is fact in the highest degree creditable to the masters of such ships generally, as well as to the navel surgeons who are ract in the nightest degree creditable to the masters of wargens who are subjus generally, as well as to the naval surgeons who are put in charge of them, that from the first commencement of the convict transportation system to the present day, no one ship had been lost, until in the Channel and within a cable's length almost of the shore this ill-fated Amphitrite was urgented. wrecked.

That the loss of life-of the lives of helpless women too was in this case, under the circumstances, inevitable, is quite clear; but another shipwreck has occurred in which, although the second states of the second spine ciear; nut another shipwreck has occurred in which although the sacrifice has been smaller, the circumstances appear even yet more extraordinary. It is with much sorrow that we learn the following distressing par-ticulars of the loss of life in the Earl of Wemyss London and Leib smack:-

THE first annual meeting of the East Suffolk Conservative Club was held on Wednesday week, at the new Assembly Rooms, Ipswich; about 230 gentlemen sat down to dinner (Sir WILLIAM MIDDLETON, President of the Society, in the Chair); and the Conservative Member for that division of the county, Lord HENNIKER, was most flatteringly re-ceived personally, and highly complimented upon the honesty and industry of his conduct in the maiden Session of his Relimentur carper and industry of his conduct in the maiden Session of his Parliamentary career. Even for extracts of all the excellent speeches that were delivered on the occasion, we have not room; but, as speci-mens of the talent and principle of the Conservative Clubs, now generally established throughout the country—as speci-mens of their ability and probity, in contra-distinction to the talent and principle of that sort of eloquence of which the House of Commons has afforded such a superfluity during the Session just closed—we must find space for the whole of one speech, and the principal portions of two others. First and foremost, we beg to call the minds of our readers to the consideration of the scelent sound sense and manly pathotic spirit of the speech of the gallant Sir CHARLES BROKE VERE, brother of Sir PHILIP BROKE, "the hero of Suffuk":—

The Morning Post, from whose report we have taken the above extracts observes, that never since the dinners in commemoration of the immortal PiTT, has there been a dinner in I pswich attended by so numerous and respect-able a company as were present at this. We have taken the notice we have of the speeches delivered at it, parily on account of their own merits; parily in the expecta-tion that this meeting will be an example and inducement to similar meetings in other parts of the country: also in the hope of convincing the apathetic and inactive, who still, actually still, do not perceive what has been avowed hostility of others; and that, emphatically, the time is come, when all who are not "up and stirring" in the cause of the country, are against it. THE morals of the people of Cheltenham have taken alarm is come, when all who are not "up and stirring" in the cause of the country, are againat it. THE morals of the people of Cheltenham have taken alarm at the enormities of the Race-course; and accordingly, we find the following report of a meeting held upon the subject in that pious town, which meeting was presided over, by its noble patron and supporter, Lord SEGRAVE:— A Delaration, signed by nine Magistrates, ten of the Clergy, and by upwards of two hundred of the most respectable inhabitants and visitors of Cheltenham, has been published, expressive of their conviction that the Races annually held in that place are become an intolerable nuisance. " They have (the Declaration states) for several years driven away many of the most respectable residents from the town during their continuance, to the great injury of the proprietors of lodging-houses, and of all who are interested in the trade and prosperity of the place; swindlers, pickpockets and wasabonds of the very worst description, who seem to lord it over the turf. During the week of the races, and for some time after, the patience of the Magistrates has been nearly exhausted by the numerous cases of foloy, fraud, riot, and assault, which have been brought before them, and they have had great difficulty in prevening gambling to a great extent from being carried on in the heart of the town." In consequence of this Declaration, a meeting was held on Saturday, Lord SEGRAVE is used hiscrediable scenes took place at the last races." Lord ELLENBORGON, the Hon. FULWAR CRAVEN, JOHN BNOWNE, Esq. Of Salperton, R. H. LUCAN, Esq. J. PEL, Esq. and Captain LUCN, R. Nothing can be more praiseworthy than all this; the deli-cacy of the inhabitants of Cheltenham is beautiful—indeed, the delicacy of Cheltenham, taken altogether, is exemplary. But there is a little drawback to this excessive morality. The persons who sign the declaration denounce the races, and the frauds, riots, and assaults concomitant therewith, not upon the high principle which we anticipated, but because they injure the lodging-house kcepers; that is to say, that the yellow-faced ghosts who return from their bungalows in India to physic themselves in public at Cheltenham, dislike anything in which they cannot be lords paramount, and therefore the races, and all their concomitant livelinesses, are to be immediately abolished. Gambling, which never was heard of at a watering-place before, has been attempted in the very heart of the town. What on earth has that to do with the lodging-house kcepers or their lodgers? People do not rush out of London in despair because people play at BROOKES's, GRAMAM'S, CROCKFORD's, or the TRAVELLER'S-men and women live in Pal-mall and St. James's-street for all that—the qui hi's and their landladies at Cheltenham are not forced to play at hazard because they alpayed in Cheltenham. There are mineral waters at Cheltenham that we should swallow them if we went there; it is all cant, and stuff, and hypocrisy, and folly into the barguin: these physickers should recollect that anuse-ment is as necessary to health as medicine, and that more especially at such a place as Cheltenham, "all work and no play" will make their Jacks extremely dull boys indeed. The resolutions are by no means the comical part of this affair-the admirable portion of it is contained in Mr.

affair-the admirable portion of it is contained in Mr. PRESSLY'S letter. Mr. WOOD in the kindest manner in the world, declares that in the exercise of his vast and un-bounded humanity and consideration, he has resolved that whenever five persons, with the Clergyman of the parish at their head, declare that 'an individual "' is wholly unable to pay the duties assessed upon him, and that there is no proba-bility of his being able to do so," he will be relieved. What a boon !--what consideration !-- Why, the cleverest thief in the Strand cannot pick an empty pocket. The wisdom of the avowal is just on a par with its humanity.

IT seems that Mr. ROTCH has not taken the very broad hint which was given him to resign the Chair of the Middle-sex Sessions, by studiously omitting his name in the Special Commission directed to sundry persons to try prisoners in his own Court. He still presides. Some observations which this Learned Gentleman made on Friday, upon a lenient verdict of a Jury, have not escaped notice.

THERE are people in the world who attribute all the re-cent disturbances in Ireland to the intemperate advice which Lord ANGLESEY gave the inflammable people of that priest-ridden country to "AGITATE." What will the reader say to the following letter, published by the Ministerial Times, in which the Lord High Chancellor of England is cited as the authority upon which the People are to rely for resisting the law? The letter is worth reading, and we take the liberty, therefore of horrowing it :-- the authority upon which the People are to rely for resisting the law? The letter is worth reading, and we take the liberty, therefore, of borrowing it:-TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES. Sir,-I am glad to find that the extraordinary proceedings of the incumbent of Kendal have excited the indignation of the public. He has, of course, the funds of Trinity College to back him, and therefore laughs at law expenses. The poor people against whom he has filed his thousand bills are in a very different condition, and it is the duty of every enemy of oppression to assist them. I am not rich enough to give them money, but I can contribute what is sometimes as useful -advice. Let them despise the parson's threats; let them weigh well what the highest law authority in the realm, the Lond CHAN-CELLON, said in the House of Peers on Wednesday in the debate upon the Bill brought up from the Commons to stop these disgraceful pro-ceedings. If I understood the Lond CHANCELLON Finders are used and the the insert was the vicar was bound to tell them. I think the CHANCELLON added, or at least he insinuated, that Perlia-ment would interfere before the vicar could go further. The LONE CHANCELLON's bint ought really not to be low.-Yours respectfully, A TITHE PAYER. What makes this letter more particularly amusing to us is, our knowledge of its author-verfum sop. What makes it most amusing of all is, that is statements are faise. The Times of yesterday shuffles: but so it is-Lord PALMER-STON's groom is as good authority as their present " respect-able correspondent." THE ARMY.

THE ARMY. The following circular has been transmitted to half-pay officers, and is connected with certain measures of economy and retrencliment on the part of Government:-

on the part of Government:— "Horse Guards, Aug. 21. "Sir,—I am directed by the General Commanding, in-Chief to request that you will state to me, for Lord Hitk's information, whether you are prepared to serve on full pay; as, in the event of your not being so prepared, you will be required to commute, re-civing such sum as your services may be considered to entitle you to, it not being possible for Ais Lordship to allow you to remain upon holfbrau.

your not being so prepared, you will be required to commute, re-ceiving such sum as your services may be considered to entitle you to, it not being possible for Ais Lordship to allow you to remain upon half-pay. "I will in that case be necessary that you should transmit a cer-ificate from a military medical officer of the actual state of your health.—I have the honour to be, &c. (Signed) "FITZROY SOMERSET." This is indeed a most important "circular." As we read it, it appears to announce an open violation of the faith of the country pledged to its defenders, and to strike at the se-curity which the certainty of his half-pay afforded to the veteran who fought and bled in his country's service. The man to whom this is particularly addressed, and the the same to all the men to whom it is generally addressed, entered the army (purchasing, in all probability, his commis-sion) under the assurance of a compact made between him-self and the Crown, to receive full-pay while on service and half-pay to the end of his life, when the exigencies of his you honger required his scretions. Upon the faith of that pittance, small enough God knows, he perhaps married, has probably settled himself and his family in some hum-ble retirement, suited carefully to his means, and adapted to his circumstances; this man is now told that if he is not prepared to serve on full-pay, he must commute, because the General Commanding can no longer allow him to remain upon half-pay. If this letter is addressed to mere idlers, and to men who prefer half-pay to full-pay—where they are to be found we on not evently know—it is certainly in and bide and

the benefat commanding can be longer allow mint to remain upon half-pay. If this letter is addressed to mere idlers, and to men who prefer half-pay to full-pay—where they are to be found we do not exactly know—it is certainly just, and right, and proper; but the scope of its application is infinitely wider than this:—a man of sixty may be in perfect health, yet not prepared to serve; and in that case he is to commute; that is to say, he is to be compelled to give up what is his own by law and by right, for such a sum as the present War-office people may think right to bargain for. Why what next —-the half-pay of an officer is as much his birth-right, as Howick is that of my Lord GREY, or Goodwood of the Duke of RICHMOND. Talk of economy or retrenchment!—why, what would the Noble Earl or the Noble Duke think of any Government measure which should have for its object the alienation of their property into the hands of the Crown? what would they say to a "Gircular," which it was impossible they should do, that they mugt sell what is, beyond all question or doubt, their own property. To the jobs which have already been done in the War-office, we have enpeatedly called attention—to the Jew bar-gains made with officers—the shameful proceedings with regard to buying up the pensions of soldiers, who are now starving in the streets of our Colonial towns, beggared and runcd, we have entreated the notice of our readers ; and now comes this circular, declaring that all persons on half-pay, who are not prepared to serve, are to sell their birth-right— not even for what it is worth at a common insurance-office, but for such a sum as the individual's services may, in the option of Mr. EDWARD ELLICE or his master in the office of which he is the nominal head, deserve. To see the name of Lord HILL used in this letter, and to see the letter signed by Lord FITZNOY SOMENERT, grieves us. We know where the differ thy work is done, and it is most

see the letter signed by Lord FILZ BOX SOMENSET, grieves us. We know where the dirty work is done, and it is most painful to find names like these, distinguished in the annais of our country as they are, debased by giving authority to the paltry littlenesses of the subordinates of a subordinate office office. Parliament is up—that the Ministers know—and only three days elapsed after the curb was taken out of their mouths, when they began a system which soldiers of all poli-tics in the House of Commons would have felt it their duty to have emissioned as a pointed. DEAR SIR-As you are not pressed by Parliamentary business at present, could you oblige an old Bubactiber by the insertion of the following remarks on Mr. STANLET -Mr. STANLEY'S West India Bill was founded on a plan offered by one of the West India Colonies to the Whing Government at the beginning of their career. Will it be believed that this plan offered to liberate the slaves at the end of 12 years' preparation, merely requesting of the Government a loan to enable them to carry their interest of 5 per cent. on the loan during that time. Mr. STANLEY not only had not the generosity to allude to that unexceptionable by Government, and crowded his long speech with misstatements and false implications, calculated to prejudice and mislead the public, almost amounting to falsehoods; but which, as they have been ably exposed by the Opposition leaders, I need not nor warticularly almed to.

allude to. But more recently has Mr. STANLEY been guilty of misstatements which he will find yet more difficulty in explaining. When Sir HENAX HARDINGE brought forward his motion for in-quiry into Sir Jona KEY's conduct, Ministers knowing how deeply they were implicated in the transaction, of course found it their interest to oppose the motion; and Mr. STANLEY, seeing the (seing of the House directly opposed to (and suspicious of) the proposal of the Treasury Bench, found himself compelled to rise and assert deliberate untruths.

SIR-If no further measures are taken with regard to a certain city Baronet, I assert that we are degenerated (paradoxical as it may appear) from the pure days of the STUART race. the Order of Knighthood, that he should hold no office, should be fined 10001., and imprisoned during the King's pleasure. Sir FARNETS MICHELL, like the modern pride of chivalry, had not enjoyed his title for many months. The ceremony of his degradation is remarkable, and by no means undeserving of imitation in a com-munity who have any remaining sense of truth or honourable feelings. He was brought, by the Sheriffs of London, into Westminster Hall (not to chop sticks as a city dignitary, before the Baronsof the Ex-chequer, but before the Commissioners acting for the Earl Marshall to have his source chooned from his own at agerring limbs. A fler the

After the sentence had been read by a Pursuivant, the spurs, ways CANDEX, were broken in pieces by the servants of the Earl Marshal, and thrown away; the sword was taken from his side, broken over his head, and thrown away; last of all, they pronounced him no longer to be a Knight, but a KNAVE, as was formerly done to ANDREW DE Heractar, when he was degraded by ANTHOX LUCY. If among the possessors of that honourable Order into which our modern Contractor has been foisted, there be not sufficient spirit to endeavour, by the above or some means more consonant to modern J, Mr. Editor, for one shall wonder and shall blush. On Wednesday morning, at nine o'clock, the remains of the late nented Counters of ABERDEEN were removed from Argyll House for interment in the family vault of the noble family at Stanmore for interment in the family value of the none family at stanmore. The procession moved in the following order: — hearse drawn by six horses contained the coffin, followed by four mourning coaches, each drawn by four horses. The first coach contained the Marquiso Anencers and Lord CLAUDE HAMILTON, the Countess's sons by her first husband, the late Marquis of Anencons; Lord HADDO and the Hon. A. GORDON, the Earl of ABERDEEN's sons. The second coach Contained the Earl of Morron, Captain DougLas, the Rev. Mr. DougLas, and Captain Gornow, the first three gentlemen brothers of the decreased, and the Captain the brother of the Earl of ABER-nezw. The third coach contained the Earl of WICKLOW, two sons of the Earl of HAREWOON, and another gentleman. In the last the land and house attwards of the Earl followed. The mountful procension was closed by the private carriages of the Earl of ABERDERN the Marquis of ABERCORN, and the Earl of WICKLOW. The cavalcad reached Stanmore about twelve o'clock. The functal service was read by the Vicar, the Rev. A. CHEUVAL. TO JOHN BULL. SIR,—As you have inserted in your last Number a letter I ad-dressed to His Mazerr's Colonial Secretary, on the subject of the Slave Emancipation Bill, it is proper you should notice in yournext the substance of Mr, STANLEY's answer to that letter. The Island of Barbuda has been held by my family, under the Crown, for nearly two centuries. Every negro on that Island, if there is faith in the laws of England, is my actual and exclusive property, canctioned and accured to me by repeated Acts of Parlinent. It was, however, my wish to be first in the field, foremost in proving my desire to promote the views of His Mazerr's Ministers, by shewing an immediate example of one whole island, be-longing to the King of ENGLAND, peopled nolely with free black subjects of His Mazerr. Now, Sir, mark Mr. STANLEY's answer to my offer to give immediate freedom to the whole of that popu-lation, exceeding 500. Mr. STANLEY tells me that in the first meanstone will depend upon the Legislature of Antique passing "Acts in fulfilment of the intentions expressed in the Bill." We are told from no lower authority than the Lord High Chancellor of England, (if report speaks truly.) that only four or five years hence the meanest elseve in our West India Colonics will have as good a claim to a seat by contreay in the House of Peers as has now His MAJEATY's illus-trions brother, or his Grace the Duke of WELLINGTON; but I will tell the Noble and Learned Lord, that neither in four or five, nor ten years, will the slaves to whom he alludes be as competent to fill a seat in that House or on the Woolsack, as are at this moment a large proportion of my Barbuda negross. And yet, those negroes are to be denied that boon declared by the Anti-slavery Society and by His Majesty's equally wise and humane Ministers, to be the greatest bleasing which can be conferred on man, unless it should please the Legislature of another island to pass Acta in fulfiment of the intentions of Ministers, which they, as proprietors, may consci-entiously believe will tend to the absolute destruction of the state of slavery (as it is termed) in our West India Colonies, or their object is to form a precedent of spoillation of which the West India proprietors will not be the only vittims. Mr. CHAMBERS, one of the Magistrates of Union-Hall, has been way of a state of the Singhtstate of Onton-train, may been pointed to the vacancy of Marlborough-street, occasioned by the moval of Sir F. Ros to Bow-street. Mr. Comme, a Barrister, has een appointed to the situation of Thames Police Magistrate, vacant appointed to the by the death of Captain RICHDELL, R.N., who died six months ago Mr. COMBE took his seat on the bench at the Thames Police Office on Thursday for the first time. Great inconvenience has been often felt at the Thames Police, Marlborough-street, and Queen-square let at the Thames Police, Mariborough-street, and Quern-square Offices, for some time past, owing to the want of a third Magistrate; One of the two at each place basing here no many occasions unable to attend through illness and other causes, through which those cases requiring the adjudication of two Magistrates have been frequently interact the dimensional states and the state postponed. Mr. BALLANTINE, the senior Magistrate of Thame. Police, succeeds the late Captain RICHBELL as resident Justice.se movements it seems that the absurd attempt at economy by reducing the number of stipendiary Magistrates, about which so much brag was made, is very properly abandoned.

By accounts from Toulon of the 25th ult. the greatest activity prevalled there in preparations for the expedition to Oran, and all the workmen in the arsenal were in full employment. The 59th Regi ment had completed its war establishment. The expedition, it was reported, would consist of four battalions of infantry (3,000 men), 500 artillery and engineers, and 400 African Chasseurs, making in all about 4,000 men, with 12 eight-pounders, 4 bombs, and 450 horses, those belonging to the African Chasseurs. A Vice-Admiral was to command the fleet.

RAILWAYS .- A railway is talked of from London (through Glou-Merthyr-Tydvil, the "garden of Wales." An applicato Parliament will be made next Session for a railway between ndon and Brighton ; and notice has been given of another appli ation to continue the London and Greenwich railway from Green The from the same source, and at a much obsaper rate than it is Protocol in the metropolis !"

MAVLENDE Association room the Anouriton or Assessed Taxes. --On Wednesday night a Meeting of this Association took place; Mr. M'GREGOR in the Chair. A Report of an interview between a deputation from this Association and Mr. Commissioner Wood was stated to the Maeting. Mr. Wood declared to them that Government had no power over local Boards, who might distrain on account nent has no power over local Boards, who might distrain on account of taxes; but if the petitioners felt themselves aggrieved, they might lay their ease before the Board at Somerset House. The deputation having declared the inability of most of the parishioners to pay the assessed taxes, Mr. Woop said that if there were really any case of distress, Oovernment would consider the circumstances connected therewith. Mr. Biaca then asked Mr. Woon, "How do you know that that party cannot pay?" Mr. WooD—" We have particular individuals whom we employ to search in these matters." Mr. Savase inquired, "Are those persons neighbours in our parish?" Mr. WooD replied, "No; but persons that we employ to call at places in the parish to inquire into persons' affairs; and if they report that they are incapable to pay, we consider the case favourable; but if not, they must pay."—(Cries of "Spies.")—An account was then given to the Meeting of a sale of goods distrained for assessed taxes to the amount of 131. at Mr. VICKERY's auction-room, Charlotte-street. The goods were the property of Mr. RUDDINAN, auctioneer, of Wardour-street. About 300 persons were present, but not a buyer could be found, and Mr. VICKENY, after a scene of much confusion, was made to promise that he would not sell the goods. The crowd the left .-- It is quite clear that the " Spy" system is in great favour with the Government.

BRITISH NAVY IN 1833 .- According to a Parliamentary Return His MAJESTY'S ships and vessels in commission, at the commence His MAJERTY'S ships and vessels in commission, at the commence-ment of the present year, consisted of five first tates, whose joint complements amounted to 2.910 men; two second rates, 844 men; four third rates, 2,358 men; five fourth rates, 2,205 men; ten fifth rates, 2,789 men; fourteen sixth rates, 2,409 men; thirty-five sloops, 3,855 men; thirty-three yachts, surveying vessels, brig sloops, &c., 1.593 men : thirteen steam vessels. 464 men : and twenty-six packets, 754 men. The total amount of wages for the officers and men em-ployed, 22,600 in number, including twelve flag officers, one Com-modore, 99 secretaries, servants, &c., and 2,321 men for reliefs, was 687,3751. Pay of able seamen, 11. 14s. per lunar month.

Barrist Aaux in 1833,—At the same period the military forees stationed in our Colonies were as follows:—Cape of Good Hope, 1,725 officers and men; Gibraltar, 2,875; Malta, 2,366; Ionian 1,725 officers and men; Gibraltar, 2,875; Malta, 2,366; Ionian Islands, 2,889; Canadas, 2,417; Western Africá, 255; Nova Sootia and Bermuda, 3,222; Windward and Leeward Colonies, 4,432; Jamaica, Bahamas, and Honduras, 3,122; Mauritius, 1,445; Ceylon, 3,547; New South Wales and its dependencies, 2,539. Total, 30,855. In Great Britain there were 5,731 Cavalry, 4,452 Foot Guards, and 18.669 Infantry. Total, 28,772. In Ireland, 2,626 Cavalry, 745 Foot Guards, and 19,428 Infantry. Total, 22,799. In the East Indies, 2,663 Cavalry, and 15,701 Infantry-making a grand total of 100,790.

It is affirmed that the differences respecting the toll on the Scheldt and those relative to the debt, are not the only ones that have hitherto prevented the conclusion of a final arrangement. With respect to the first of these two points, it is supposed that the negotiators at London have come to an understanding, and that they will do so with respect to the other, there being reason to believe that the Powers will make Belgium adhere to its engagements respecting the debt. The question of the frontiers was settled some time ago; and with regard to Luxemburg, our Government, it is said, had declared itaelf ready to agree with the Conference, to which it must be evident that there is a serious desire to bring the business to a close. It seems, therefore, difficult to account for the suspension of the Conference when the point respecting Luxemburg remains unsettled. It is affirmed that there is no foundation for the statement relative to a note which is said to have been presented to the Duke de BROGLIE by our Charge d'Affaires at Paris.

No sentence has been propounced in the case of JOHN MASON for the murder of Mr. SNEYD, who lies in Newgate, awaiting the decision of the Government as to his future destination. It is remarkable, that since the period of Mr. SNETD's assessination, several cases have come before the police-offices in which individuals (servant and others in the lower walks of life,) have threatened the lives of their masters and superiors, quoting at the same time the act of Mason as an illustration of their determination, as if there was comething contagious in the horrid example. Fortunately, however, the individuals concerned and the magistrates have been more on the alert than in the case of the unfortunate Mr. SNEVD, and no actual mischief has in any other case resulted .- Irish Paper

One house in the neighbourhood of Monmouth-street, where the late dreadful fire took place, was, a short time since, let out to various families, consisting of 53 human beings, and yielded rent to the landlord between 901, and 1001, per annum. The under ground floor, consisting of one apartment, was occupied by one man, one woman, and five children. Ground floor-two apartments, occupied by two men, two women, and eight children. First floor-two apartments, stuffed with two men, and eight chuures. First noor-two apartments, stuffed with two men, three women, and five children. Second floor-two apartments, containing three men, four women, and six children. Garret-two rooms, occupied by three men, three women, and five children. Thus it appears that a house—and there are hundreds let in a similar manner—in a densely populated and extremely unbealthy neighbourhood, consisting of nine small rooms, was occupied by no less than eleven men, thirteen women, and twenty-nine children !

Post OFFICE .- Some alteration in the Post-office regulations as regards the Lisbon, Brazil, and other mails, is much desired by our merchants. At present letters for those mails are required to be put in by four o'clock in the afternoon, with an extension of time till five o'clock, on payment of sixpence with each letter. These letters newever, do not leave London till eight o'clock by the mail-coaches, when they are despatched with the inland letters to the agent at There appears to be no reason why the merchants should Falmouth. not have the advantage of these three additional hours for their cornot have the advantage of these three additional hours for their of-respondence by the Lisbon and other foreign mails on the Falmouth station, which may, and indeed do, often prove of the greatest impor-tance to them. The consequence is that the greater part of them are put to the inconvenience of employing an agent at Falmouth, to whom mit their letters by the regular inland post, and by they tra they transmit their letters by the regular mana post, and by whom they are put on board the packet; while to the Post-office itself the inconvenience results of collecting so much revenue at Falmouth, which would be better, cheaper, and more effectually collected in Landow. In the correspondence with Mexico and Spanish South America a still more singular anomaly presents itself in our Post-office arrangements, which is, that letters for those parts are not receivable after four o'clock, while those for Jamaica or the Leeward Islands, which are carried in the packets, in like manner with the inland letters, will be taken the in till half-past seven. These circumstances are mentioned in deference to the wish of parties deeply concerned, but with little hope of any useful result, since the Post office has manifested latterly a resistance to reform, and an indifference to the commercial interests, against which it has become almost wholly useless to contend.— Morning Paper.

The Director-General of the French Post-office has given notice, that all letters from France to the British settlements in Asia, America, and all other countries beyond sea with which England keeps up regular communication by packets, may henceforth be sent through England from the Post office in France, on paying the usual postage of letters by estufatte, with the addition of the postage charged for each letter from England to its place of destination. The public are directed to write upon all such letters, in distinct charac-ters, the words, "Voie d'Angleterre."

An occasional visitor to Brighton asks by what authority the Postoffice authorities charge one penny in addition to the regular postage on every letter and newspaper delivered in that town? And whether the Post office is not bound to deliver every letter there on pays of the postage only, as throughout the metropolis and other large towns

His Majesty's warrant, under the Royal sign manual, i to authorize any one or more of the Judges of the Court of Review to act as the Court of Review; but whether any further proceedings will be had under the late Act of Parliament is very doubtful. The Judges of this Court may be empowered to act as Insolvent Commissioners, but we do not think it likely that they will be so, for any one of the four Insolvent Judges may now act in Wales, so that the Bank-rupt Judges need not go there; and if, in the absence of the Insolvent ourt from town, the Judges of the Court of Review are to act for them, the officers of the Insolvent Court will have no vacation. Some vaca tion is absolutely necessary for them, and this, we apprehend, will be a complete bar to any further proceeding. The job of creating four Judges to do the bankrupt business is thus pretty well exposed, and the needlessness of it admitted even by the LORD CHANCELLOR himself.

The following are the thirty Boroughs to which Charters of Incosration are proposed to be given under the Lord Chancellor's Bill : Birmingham, Blackburn, Bolton, Bradford, Brighton, Burv. Chat-Hundersfield, Manchester, Merthyr Tydwil, Oldham, Rochdale, Salford, Sheffield, South Shields, Stoke upon Trent, Stroud, Sunder-land, Tynemouth, Wakefield, Warrington, Whitby, Whitehaven, and Wolverhampton.

New York papers to the 10th of August have arrived. between New York and Natchez had been determined on, and the ship Louis, Captain Storey, was to set sail with the first fair wind for New Orleans, and thence to be towed by a steam-boat to ber port of discharge, 300 miles above the latter city. She was to be port of unscharge, own mices above the hatter try. one was to be followed by the ship Newark, then building, and both were to return with full cryces of cotton. The estimate is that the Mississipi will this year export upwards of 250,000 hales of cotton. The cholera was this year export upwards of 23/1,000 bales of cotton. The cholera was still raging at Cincinnati, though not so violently as by the last accounts. There were in one week, from the 16th to the 23d of Juby, 90 deaths, the greater part of which were from cholera. In 1832 the interments for the corresponding time were only 25. An account from Pernambuco, without date, states that the Brazilians, at a small place about 60 miles from that town, had risen upon the British merchants and killed about 50 persons. A difference in the currency of coin was said to have given rise to the quarrel. An United States schooner was laying at Pernambuco at the time, and immediately got under weigh for the above place, in order to protect the merchants and property.

The Notizis del Giarno of Rome gives the following account of new The Notice dei Gravio of Rome gives the following account of new phenomena presented by Mount Vesuvius :—" On the 12th of August, in the afteraoon, acrevices of the wild of accretal fest were remarked round the whole circumference of the old crater. On the following night a thick column of smake rose to about a mile into the air, and went in the direction of Castelmare. Bank Long Ann. ... | Consols for Account 884 We continue without Portuguese news, but on the Stock Exchange rumours in abundance are adoat. It is said there, that the Spanish Ambassador has received despatches from his Government, an-nouncing a victory obtained by General Saldanha over the rear guard of the retreating Miguelites, and that Marshal Bourmont has re-signed the command of the forces of Don Miguel, and gone to Madrid. Another version of this story is, that a battle was fought on the 24th ult., between the Marshal and Count Villa Flor, in which the former being defeated, he held a council of war, the result of which was his determination to resign the command of the army. We must wait for information from Portugal before we can offer any facie taint of atock; obbing about them. The object which they were improved this morning by about 14 - Standard. "TRE INTERMEDIATE' SESSIONS, "TRE INTERMEDIATE' SESSIONS, The Greand Jury having brought the remaining bills into Court, the Chairman addressed them, and said he had requested them to sit this day (Monday) in order to wait until the decision of the Judges might be known as to the legality of the "Intermediate Sessions," and he was happy to inform them that their Lordships had declared them to be perfectly legal. He was glad of this himself, because these frequent Sessions were found to be so very beneficial, both in point of humanity, economy, and justice. He had received letters from several provincial Magistrates, who had been so much pleased with the working of the system that they intended to adopt it thermelves.-A Grand Jury tron: Them it is no mistake ?-Chairman: No; no mistake.-The Grand Jury then eulogized the general good conduct of the New Police, upon their examination; and also for the vigilance they must have exercised in the outskirts of the metropolis, as there was not one person charged with stealing poultry this Session. The Grand Jury then withdrew. Thomas Baxter, aged 15, a saucy-looking little urchin, was cox-victed of atealing a handkerchief from a gentleman in the street.-In the defence the prisoner said the should be very much obliged to the Court if he was sent out of the country, for he had no other means of transported for aven press. The whole neighbourhood of Chelsea was on Sunday thrown into astic of great, excitement, in consequence of a "manifestation," in Park Chael, Chelsea, which belongs to the Established Church, and has long been frequented by a very numerous congregation, consisting of some of the most respectable inhabilistate of the vicinity, The Rev. Mr. Hawnx Owsw, M.A., has been the minister of this chael for thirteen years, and from his benevolence and upright conduct has gained the highest esteem, and added greatly to his congregation. On Studay, after the usual Church service had been performed, Mr. Owsw was upon the point of concluding his sermon, when Mr. Bavrono, his father-in-law, who was sitting in a per adjacent to the pupit, rose from his east, and in a very soleam and striking to effort the consternation of those present. JOHN BULL.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 15.

THE KING came to town on Wednesday, when Lord WELLESLEY, having resigned his white staff as Lord Steward, was declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland in Council.

Steward, was declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland in Council, The Duke of ARGYLI received the staff of Lord Steward, and was sworn of the Privy Council, having on Saturday been honoured with the Grand Cross of the Guelphic Order. On Tuesday the ex-Empress of BRAZL, and her Royal daughter-in-law—by the grace of Lord PALMERSTON, Queen of Portugal—arrived at Windsor Castle, where they re-mained until yesterday, when the illustrious Ladies repaired to Portsmouth, to wait the issue of the contest which is to decide their fate decide their fate decide their fate. Meanwhile their MAJESTIES, our KING and QUEEN, during the visit of this "instrument of Royalty," as the Times phrases it, have exhibited the greatest kindness and attention towards the illustrious strangers.

Defore the reassembling of Parliament, in which case the illus-trious family will return to England under the most gratify-ing circumstances. Should, however, the process require a greater length of time, the DUKE will be found at his post, surrounded and supported by those who, like himself, are ready and willing at all hazards to uphold the Constitution of his country against the daring encroachments which are to be attempted in the next Session.

WE are " in for it," thanks to Lord PALMERSTON and the non-intervention system, upon which our present precious Government established itself. DONNA MARIA DA GLORIA is recognised as QUEEN of PORTUGAL, and has in that cha-racter been staying at Windsor; and so has this recognition been timed that, by a strange coincidence of circumstances, her MAJESTY has no throne to go to; and France, which has been countenancing the destruction of her uncle, Don MIGUEL, has evinced its intention not to acknowledge her, if ever she should have one. No salute was fired when she if ever she should have one. No salute was fired when she quitted France-a circumstance the more remarkable, be-cause when she went there, she was received with all the honours usually paid to crowned heads. The state of Portugal-disguised and belied as it is, for the sake of putting money into the pockets of the contrivers of the revolution by means of the treacheries of our Stock Ex-obarge-is universally admitted to be prest deadidd. The sake of putting money into the pockets of the contrivers of the revolution by means of the treacheries of our Stock Ex-change-is universally admitted to be most dreadful. The designs of Don PEDRO, the exiled Emperor of constitutional Brazil, are evident—his object, that which nobody who knew Im doubted it would be, as soon as he got footing in Lisbon. If DONNA MARIA has a right to the throne of Portugal, her father must have a better right; if his renunciation of Portugal, when he naturalized himself in South America, is got over, and if the law of the land, according to the decrea of Lamego, are nullified by the declaration that Don MIGUET is not KING of PonrugaL, it is most clear that Don MIGUET be in the House of Braganza, if there he two bronters, the eldest shall go to the foreign and more important dominions, and the second shall remain and become KING of PORTUGAL? Donna MARIA is nothing to Portugal, but as the deldest son—bcaten out of his new throne—must be KING of PORTUGAL? Donna MARIA is nothing to Portugal, but as the legally on the throne which legally belongs to his brother: this was the point at issup-trally altered when England recognizes a possessor of the right altered when England recognizes a possessor of throne of Portugal, that possessor not being the rom out by the laws of the country to fill it, Donna

MARIA may hereafter claim the throne, but it must be through her father, and not until after his death. Arguments are, howerer, useless; there she is—we have neknowledged her—we must, of course, support her—France we suspect, will not. We may perhaps have to quartel with France, but fight in Portugal it is most certain we must. Nay, certain is it that the forces destined for this service are at this moment assembling at Fermoy; and when they shall have departed to fight this little lady's battles against her father's brother's subjects, the O'CON-NELLITES in Ireland—unless by their leader's promotion they should be sold—will have an opportunity, as the nights lengthen, to give Lord WELLESLEV a favourable opportunity of exlibiting the vigour of his Government in that country. But to shew the immeasurable extent of falschood by which the Portugnese question has been misrepresented to the English people, and the bare-faced impudence with which the creatures of Lord PALMENSTON scatter their uatruths, we have only to call attention to the following "letter from Windsor," which appeared in Friday's Times, and the exposure of its TOTAL FALSEHOOD from yesterday's

The following appeared in Friday's Times:— "Wixnson, Thursday Evening.—Private letters have been re-ceived here by the Marquis de Fuxenat and by Count SANRAYO from Lisbon of so late a date as the lst inst., which communicate very cheering intelligence. The letter to Count SANRAYO for the information had arrived at Lisbon that the two northern provinces of Portugal. Minho and Tras os Montes, had de-clared in layour of the QUEEN, and that her authority had been com-pitetly established in that quartero i the kindown. Official accounts of the important fact had reached Count SANRAYA. The writer further adds, that this intelligence had the effect of causing Beur-sorx, instead of advancing on Lisbon, to fall back. He had taken up a position at a greater distance from that city; and the materiel of the important fact had reached Count SANRAYA. The writer sorx, instead of advancing on Lisbon, to fall back. He had taken up a position at a greater distance from that city; and the materiel of bis army, the letter mentions, was such that it could not possibly le depended on in an engagement with the Constitutional troops. Lisbon was represented by the writer as having bern put in a state of axcellent delence, and the utmost confidence prevailed there as to its ability to repel an attack, if such should be unde upon it by the intend that with the aid of the reinforcements arriving by sa from Oporto they would be soon able to give a good account of the French Marshial and his ill provided army, whose retreat would be in that case cut off by the force that had been detached by land from "More," asys the Post. Whatever might have been the date of Count FUNCHAL'S despatches, which, after all, only informed him that " the provinces of Minho and Tras-os-Montes" had declared for the Pretender, lettersfrom Madrid, dated the 4th of September, and from Oporto the 29th of August, prove the falsehood of even that report :---

even that report: — The Gazette of the 3d has the following, dated Faro, Aug. 23:— "All the inhabitants of Algarve are under arms, and carry on a destructive guerrilla war against the invaders. Even those who, at the bredning, were of Donna Maark's party have declared against her, owing to the robbeties and disorders which the foreigners have committed. This forthfield place, where the greatest part of Don Propuo's troops in Algarve have concentrated, is completely invested by the Miguelite guerrillas ever since the 2d August, and the inha-bitants cannot go out filty yards from the gates. The same has been the case in Ohao. In the night of the 2dst, and while in this place illuminations were going on in honeur of the raising of the Oporto size, another kind of illumination presented itself to our sight at Ohao, caused by the place being set on fire, by a lively firing kept up upon it, which hasted from eleven in the morning to eleven at to their opponents." THE Post, continuing its observations upon the "Windsor letters," adds,— "The Windsor letter of one of our contemporaries says, 'that a French line-of-battle ship had passed up the Tagua towards the strong fortness of Elvas, which still remained faithful to Don Miguel, 'doubtless with the intention of attacking it. How pleasant out have been the voyage of this French ship up the waterfalls of the Tagua, to the very frontiers of Spain? But it is needless to dwell upon mimor or collateral absurdities. The main Windsor story, as well as all the subordinate fibs connected with or emanaling from it is perfectly ridiculous. The last packet left Liebon on the 27th uit, was of Oporto on the 28th, and consequently Count Fun-chal could not have received a letter from the Portuguese capital of the 1st inst."

Bohemia, where his Imperial Majesty will meet the Emperor of AUSTRIA. While these things are in progress, FRANCE is preparing a powerful navy. She is strengthening her fortifications with one hand, while she gives a silver cup worth sixteen pounds ten and fourpence to the Cowes sailing boats, with the other. The King of the NETHERLANDS refuses to make any conce-sions to France or England, and the proceedings of the Con-ference are at an end. And, with all these things staring us in the face, twenty millions of money to be paid to the West In-dians, and half as much more to the Irish Clergy, the East India Company, and the Bank, LOT PALMERSTON is al-lowed to acknowledge Donna MARIA—a step which, as we have already said, must involve us in a continental war, or entail upon us the contempt and ridicule of all the world.

Mr. HOPPNER, late Consult at Lisbon, has been honoured by Don PEDRO with the Commandery of "the Tower and Sword"—a striking proof of that Gentleman's strict impar-tiality in the fulfilment of his duties. It is a pity Don PEDRO did not invest him with the Order of the Garter-he certainly has just as much right to confer an English Order as a Portuguese one.

OUR readers will have seen that the Right Rev. Father in Gorn, the Lord Bishop of HEREFORD, has been presented to a Stall in the Collegiate Church of Westminster, vacaat by the death of Dr. TOURNAY. That poor bishoprics should be augmented by other pre-ferments we have never doubted, nor do we see the slighter time in the appointment of the Bishop of HEREFORD is the Westminster Stall; but we see a very great absurdity it, taking the man for what he is, and what has already occurred about him. The Bishop of HEREFORD is my Lord GREY'S brother; that, of itself, under the circum-stances to which we propose to refer, is enough to make the thing ridiculous, or rather to make the Minister ridiculous who, at the head of a Government pledged to correct the abuses of pluralities, to expose the inordinate wealth of the Church, and to check the influence of the prelacy, confers a Stall, with twelve hundred pounds per annum, with an excel-lent house, upon his own brother, whom he had so recently made a Bishop. Dr. GREV succeeded Dr. BLOOMFIELD, the hopedu Bishop of LONDON, as Rector of Bishopsgate; to his pa-rishioners there we are content to leave the merits of his both. If he did, why should not BLOOMFIELD himself hare held it, with London, and Dr. GREY gave it up? Dr. TORRAY died several months since; his period of

THERFORD. THIS DIFFICUENT INDUGIT, AL LEAST DLOOMFIELD the Bishop of LONDON, thought, that he eough not baid both. If he did, why should not BLOOMFIELD himself have held it, with London, and Dr. GREY gave it up? Dr. TOURNAY died several months since; his period of residence, had he lived, would have begun about this period; the Stall was not filled up till everything might be ready to serve the new Prebendary's turn : and then Lord GREY no-minates his brother—Why?—Why, because he says hat being the junior Bishop, he is obliged to attend constantly in the House of Peers to read prayers, as "Boots," and a be cannot afford a town house, this Stall gives him a desir-able residence close at hand. The being unable to afford a house is curious, if, as we are told, the Bishop—(who, and oh ! what a prospect for the country ! has thirteen or fourteen young GREYS, male and female, to be provided for)—got an immense fortune by the last of his three wires; but what is more envious still, is the reason why he should have a house convenient to the House of Peers, because he is the junior Bishop. So he is now; but in the state of the Bench, and with the luck of the Wilg's about preferment, the chances are, that within a few months inay, perhaps a few weeks, another See will be vacant, and Dr. GREY'S juniority will have ceased. The Duke of SUSSEX is extremely angry that his radied friend BROWN did not get the Westminster Stall. His Royd Highness made what he calls a point of it; but "self-presert-tion is nature's first law," and as Lord GREY is perfect aware of the place the Duke of SUSSEX is corder." We do not blame Lord GREY—let him ride the coulify right and left—let him fill the Cathedrals with his brokers; the Pension Lists with his natural children; Dublia Casle with his dependents; the Treasury and all the depart-mental offices with his sons and sons.in-law, the War office with his brothers.in-law, the Colonies with his cousins, the navy and army with his younger boy; make Ambassadors of all his near relations, and Bernets and Con-tractors of his swindling creatures and dependents. Let him do all this—why not?—The Conservatives say yes; so let it be ; let it come to a crisis; it cannot go on much longer; let the KING, blindeed by the false, sneking-cringing hypocrisy of lis Ministers, who ridicule and land at him in their private orgies, equally submit to a thraldous this do nothing. The Conservatives have finched-and those who know his honest, straightforward English character, must know His MAJESTY at heart loathes and de spises; for in this country, such is the democratic power do the Constitution, that without the support of his people the KING can do nothing. The Conservatives have finched-and those who knew his hores, straightforward English its branches, sinecures, pluralities, and every species di its branches, sinecures, pluralities, and every species in Garter—extra; himself, Lord GREY, decorated with the Bath—extra; himself, Lord GREY, decorated with the drand from the arouted with a rich Stall at Westimister is fow tered, is decorated with the form finder the data appointed KEY's son "in spite of HURCH, in the hat appointed KEY's son "in spite of CHURCH," —het hat appointed KEY's son "in spite of CHURCH," —he that appointed KEY's son "in spite of munity look dispirited and share the high method of the perspective. "Already has the Press commenced its appointments to Crown offices, in the true spirit of Popery, and in the confident anucipation of the way in which the affairs of the country are to be administered. By it we are informed that Mr. ANTRONY BLARE is to 1e Autorney, and Mr. Sergeant O'LoodHEN, Solicitor General; nor sholld we be in the least surprised to see these or equally obnoxious appointments made. But do our rulers think that the Irish people—not the rabble, but the people—the descendants of those men who once conquered the country, and who themselves possess the physical capabilities of again achieving a similar victory—do they think that it is in them — that it is in human nature—patiently to submit to such insults as these?

again achieving a similar victory-do they think that it is in them— that it is in homan nature—patiently to submit to such insults as these? "Mr. O'CONNELL is a great man; but he possesses powerful auxiliaries; and the Whig Government are doing more to gain pro-selves to the specious line of politics he invidiously advocates, than he with all his energies, backed by every adventitions aid that priestly induence and a mass of population could by possibility achieve; and every movement of theirs is procuring additional clamourers for a repeal of the Union. "We can tell our Castle contemporaries a secret of which they do not appear to be aware; but it is scarcely necessary for us to say that we do on in entire and perfect confidence. Lord Anotzers does return to this country, and perhaps in the course of to morrow, to re-assume the reins of Government for one month, as per agreement. "We can tell our contemporaries another secret. It is arranged at head quarters that Sir WILLIAM Gosser is to remain as Under Secretary, and truth to say, all things considered, we see no reason to repine at this determination. Sir WILLIAM halid a difficult gaune to play, and we believe that if he were allowed to shuffle the cards, matters would have offer gone on differently from what they did. Sir Fassbenets Sroves, the leveller, pur excellence, goes, and the getting rid of him is a decided advantage. We have heard the names of some of the household already appointed by Lord WELLESLEY is when the list is complete we shall give it to the public." Nobody can more seriously deprecate the ultra-severity of this article than ourselves; but we think it our duty to quote it in order to show what the feeling in Dublin actu-ally is. In the supposition of the Editor that the appointment ally is. In the supposition of the Editor that the appointment of Lord WELLESLEY is the precursor of the total abolition of the office, we must say we entirely agree. We believe it to be the intention of Ministers not to resist the attack which is to be made upon the Lord Licutenancy; but in the mean time, why should not Lord GREY, knowing why the office is peculiarly (not pecuniarily) acceptable to Lord WELLES-LEY, make conditions with his Lordship, as he on the other hand has been forced to accept conditions from Lord ANGLESEY—or, as we perhaps ought to call him, Duke of MONA.

office altogether, and the selection of Lord WELLESLEY is but an experiment to disgust the people with its continuance, and reconcile them to its abolition.

experiment to disgust the people with its continuance, and reconcile them to its abolition. We quite agree with the writer of this article—not in the violence of his attack upon Lord WELLESLEY, but in the belief, as we have already said, that the appointment of his Lordship is merely a preparation for the extinction of the office altogether. We are quite as ready as his Lordship himself is, to believe that he is not "passé," but our regrets are excited by seeing him—the Lord WELLESLEY of our early admiration, and, above all, the brother of the Duke of WELLINGTON—placed in a situation where his "inefficiency" is to be the desirable attribute of his Govern-ment, and when he—at his time of life—with all our political recollections about us—is to be made the scape-goat of Reform and the Grey-ridden creature of a Whig Ministry.

Reform and the Grey-ridden creature of a Whig Ministry. As we stated, upon unquestionable authority, the fact that Lord DURHAM hoisted a flag of his own armsover the Royal Standard while at Cherbourg, we think it only fair to extract the following from yesterday's Post:— "The Earl and Countess of DURHAY's long-promised fite at Egypt House, in the northern part of the island, is at length positively fixed for Saturday next. The preparations have been made without the slightest regard to expense. A party of the Royal Artillery, with seven nine-pounders, intended to fire additional salutes, disembarked this day from Portsmouth. The Noble Earl's firinds here contradict the rumour in circulation of his having purposely hoisted the Royal Standard over that of the Lanubton arms at Cherbourg. It is asserted that it was merely done by accident, while the Louisa was dressing out in colours, and was rectified immediately." O ne part of this paragraph is curious. Why should a party of the Royal Artillery, with seven guns, be put at the dis-posal of Lord DURHAM, to fire salutes at his "long-promised fête?" Is our army maintained for such services ? or is our powder to be wasted in such absurdities?

THE "Isoman's and in such absurdities? THE "Sleeping Beauty," Lord BROUGHAM, is rusticating at his villa with the tower. His spirits are represented as anything but good. The sharp "rap on the kauckles" which his Lordship has received in Sir HERBERT TAYLOR'S letter, written by command of the KING, may have pointed out to him the necessity of subduing his viracity, and keeping a civil tongue within his teeth. Lord BROUGHAM's manner, even when sober, is naturally consonant with his early habits and associations, and, although extremely agreeable, it savours of his original station in life. His unexpected possession of the Seals has been enough to turn his brain, and it is clear that he occasionally forgets—what every body else would be equally glad to forget—himself. It is excessively lucky for his Lordship's nose (extremely tempting to a puller) that the rank of those whom he has taken it in to his head to insult, has prevented an imme-diate appeal to that part of his Lordship's person. Per-haps the KING's displeasure, which has been declared to his Lordship in the communication of His MAJESTY'S Private Secretary, to which we allude, will teach his Lord-ship to abstain from " playing the apple" in a pond into which he has been most extraordinarily dropped.

WORDS OF COMFORT TO A GREAT MAN.

- Oh, well I remember the glorious day When you put round the mendicant hat, To buy a small cup for your protegé GREY, And the title ne gave you for that.
- Sir Jous ! like a new ALEXANDER you sate, And for flatteries pricked up your ears, Familiarly nodding around as you ate To your GREY and his newly-made Peers.
- Now, alas! (but not quite like DARIUS) you lie; And what's worse, we all know that you do; And the job is found out, which in manner so sly CHARLEY WOOD had just managed for you.
- But what does it signify? Greatness is seen, Like your's, in defying the storm, You'll become much more popular yet than you've been, For you're just the right man for Reform.
- Can they doubt you? Oh no-for so damag'd your fame, They know where you are, you must stay; In spite of disgrace they'll still find you the same, For no party will take you but they.
- In spite of pure CHURCH you effected your job, In spite of the truth placed your son, In spite of the law you replenished your fob, As other Reformers have done.
- Ask HUME-he will say, or at any rate might, That the best must their interest seek ;
- And if men can make money they're quite in the right, Though the mode may be thought somewhat Greek."
- What a comfort you | ave !---think t' at you are the man Whose speeches and wings were so warm. Whom HAYDON is painting, as well as he can, At the head of the feast of Reform.

- Is it nothing to grin in a picture, between Lord GREY and Lord Chancellor BROUGHAM, Tobe still as LORD MAYOR in that pillory seen,
- Or as DOGE, have a crape in your room ? †
- Is it nothing to feel, that your failing, if such, Is the same as the failing of GREY-To love your own offspring a little too much, And while the sun shines to make hay?

WE hope our few words of consolation to Sir JOHN KEY will have their effect. Upon Lord GREY's "consideration" Sir JOHN has very strong claims; and we know, that what-ever other people may do, Lord GREY DARE NOT evince the slightest displeasure, or exhibit even the most moderate feeling, upon what has taken place. Lord GREY knows that the pretended destruction of his Lordship's letters and those of Mr. CHARLES WOOD, would not save them from such exposures as would be extremely disagreeable. Does any

AT the Sheriffs' dinner, which took place at the Guildhall, Bath, on Friday, an extraordinary scene took place on the proposal of the healths of "The Members for the City." This toast was received at first with death-like silence; the sound of a pin dropping on the floor night have been dis-tinctly heard. We have not been able to learn that a single uncing neard. We have not been able to learn that a single person present put his glass to his lips. Certain it is that not the slightest token of applause was attempted. HANNAH MORE has departed this life—she died on Saturday, the 7th inst., at her house in Clifton. Mrs. MORE was the youngest of five daughters of a Clergymau, who lived at Hanham, near Bristol; and, in the year 1765, her sisters having opened a boarding-school in Park-street, in that city, she went to reside with them, where she formed an intimate acquaintance with their next door neighhcur, the Rev. Dr. STONEHOUSE. It was this gentleman who encouraged her to write, and corrected her early productions. In 1772 she published The Scarch after Happiness, which was so well received that, in 1774, she gave the public Sir Eltred of the Bower, The Bleeding Rock, and a Tragedy founded upon the history of Regulus, called The Infactible Capitor. Dr. STONEHOUSE, about this period, introduced her to GARRICK, who advised her to write for the stage, which she did; and having, in 1777, published Essays on several her Play of The Fails Failehood canno ent; but after that period, at which Mr. GARRICE died, she took another turn in literature, and published Sacred Dramas, some of which had been acted at her sister's school; after which Miss MORE renounced all further dramatic attempts, on the score of the indefensible immoralities of the stage, which Miss MORE wence MARLOTTE. Miss MOBE, with hersisters, retired to Mendip, in Somerset-shire, where she became involved in squabbles and contro-versies, consequent upon her extraordinary exertions to make the colliers and their wires in that neighbourhood as good as herself. Here she wrote her excellent novel of Coclebs in zearch of a Wife, Practical Piety, Christian Morals, The Life of St. Paul, and Moral Sketches. Miss MORE in early life mixed with all the sages and wits of the time; BURKE, GARRICK, JOHNSTON, and REVNOLDS were numbered amongst her intimates. The pursuits of her latter days have been of a different character from those which in youth she so much engaged. Her life and although she has incurred a very considerable portion of opprobrium for what appeared ultra "sanctify," (as it is called), her memory will long be cherished with affection and regret by a numerous circle of friends. She lived to the age of eighty-eight, under the affliction of a tedious and painful disorder.

and paintul disorder. SEVERAL times, since we commenced BULL—now nearly thirteen years ago—we have spoken in its columns of the superiority of the stock of Suffolk,—the Suffolk breed of cart-horses in particular. Our attention, at the present time, is called to the subject by a small pamphlet which has been sent to us, containing the rules and articles, the names of the officers, and a list of the members, of the "East Suffolk Agricultural Association," together with a descrip-tion of the premiums awarded in 1832, and also of those offered for this year, and which will be adjudged at the Annual Meeting and Cattle Show (well worthy of the attend-ance of those who are concerned or take interest in agricul-ture) to be held (this year) at Saxmundham, on the 19th instant,—Thursday next.

Allies those who are concerned or take interest in agricul-fure) to be held (this year) at Saxmundham, on the 19th instant,—Thursday next. We have carefully perused this short account of the pro-ceedings of the Association, which was established only in 1831, under the anspices of the estimable Earl of STRAD-BROKE (its President), and the Nobility, Clergy, and Gentry of the division; and sure we are that the Society is admirably adapted for the very useful and praiseworthy objects which it professes, viz.:—" The aid and advance-ment of agriculture; the excitement of enterprize and emu-lation among the owners and occupiers of land; and the encouragement of skill, industry, and good conduct among cottagers, servants, and labourers in husbandry."

The premiums appear to us to have been offered with judgment, in general ; and whatever defects there may be in this respect, time and the suggestions of the most active and this respect, time and the suggestions of the most active and sanguine members of the Association will, we have no doubt, correct. We observe with particular pleasure that rewards were given last year to nine fathers of large families, who had brought up all their children without parochial relief (unless in sickness); and that even a greater number of rewards were distributed to male servants in husbandry, and female dairy-servants, for length of service in their re-spective places. spective places.

female dairy-servants, for length of service in their re-spective places. To such a Society, tending not only to the advancement of agriculture, and the improvement of stock, but to the encouragement of the labourers, and the raising of their character, and the ameliorating of their situation, every one in the neigbbourhood, who can spare a pound (for the contri-bution of "a sovereign, or upwards," constitutes a Mem-ber), should subscribe. There cannot be a better Institu-tion, and the greater its funds, the greater the good it will accomplish. We much wish that similar Associations were established throughout the kingdom. As proof of our remark that the more sufficient its funds the more extensive will be the good the Association will effect, we ought, perhaps, to add, that, in consequence of additional subscriptions the preniums this year are very much encreased in number; instead of nine to fathers for bringing up their children without, or with, the least parish relief, there are twenty. instead of nine for differ-ent kinds of cattle there are twenty. and some is the for differ-ent kinds of cattle there are twenty. and there is an en-tirely new class of premiums, to tenants who have managed their occupations with the greatest spirit and enterprise. A plan, we understand, has been proposed to some of the leading Members of the Association, by which the supe-riority of this stock would be made known to agriculturists in most parts of the country, without any ultimate expense in most parts of the country, without any ultimate expense to the funds of the Association; and, in our opinion, its adoption would be attended with instant and permanent advantage to the Suffolk farmer, and eventual benefit to the country at large.

The ball which was recently erected on the top of the Royal Ot setwatory in Greenwich Park, and the object of which was stated to be to give the exact time at noon, was blown down by the tremendous gale on Saturday, the 31st ult. It was erroneously affirmed that this ball fell daily at the moment of actual noon, to indicate the fact to Captains of ships leaving the Thames, and save them the trouble of calling at the Observatory to have their chronometers set by the sum. The truth is, that this was but a temporary contrivance, set up for the purpose of ascertaining at what distance a ball so placed Greenwich Park about the hour of noon, and, with their watches in their hands, anxiously, but in vain, expected the fall of the ball, In user hands, anxiously, but in vain, expected the fail of the bail, which, however, steadily kept its place from day to day until the wind compelled it to quit its station. Another ball, with suitable machinery, is now in process of construction, which will be so placed, that the moment when it is one by the day (which is the time now determined on by the Admiralty), by the pulling of a cord which not determined on by the Admirate y to y the part of this story is, that, which informs the public that the Lords of the Admirally have been pleased to order the hour of noon from twelve to one o'clock. In 1821 it was 10.0071, 14s. 4d., but it was reduced in 1824 to 4.8471; for this, compensation appears to have been made in 1825, when there was added to a regular grant of 15,4161, a special one of 7,5001; the largest annual grant ascems to have been in 1826, with there was added to a segular grant of 15,4161, a special one of 7,5001; the largest annual grant seems to have been in 1829, viz, 19,8991; and that for the last year amouted to 18,2111, 158. The wholere-cepts for the year, including incidental receipts, were 19,5061, 8s. 4d, and the whole expenditure 18,771; 3s. 2d., of which 9,9251, 3s. 4d. were paid in salaries and extra service money, and 4,5221, 1s. 11d. in the acquisition of objects of literature, science, fine arts, &cc In 1831 and 1833 the Museum sold 12,338 volumes of printed books, which produced a sum of 2,0431. 1/s. 3d., or about 3s. 3d. er volume. It may be useful to add, that the Museum is open to the public every Monday, Wedneday, and Friday in the week, except in the Christmas, Easter, and Whitsun weeks, and Atring the month of September. Room is onen between the same hours every day in the week, except sindays, Good Friday, the Christmas, Easter, and Whitsun weeks, and appointed Thanksgiving and Fast days.—Compiled from the Par-liamentary Reluen. TO JOHN BULL. Sra.—The following statement will serve to illustrate the sincerity of Whig liberality, and the purity of Whig patriotism. The enterprising spirit and persevering exertions of Carl. HABRIS, of the Royal Navy (one of the Representatives of the Borough of the group of the glorious Reform Bill) how and cordage from fibres not hitherto used, and produced birdfy by an cordage from fibres not hitherto used, and produced birdfy by an cordage from fibres not hitherto used, and produced birdfy by an cordage from fibres not hitherto used, and produced birdfy by an it is country. An extensive building has been done do draw from this country. An extensive building has been an that Carb and should receive from the Caroratic exploring the the working of this factory, it has been dorated apatent, into the court being the factory, it has been dorated explores the court being the factory, it has been dorated explores the form of a court being the factory, in the factor to the water edger. The property in this datory, in the factor to the water edger. The property in this datory, in the factor but water edger. The property in this and the purpose of which the stress of the form of a court being the mean stating the subject, howevere, to the form of a court being the stresses as to convene a Court, bot the archiestion, calling opon the Bargets and accordingly signed the Burgesses as to convene a Court, bot the cord he purpose of establishing his manufactory on an extended scale. The Mayor, in the far instance, so far compiled with the wishes of the Burgesses as to convene a Court; but, foreseing the determina-tion of a vast maiority to confirm the grant to Captain HAARIS, sin-due the rouges of establishing his manufactory on an extended scale. The Mayor, in the far instance, so far compiled with. Thus th

was the instigator of this ill-judged hostility to the real interests of the Boroukh 2-and received for answer, that "they had rather Captain HARITS had not the land-but the Mayor might do as he pleased." Now, without imputing to Lord YARBOROUGH, or his family, any direct interference in this matter, it will be curious to trace the history of Grimsby. This Borough, which has heretofore continued under the patronage of the house of PELHAN, has nevertheless, under such fostering protection, survived its former properity, and fallen into such a state of decay as to have furnished the glorious Reformers with a pretext for robbing it of one-half of its representative franchise - proper detiliatem as quapulatem, as my Lord Jow Russet stated to the Reformed House of Commons. During the period of the PELHAN domination, we discover no enlarged scheme for promoting the prosperity or for averting the ruin and poverty of the Borough. In this state we find the Borough without trade, without tshipping, without manufacture, when Capt. HARRIS will one comparent y and manifesting has desire to invest still more, for the benefit of the town. The project of Capt. HARRIS will on ecossity give employment to the labouring class, will establish manufacture, revive trade, and encourage the shipping and every other interest within the Borough. It may seem strange that a plan fraught with such obviously beneficial results sliohid meet with opposition; and equality curious is it that of the individuals who compose such opposition, the great majority, including the Mayor, should be ternats of Lord YARBOROUGH, the Borough. To the desartion and expressed whish of his Cordship any direct intention to frustrat the improvement of the Borough. The Mayor must be well convinced that there exists a legal and constitutional mode of compiling him to yield to the declared wish the rest of his Lordship's teranate, should the demavor, to grave the same system which so successfully worked the deminal agent, it does appear to be a " curious coincidence

A BURGESS OF GRIMSBY. Great Grimsby, 1st Sept. 1833. P.S. I am afraid you will think the zest of the letter is contained in the postcript, when I inform you, that the name of the Mayor of Grimsby is Gooseman.

in the postscript, when I miorm you, that the name of the Mayor of Grimsby is Gooseman. TO JOHN BULL, Sine—The close of the Session having in some degree relieved your columns, you will oblige me by calling, or permitting others to call, the public attention to the weakened position of the Church, as re-lates to its influence and representation in the greet council of the nation. The balance of the constituent parts of the Sovereign power having been not only disturbed, but well-nigh destroyed by the late revolution, it may be necessary to inquire, first, "What were the original intentions in the State, deeply and solemnly charged with the religious intereast of the whole pople? Andly, How far existing dreumentances tead to promote or counteract those intentions ? And, 3rdly, Whather sound policy does not demand some speedy altereation

The Messager des Chambres gives, as from good authority, the report of a conversation between the Duchess of Braganza and Louis Philippe, relative to the proposal by the latter that Donna Marja, the young Queen of Portugal, should marry the Duke de Némours. The Duchess is stated to have peremptorily refused to listen to such a proposition, stating that her daughter's affrctions were engaged to her uncle, the Duke de Leuchtenberg; and it is added that, in consequence of this declaration. a telegraphic despatch was immediately forwarded to prevent the Duke from entering riance. Theaburgh be was stopped by the police, though traveling with a regular passport under the assumed name of Captain Muller. He refused to Futurn unless compelied by force, and he was allowed to proceed to Paris. These Papers contain extracts from Liebon readored to heilt and M. Za's influence to be paramount. inhabitants of Bombay, at Angrias Colaba, under the very essof Government? Extract of a letter dated Chiklee, 2d of May, 1833 :--- "A mog meiancholy event has lately occurred at Oklesser, near Broach. Mr. Gordon, of the Civil Service, who was stationed there, wentout with several Suwars and Seroys to meet a party of Bheels in the neighbourhood. On coming up to them he advanced towards them with a single Suwar, desiring his own people not to fire, and telling the Bheels to lay down their bows, as he wished to parley with them. The Bheels, however, as it appeare, paid no attention to him, or did not understand him, and immediately discharged a volley of arrows, three of which struck poor Gordon, who fell from his horse, and was conveyed back to Oklesser, where he died a few days alterwards."

CHINA TRADE.

We submit the following copy of a letter from Mr. CHARLES GRANT, on the subject of the opening of the China Trade:--

India Bourd, Sept. 12, 1833. DEAR SIR—In compliance with my promise 1 have now the honour to transmit to you a series of replice to the queries which you put to me relative to the opening of the China trade, together with some additional information, which, I trust, will be satisfactory to the merchants on whose behalf you applied. I have the honour to be, deer Sir, your faithful servant, (Signed) CHAS. GRANT. James Ewing, Esq., M.P. OURNES. At what time British ehips will be allowed to clear and sail for Canton? India Bourd, Sept. 12, 1833.

Canton? At what time teas will be per-mitted to be landed, warehoused, and sold, by the private trade, in this country?

Any time after April, 1834, "from the Cape of Good Hope, and from places eastward of the same to the Straits of Magellan, and not from any other place." By sales under the superin-tendence of the Company and Board of Controul; which sales must be regulated according to the discretion of the Court and Board, with a view as well to the advantage of the Indian revenues as to that of the British public and the free trader. this country? How is the stock of teas be-longing to the East India Com-pany, and supposed to be equal to about 29 years' consumption, to be realized? Are any restraints likely to be imposed on the mode in which the teas are to be brought to market, so as to prevent an unnecessary glut, and consequent depression of price? Is any arrangement in contemplation for an assumption of the stock by Government? Has any resolution now been formation be afforded, as to the pro-bability of the mode in which the duction on teas are to be charge-abe?

The Act of Parliament fixing rates on certain different classes of teas, varying from 1s. 6d. to 3s. per lb., has passed. duties on teas are to be charge-able? Is the silk raised in Bengal by the Company to be sold in Cal-cetta, or how is it to be diaposed of; and under what regulations as to time, &c., is the transition of the Company's silk factories to private parties to take place? Is the Company to cease after he 30th April, 1834, to act as warehousemen and salesmen, and what is to be done with the ware-houses?

The silk to be sold in Calcutta if possible; the filatures to be disposed of as speedily as prac-ticable; the particulars of the arrangement to be managed by the Indian Government. The Company will cuntinue so to act till their commercial con-cerns are wound up; private merchants to avail themselves of this arrangement as at present at their option. Due notice will be given of the Company ceasing to act in that capacity.

Mr. WILLIAMSON observed that the annuity fund had been valued at between ten and eleven millions. He wished to know its present value? The GovERNON replied that the value depended on the market price of the day. Its present value could only be ascertained by a reference to the present market price. What that might be he could not say off-hand ; but if the Proprietor had informed him (the Go-vernor) yesterday of his desire to obtain the informed him (the Go-vernor) yesterday of his desire to obtain the information, it should have been forthcoming. A Paperatron said that, as the Directors were obliged to give in an account to Government of the amount of their issues and of the bullion in their possession at stated periods, he wished to know whether a yearly account of these items would be laid before the Court? The Governnon said that such an account could be prepared if the proprietoin may have the result would appear with equal precision from the quarterly returns. The question was then put on the Resolution for a dividend of four per cent, which was agreed to unanimously. The same warning was given in both Houses of Parliament, backed by the condition of the slaves; it inviolability of property guaranteed by the laws was urged, and the rain of the Colonies was predicted. INCENDIARISM.—Between seven and eight o'clock on Wednesday night, a fire was discovered in one of the barns on Uphill Farm, in the parish of Urchfort, in the occupation of Mr. Alexander, which in a short time consumed the produce of twenty acrea. Within an hour afterwards, and while persons were still endeavouring to stop the progress of the flames on this farm, some wretches had belongting to the parsonage homestead belongting to Mr. Compton, situated about a quarter of a mile from Uphill Mr. Compton, situated about a quarter of a mile from Uphill Mr. Compton being at the time actively engaged at that place. LONDON, SEPTEMBER 22

HIS MAJESTY reviewed the Grenadier Guards in Windsor Park on Monday. In the evening there was a dinner party at the Castle, at which were present their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of CUMBERLAND and GLOUCESTER, and the Duke of WELLINGTON. After dinner His MAJESTY was pleased to drink the health of His Majesty the King of PRUSSIA, of his Royal Highness the Duke of CUMBERLAND, his Royal Highness the Duke of GLOUCESTER, and his Grace the Duke of WELLINGTON. On Wedzesday the KING came to town and held a Council at St. James's, and returned in the evening to Windsor.

Windsor. On Thursday their MAJESTIES dined with their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of CUMBERLAND at Kew. It was a farewell dinner, previous to the departure of their Royal Highnesses for a temporary residence at Berlin, to which city, as we have before stated, the illustrious family will proceed early in the week, in order that his Royal High-ness Prince GEORGE may be under the immediate care of the Baron VON GRAFFE, the celebrated oculist, to whom we last Sunday alluded, and who accompanies the Prince to the Continent.

the Continent. WE are heartily sick of the stock-jobbing despatches which arrive, or are said to arrive, either directly or indi-rectly from Portugal. We firmly believe that people the most prominent in the political world, are also the most deeply involved in scrip gaubling. We know one instance, and we know several instances of men watching the con-duct of the broker of the individual to whom we now refer, in order to judge from his buyings and sellings the value of the intelligence which is permitted to transpire. The Morning Post of Friday, which anticipated the Times of Saturday in the latest news from what may be called the seat of war, gives an account of the approach of Marshal BOURMONT to Lisbon; of the occupation of the Palace of Ajuda by the KING-whose Proclamation, the correspondent of the Times tells us, the Ex-CACIQUE caused to be affiche'd in the public places-and of the cold-blooded murder of a porter who had been sent to deliver a letter from a lady, of the contents of which he was perfectly ignorant; and of a very severe loss sustained by the rebels, in Lisbon, with re-gard to horses and officers.

porter who had been the was perfectly ignorant; and of a very severeloss sustained by the rebels, in Lisbon, with re-gard to horses and officers. These, and a letter from Lord WILLIAM RUSSELL, still declaring that England is PERFECTLY NEUTRAL in the contest, having acknowledged the Pretender; and another from Admiral PARKER, calling the KING'S troops, and the people of Portugal who have zealously joined them, "Guerilas" and "Marauders," are the most interesting particulars, except indeed a statement that Lord WILLIAM RUSSELL exposed himself all day in a battery, where, of course, neutrality considered, he could have had no business whatever—however, exposing themaetves is a family failing with the RUSSELLS, and that must be his Lordship's excuse. From all we can gather, we have every reason to believe that the King of PORTUGAL is at this moment in possession of Lis-bon. Admiral PARKER talks of landing his marines if the wine stores are touched :—he had better do no such thing, for he knows as well as we do, that if there had been time to revoke the conditional orders, given him about Fort St. Julien, and the discretionary powers delegated to Lord WILLIAM RUSSELL, the Brazilian Princess would not have been recognized by Lord PALMERSTON—but, as we said last week, "he is in for it "—he fancied, because the CACIQUE was in Lisbon, that everything was over, when in fact, affairs in carnest had only just commenced. The Pretender hires merce-naries, embodies foreigners, and even obtains the assist-ance of Englishment, for money, to fight his battles. Thus an advantage is gained over the rightful Monarch; but that affords no proof of the national feeling, and we therefore recur to what we always contended for-chat if the Portaguese ration were opposed to the claims of then MIGUEL, he never could maintain them, nor would a tybed

The Congress of Sovereigns is replete with interest for all Europe, but most especially for Eugland. The intended visit of the Emperor of RUSSIA to CHARLES THE TENTH is not a of the Emperor of RUSSIA to CHARLES THE TENTH is not a mere matter of ceremony. A word—a step ouly, are wanting to make the flame burst out; and in what an agreeable si-tuation will our miserable country be placed, when it ap-pears coubined with revolutionized France in support of another revolutionary Monarchy in Portugal, opposed to all her ancient Allies, and undoing to the best of her power all the good that had been achieved in a protracted and expen-sive war, and secured by a permanent and honourable peace. For the present we quit the subject, merely stating the fact, that the Echo Government steamer arrived on Thursday at Plymouth, from Lisbon, whence she sailed on the TWELFTH, at which time Marshal BOURMONT was within four miles of the capital, with an army of twenty-five thousand men, having on the 5th taken Belem and destroyed the public aqueduct.

the public aqueduct. With this intelligence, by way of avant courier, we wish Lord PALMERSTON a very good afternoon.

With this intelligence, by way of acant courier, we wish Lord PALMERSTON a very good afternoon. WE have noticed elsewhere the delightful state of our foreign affairs. We have previously noticed the fact that the present Government is one of departments. What will our readers say now? Are we, or are we not, governed by the Irish Viscount PALMERSTON, Sceretary of State for Foreign Affairs? Are not the interests of the country-the most vital incrests of all-her foreign relations, guided and directed solety by that Right Honourable-and, as far as private life goes-most agreeable Nobleman? Lord GREY is ruralising at Howick ; Lord BROUGHAM is dozing at Bird's-nest; Lord LANSDOWNE is in Dublin ; Lord JOHN RUSSELL is in Ireland ; Sir JAMES GRAHAM is ex-pected at Cork ; the Duke of RICHMOND and Mr. STANLEY are at Liverpool ; Mr. CHARLES GRANT is on the Conti-ment; Lord RIPON may be anywhere ; Lord MELBOURNER is in London, keeping his eye upon the police officers ; and none of them having, according to the new system, anything whatever to do with Lord PALMERSTON's business, Lord PALMERSTON is left to manage it hinself, and with it, as we have just said, the destinies of the Empire, which he does in a most gentlemanly manner, but nevertheless so as to make the diplomacy of England a subject of unqualified ridicule, and, which we know, will be more painful to the Noble Irish Viscount, himself still more ridiculous than the service of which he is the head. The result of "things in general" in Portugal, will emu-late that of his Lordship's contrivances in Belegium and Greece ; the settlement of our friends the French in Algiers, where they have established a force of 17,000 mon, 4,000 forming the garrison conjointly with 5,000 National Guards, and 13,000 more quartered in the different outposts; the con-tinuance of a cousiderable French force at Ancona; the complete dominion of Russia in Turkey, and the perfect ascendency obtained by the Citizen-King's Goveriment over ours, will combine to hand down-band down it cannot,

PALMERSTON. What must Lord PALMERSTON have felt last Monday week when he dired at Windser, and when he heard the observations of his Monarch and Master upon the present relative connexion between England and France? We cir-| relative connexion between England and France? We cir-tainly should not presume—indeed, we abstained last week —to notice anything which transpires at His MAJESTY'S table, were it intended to remain "private or confidential ;" but as what passed on that Monday was known to a large and indiscriminately arranged party, there can be no delicacy in repeating wind the KING said, at least in substance. The KING-GOD BEESS HUM -is an English King, a con-stitutional King --aud a King who, if allowed to have this own

September 22. way, would be, what his father was before him (in spite of what Mr. Cokr., the personal friend of the Duke of SUSSEX, has said), a blessing to his country. The KING, at Windsor, on Monday week, in proposing the health of the army, tool occasion to express his worst suspicions of the line of policy adopted by the "Citizen KING" of the French (as His MJ. restry called him). The KING said that he was one of these who believed that France, the natural and undoubted enemy of England, never adopted a measure which had not for it object the degradation and injury of his country. "Sharpea your swords, Gentlemen," said His MAJESTY, "for upon your and my good people must I rely for defence against the machinations of our enemies; and by your aid and theirs, I hope always to see the English flag flying in its proper place, above, and not alongside the tri-colour of France. These words Lord PALMERSTON was doomed to sit and hear. His Lordship's reply to his neighbour at dinner, who made a remarkto him upon their tendency, we do not chose to give our readers, because, although it contained all the tippancy, and some of the wit, for which the Noble Irib Viscount is remarkable, it also contained so much of insult to His MAJESTY, that we decline showing up the Secretary, out of respect for the SOVEREIGN. And yet this Lord PALMERSTON is left in London by himself, to transact the most important affairs, while the rest of the Cabinet (who, if they had not all agreed never interfere with each other, might do him some good by their council) are scattered over the face of the empire.—And this is the way we are governed.

council) are scattered over the face of the empire. is the way we are governed.

It is said, in a quarter where things are generally well known, that Sir JAMES GRAHAM, after all the fue doings at the Admiralty, is not likely to remain where he is many weeks longer. Should this be the case, it will be only the beginning of a greater movement. Sir JAMES GRAHAM is the best man of business of the whole party. We merely repeat what we hear—for ourselves we see no "out-ward marks" of any such removal; those who are in the highest places see farthest—we, in the valley, wait, and only repeat what the folks on the top of the hill say, is in sight.

A PIECE of gratuitous Tom-foolery was played off at Chertsey on Saturday, which really deserves to be recorded. We ought to add that we copy from the Times, and it may be a hoax altogether—if so, we have to apologise to Mr. IVATT BRISCOE. This is the statement:— "On the Queen of PORTUGAL'S arrival at Chertsey, where sheard her suite changed horses at the Swan Inn, on their return from Windows to Bournouth Mr. Basene attended to the statement

Windsor to Portsmouth Mr. Barsons attended at the door of the carriage, and presented to her Majserry a book, which he told her 'deserved to be written in letters of gold, and was worthy the study

M.P. for the Eastern Division of the Conney of Surgers "The young Queers received the offering very graciously, and soon afterwards, with the Duchess of Bragazza, departed amid the cheers of the people and a merry peal of the church bells." That the young QUEEN did not understand one syllable of Mr. BRISCOE'S "preachment," he must, we suppose have known—so much for his exhortation : but if she had comprehended every syllable of it, what would it have mat-tered. Mr. BRISCOE might just as well have handed the poor young "instrument of Royalty" a sirloin of beef, a gallon of porter, and a bushel of coals, and implored her MAJESTY, because such articles are considered highly con-stitutional by the English, that she would be graciously pleased to command her Portuguese subjects—poor thing j-to eat roast-beef, drink heavy-wet, and smoke their pipe over rousing fires. What has—what can have the Consti-tution of England to do with Portugal, or the Portuguese people? And what, thanks to Mr. Butscoe, and such as him, has the Constitution of England now to do with the Constitution as described by DE LOLME? Conceive a man's having the weakness to address a Popiab Princess, devout, like the rest of her family, almost bi gotty, in praise of a Constitution, the true spirit of which is the unqualified maintenance of the Protestant religion. Imagine him addressing the grand-daughter of the Hous of Braganza in praise of the excellent balance of power de-graded to a mixed Government by the people, at the close of a Session, when the friends and partisans of the Princess of the House of Commons, for excluding one of those Estater fron their constitutional privileges! Fancy a man's pre-senting a copy of DE LOLME to a foreign child, after the entire change in the mode of popular election—after the repeal of the Test and Corporation Acts—after the emanet-pation of the Papists—after the abolition of slarery—after in this country have been labouring, both in Parliament and on the rouse of Cummons, for excluding one of those Esta

Our attention has been particularly attracted to one of the nume-rous national undertakings at the present moment in progress, and which promises to be of infinite service to the mercantile world, by facilitating in an eminent degree the intercourse between London and that most important city, Bristol. We are told that scarcely any opposition has been made by the proprietors of land through which, according to the reports of the surveyors, the Western Railroad is to be carried ; shares are in great demand, and the prospects of the Company such as cannot fail to be gratifying to those who wish well to the principle of unbounded facility of communication between our important towns, and to the public-spirited individuals who, with the hope of merely a moderate remuneration for their capital and exertions, devote themselves to the extension of a system whence so much general benefit must eventually arise.

whence so much general benefit must eventually arise. EVERYBODY has heard of Mr. PRYME'S affair in the House of Commons-Everybody, as yet, has not seen Sir EDWARD SUGDEN'S splendid address to the electors of Cambridge. Deeply dowe regret that we are unable from want of space to transfer it "bodily," as the Scotch say, from the columns of the Cambridge Chronicle to those of Bull. It is, however, impossible, and we are there-fore obliged to content ourselves, and a great content-ment it is, to lay before our readers from that excellent Paper an article clearly explaining the object of the address, and embodying a portion of it :--We suppose that most of our readers will have made up their minds, one way or the other, respecting Mr. PAYME's recent dilemma. The discussion which has taken place respecting his having vacated his seat, and the notoriety which has been given to the whole matter by the publication of the correspondence which took place when the appointment of Commissioner of Bankrupts was offered to him by the LOND CHANGELLON, and, at a subsequent period, when he ascertained that his acceptance of the office had en-air of mystery upon the subject. There has been a good deal ot talk about Mr. PAYME not having been made by the LOND CHANGELLONG-but by the Judges—and last, not least, it has been argued that he was only suppended from his seat in Parliament during a little time, but —a blot being no blot till it is hit—was restored to all his privileges, and ourselves to all the advantages of our excellent Member, without the troublesome ceremony of a re-election. When we had occasion, five weeks ago, to take notice of this very carlent to discuss an abstract legal question with His Majesty's Law Officers, and con-tented ourselves with observing, that although it might be very good law, it was very odd for all that. We now find, however, that such an absurdity is no part of the law; and we refer our readers to the masteriy address of Sir En-wars moders establishes by f

It was his duty to inform himself, it inclination off a oppointment it is not pretended that it is necessary to act in an office in order to vacate the seat. Con-sent to take office will, of itself, vacate the seat. They who accept the Chiltern Hundreds do not execute the office before the writ is moved. Now, Mr. Pryme's appointment took place in the same numer as: that of other Country Commissioners. After the offer, and his acceptance of it, his appointment inmediately issued. A list of the commissioners for the Cambridge District, at the head of which was the name of Mr. Parws, was kept in the Bankrupt-office, for the use of the office and of solicitors, and Mr. Parvst's letter of accept-soner. The was one of the Quorum, and the solicitors who applied for Fiats were compelled to take him as one of the Commis-sioner: It was an of the Quorum, and the solicitor particularly objected to Mr. Parvs's being named, but he was told that it was imperative. Two Fiats were accordingly directed to him, and in consequence of his is oner; and in one instance a solicitor particularly objected to Mr. Parvs's being named, but he was told that it was imperative. But there is a possi-bility that even the present Parliament may come to a wrong decision; and where plain deductions from simple facts are put in one scale, and a vote of the present Parliament in the other, we have little doubt to which side the balance will incline, if poised by an impartial hand

Pride in such a person, and such a place, and at such a time, sounds ridiculous; however, ridiculous or not, we trust it will eternally settle the question as to those gentlement taking their " better halves" with them. If a system, the destruc-tive results of which are here made evident, is persisted in, the blood of the victims who perish in consequence be upon the heads of those who permit it. But in the other case of shipwreck—more besotted, more infamous, more abhorrent even than this—we do trust, since the culprits are yet alive and fit for justice, that some strong measures will be taken. Let any man read the following extract from an account given by a passenger in the Earl of Wemyss smack, and say what those people deserve : we. confess we cannot see that the passengers were much better than the Captain and his crew, who, by their stupidity, carclessness, wantonness, or whatever else it may be called, suffered everybody on board who was helpless, timid, and weak, to perish, while they saved themselves. " Brussels, Aug. 22, 1832." (Signed) " LEOPOLD." In the course of the present week the officers of the Customs have seized contraband goods in various parts of London to the amount of 10,0001. A large quantity of silk goods and Chantilly lace weils was found in a house near the Burlington Arcade. The person in whose possession it was is said to be connected with the French Embassy. Thursday the officers went with a warrant to a warehouse in Friday Thursday the officers went with a warrant to a warehouse in Friday-street, and upon searching the premises discovered several cases of broad silks, which they carried away. It appears that smuggling in London has been lately carried on to an extent unprecedented.—To be sure, what matters—it is for the advantage of the French manufacturer : nobody can complain of that.

By the Act recently passed, the Master of the Court of Faculties of the Archishop of Canterbury, on his being satisfied as well of the fitness of the person as the expediency of the appointment, may admit any attorney or solicitor of the Courts at Westminster, or any proctor practising in the Ecclesiastical Courts, residing above ter miles from the Royal Exchange, to be a notary public, to act in such district as he shall think fit, and not elsewhere. A seven years clerkship is no longer necessary, except within ten miles of the Royal Exchange. No notary appointed by virtue of this Act can act as a notary, nor perform ner certify any notarial act whatsoever within the above ten miles, under the penalty of being struck off the Rolls of the Court of Faculties, and for ever disabled from practising as a notary.

One of the chief objections to general education is, that people once taught to read, read bad books as well as good ones. In a similar way the Corporation Commissioners, in searching for records and documents connected with Corporations, actually unsettle half the property in the country. The Globe says :- "I have learned that a Noble Earl is likely to be deprived of 1200 acres of the best land in the county of Mesth, in consequence of a disclosure at one of the corporate inquiries relative to the manner in which his family became possessed of them by a sort of bargain with the Corporation, of which his Lordship is a member. The labours of the Commis-sioners continue to excite the most lively interest."

The number of fashionable emigres to the continent continues un-precedentedly numerous. We are informed that Mr. WRIGHT, an hotel-keeper at Dover, sent from his house no less than 75 families, all with carriages, to the continent in one week. There are nine extra packets plying between Dover and Calais this season .- What makes these emigrations really injurious to the country, is the fact that they are made without any present intention on the part of the emigrants to return. This is one of the most serious effects of the odious Reform Bill, and one which the thick headed shopkeepers, who bellowed in its favour, will the soonest suffer from.

The applause, thus cut and dried ready for use, was, as might be expected, faint; but still there was a crowd and s shout. On Wednesday, however, although it was known that his Lordship would arrive, there were none so poor as to do reverence to the KING's prime Minister, and the reforming Earl Gazy and his equipage were scarcely more noticed than the arrival and departure equipage were scattery more notice unan the arrival and departure of a hackney-coach; thus proving to his Lordship how alike value-less and transient is that species of public applause which is obtained by the arts of fraud and delusion.—Newcastle Journal.

The liberal Government at Ceylon does not appear so generally successful as might have been expected by the liberal Government at home. Accounts received from Ceylon, dated Colombo, April 9, state that much difference of opinion prevails on the subject of the new measure of the Government in opening the trade in cinnamon and repealing all restrictions. Many persons of influence col that this ought not to have been done prior to the stock in hand disposed of and the new trade at Colombo fairly set in; and they argue that the Government, who hold the market exclusively in their own hands, ought to have allowed freedom of cultivation within the own nanus, ought to have allowed freedom of cultivation when island, and have given every grower of cinnamon a fixed and remu nerating price per lb., according to its quality, and to have continue that system, adjusting supply to demand, waiti the great question ad opening the trade had been fully considered. The published plan of the London and Brighton Railway makes the line as nearly as possible direct from Kennington Common to to the entrance of Brighton, a distance of about forty-seven miles, to Streatham, east of Mitcham and Sutton to Merstham, leaving Rigate about four miles to the west, on to Horley and Worth, passing Crawley about a raile westward to within a mile of Cuckfeld, and on through Hurstperpoint and Patcham to Brighton. Branch roads are contemp-lated, one from near Cuckfeld to Lewes and Hastings, another commencing at Horley through Crawley, a little south-east of Horsham, and passing close to Steyning and Bramber on to New Shoreham. There is a third line laid down along the Sussex coast through Shoreham, Worthing, Littlehampton, Chichester, Havant, Cosham, Fareham, and ending at Southampton. The estimated expense is 850,0001. It appears that at present about six bundred persons pass daily, upon the average of the year, from London to Brighton; they calculate on being able to carry pas-sengers for about Ss.; or twopence a mile. The coaches at present are taking people for 7s., so great is the competition on the road.

On Tuesday the neighbourhood of Duke-street was in state of much ferment, in consequence of its being the day appointed for the sale of the goods of Mr. Cousins, printer, 18, Duke street, Lincoln's In-field, which had been seized for half a year's ascessed taxes. The whole of Mr. Cousins's house was placarded with large bills, stating that his goods had been seized for assessed taxes by Mr. Daris, the collector, and that a broker named BARTER had under-taken the job, &c. The effigies of Mr. Daris, the collector, and of Darks, the collector, and that a starts that the collector, and of Mr. BARTER, the broker, were suspended from a long pole put out from the second floor window. This attracted general attention, and a large crowd collected about the place. At an early hour several method with the distribution of the members of the Marylebone Association for the Abolition of the Assessed Taxes came down to Mr. Cousins's house, and continued there the greater part of the day. The broker, however, never made his appearance; and it transpired that he had withdrawn on Monday the man whom he had placed in possession; consequently no sale had share. Not ne nau place in possession, constitution, no call to be place, nor can there now until a fresh seizure be made. It is nown whether the collector will insist on the seizure of the soods, as the withdrawal of the man in possession was the act of the broker, and, no doubt, proceeded from fear. In the evening the efficience effigies were taken in, and the greater part of the placards pulled down, but the crowd continued for some time, and the affair was argued very hotly, some defending the course adopted by Mr. Cousies, and others saying that he ought to pay the taxes like his neighbours.

The Committee on Army and Navy Appointments have found that the expenditure of the army and Navy Appointments nave round the beet expenditure of the army cannot be materially diminished. They observe in their Report, "that they cannot close the military branch of their inquiry, without stating the favourable impression which they have desired form it as to the general ecomony and mabranch of their inquiry, without stating the favourable impression which they have derived from it as to the general ecomony and ma-magement of the army. They would have been happy, if, in the per-formance of the duty intrusted to them, they could have effected any meater saving to the public; but taking into view the peculiar cir-cumstances of our military service as pointed out in various parts of the evidence, and particularly by the Duke of WELLINGTON, in the memorandum already referred to, and taking also into view the fact, that whils the salaries and emoluments of many branches of the evidence of the army are, with few exceptions, the same as Perior officers of the army are, with few exceptions, the same as ey were a century ago." When we mention the names of the unmittee, it will be seen, that if little saving could be effected, it is not become Vannittee, it will be seen, that if little saving could be effected, it was not because there were not on the Committee any men disposed to carry economy as far as possible. The names are— Lord Engine on Lord John Russell, Sir Robert Peel, Sir Henry Home, Mr. Abercronoby, Sir Ronald Fergusson, Sir Alexander John Byng, Mr. Bonham Carter, Mr. Strickland, Mr. Morgan

O'Omnell, Mr. Hedworth Lambton, Sir James Gruham, Mr. Elliøe Mr. Williams Wynn, Sir Henry Parnell, Mr. Pendarvis, Mr. Hune Colonel Davies, Mr. Fazakerty, Colonel Materiey, Sir John Schright Mr. Hawes, Mr. Carew, Admiral Fleming, Mr. Richard Oswald.

It is estimated, says the Quarterly Journal of Agriculture, that only one-third of the seed corn sown on the best land grows; the other two thirds are destroyed. The number of cultivated acres in Great Britain and Ireland amounts to 47,000,000; 30,000,000 of which are under the plough. Two fifths of the latter, or 12,000,000 acres, are annualt the prough. I work it is of the area of a second of the provide th of corn are annually wasted! The quantity thus lamentably wasted would support more than 1,000,000 of human beings.—This amount of waste must be taken cum grano.

LAW OF DEBTOR AND CREDITOR .- The following circular has been issued by the London attorneys :-

"And be it further enacted, that upon all debts or sums payable at a certain time or otherwise, the jury on the trial of any issue, or any inquisition of damaxes, may, if they shall think fit, allow interest to the creditor, at a rate not exceeding the current rate of interest, from the time when such debt or sums certain were payable, if such debt or sums be payable by virtue of some written instruments at a certain time; or if payable otherwise, then from the time when demand of payment shall have been made in writing, so as such demand shall give notice to the debtor that interest will be claimed from the date of such demand until the term of payment, provided that interest shall be payable in all cases in which it is now payable by law."

" The above is an extract from a recent act of parliament, and the effect of it as follows :--

"If the debt be payable by virtue of a written instrument, then the creditor is entitled to interest from the time when the debt became

'If there be no written instrument, then the creditor is entitled to interest only from the time of his demanding payment of the debt in writing, so that in the demand of payment the creditor apprise the debtor that interests will be required from that time. "I think the following form will be sufficient :--

* I hereby demaid payment of the sum of \mathcal{L} , due from you to me, and I give you notice that I shall claim interest thereon from the date hereof to the time of payment. Dated the day of , 1833 .- Yours, &c.

"Of course you will take care to have evidence of the delive the notice; and it is hardly necessary to remind you that the creditor himself must not deliver it."

BOS meeting of Trustees a V-stry was held, to make another rate for the expenses of the Church for the year ensuing. When the rate-papers were admitted, all who had not puild last year's rate were excluded. Mr. Moarnew, one of the Churchwardens, moved that a rate of sit-pence in the pound be granted for the ensuing year. Mr. Garsons moved an a mendment that the meeting adjourn for six monits. The rate was, however, carried by a majority of four, --Brighton Gaz. The inhabitants of Lydney and its vicinity were varified on Monday last, by the soleran and imposing ceremony of an Episcopal Confirmation. The greatest possible interest was excited on this respected Diocean, attended by his Chapitan, the Rev. W. S. Pritztrs, arrived at the parish cluurch atone o'clock, where his Lord-slip was received by a considerable budy of the Clergy and larity; after the service of the day had been read, a highly sporporiate address was delivered to the young people by the Bishop, and great numbers of them received the soleran rite at his Lordship's hands. On the following morning the Lord Bishop proceeded to consecrate the new Chapel at Benchley, a populous hamlet, three miles distant from the mother cluurch, and it was most pleasing to observe the feeling exhibited by al classes on the performance of the Chapel, in ali of the expenses attending its erection. A gentleman whose name we understood to be Pope, applied to Mr. Halls. for a warrant to apprehend Mr. Chambers, the Magia-tracte of Marlborough-street, under the following circumstances:--Mr. Pope stated that Mr. Chambers and himself were in the same trade, coal-merchants, and claimed to be the principal creditors of an estate of a person who had lately become insolvent. In the course of a short time Mr. Chambers and himself were appointed to arange the affairs of the bankrupt. It so happened, however, that their yiews as to the best mode of settling some portion of the business differed, and a letter relative to the point in dispute was sent by bim to Mr. Chambers, which, from subsequent proceedings, it ap-peared that gentleman considered was likely to lead to a breach of the fore Mr. White, the Magistrate, at Queen-square Office, who or-dered him to enter into his own bond for 1007, and to produce two sureties in 600, each, to keep the peace. During the inquiry, Mr. Chambers used very violent and threatening language, and thrusting his unbrells towards him, said "he should like to run it through that, "made entertained no doubt that Mr. Chambers would, at that moment have assulted him had it not been that Mr. White, the Magistrate laid hold of his arm, and pulled him back. Mr. Harnfieldt, head busier in the envor pantry of the Duke of Cumberland it. Kex, drewned himself on Sturday night. His body was found mer Martlake on Sunday evening. On Theseday an Inquest was beld at the Ship Tavern, which excised a good deal of interest, from rumours which were afloat to the prejudice of the enquiry; and seemed extremely anxious that the inless insertigation should take, place. It appeared from the was innown of Mar Gosden, the plate washer under the decoased, that he was much addicted to cinking, and on being informed that he was too to Germany, was greatly depressed in spirits; but the principal crusse of the rawh, set of which he was guilty seemed to be the cincumstance of the ndy heing entrusted to carry the plate to Messas. Bundall and Bridges, preparatory to its being packed up to be sent to Germany-acircumstance solely arising from his services being otherwise re-guired at thew. On being missed, a letter was found in his room directed to Conzad Franzilius, one of the pages. It was written in formany and was translated by the Rev. Mr. Jelf, and was as follows:-

German, and was translated by the Rev. Mr. Jell, and was as "Kew Palace." "DEAR FRANZILUIS-I bid adieu to the world. See how far the tyrant has carried matters with me, after serving 21 years, and really like a slave! I can say, with Maria Stewart [Here the Rev. Gen-tleman observed that the following words were a quotation from one of the plays of Schiller]-I an obstere than my reputation.' Do not curse my soul. [Then followed a direction as to monies which were to be received on his account, and the payment of his dobts.] May all good men be happy. God bless good Prince George, and may he soon recover his sight. I curse Cumberland and old Ball. [Here it was explained the latter name meant Ball, the steward.] Herewith 1 Franzilus, who was examined, said the deceased always spoke with the greatest respect of his Royal Master, but he had some dispute with Mr. Ball, the steward, who hads spoken harshily to him in con-sequence of his sottish habits. On the Saturday, he complained that he was not rusted to go to London with the plate, which was sent up by the under butler. The Duke of Cunberland, on his examination, said he had no quarrel whatever with the unfortunate man; but, on the contrary, The Duke of the reced over many to his faults, arising from intemperance. His Royal Highness produced two letters found in the dask of the deceased, which were also translated by the Rev. Mr. Jelf. The first was directed to his father, and was couched in the following terms:-"Kew, Sepf. 21, 1833. "My DEAR FATHER—Curse not your son, who resigns the world in

BIT STAT. THE mest was directed to the statter, and was concrete the following terms: — "Kew, Sept. 21, 1833. "MY DEAR FATHER—Curse not your son, who resigns the world in consequence of a slight. My master, the tyrant, whom the world hates, has terminated my life. Twenty years I have served him faithfully and honestly, and in truth have been as a slave. Embrace my brothers and sizters, and bless my soul, which is certainly better than my reputation." [Here followed a description of his property in the hands of Mr. Hentze, steward to the Duke of Cumberland in Berlin.]

than my reputation." [Here followed a description of his property in the hands of Mr. Hentze, steward to the Duke of Cumberland in Berlin.] The second was to Mr. Hentze, and ran thus:--"Mr FATHFUL FAIEND-These lines are the last. A slight of the Duke's has brought me to this step to put an end to my life. With trembling and bleeding heart I write these lines. Pray take care yoor family." A nucher of other witnesses were examined, whose testimony fully ended the assertion that the decrased had expressed content with the situation, and also proved, in positive terms, the general kind teeling of his Royal Highness towards decrased as a master. It was explained that the quarrel alluded to betwixt the deceased and Mr. Ball, the steward, had occurred through some reflections mate by the latter on the frequent intoxication of the former. The repeated acts of dissipation on the part of the deceased, it was tated by Mr. Jelf, had apparently reduced him to a state of partial Moyal Highness such decisive and satisfactory answers, con-funde by frequent appeals to other persons who were present, as to the deceased in the River Thames, near the Ship Tavrn, Mortlake, abeve the unbounded character of the reports. Samuel Pope, coal-mer-chant, of Abbrey Whard, Lithe Abingdon street, Milbank, Westmin-ster, appeneed before Mr. Gregorie, the sitting Masistrate, to renew his application for a peace warrant against Mr. Chambers, the Ma-sistrate of Marlborough-street, for threatening to run his umberla through his thick skull in the presence of Mr. White, the Magistrate, when he was only restrained from so doing by Mr. White holding him by the coat, and preventing him from attempting to put his threat into execution. The particulars of this case, arising out of the bankruptcy of Mossyrs. Southall and Milns, coal merchants, of Pedlar's Acre, Westminster Bridge, of which firm hoth parties are creditors, appeared in last week's paper.—Mr. Gregorie asked Mr. Pope what his application was?—Mr. Pope: Sir, since my last application here relative to the conduct of Mr. Chambers towards me, I have been in correspondence with Lord Melbourne, the Screttary of State, and I—Mr. Gregorie (interrupting him): Mr. Pope, you ought to have sullicient tense to know that if any correspondence has taken place between you and Lord Melbourne, which is to regulate me, that communication must be made to this office-mr. Pope: Sir, it does not regulate you. Lord Melbourne declines to interfere in the matter. I now apply to you for a peace warrant against Mr. Cham-bers, the Magistrate, as I expect to meet bim at the Bankrupt Court to morrow, and I shall have to put questions to him respecting some commercial transactions, that I fear he may carry his threat into execution, will I will appeal to your colleague, Mr. White, to prove his violence towards me, and I have also two respectable witnesses who were present at the time.—Mr. Gregorie: Sir, yon may be as angry as you please with me elsewhere, but here I will not allow the rouge to onwish to he angry with you here

At the Cessions. The line of evel of the road from Brachton to Shoreham was taken last week for the purpose of forming a railroad. We are happy to learn by further arrivals from Davis' Straits that the whale fishing continues to be uncommonly successful. As yet we have only be ref of one loss this season, namely, the Ingrita, of Hull,—Glasgone Courier. According to accounts from Valenciennes, the harvest in that in highbourhood has been so abundant that, with the corn previously in store, there is sufficient provision for the population of that part of the country for three years. Reportions at Haubsourns.—The naval store-keeper and officers employed under his directions at Haubbourine Island have here called on by the Lords of the Admiralty to lurnish a return of their ages and servitude, it is supposed for the purpose of superan-munting them, and reducing the establishment entirely. So it is proposed that Whig economy should reach even this remote corner of the empire.—Cork Hereid.

Don Mixuel's loan has risen to 58. It is said here that on the BU, after an action in which the principal positions were carried, the Royalists had occupied the street St. Joseph, and their reargund was established at the barracks of Val-Perior. They had also taken possession of Arroyos. The Pedroites had retired to the centre of the city. The Royalists were stated to have lost bott 100 menon the occasion.
The Conference at Munchen-Gratz has probably by this time ended. If we believe the Suadian Mercary, we shall soon be made equainted with the object of these interviews of the Northern Sovereigne, as the respective Journals of their Courts are expected to publish shortly a semi official declaration of their views, by which all Governments will be enabled to concur in the maintenance of prace, on conditions which will not attack their honour, or interfere with their internal policy. Is times of public danger no person can be said to be so con-temptible as to be uscless, nor so insignificant as to be incapable of doing good. True, indeed, it is, that the feeble efforts of the most geslous individual cannot check the impetuous tide of evil when galous individual cannot check the impetuous tide of evil when once its impetuous waves have borne down the barriers which united wisdom and experience had erected against them : but the hopeless-ness of the attempt can never exonerate any member of society from exerting his utmost ability to stem the torrent, although he can look for no other reward than to be overwhelmed in its waters. It is still his duty to admonish " whether his fellow citizens will hear, or whether they will forbear;" and to point out every source of mischief, whether his words gain attention, or provoke only con-of mischief, whether his more acology. for acoin other will me will be a solver for acoin other will me will be a solver for a scale of mischief. hear, or who of mischief,

The series of th

nion, while he would compel universal submission to his own, is esteemed as an object of commendation and eulogium. Amona the various causes to which this growing degeneracy may be attributed is one, which, though powerful in its effects, may not, perhaps, have excited adequate attention. I allude to the objects elected to form the principal characters of works of imagination-and, consequently, the tone of feeling which pervades these works themselves. Authors, professing to hold the hichest rank in this species of composition, have conceived a horror of pourtraying character unnaturally virtuous, and less, it is to be hoped, in the desire of disseminating evil principles than of proving their own virid powers of description and knowledge of mankind, have pre-sented us with portraits unnaturally vicious. The condema-tion of writers of the present day is not that they " paint men as they ought to be, not happily too, not as they are! They do not extract from the pages of history the bright and glowing characters there preserved, to heighten their colours, as formerly, and amidat virtues which they really possessed, to clothe them with others, which, concealing their defects, made human nature itself "wonder at being as fine;" but the black catalogue of crimes, the records of villany and disgrace are ransacked, and beings in whose society we should have blushed to lawe been eaven, are dragged from the obli-vion into which this infamy had plunged them, to become the ob-jects of our contemplation, of our interest, and even of our samiration. Great intellect, with its concomitant, inordinate pride at of sophistical philosophy, are the ingredients upon which the artful gat of sophistical philosophy, are the ingredients upon which the still and distents of an author of modern celebrily are exercted, at one to raise his own fame, and to gratify the reader. Surely the very principle on which such writings are founded is sufficiently con-demanatory; for on what growting as a found and raid is it to coneive the hear play of their own powers, and neither considering nor caring for their demoralizing efficies upon others;-percoitst, who in the hard hearted-ness of vanity, reflect not on the evils which may ensue from their skillnid display of wickedness, nor apprehend that their writings will be acting as factors for themselves against the great day of general and awful account, when the improvement of the talent committed to their charge towards the end for which it was given, and not its dazzling magnitude, will be weighed in the scale of justice. But allowing the apology its full value, it will neither diminish the bane-ful consecuences of such works. Nor remove one objection against allowing the apology its full value, it will neither diminish the bane-ful consequences of such works, nor remove one objection against them. We are not the safer for being amused, nor is the heart in less danker because the imagination alone is intended to be gravified. On the contrary, we are then most susceptible of evil when least on our guard, and as little experience is requisite to testify that he who allows the enemy quiet possession of the avenues to his strongest hold, has effectually surrendered the hold itself—so, if the fancy once be captivated, the passions become traitors, and the mind and heart are enalwed. enslaved.

It is also a weak defence to plead that such characters can have Thence over the reader; that the bare representation of vice is sufficient of itself to driver others from following it. Assuredly—
 "Vice is a monster of so frightful minen, As, to be hated, needs but to be seen;"
 but it is almost trite to add, familiarity destroys its deformity, and that which we at first loathed we are led to embrace. Well, also, has it been observed :---

usserven :--. "Il n'est point de serpent, ni de monstre odieux, Qui, par l'art unité, ne puisse plaire aux yeux, B'un pinceau délicat l'artifice agreable Du plus affreuse objet fait un objet aimable ;''

an observation which is rendered peculiarly just at present by the Pernicious admixture of qualities which will ever possess an attractive influence. To young minds especially these delineations cannot fail to have a most baneful effect. They threaten to contami. hate and point every found of virtue, to prepare the heart for the admission of the worst vices, to fournet every dangerous passion, and by the undue deference psid to talent and intellect over principle and work, to undermine the best interests of society, to draw us back from oth, to undermine the best interests of society, to draw us back and worth, to undermine the best interests of society, to draw us back from pure Christianity to selfish heathenism, and to produce a future race of regicides, traitors, and assassins. Nor let this assertion be deemed two strong to be tenable. "No one," declares him before whose wisdom the puny minds of modern sagges must shrink tonought, "can touch pitch and be undefield,"—no one can long contemplate vice and be engrossed in its details without contracting some stain himsoft, or weakening some sentiment of virtue. The skill displayed in many of these works insensibly rivets the attention and engages "Smpathy: we are led indexities tided colours of the serpent, for" sympathy; we are led admire the gilded colours of the serpent, for getful of its poisonous qualities, and to feel regret for the fate to which it is justly condemned. On those therefore, whose imagination is in its first glow, whose principles are yet unsettled, and at whose age there is a natural tendency to view with enthus as what is imposing there is a natural tendency to view with enthusiasm what is imposing and grand above what is simple and good, the effect must be felt in its utmost extent, and the result is not less evident. It is always far easier to act than to reflect, to adopt new principles than to estab-lish old ones : whatever is novel is alluring. The false glare of the evening meteor, although it dazzle but to mislead, attracts the eye which slighted the meridian b-am ; so the character which is opposed to common observation fixes instant regard, fascinates by its eccen-tricity, and deceives the judgment. Nor is this all; the enthusiasm which is excited by extraordinary excellence transports the mind beyond itself, and is either exhausted in excursive flights, or purified from its weaker parts, subsides into rational admiration; but, in the which is excited by extraordinary excellence transports the mind beyond itself, and is either exhausted in excursive flights, or purified from its weaker parts, subsides into rational admiration; but, in the present case, enthusiasm is raised but to be thrown back in darkest gloom upon the heart, which it corrodes with movid sensibility, or hardens into apathetic selfishners. The greatest danger likewise is to be apprehended from those by whom the fairest promise is given. Keenly susceptible, and open to every impression, the latent germs of vice, as well as of virtue, are often thus called into action, and a bias given to the charater which after years may serve to confirm, rather than to destroy. No stronger proof of this can be given than the example of the unhappy Bruons himself; who is said to have attributed his own perverted taste for the display of depravity, to a youthful impression conveyed by alae of Miss Lær; an awful cau-tion, which authors who would a voit be guitt and misery which may hereafter confront them, would be wise to heed. The experience, however, of all ages attests, that no poison is more subtle, or more fatally certain, than that which is conveyed to the heart through the medium of the imaxination. It will be said, perhaps, that the objections thus advanced against one class of modern writers, may, with equal propriety, be urged against the mighty delineator of human nature, Staxsæratæ, nor less against the inmortal Scorr. True, indeed, both vicious and virtuous characters pass under the life-inspiring hand of each, but neither the one nor the other had learned to confound right with wrong. Our great dramatist painted men to the very life, and in no instance clothed guit with adventituous ornaments. No heart can virtuous characters pass under the life-inspiring hand of each, but neither the one nor the other had learned to confound right with wrong. Our great dramatist painted men to the very life, and in no instance clothed guilt with adventitious ornaments. No heart can become deprived through any representation of his, nor by any per-version of judgment be led to imagine those deserving of imitation whom ke has drawn base and wicked. Neither is Scorr Less free from censure. He also makes no confusion between what is repre-hensible and what praiseworthy; nor by any effort of skill seeks to hide the deformity of sin. No villainous character, through his means, fastens on our imagination, nor is our admiration or our affections excited for any guilty object. "Yet," it is asserted, "he wrote for no moral:" probably for a particular moral he did not write; but the general accusation is rebutted on the ground that the faithful delineation of events, and of those concerned in them, con-veys of itself the best of morals, if we will regard it. Every day's occurrence is stamped with the immutable moral of God's providence, and he only who slumbers through life, or closes his eyes wilfully against conviction, can be insensible to this great truth--that there is a hand which directed hall, and that even on this side of eternity the retributive justice of the Deity is seen to have arranged itself against the hardened sinner, or the proud contemer of his laws. The school, however, to which allusion is intended, is neither that of SHAKSPEARE nor of SCOTT. It is formed on the model of BYROM, and the characters that distinguish it are in reality not more con-formable with nature than the faultless heroes of former writers, or of those whose aim is exclusive?' to ornit a moral." They have

and the characters that distinguish it are in reality not more con-formable with nature than the faultless herces of former writers, or of those whose aim is exclusively "to print a moral." They have birth only in a distempered or perverted imagination, and are libels on human nature, evidences of bad taste, if not of a tainted heart. COLTON, in his Lacon. asserts, that if the author of evil were to on numan indure, evidences to bar take, in not of a taintee theat of Corrow, in his Lacon. asserts, that if the author of evil were to write a book, it would be in praise of morality; because, otherwise, he would find no readers; but it would seem that he is misuken, if we were to judge from the style of novels now denombated popular. He certainly had not, for instance, read the celebrated Eugene Aram when he wrote this, or he would probably have re-tracted his opinion; and yet this is about to be published as a standard work, and as such to be placed in the hands of the present and rising generation with unqualified admiration. But let parents beware of the danger to which they are exposing them-selves and their children, and conscientiously and resolutely oppose the introduction of such compositions into their families. The word of truth has declared a heavy denunciation against those who shall put " bitter for sweet, and aweet for bitter;" and they who commit their thoughts to paper ought to consider well their tendency before they allow them to be acen by the public eye; but whatever weight of responsibility the writer may incur, no part of the load is removed from the reader. Our encouragement and circulation of evil makeen us a participator of the offence, and renders us amenable to the the set of the offence, and renders us amenable to the set of the set of the offence. from the reader. Our encouragement and circulation of evil makes us a participator of the offence, and renders us amenable to the punishment; but if this be true in a general sense, how much more so in the immediate sphere of our influence. Society is now in an awful and critical state, and the black clouds which darken our horizon seem pregnant with fearful events. In the shock which may ensue, all hope must be placed in the strength of principles, on the ust notions of right and wrong, and on the real and substantial worth of those who may be destined to oppose it. If a nation is to be saved by righteousness (and who shall dare to deny what God has declared), by righteousness (and who shall dare to deny while to be saved by righteousness (and who shall dare to deny whal. God has declared), then woe to them who, by any means, have weakened the arms of their country !--Wee to them who, by their writings, their arguments, summation of its ruin. If we would be a virtuous people, we must contemplate virtue, we must cultivate, we must strengthen it in those whom it is our duty to train up in the paths in which they should go. We must present them with healthy examples, with characters, whether fictitious or real, truly deserving of imitation, and fear not to err on the right side. We need be under no apprehension of making society too good by holding up examples too bright for humanity to have reached: the most generous, the most romantic notions of virtue will soon be lowered or qualified by a mixture with the world, and the warmest aspirations after Utopian excel-nce itself will naturally subside into calm and rational ideas of goodness.

notions of virtue will soon be lowered of the vertex of the vertex of the sepirations after Utopian excel-lence itself will naturally subside into calm and rational ideas of goodness. As, then, the interests of the community at large, and of our own families individually, are dear to us, let us give no countenance to the stream pure, you must be careful that the spring be untainted by which it is led. Suffer not your offspring to become intimate with crimes and errors, the very knowledge of which it were happiness to be able to withhold from them for ever. Confound not in their minds the irreconcileable distinctions of virtue and vice, nor awaken one generous emotion in their breasts for a reprehensible object. Give to principle, to consistency, to zeal and practical piety all their consideration; and by accustoming your children to the contempla-tion of the highest examples, inspire them with noble and just sen-timesta. Convince them, that to be master of their passions, and not their slave, isto be eminent; that pride of intellect is but arrogant folly, and that abilities, however splendid, can never compensate for moral worth; that solitary virtues amongst a crowd of vices, is as taper in a sepulchre, calculated not to convey light and comfort, but to betray its foulness and to render its darkness more perceptible. Let it be our study to exalt, not to degrade, the national charseter, and conscientiously endeavour to reisis the progress of whatever may tend to confusion and evil with unversifed dilugence and care; sow the seeds of pure and vicial morality and relign in the breasts of the rising generation, that, should the hour of trial arrive, they may not be found waiting in the perilous time, but thine illustious in all the their country demands, or their Gon requires. My ques-tion is this:-If " the loaves and the fishes" are so few, and Lord Gner has not the power of increasing their number, why did his Lordship give to his brother, who had already a loaf and fish enough, in the shape of his Bishopric of HEREFOR, an additional quantity of some deserving claracter, who now is starving upon a paltry living or a poor curacy? LONDON, SEPTEMBER 29.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 29. THEIR MAJESTIES continue at Windser, and will net quit it for Brighton before the 28th of October. On Wednesday the KING, attended by Sir HERBERT TAYLOR, arrived at St. James's Palace at about half-past one, where His MAJESTY was received by their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of CUMBERLAND, who afterwards took lunchcon with His MAJESTY. The KING left town for Windsor at a quarter to six on Thursday. The Duke and Duchess of CUMBERLAND visited their MAJESTIES at Windsor. On Friday their MAJESTIES buoured Lord and Lady ALBEMARLE with their company at dinner at the Stud House, HAMPTON COURT. Yesterday their MAJESTIES went to Bagshot, to dine with the Duke and Duchess of GLOUCESTER. Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of CUM-BERLAND, and Prince GEORGE, leave town on Tuesday for the Continent. Their Royal Highnesses will dise with his Grace the Duke of WELLINGTON at Walmer Castle, and remain there for the night, and embark on Wednesday in the Comet steamer. Their Royal Highnesses will be accom-panied to the Continent, and during their stay there, by LOT CHARLES WELLEBLEY, the second son of the Duke of WELLINGTON, whom his Royal Highness has been pleased to appoint one of his Equerries. His Royal Highness the Duke of CAMBRIDGE has been invested by his Majesty the Emperor of RUSSIA with the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Andrew. THE Stock-jobbers have been actively employed during

THE Stock-jobbers have been actively employed during the week upon Portuguese affairs, the ingenuity of their principals having been chiefly directed to concealing the truth, rather than, as hitherto, circulating falsehoods. The operations of the week begau by Lord PALMER-STON's proceeding to Windsor with the mysterious despatches brought by the Echo steamer, and then the market was moved by a variety of reports; all, however, unfortunately for the Bulls of the Scrip, incontrovertibly unfavourable to the rebel cause. the rebel cause.

It was at length admitted on all hands that Marshal BOURMONT had possession of Belem; and as the folly and knavery of the Pretender's Officers at Oporto cost the mer-chants of that city their wine, the Marshal had given evi-dence of his power in the neighbourhood of Lisbon by cutting off the water

dence of his power in the neighbourhood of Lisbon by cutting off the water. At this period, when the King of PORTUGAL was quietly placed in his own Palace at Adjuda-from which HIS troops are gravely charged with steading the plate, &c., a letter of a private correspondent announced that Colonel HARE had been sent by the King of PORTUGAL to make terms with the Pretender. This was a bad shot, but it did for a day or two. Colonel HARE is an attaché of my Lord WILLIAM RUSSELL, and a worthy, gallant Officer he is; but it is quite clear that if he were selected as a negociator in this important matter, he must have been sent To Don MIGUEL with terms, and not from him, unless indeed, as the Colonel is a social kind-hearted man, he might (barring their political differences) have previously cantered over to make a call upon His MAJESTY. This history, however, and that of the pretended armistice, soon fell to the ground; facts overthrew fabrications, and mouth-locks, and other little instruments of Palmerstonic restraint in the Foreign Office, began to goze out. The cause of the locks, and other little instruments of Palmerstonic restraint in the Foreign Office, began to noze out. The cause of the rebels is desperate; the People—as, be it recollected, we have always said they would—have flocked in crowds to the standard of their KING; and even the Times itself admits that Don MIGUEL'S army, having the whole country open in its rear, and every facility for supplies, cannot be easily shaken. easily shaken.

easily shaken. We admit that we are sanguine in the cause of Don MIGURL, because we know it to be the just cause—we have more than hope, we have confidence, in his ultimate suc-cess. Had Lord PALMERSTON not interfered, the KING would have been quietly seated upon his throne, and England and Portugal, both at peace, would have fourished, and we should not have been brought into a position such as perhaps the folly (at least) of one very small Statesman never before placed a nation. We have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any we have no hesitation in saving that the conduct of any saving the saving the saving that the saving the savi

We have no hesitation in saying that the conduct of our Ministry—and we really beg pardon for being obliged to involve the whole Cabinet in a censure which, by their own involve the whole Cabinet in a censure which, by their own inertness and laziness, and not from any delicacy of feeling, must in fact rest upon one head alone-we have, we say, no hesitation in stating, that the conduct of the Ministry has rendered, and must render, Whig diplomacy in England not only for ever ridiculous, but ETERNALLY INFAMOUS. Fortunately for the country, by its constitution the KING ean do no wrong; we therefore know where to cast the blame of making His MAJESTY break his pledge and violate his promise given in his Royal Speech to Parliament, in which he solemnly pledged hinself to an entire NEURALITY to a faithful but weak ally. We say that those Ministers— or that Minister—in this departmental Government—who has contrived, by every species of disingenuous subterfuge, to or that Minister—in this departmental to verimenta-who has contrived, by every species of disingenuous subterfuge, to work the infraction of this solemn and royal pledge and the violation of this sacred promise, have, or has been guilty of a most atrocious breach of duty, both to the Sovereign and the country.

Put this aside—we say that Lord PALMERSTON and his colleagues are heavily responsible for the blood that has already been spilled in this unnatural contest. If ever im-peachment for dishonouring the KING and disgracing the country were merited by a Minister, we say Lord PALMER-ston is a fitting object for such a proceeding. It is painful to say and to feel the truth and justice of this. It is scarcely possible to imagine the agreeable trifler of the boudoir acting the reckless recreation of buccaneers, or to faucy the elderly dandy of the drawing-room into a fomenter of civil strife. We have before us the picture of broken faith, both as regards the MONARCH and the nation—towns ruined— blood shed in torrents—and property destroyed to an extent which has made England, under our good, kind WILLIAM THE FOURTH, as great a curse to our old allies as BUONA-PARTE was when JUNOT, SOULT, and MASSENA devastated that fine country under the sway of the odious Corsican. At that time Lord PALMERSTON was Secretary at War— Put this aside-we say that Lord PALMERSTON and his

JOHN BULL new three-and-twenty years ago; then Lord PALMERSTON hed lost no money by bubble Companies, as he did in 1825— then there was no Portuguese Scrip in the warket—then his Lordship had not lost caske and character by having ratted. for the sake of place, and become a renegade to Whig politics; nor had he then obtained immortal ridicule by those celebrated Protocols, which will hand his name down to posterity as one of the weakest as well as most mischierous diplomatists that ever was trusted with power. In these Protocols, absurd as they are, is to be found a system of policy diametrically opposed in principle to that which his Lordship chooses to adopt with regard to Por-tugal. Ridden, ridiculed, and defeated at all other points, this ci-devant jeune homme endeavours to save his political character from utter disgrace by indicting upon the legiti-mate King of PORTUGAL, our ancient ally, all the horrors of a prolonged civil war. Look at the account he has now to render here and hereafter—unlike those of the bubble Companies, it is smeared with blood—with innocent blood— the blood of patriots nobly resisting a detestable yoke—de-testable to them from their knowledge of the personal cha-racter of the Brazilian Traitor, exiled by his own suffering subjects—a yoke rendered doubly odious by the attempts to force it on the nation by mercenary foreigners, encouraged and embodied under the eye and sanction of a friendly setTRAL Government, declared neutral by the KING on his throne in Parliament. If Lord PALMERSTON pretend to be a constitutional Minister, he must perceive, in the present position of the

If Lord PALMERSTON pretend to be a constitutional Minister, he must perceive, in the present position of the King of Portugal, the most satisfactory and triumphant proof that he has established his lawful claim to the throne. If foreigners had not been employed against him, he would have secured the undoubted possession of his birthright. Foreigners have been hired to murder his loyal subjects, to steal his ships : they have succeeded; and what is the result?—The people more numerously, more anxiously than ever, flock to his standard, and he is, in spite of the baseness of his "allies," in his Palace at Adjuda, or, as we consci-entionsly helieve, at this moment in his Palace in Lisbon. In concluding these observations, we cannot do better than extract from our excellent contemporary the Morning Post Lord PALMERSTON pretend to be a constitutional

In concluding these observations, we cannot do better than extract from our excellent contemporary the Morning Post the following details, which explain the course pursued by the KING's army; by which our readers will be convinced that no armistice ever was proposed, and no terms ever were offered—at least not by the KING to the rebels. We have reason to believe that much more came in the Echo than has been heard in any report; the eye of the anxious politi-cian should watch the Scrip : the KING's Loan is rising :— "The KING left Leiria on the 21st uit, proceeded to Alcobaça, where he remained only one night, quitture that place for Caldas de la Rahinda at five o'clock in the morning of the 22d, where he arrived at ten.

THE following has appeared in the Belfast News Letter: THE following has appeared in the Belfast News Letter: "A document was lately published in the newspapers, purporting to be a circular from the Horse Guards addressed to half payoffic as generally, and in this view it gave rise to much animadversion, as the service of their courty. On this subject our Somesser, in M'DONNELL, has received a letter from Lord Firzano Sensert in answer to some inquiries of his, in which letter his Lordship states that the document referred to was not a circular from the Horse Guards, as had been erroneously stated; it applied solely to the individuals to whom it was sent, and moreover that the cases o individuals to whom it was sent, and moreover that the cases of individuals to whom it was sent, and moreover that the cases of individuals of the present we shall take leave to ascretian—but for the present we shall take leave to ascretian—but for the present we shall take leave to argue the point as if it were not, and as if the letter heades Circular was what it professed to be. We expressed our opinion of the letter the moment we had mode of doing a dishonest and unworthy action—a base attempt to cheat honourable men of the poor pittance prechased by their blood and energies, shed and exerted while they were young; the robbery being attempted now that they are old and unfit for the very work which they are called upon to perform, or "commute" for an inadepuate sum; for if a subaltern be forty years old and in sound health, having served actually for ten or twelve years, and of necessity kept on half-pay for as many more, such a man, there being no real necessity for bis service on full pay—(on the contrary, his appointment would be protested against the moment he joined a regiment, on account of his age)—such a man having fairly earned his paltry pittance of half-pay, has the following disingenous trick practiced upon hin :-" "The public has a right to your services so long as you are not disabled by age, wounds, or infirmities." " We know, although unfit for the duties of a subaltern, and undesirable as it is in every sense that you should join a regiment, that you will be placed in this dilemas; either you must give up your present pursuits, into twich we forced you by not employing you when young and willing to serve, or, by the offer of an East or West India Regiment, you will be driven by despair into the acceptance of the commutation. On military grounds we have not the slightest desire that you should join; we are quite aware that it would be bad policy; and we do not which we forced you by not employing you when young adverting which, we are quite aware, must, choose as you will, be ruinous to you will, be ruinous to you—serve or commute." " Now this is the true version of the shameful attempt made in the Circular from the Horse Guards. Does anybody for a moment believe Lord HILL to be the adviser to such a measure? does anybody suspect that the name of "FITZROY SOMERSET" attached to it, is there, except in obedience to the order of a Whig Ministry? The officers of the de-partments at the Horse Guards are now neither more nor less that the executive instruments of the Cabinet—the same as they were in the case of the enlisting, flogging, pensioning, &c. Why, if a war suddenly broke out, there is not a man on half-pay who would not with cheerfulness and alacrity obey the honourable call of duty—and that the military heads of departments know perfectly well—but the cases here referred to, are totally different. Years have elapsed, and the poor subaltern, still able to move his limbs, is called upon to be drilled upon some new system—perhaps by Lord PAEDERICK FITZCLARENCE, or some Colonel who was not in the farmy, whilst the subaltern was in the breach at Badajoz or in the field at Victoria. Look at his position—he becomes the victim of Whig economy, in the same manner as the Chelsea pensioner has been ruined by being defrauded out of his hard-carned pension. Of the last class there are upwards of two thousand suf-

That is string to the system of grant and the prior the system of grant and the system of granting soldiers' percendings, have attempted to justify their cruchtics as founded upon his system. Let us just abew the difference.
When Sir HENNY HARDINGE was in office he found great abuses in the system of granting soldiers' pensions; he formed Courts of Ecoquiry, composed of experienced General Officers as Presidents, and Field Officers as Members. Each case was tried by men accustomed to the service, who had a professional feeling for soldiers by whose side they had fought, and by whose collective and individual valour they had carned their own reputation. The soldier respected the decision of such a Court; abuses to a great extent were discovered and corrected; the army approved of what was done, because they knew the corrections were justly and even leniently made, and the pension regulations issued by Sir HENNY Were universally considered as a boon. We know, from sources which we cannot question, that the army equally approved of the new regulations for the half, pay, and the impartiality with which they affected officers as well as men. There were, at that period, numerous instances of clerks in public offices, and even men in trade, who bought half, pay commissions, as giving them gentlemanly rank and good interest for their capital. That class Sir HENNY HANDINGE attacked, and to those gentlemen who had never done a day's duty, he said, "Serve or commute." But to the officer who had served his eight or ten tropical climates, who offered to commute, his answer was, "No; you have earned your retirement; do no such thing." Or, if he would commute, being a free agent (as in the case of the full-pay officer who exercises his own educated discretion whether he will sell out or not), he gave him a sum any boy offered to commute, his as were "No; you have earned your retirement; do no such thing." reductions, for they are derived partly from the natural effects of age and infirmity, and partly from the judicious measures of their predecessors in office; but these reduc-tions, and those arising from the active employment of the system of wheedling the poor Chelsea men out of their pen-sions, are made to appear as reductions of the Whig admi-nistration of the army. This is as impudent as it is ludi-crous—for, in point of fact, on the amount of force kept up there is actually an encreased charge; and such appears to have been the vigilance exercised in every branch of military expenditure, that in the Report of the Committee of last Session the immediate possible saving (vide page 7) upon an expenditure of upwards of fire millions a.year, is stated to be 9.7671., whilst the prospective saving in twenty or more years hence, is only calculated at 25,3211.; the Committee confessing that they cannot close their enquiry without stating the favourable impression they have received of the general economy in the management of the army.* The Committee (we gave their names in our last paper,) admit the fact, that whilst the salaries and emoluments of most branches of the Civil Service have considerably en-creased since 1792, those of the superior officers of the army are, with a very few exceptions, the same as they were a century ago. In the verv teeth of this admission, whilst the evidence creased since 1792, those of the superior officers of the army are, with a very few exceptions, the same as they were a century ago. In the very teeth of this admission, whilst the evidence proves that the Staff Officers are worse paid than those of the French army; whilst the Committee acknowledge that the Staff Officers who fought at WATERLOO received just the same rate of pay as those at Minden or Blenkein ; whilst the military governments are fewer in number and smaller in emolument than they were in 1792, with double the number of claimants in 1833, the Committee, as it seems to us, to carry favour with the adorable Reformers, have taken away half the amount of the military governments; and not con-tent with this open disregard of the evidence adduced, and the claims of an army which has saved the country, they now are contriving to make new victims by a paltry attack upon the half-pay officers. We tell the Government to beware. There is a term beyond which the most subordinate and loyal will feel that it is a duty to protest against injustice. The army know that the KING values and appreciates them; he has recently declared, at his own table, his regard for, and his reliance upon them; he continually evinces his feelings towards them by the marked and frequent evidences of his esteem and re-gard for the Duke of WELINGTON. The Whigs hate the army especially, because the man to whom we have just alluded—the greatest man of his age—has immortalised himself at its head; they hate him, because he is the bold, fearless, honest exposer of all their odious treachery and trickery. But we repeat, we recommend these Whigs, before they consummate their intended violation of all the laws of grafitude and justice against the gallant and meri-torious class of public servants whom they threates to op-press and ruin, to listen to the terms in which the illustrious Duke speaks of "military officers" in that splendid docu-ment which contains his Grace's opinious upon the subject, and is appended to the Report (p. 277).

and is appended to the report (p. 277). Adverting to what the military service really is, his Grace says— "From the moment at which the Officer enters His Margsry's service till he attains the rank of General Officer he must be pre-pared to serve in all climates, in all situations, and under every possible difficulty and guadvantage. There is no peace, no repose for limates, in all situations, and under every possible difficulty and guadvantage. There is no ease he will be put upon half pay. "Whilst thus services can be dispensed with; in which case he will be put upon half pay. "Whilst thus serving he must be, in turns, Jailer, Police Officer, Magistrate. This bold sketch is drawn with a master's hand; it is their lodgings." This bold sketch is drawn with a master's hand; it is only the pressure of circumstances which has hither opre-vented our publishing the Duke's memorandum at length— every line of it excites affection commensurate with our admiration of the illustrious writer. Fervently do we congra-tulate the army, which we respect and admire, that the Hero who uniformly led them to victory in the field, should, now that they are attacked by a moley crew of mock patriots, wield the pen in their defence as ably as he has wielded the sword in ours. Every line of the memorandum is fraught with instruction, and as we have been favoured with a copy of the Report, we shall from time to time gratify our military readers by referring to those passages which, whilst they may sound the alarm when some Whig ambuscade is prepar-ing, may, in the closing words of the Duke "point out the evic consequences which will attend their novel modes of proceeding, as well to the army as to the KING, to his ser-vants, to the Constitution, and the COUNTRY." By a shuffle we believe the letter headed "circular" is now denied to have been a "circular." This is a triumph to us, and the cause of the army, as great as the rescinding the new Pension warrant was—for IT IS A SHUFFLE. • Even this immediate saving of 9,0001, has been obtained by gross imprive are salall abor on a fluture occasion.

• Even this immediate saving of 9,0001. has been obtained by gross injustice, as we shall show on a future occasion.

"No; you have earned your retirement; do no such thing." Or, if he would commute, being a free agent (as in the case of the full-pay officer who exercises his own educated dis-cretion whether he will sell out or not), he gave him a sum hearly equivalent to the price of his full-pay. Let anybody look to the Report of Lord EBRINGTON'S MERRY HARDINGE's system there was no hardship—service was the ground upon which the half-pay might be retained. In the same Report, p. 228, it will be seen that the number of commissioner dofficers in the Line and Ordnance, in war, in the system of commutation 654 officers of short service was the ground upon which the salf-pay might be retained. If the same Report, p. 228, it will be seen that the number of commissioner dofficers, and a saving of 1,276,7041, per annum. By the system of commutation 654 officers of short service near and course of casualties, independent of commuta-tions, heen taken of the list, so that the diminution of the and the saving exceeds 1.500,0000. We submit this letter of Lord BROUGHAM's able defender. His Lordship, we are glad, cannot have either a better or more judicious advocate.

more judicious advocate. It has been stated to us that the Mr. LONSDALE, who is appointed Secretary to the Commission for REVISING the Criminal Law, is a student of about eighteen months stand-ing, and of course not within three years, at least, of being called to the Bar. We should have thought that the case of Master KINGSMILL GROVE KEY would have made Ministers more cautious in their appointments, especially when private favouritism can be successfully alleged against them. The young gentleman under whose tutelage the National Code is to be amended, is a son of Mr. LONSDALE, the clever artist who painted the LOND CHANCELLOR's picture, and who has the honour and happiness of being patronized by his Royal Highness the Duke of SUSSEX. The office to which the young gentleman is appointed is one full of importance and responsibility, and, as must be evident to everybody, ought to be filled by a lawyer of esta-blished reputation and long experience. SONG

WORKING OF THE REFORM ACT .- Claim of Disfranchisement -A curious case occurred before Mr. CRAFMAN, one of the Revising Barristers for the Tower Hamlets. An individual inserted in the Bats, objected to his own name being registered as a voter, on the ground that he had claimed to be omitted. On examining the notice, it appeared to be informal as a notice of objection, and the Revising Barrister observed, that on this ground he had no power to strike out the name, and he was spared the necessity of deciding the question whether a party can object to his own name being registered. It may be a puzzling question, whether a man must be made a voter, notens volens, but at all events, this case shews the estimation in which the Elective Franchise, conferred by the Reform Act, is held in the Tower Hamlets.

Mr. STANLEY has arrived in London: one or two other Cabinet Ministers are expected to devote half an hour to public business in the course of the week.

At a common assembly of the Mayor, Jurats, and Common Coun cilmen, holden at the Guildhall of Dover, on Friday the 20th instant the freedom of the Corporation was voted to the Right Hon. Sir GEARLES MANNERS SUTTON, Speaker of the House of Commons, at present residing at Lauriston Cottage, Dover; and the following days a deputation from the Corporation waited upon him to present him with the same. Prince TALLEYRAND, accompanied by his niece, the Duchess of DINO, passed through Canterbury on Tuesday last, on his way to France. After the Duchess had taken lunch at the Fountain Inn. they proceeded to Walmer, to dine with his Grace the Duke of WELLINGTON, and arrived at the Ship Hotel, Dover, about 11 o'clock the same night.

Lord STUART de ROTHEAT, about whom some uneasiness has been ressed, is, we have reason to know, safe and well on a fishing expedition to Iceland.

The Marchioness WELLESLEY, accompanied by her sister, Miss CATON, is at present staying at Harrogate for the benefit of her health, and we have reason to know that solicitations of a mos pressing nature have been urged to induce her to re-unite herself to her Lord, and to assume the head of the Court in this country. Dublim Mail.—Should those solicitations not prove successful, the office of VICE-QUEEN will be filled by Mrs. LITTLETON, the Marquess's daughter, and wife of the Chief Secretary, than whom there scarcely could be found a more lovely and amiable representative of royalty.

It may be remembered that when Mr. LITTLETON was appointed Secretary for Ireland, he went about saying that, in fact, he should be Lord Lieutenant, he would manage everything, &c. It appears by the following paragraph that the menials of his establishment had by the following paragraph that the monials of his establishment had heard of these brags, and treated them all as matters of fact. "On Wednesday night, about twelve o'clock, the Firebrand, Govern-ment steamer, arrived at Kingstown, conveying Mr. LITTLETON's Chief Secretary for Ireland. The postillions drove Mr. LITTLETON's carriage to the Viceregal Lodge; on being informed of the mistake, they passed through the back entrance, near the Phœnix, and onward to the Chief Secretary's lodge."—The circumstance (not emitting the according the passed the atsempties of denough omitting the appropriate name of the steamer) is odd enough.

"Colonel Gasy has left town for Dublin. The Colonel has been ap-pointed Aide-de-Camp to the Marquess WELLESLEY." We anticipated the appointment of a Greyling or two. A French paper has the following :--" The following most extra ordinary succession of accidents lately happened to the Council of Revision for passing the recruits of the Department of the Creuze. The General was attacked with a fit of insanity, and the Military Intendant, in endeavouring to restrain him from committing violence, was wounded; the Prefect was seized, in the middle of the proceed ings, with a violent fever, and forced to take to his bed; the Councillor of the Prefecture, who was sent to supply his place, fell from his carriage on the road to Gueret, and broke his leg; the Recruiting Captain was attacked with apoplexy, and his life is in danger; and the Brigadier of the Gendarmerie fell from his horse, and was killed on the spot. The Physician is the only person who has not suffered. -This is generally the case in a great mortality.

On Saturday se'nnight, at three o'clock, Mr. WADDINGTON, surgeon, of Margate, undertook, for a considerable wager, to trot surgeon, of Margate, undertook, for a consucrative water, to trot mis celebrated pair of bay horses in a light phateon, one mile upon the Canterbury road, in four minutes. This having been whispered about, considerable interest was excited, and all the beauty and fashion of the neighbourhood were assembled upon the occasion; when Mr. W. accomplished his feat in pline syle, four seconds within the appointed time ! We hear that Mr. W. has since refused 200 uineas for the pair.

That Honey bird, Lord DURWAM, has been giving a few specimen of his temper in the Isle of Wight. His Lordship, with all that like rality for which Whigs are famous, thought proper to insist upn driving through a private field belonging to Mr. WARD, of North driving through a private new versioning to start when or room wood Park. In order to stop this impertinent assumption Mr. Wike put up certain posts and bars to hinder the access of the Early carriages. Lord DURHAM wrote to thank Mr. WARD for his civility. but not content with his own irony, he despatched a gang of the crew of his own yacht to pull down and tear up Mr. WARD's railing. Mr. Wand, who knew his man, treated his Lordship as, perlag, he liked best to be treated, and asked for the name of his Lordship attorney, which was given him. We shall now see whether the son in-law of the Prime Minister is to trespass and trample down the property of better men than himself, with impunity. Lord DURBAR exhibition in the Isle of Wight has been altogether very unlucky for him; he has left but one impression upon the minds of all those upon whom he has forced his society, from the lowest to the highest. The Yellow and the Wight do not agree.

THE LORD CHANCELLOR.—A paragraph was inserted in our last week's publication, extracted from the John Bull, which stated that " the LORD CHANCELLOR, in order to allay pain of a distressin nature, was obliged to have recourse to laudanum." w ceived a communication from his Lordship's brother, Mr. Janes Brougnany, dated Brougham, Sept. 19, utterly contradicting the statement of the John Bull. "I have great satisfaction in telling you," says Mr. Brougnan, "that the LOAD CRANELLOA has no pain or complaint of any kind whatever-that he never took lands-num or opium in the whole course of his life-that he is enjoying the very best health-and that there is no man of his age, not even among the mountaineers of these counties, more likely to live thirty years than the LORD CHANCELLOR; and, as for the story of his sleeping fifty hours, which the same paragraph gives, I was with him the whole way, and I do not think he slept five hours in the carriage, contrary to his usual habit, and probably because he came in an open carriage." We are most happy to give this testimony to in an open carriage." We are most happy to give this testimony to Lerd BROUGHAM's healthfulness and haleness.—Carlisle Patriot.— We readily insert this upon the authority of Mr. JAMES BROUGHAM, but we think it due to our readers to say, that it is only upon that, after all.

CHOLEBA.-We regret to have to announce another instance of fatal attack of spasmodic cholera, in the person of Lady ARMSTRONG, wife of Colonel Sir RICHARD ARMSTRONG, of the 26th Regiment, who expired at her residence in Sackville-street on Sunday last, after a few hours' illness.

The Norwich day coaches have been for some days past racing briskly on the road. Monday the Phenomena coach, which leaves Aldgate at seven in the morning, arrived at Buryat a quarter pair twelve-72 miles in little more than five hours.

Lord ALTHORP appears to have been particularly successful at the Annual Show of the Northamptonshire Grazing Society, which I place last week at his Lordship's farm at Chapel Brampton. To the Noble Lord were awarded the second prize of three guineas for five long-wooled shear hogs; three sovereigns for his Durham steer, three years and three months old; two sovereigns for a second Durham steer of the same age; two soverigns for the best steer under three years and nine months old; and three guineas for another Durham steer, three years and three months old, "bred by himsel" Upon his health being drunk the Noble Lord expressed his high gratification at the number and quality of the animals exhibited, but declined all allusion to politics. He had, he said, been for some time employed upon subjects very different from those they were then met to discuss; but to those subjects, he was happy to asy, he not allowed by the rules of the Society more particularly to advert.

A superb dinner was given on Tuesday last, at Llandilo, Carmar thenshire, to John Joses, Eeq., Chairman of the Quarter Sessions, and late M.P. for the borough of Carmarthen, in approbation of the manner in which he had discharged his important and responsible duties of Chairman of the Quarter Sessions, and in testimony of his political conduct during the time he represented Carmarthen in Parliament. The Hon. Colonel TREVOR presided upon the occasion.

Friday Lord WILLIAM BEREFORD, who holds a commission in the 43d Light Infantry, at present with a detachment at Knocktopher, in Kilkenny, met with a serious accident while fowling in the neigh-burcheod of the certification of the series of pourhood of his station with a double barrelled fowling piece, double cocked. Having discharged one side, and no object being in view, he set about reloading the discharged barrel, keeping his hand upon the next provided the loaded barrel, which unfortunately he had neglected the muzzle of the loaded barrel, which unfortunately he had neglected to uncock. In an unlucky moment it went off, and shot away the forefinger of his left hand. Surgical aid was procured as soon as possible, and his Lordatis is defined. could be expected. possible, and his Lordship is doing fully as well as could be expected. Considerable uneasiness has been created in the various branches of the PAGET family by the reported death of Lord WILLIAN PAGET, at Vera Cruz, who is stated in a Jamaica paper to have been shot by a sentinel. From inquiries we have made we believe the report admits of considerable doubt but the of considerable doubt, but the next arrival from that quarter most be awaited with considerable anxiety by the numerous relatives of the family. The "mistakes" of the South 4 and 5 "mistakes" of the South American sentinels unfortunately appear to be attended with the most serious consequences. The following ministerial admission sets the question of the Portuguese armistice ontirely at rest :---

An investigation has for some days past been going on at St. Barthe abstraction of the teeth from the corpse of a handsome young female who died in the Hospital. A person employed in the Institution was searched, and two sets of teeth were jound on him. Two other men are said to be implicated with him.

When the Jamaica packet left the island the Colonists were not aware of the alteration in the clause of the Government measure of emancipation which shortens the term of apprenticeship. The Colonists received the other parts of the project with sullen indif-ference, declaring, as one letter that we have seen states, that they at make the heat of a had hargain. The degree of satisfaction manifested by the slaves themselves at the joyful scheme of emanci pation may be inferred from a fact mentioned in nearly all the private letters, viz. that they want to know why their musters are not always to feed and clothe them as usual.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, OCTOBER 6.

On Monday their MAJESTIES went to Kew, to pay a fare-well visit to their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of CUMBERLAND and Prince GEORGE. Their MAJESTIES returned to Windsor in the evening.

On Wednesday the KING came to London, and gave andiences to some of his popular and highly-gifted Ministers at St. James's, and returned to the Castle in the evening. The Marquess of ANGLESEV had an audience of the KING

The Marquess of ANGLESEY had an audience of the KING on his Lordship's return from Ireland. On Thursday the KING paid a visit to Lady KENNEDY ERSKINE, at Isleworth. Their MAJESTIES spent Friday afternoon at Virginia Water, enjoying the favourite amusement of his late MA-JESTY, sailing on the lake. The Band of the 1st Life Guards attended in another barge. Yesterday their MAJESTIES were expected to dine with the Duke and Duchess of GLOUESTER, at Bagshot.

Yesterday their MAJESTIES were expected to dine with the Duke and Duchess of GLOUCESTER, at Bagshot. To-morrow the KING will review the 7th Dragoon Guards; and to-morrow week the KING'S stag-hounds will meet for the first time this season at King's-beech Hill. Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of CUM-BERLAND and Prince GEORGE, attended by Sir JOHN SLADE, left town on Tuesday for the Continent; on which day his Grace the Duke of WELLINGTON entertained his Royal Highness at dinner at Walmer Castle. There were present to meet the illustrious Duke, the Earl of Rossivn, Earl and Compress of Guilergon (from Waldershare). Lord CARBUSCON (from Countees of GUILFORD (from Waldershare), Lord CARRINGTON (from Deal Castle), Lord and Lady GRANVILLE SOMERSET, the Marquess of DOURD, and the Right Honourable the SPEAKER of the House of Commons (from Lauriston Cottage). The Duke of CUMBERLAND alept at the Castle, and proceeded to Dover at ten o'clock on Wednesday morning, accompanied by the Duke of WELLINGTON and the Marquis of DOURO.

Early in the morning, a large guard of honour came down from the Castle and was posted at the front of Wright's Hotel. The guns from the heights soon announced the approach of royalty, and shorily High response on an analysis of the first carried way have not in the first carried way and when the other Royal High nesses the Duke and Duchess of CUNERELAND and the Duke of WELLINGTON, with Prince Genese. They did not alight, but proceeded to the stairs at the Cross Wall, where the steamer Lightning's boat was in attendance, and where the stairs had been carefully cal-peted, and took water. So soon as the sailors let fall their oars for departure, the great guas fired a royal salute. The Doke of WEL-LINGTON, having seen his illustrious guests safe in the boat, went to the south pier, and with a large number of respectable persons saluted them as they left the harbour's mouth. When they arrived on board the Lightning, which waited at anchor in the roads for them, the royal standard was hoisted at the mast head and they started for Calais. It was calculated that they would he landed there about half-past two p. m. The Duke of WEL LINGTON was attired in the Lord Warden's uniform, and wore only the Star of the Order of the Garter.

In the afternoon, a special but open Court of the Corporation was held in the Town Hall, for the purpose of swearing in, as The out of a freeman (the memory of the four sector) warming in a Riceman of Dover. the Speaker of the House of Commons, the Rt. Hon. Sir CHARLES MANNERS SUTTON. He wore the star and riband of a Grand Cross of the Bath, and, after taking the oath of a freeman. (the members of the Corporation in their gowns, all standing.) in a short but admirable address, assured them of his high gratification at receiving, unsought and unexpectedly, the honour which had been thus conferred upon him adverted in a touching manner to the memory of his revered father, in whose late diocese the Corporation of which he had now become a member is situated; and to the affection which he knew that his father had horne towards Dover; and laid emphasis especially on the encouragement which such an honour, so bestowed, gave to a man honestly to exert his best talents, and not to spare any labour when, with integrity, engaged for the good of his country. In that view he received the honour with a still greater degree of interest. The Corporation showed, by the manner in which this speech was received, that they entertained for the Right Hon. the Speaker of the House of Commons the respect which is due equally to his powerful abilities and to the firmness and impartiality with which he has so long fulfilled the arduous duties of his high and important office.

Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of CAMBRIDGE are expected in London in the course of the week.

NOTHING can be more extraordinary than the silence so carefully maintained with regard to the affairs of Portugal, and nothing more conflicting than the reports which are consequently in circulation.

and nothing invoce to measure that the reports which are consequently in circulation. It was reported early in the week as certain that Marshal BOTRNONT had resigned the command of the Royal army; it was clear, by the expression of a confident expectation on the part of the Times towards the end of last week, that it should soon be able to put an end to the hopes of the friends of Don MIGUEL, that this event had been anticipated; we are not yet sure that it has taken place. The public reason given for it is that France, in the pleni-tude of its neutrality, has commanded the return of the French officers from the service of the King of PORTUGAL; this, as opposed to the aid and countenance which the English Go-vernment is hourly affording to the Pretender, completes the system of non-intervention to which the present Ministry stand solemnly pledged.

and solemly pledged. Another account has been circulated, which we cannot yet stand

Another account has been circulated, which we cannot yet believe, but which most singularly tallies with a fact stated in the French Papers about ten days since. In one of those Journals it was announced that a sum of thirty-seven thousand pounds had been transmitted by the King of ENG-LAND to Peringal, to induce General Bourmont to resign the command of Fon Magnels army. In speaking of Covernments the names of Kings are always used, and not unfrequently taken in vain. In Eng-land we know the character of our Constitution, as well as that of the present Ministers, too well, to attribute to our excellent MONARCH any one of the acts by which this nation has, for the last three years, been degraded and disgraced; but the foreign editor; speaking of what the English Govern-ment is said to have done, designates the proceeding as that of the Kras of the KING.

ment is said to have done, designates the proceeding as that of the KING. We repeat our disbelief of this report; more because we think General BOURMONT is not the man to accept, than because we discredit the baseness of our Ministers in offering, a bribe: but the coincidence is curious. The statement was made about ten days or a fortaight ago; and what are the circumstances which very soon follow its appearance? We find Colouel HARE, the acknowledged attaché 4 for Minister in Lisbon, on a visit to Don MIGUEL's head-quarters; and Captain NAPIER (who, having taken a fleet which had been dosed in a similar man-ner, was no doubt considered a likely hand at bringing over an army.) in correspondence with General BOURMONT. We scarcely yet believe that General BOURMONT has retired—but be it so—we only ask whether, after such a report as that, which appeared in the Frencli papers, of the pecuniary interference, that two English officers, one the attaché of the Embassy, and the other the conqueror of a betrayed fleet, should be in active correspondence and per-sonal communication with the General upon whom, we were forewarned a pecuniary attempt was to be made; and more strange still, if the effect which was foretold, should have occurred, in the departure of that General from the cause in which he was only a few days before, so ardently, os skiffully, and so successfully engraged.

more strange still, if the effect which was foretold, should have occurred, in the departure of that General from the cause in which he was only a few days before, so ardently, so skilfully, and so snecessfully engaged. It is quite possible that in minds, mean as those of some of our Ministers, the calculation that forly or fifty thousand pounds of secret-service money applied to the purchase of the honour and fidelity of a few Frenchmen, would be an eco-nomical outlay compared with the charge of an armament of sufficient force to hold them honourably in check; not to speak of the advantages of not alarming the people of Eng-land by signs of military preparation, or the employment of the Fennoy troops, who, in all probability, will be much wanted next winter in Ireland. And if the history which the French Papers have published shall prove to be true, we think the delicacy of the Reformed Parlainment as regards the renegade Tories who have sneaked into place by the sacrifice of all their former principles, will not go the length of pre-venting an impeachment, which will bring to light scenes and circumstances unheard of in this country for the last century at least, and undreamt of by the PSOPLE, who, God knows, think badly enough of the Ministers as it is. The Palmerstonian QUERN has arrived, and been saluted and shouted; but ther arrival called forth shouts and cries of a very different nature from those which her weak father anticipated. The arrival of this "Instrument of Royalty" has caused a sudden division of the Pedroite faction—they have had enough of Don PEDRO—the novelty of the QUEEN we see, and asfacts prove, and as has already been clearly they seek a change-but the faction is contemptible, for, a mob of Lisbon, like the mob of London, are revolutionists— they seek a change—but the faction is contemptible, for, as we see, and as facts prove, and as has already been clearly shewn, the nation is attached to its legitimate Monarch, Don MIGUEL, personally. And what, in the name of GOD, has England to do with all this? What earthly difference can it make to England whether the People of Portugal choose Don MIGUEL or Donna MARIA? This is the question which Lord PALMERSTON will have to answer in a few months. If the Pcople of Portugal had been permitted to settle their own affairs, the KING would have been upon the throne, trade and commerce would have been in activity, and peace and comfort would have been in activity, and peace and comfort would have been in activity, and peace and comfort would have been in activity, and peace and cover which, by his own admission, he has no more right than he has over England. So it is, however, and if our present misgiving should prove to be correct, a pretty figure will our poor Whig-ridden country cut in the scale of European nations. The Ghoke of Friday admits that Colonel HARE did visit the Miguelite army, and that Captain NAPIER had written to down will so that Captain SAPIER had written to

The Globe of Friday admits that Colonel HARE did visit the Miguelite army, and that Captain NAPIER had written to General BOURMONT—and it admits the indignant rejection by General BOURMONT of any negociation with Captain NAPIER. This does not look as if the attempt to overcome —or, to use Lord PALMERSTON'S words, "come over"—the General, had succeeded. In another part, however, of the same Journal we find the following :— "A correspondent says that the General MACONALD who is left to command the troops of Don Micret was some years ago a bankrupt in this country as a wine-merchant. He is well known to the house of Ray and Neruews, of Mark lane. He adds, that Marshal BERESTON used to find that he was the only man who could make the Portuguese fight." What the General might have been, we care not, nor need our Whigs be extremely delicate about liberal officers who are bankrupt word-merchants—the last line of the pa-ragraph certainly compensates for the sneer contained in are bankrupt wine-merchants—the last line of the pa-ragraph certainly compensates for the sneer contained in the beginning of it. In the annals of England there never has been known only a there are father individual there.

In the annals of England there never has been known such a tissue of stock-jobbing inventions as have been foisted upon the people through letters and packets from Portugal during the conflict. Some very curious discoveries are likely to be made upon this particular point, to which we may hereafter refer; but one thing is quite clear, that as Don PEDRO has the full command of the open sea, to send when and whither he pleases, if anything had oc-curred which either he or his partisans considered suffi-ciently advantageous to his cause, or that of the Brazilian young lady, we should have had steam-hoat upon steam-hoat conveying the intelligence, instead of lying at anchor as near the city of Lisbon as possible, in order to bring off the returned cargo of Royalty, on the first alarm of serious consequences. Speculators in the funds, tread lightly and touch not—the ground is undermined.

and touch not—the ground is undermined. AUTHENTIC intelligence has been received of the death of the King of SPAIN. At this crisis of Portuguese affairs, this long-expected event may produce a very considerable officet upon Continental politics. It appears that His MA-JESTY died on the 29th of September, and that the QUEEN immediately assumed the reins of Government. If honest zeal for the country to which his talents and integrity are an honour, can avail the Spanish nation, we conscientionsly believe that M. ZEA BERMEDEZ will, in case of peril or emergency, shew himself in the true colours of a Statesman and a patient. Sume people who affect to know General BOURMONT best, and seem to think the worst of him, are rumoung to-day that he has abandoned Don MIGITEL for Do CARLOS, and has quitted the Royal army of t e tormer command the rebel forces of the other. Once a traitor always a traitor; and it may be so. If our surmises are cor-rect, however much the Portuguese cause may have inte-rested him, the SPANISH has secured him.

OUR readers will find elsewhere the details connected OUR readers will find elsewhere the details connected with the arrival in Dublin of Lord WELLESLEY, and the departure of Lord ANGLESEY. The newspaper describe Lord ANGLESEY as out of spirits upon the latter occasion, which was marked by about the same degree of popular feeling as the appearance of his Lordship's noble successor had excited the day before. Lord WELLESLEY dined with the LORD MAYOR, and made a speech expressive of his love for Ireland and his de-termination to do his duty. After his Excellency had retired the LORD MAYOR gave the "Pious and Immorial Memory." Lord ANGLESEY distinguished the two last days of his Vice-Royalty by making two new Knights; and the Cor-

Lord ANGLESEY distingtion one Wanghests; and the Cor-poration of Dublin have immortalized the two first days of Lord WELLESLEY'S return, by voting an address of thanks to his Excellency for dining with them.

WHEN Lord WELLESLEY was made Lord Lieutenant of

WHEN Lord WELLESLEY was made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, because Lord GREY could not make Mr. LITTLE. TON Speaker of the House of Commons, we hinded as su-picion that a certain number of GREYS and Greylings would turn up in Dublin. We have not been disappointed; indeed our expectations have been considerably outdone by the appointments which have actually taken place. One of Lord GREY'S sons is appointed Aide-du-Camp-that is a trifle—and we are anxious to correct a most ally notion which has got abroad, that the officer so appointed is the second son of the Noble Premier who is Member of the Reformed Parliament for Wycombre, Lieutenant-Coloned Commandant of a Regiment of Foot, and Private Secretary to his noble father. The son in question we believe to be his Lordship's sixth or seventh son—no matter—an Aide-du-Camp is not much, after all.

Lordship's sixth or seventh son—no matter—an Aide-du-Camp is not much, after all. We had heard that the Comptrollership of the Household of the Lord Lieutenant was to be given to Major-General ELLICE, a brother of Lord GREX's brother-in-law, and more nearly connected with his Lordship by his marriage with a most amiable and accomplished lady, who has for many years appeared (as we are told) in the pension list, under the name of COURTENAY: this report, however, was unfounded, or if it were not, it was thought better not to put the inqui-sitive world to the pains of discovering the reasons why General ELLICE should get anything good, while yet a GREY might like to have it.

General ELLICE should get anything good, while yet a GREY might like to have it. The Comptrollership has been given to Sir HENRY GREY (Lord GREY'S brother—brother to the Bishop of HERE FORD, and of the late Sir GEORGE GREY, Commissioner of Portsmouth dock-yard.) a distinguished general officer, or at least, an officer who would no doubt have distinguished himself if he had ever had an opportunity, but whose pecu-liar claims to public notice are founded upon the circumstance of his noble brother (having previously got him the Grand Cross of the Guelphic order) getting him an extra Grand Cross of the Buch, just about the time he got himself in Light Duagoons, now at Madras upon the East India establishment. — Upon this brother, Lord GREY has accumulated the Comp-trollership.

-Upon this brother, Lord GREY has accumulated the comp trollership. In addition to this little act of fraternal kindness, the Noble Premier has, during the last ten days, appointed Mr. CHARLES GREY, his nephew (son of the Lord Bishop of HEREFORD, Prebendary of WERTMINSTER, &c. &c. (S. C.) to a Clerk-ship in the Treasury, which moreover, we have reason to believe, had been promised to another person. But Lord GREY is not without a parallel—Lord PLUN-KETT, in Ireland, is playing exactly the same game, sare and except that his labours, however successful, are confined to one particular line. The chief object of Lord PLUN-KETT'S solicitude appears to be Mr. MAC CAUSLAND, his brother-in-law; and, really, if one did not see the statement in black and white, registered and attested, one could scarcely believe the facts.

Mr. MAC CAUSLAND is already

Secretary to the Lord High Chancellor !!!!!!! These sound well without any addition, and there can be no doubt that Mr. MAC CAUSLAND, in the possession of all these profitable offices, was the greatest pluralist in the empire. Lord GREY thought nothing more need, nothing more could, be done for him; and accordingly his Lordship was pleased to nominate Mr. PIERCE MAHONY Secretary of the Clurch Commissioners. Mr. MAHONY, delighted with this magnificent bit of preferment, posted to Dubin and presented his letter of appointment, and presented it to the board. A scene ensued of which nobody but those who were

board. A scene ensued, of which nobody but those who were present can form an adequate idea. Lord PLUNKETT had previously disposed of the office—to whom?—incredible as it may seem—to Mr. MAC CAUSLAND!!!!!!!!! AI. MAHONY claimed the right of acting under Lord GREY, he followed the example of his brother Chancellor—the half norder to give full effect to the insult upon Lord GREY, he followed the example of his brother Chancellor—the half healthful, vivacious, mountaineering Lord BROUGHAN— and threw the Prime Minister's letter upon the floor. Lord PLUNKETT told a man, upon whom we can conf-dently rely. "that he thought it extremely hard in Lord "GREY, who got everything he could lay his hands upon "for his own relations in England, to interfere at all with the "pickings in Ireland." And at present there the matter rests, with this one advantage in favour of Lord PLUNKETT, this maid, will produce him, in addition to the lucrative returns from his other eight valuable appointments, not less than the thousand pounds per annum. In our last number we noticed that the great Whig effort in military affairs during the last Session was a searching enquiry, by the labour of a Select Committee, into all the branches of the Army in which favour or patronage could, however remotely, affect the public expenditure. These included garrison appointments, colonelcies of regiments, primes of the full of the public expenditure. These induced garrison appointments, colonelcies of regiments, general and staff officers, and the promotions in the army. We take the last of these subjects first, because it is one which interests every military man. As the duck-legged drummer remarked, with more exultation than grief, when the Field Marshal's death was announced in the guard-room, "Now we shall have promotion."—Not a bit of it, say the Whigs-you shall have no more brevets.—And we have subther reason for this preference: we have been favoured by a military correspondent with extracts from the Report on the subject of the brevet and promotion in the army, and although the pressure of other matter puts it out of our power to insert those extracts, we shall adopt his arguments, and refer to his authorities, cordially thanking him for the favour of his communication. Of all the modes of promotion in the army, under a repre-sentative Government, subject as such a Government must sentative Government, subject as such a Government mus sentative Government, subject as such a Government must always be to indirect influence, the system of brevet promo-tion is that which is, and ought to be, extremely popular; because seniority or distinguished merit forms the leading principle upon which that peculiar description of promotion is granted: it checks favour and patronage, it protects poverty and length of service; for if by brevet an officer step over the head of another, it is in ninety-nine cases out of the hucdred as a reward for his distinguished gallantry in the field.

The Aids-du-Camp of the KING are the only exceptions, and even in their cases, so strong was the military feeling gainst at. abuse which was attempted about two years ago, by Lord (IOLLAND's endeavouring to force his son, Colonel Fox, who had never seen any service, over the heads of two hundred Lieutenant-Colonels, that the appointment was modified; it gave that gentleman the household distinc-tion, but it conferred no military rank (and we refer with satisfaction to our humble efforts upon that occasion, and upon another to which we have no wish forther to allude); and we can safely challenge a close examination of the list of King's Aids-du-Camp, as containing a great majority of the most distinguished officers in the service. By the recommendation of the Whig Committee the pro-motion by brevet is to cease—Let us follow our gallant cor-respondent through some of the evidence given before that Committee, and as the Report and evidence cannot be, as we wish they were, in the hands of every officer in the army, we shall endeavour, notwithstanding our necessary abherei-redors. ations, to make ourselves understood by our military readers. In Lord FITZROY SOMERESET's evidence, p. 136, the num-ber of General Officers is stated to have been 419 in 1833 ; in 1815 the number was 576, the comparison exhibiting a reduction of 157 dieneral Officers during that interval. Lord PITZROY states the effect of brevets to be, to give promotion to the army generally, and that the expense is solely occa-sioned by the promotion of Colonels to be Major-Generals, and Captains to be Majors. The Captain being a Brevet-Major, gets two shillings a day more ; and the Colonels, if on half-pay, when promoted to be Major-Generals (having served the required periods), get their full regimental pay. Lord FITZROY says, brevets were always given in peace well as in war, since 1761. Ilis Lordship then gives the brevets ; in 1821, at the coronation of King GEORGE the 99661; and in 1830, 1.853; which expense, Lord FITZROY SOMERESET subsequently explains, has been actually absorb-ed in two years by the deaths of general officers. If the werage deaths of general officers be twelve per annum, and their pay saved, 5,0001, a-year, the average brevet expense bring 10,0001, a-year, is cleared off every tree years, whilst since the peace, the brevets have been given only once in four years. the peace, the brevets have been given only once in four

It is then asked whether the efficiency of the service could have been kept up without brevets? The answer is:-"I should think not; of the general officers of the present day, you may reckon that two-thirds at least, are unfit for service from age, or wounds, or decayed health; many of the number, although excellent regimental officers, and highly distinguished, would be hardly qualified for important commands at home or abroad; but, with regard to the con-sequences of limiting brevets, and thereby delaying the pro-motion of officers commanding regiments, I will give the Gommittee a scale by which they will perceive that the brevets, instead of being too prodigal, have scarcely enabled he mouse, that the officers get too old for work. Now here we have the scale.

w heaves, that the oncore Barrier We have the scale: — There are 136 Colorels—the 49 senior Colorels, the first for the control of the contro to be promoted to be Major-Generals, have on an average served the country 35 years and a quarter each. There are 506 Licentenant-Colonels—the senior 55 upon the list best to 10 met.

A net are 506 Lieutenant-Colonets—the senior or upon the list have been 18 or 19 years Lieutenant-Colonels, and their average service 33 years. Under favourable circum-stances they will have served 43 years before they are pro-moted to be Major-Generals, and will average 61 years of age.

to seventeen men. His Lordship is then desired to state the proportion of men at home and abroad at each of the above periods. In 1792 the proportion of men was 100 at home for 100 abroad; in 1833, 100 at home for 113 abroad. The number of Military Governments in 1833 is less by three than it was in 1792—the pay and emoluments being the same as they were 100 years ago. That the meritorious claimants, with an army more than doubled in number, are greatly encreased, must be obvious. The number of General Officers having military govern-ments is 49. Of these, 24 have also regiments. In 1792, 24 General Officers having regiments, also held military go-vernments.

The Committee, in their report, acknowledge that the Officers now holding these appointments appear for the most part justly entitled to the rewards of their profession by their long military services, or their distinguished merits during a period of unparalleled exertion on the part of the army, and of unexampled glory acquired to the country by the achievements of that army. The Committee do not re-commend the withdrawal of the salaries, to the prejudice of the existing interests of any of these Officers. The Committee then say (page 4) that the claims of the army on the gratitude of the country are so strong, and taking into consideration the great encrease of the army since 1718, recommend recommend——— What will any rational honest man suppose?— Observe—they promise not to rob the present holders of their governments—they admit the claims of our brave and triumphant army to the gratitude of the country—its force being more than doubled in amount, and encreased by these Whigs :—they recommend that 18,0001. a year shall be henceforward given in lieu of the governments, which in 1718 amounted in value to 30,0001. This is Whig gratitude for the unequalled exertions of our soldiers ; they strip the reward of its honour, by making it a Parliamentary grant instead of an ancient military go-vernment conferred by the K1vs; and having thus degraded the reward, they proceed to lessen its amount by 12,0001. a-year, the army being three times larger than it was in 1718 ; and, to add to the justice of this decision, they recommend that, for the future, army brevets should be discontinued ; by which the efficiency of the service is to be impaired, and the prospects of our gallant officers blighted. We have seen—we have exposed—the nefarious system by which the pensioner has been defrauded and ruined by Whig measures of delusion, which every man of common cer is to be bullied out of his hard-carned pittance; the honours and rewards of our defenders and protectors are to be reduced to please the bitterest enemies of the country; and the hopes and energies of the service are to be withered and destroyed by Whig recommendation, which must—if

be reduced to please the bitterest enemies of the country; and the hopes and energies of the service are to be withered and destroyed by Whig recommendation, which must—if brevets are to be put an end to—utterly ruin the profession and most serionsly injure the public service. We regret that it is not in our power, to-day, to touch upon any other points of the important and interesting evi-dence taken before this Committee, which have been so power-fully brought to bear by our kind correspondent. We shall we remember the subject environment of the impleable fully brought to bear by our kind correspondent. We shall return to the subject, convinced as we are of the implacable hared of the Whig Government to the army, and of the painful position in which the gallant and distinguished offi-cers at the Horse Guards are placed by the coarse and unfeeling interference of the Cabinet upon matters with which, in fact, being part of the KING's personal prerogative, it has nothing whatever to do.

It is part of the boast, as it is of the character of a consti-tutional Conservative, to let all party feeling subside, where the good and safety of the country are at stake. Despising and abhorring as we do, all the meannesses, the basenesses, the stupidity, and the wickednesses of Whiggery, it is not possible for us to look at the frightful effects of its machinations without fear and trembling, nor witness the rapid approach of disorder and disorginization, which is too evident to be doubted, without an anxiety that some decisive measure should be taken to avert the evil con-sequences which must ensue.

This was done by the knave-led fools, in the belief that the professions of these Whigs were sincere, and their propo-sitions practicable. It is easy to promise; but when the day of fulfilment comes, mark the defection-the People, dis-gusted at having been deceived, now follow the example of the wealthy Lord FITZWLLIAM, who, with his millions at com-mand, refused—not from poverty, but upon the loyal principle of resistance—to pay the King's taxes. So worthy a leader who can hesitate to obey ? And accordingly, on every hand, in every parish, meetings are holding to refuse the accustomed tribute to the wants of the nation, without which, Lord GREY knows, and always did know, the Government cannot go on. Two meetings were held on Monday, one in Westminster, and another in Lambeth. On Thursday the "Householder's Union for the entire abrogation of the Ave Police and the Assessed Taxes," was held at the Angel, in High-street, Deputations from similar Associations in St. Marylebone, St. Andrew's, Holborn, and St. George the Martyr, at-tended, and Resolutions were agreed to, declaring the DETERMINATION OF THE PARTIES NO LONGER TO PAY EITHRR THE POLICE RATES NO THE ASSESED TAXES. We find that, on Friday, a deputation from this new, loyal, and grateful borough of Marylebone proceed to obtain advice and assistance, from one of their Representatives, how to resist the Government demand—that Representatives has to resist the Government demand—that Representatives the Ministers, and exhibiting, in the strongest possible light, the absurdity of a Ministerial functionary—who must neces-sarily be in Parliament—being the Representative of a large and mixed constituency. The Attorney-General, after having been bullied for what his visitors considered a sufficient length of time, concluded the business by expressing "a hope that gentlemen would not allow a spirit of opposition to excite them to act contuma-ciously towards the law, for, however painful it might be to enforce the law, it would be necessary to uphold its majesty." WNOTHING can be more conclusive as to the uselessness of fashionable patronage to Thestrical performances than the fact, that at a period when the west end of the town is abso-lutely deserted, and that not a straggler remains within its precincts except perhaps a lady or two waiting to be mar-ried, or expecting to be confined, the different Playhouses opened on Monday literally overflowed. The Adelphi receipts exceeded all precedent; and Madame VESTRIS's house was crowded. The Victoria, which has assumed all the power and privilege of a third Theatre, was extremely well filled, and WRENCH and RUSSELL (why not at the winter houses?) collected a numerous audience. The Siamese Management has begun its career, and Drury-Lane and Covent-Garden both offer their attractions to the public under one management; the undertaking is an arduous one, but it appears that every means has been taken to render it successful. In the mean time the Haymarket, supported by admirable acting, exhibits well-filled seats and well-pleased sitters. As for the aristocracy, they are gone-when to return seems doubtil-the emigrations, for permanent residence abroad, have assumed a most serious aspect; but, as for as Theatres are concerned, the Opera-House is, in our yiew of the case, the only one likely to suffer by these effects of the Reform Bill in any very serious degree.

We have not had time to examine the relative merits of the Magazines of the present month. The British Magazine appears as worthy of support as ever. The Metropolitan contains continuations of several of its favourite articles, but from an observation in the Chit Chat, appears to have changed its editor; we are sorry for it, if it is so—the name of Captain MARNAT is a host in itself. The Court Magazine contains a beautiful portrait of a beautiful young lady, Miss BARTON, and many well-written articles. Whether Mrs. NORTON has aban-doned this, as the gallant Captain seems to have quitted its contemporary, we cannot say,—the grace of her deservedly popular name is wanting in the title-page, and we find it in the columns of the New Monthly as a contributor. From the New Sporting Magazine, we must next week indulge ourselves and our readers by making an extract. The periodical publications, the Encyclopedia Britannica, VALPY'S Shakspeare and Classical Library, and MAJON'S beautiful work, which we lately noticed, continue their course with unmitigated zeal and ability. THEIR MAJESTIES continue at Windsor, and proceed to Brighton on the 30th, for the season. Prince GEORGE OF CAMBRIDGE has arrved, and accom-panied their MAJESTIES to Sandhurst College on Thursday, where, after a review of the Cadets, and an inspection of the establishment, their MAJESTIES partock of a cold collation with Sir EDWARD and Lady HARRIET PAGET, and re-turned to Windsor to dinner. The KING was in London on Wednesday. We take leave here to contradict a statement which appeared in last Saturday's Court Journal, that the return of his Royal Highness the Duke of CUMBRELAND to this country, depends upon the state of health of his illustrious or his Royal Highness the Duke of CUMBRELAND to this country, depends upon the state of health of his illustrious son. This is not the fact—the return of the Duchess and the Prince depends upon this contingency, but the Royal Duke will be in London at least a week before the opening of Parliament, be that when it may. There is no truth in the report of Sir ROBERT PEEL'S having here in town.

having been in town. The Quarterly Returns of Revenue are made up, and exhibit a decrease upon the quarter of £253,76; and on the year, as compared with that ending October, 1832, of £380,420. When this decrease is considered with the facf, that there is now no sinking fund, the state of things may be considered anything but gratifying. At all events, the Revenue does not appear to be in a state to bear the imme-diate reduction of the Assessed Taxes, a reduction which, it is pretty clear, the Ministers must make. It is most probable that Parliament will be called together before Christmas. It is evident that something must be done, and although the present Government is one of Depart-ments and Commissions, it will be necessary to consult our worthy Representatives in the difficulties which are arising, from whom, we apprehend His MAJESTY'S Ministers will not receive quife so much support as they did while the Re-formers had faith in their promises, and belief in their principles. principles.

principles. THE continued silence upon Portuguese affairs is most extraordinary; it seems as if a general compact had been entered into to say nothing upon this subject. Government is just as much in the dark as the public, and believes with greater caution the story of Marshal BOURNONT's secession from the Royal cause. As we last week said—and the lapse of time from that period to the present makes the case stronger—if any advantage had been gained by the rebels, the Pretender has ample means of communicating his suc-cess to his friends in Downing-street, and his agents in the City. It is said that "no news is good news;" in this instance, as far as the KING's success is concerned, nothing can be more true. can be more true.

can be more true. As to the changes in Spain, considering that the KING died on the 29th, all the speculations we find in the news-papers are home-made—nothing can be known either of movements or intentions; it is, therefore, useless to occupy either the time of the reader or the space of the paper by indulging in fruitless discussions on the subject. Government yesterday received despatches from Madrid, which, they say, contain accounts of insurrections in various parts of Spain in favour of Don CARLOS. We have no better enthority for this than Dewring streat, and theorem better authority for this than Downing-street, and therefore we cannot vouch for its veracity. SEVERAL of the Radical Ministerial Papers have recently been indulging in some very coarse personal attacks upon the Earl of MUNSTER. His Lordship is represented as being at Brighton, biting his nails, and endeavouring to disgest the lead of a Tory clique, and of doing a great variety of things, which the said newspapers think highly unbecoming in his Lordship. As for Lord MUNSTER's being a Tory, it is true he is one-and very naturally so; but he never, that we know of, has put himself forward at the head of any political clique, nor, indeed, in any way, which can justify an attack upon him. Lord MUNSTER, we happen to know, is not at Brighton, biting his nails, for we ourselves have seen him every day during the week either riding or walking in the neighbourhood of Belgrave-square, with his children, to whom he is devoted. Lord MUNSTER remained at Brighton, where he happened to be on his way to the Continent, until his house in town could be again prepared for his reception. Lord MUNSTER so far from biting his nails or brooding over disappointment, is, we have reason to know, actively and incessantly employed on a very claborate work on Indis, which, from what we have been told, is likely to reflect great honour upon his talent and understanding. It really does seem too hard that an individual, who does nothing to attract attention or incur rewark, should be held up, under the auspices of Ministers, to public observation, and by the peculiar cunning of some active individual in the Royal Household, libelled in Journals which are known to reach the Royal eye. THE accounts from Ireland are dreadfully appalling—

THE accounts from Ireland are dreadfully appalling-THE accounts from Ireland are dreadfully appalling— Crime appears to be on the encrease, and murder, rapine, and destruction, are the order of the day and night—yet we are told of the tranquility of that country. At home, we regret to say, incendiarism is getting just as common as it was two or three years since—farm-yards are fired, cottages burned, mills destroyed in different parts of the country, but neither are any observations made upon the subject nor any means adopted for the prevention of the atrocities, or for the conviction of those who commit them.

conviction of those who commit them. THE business of the Assessed Taxes is growing daily more serious. We distinctly disclaim again anything like gratification at what must inevitably overturn the present divided Ministry, and what will, we have reason to know, drive those besotted people into an early meeting of Parlia-ment; but we repeat that the symptoms of inflammation are rapidly encreasing—that the people. likely at any time to oppose the payment of taxes, are rallying to revenge the deliberate cold-blooded deceptions of the political quarks who, with their eyes open, professed to do, what they then knew, and what they now declare, is impossible to be done. The ATTORNEY-GENERAL, as we last week shewed, has

been applied to by his constitucuts for advice and assistance to oppose the Government, on the part of which he is the common prosecutor. Since that, Dr. LUSHINGTON, the amiable assertor of the rights of the people-unfortunately an official hanger-on af the Government-has been assailed in a similar manner. Here we have it :--Ata Meeting of the Vestrymen of St. George's, Middlesex, held on Tuesday, for other business. Mr. Moraus took thatopportunity of enquiring into a matter of paramount interest to the inhabitants of that and every other parish. At a former vestry meeting it was unanimously resolved that a De-putation should wait upot Lord Althorp and Dr. Lusslington-upon the Noble Lord to enquire what measures were intended to be taken to relieve the people frum the buden of the assessed taxes; and upon the latter to deliver to the Learned Doctor the Resolution unanimously sareed to, that he (Dr. Lushington), in having voted asians the report; but he would be glad to know whether the Depu-tation had seen Dr. Lussington yet, and, if they had, what answer the Learned Gentleman lad sent to so large a portion of his consti-tuency.-(Loud cries of "Mear, Kear.") Mr. Wittext, the westry deeting the Deputation had waited upon Dr. Lushington, and read to him the Resolution. The Learned Gentleman said he was exceedingly sorry to receive such a Resolu-tion, but he should be mot happy to meet the electors at any time, and give them an explanation. It is motives for voling as he did he was not ashamed of; but since they were off-nded with him he would enderwour in future to behave better.-('Hear,'' and langhter). Mr. Gotze said he was one of the parcelaid Deputies who met the Genter he saw on dit the succes, and there, anong other Mem-bers of Parliament, he saw Dr. Lushington, and told him how anyry his constituency were at his conduct. The Deotors said he was onry for it, but he noted as he did to support the Almisters, against the British Coffee housee, Charing croses, and there, anong other Mem-bers of Derliamen for he was satisfied that it was high time they were done away.— (Hear.). Mr. Tataor observed that it was a mere matter of convenience with Dr. Lushington, and not of conscience; for while he was con-vinced that these obnoxious taxes should be removed he voted for their continuance, thus verifying the words of the poet.— "I are the right, and approve it too; I have the right, and tapprove it too; I have the wrong, and yet the wrong pureue." Mr. Gouz said that after the concession made by the Learned Doctor they ought to be satisfied, especially if he would support the measure in future. Several Gentlemen addressed the Meeting on the subject, and it was at lengt hagtred to wait and see what the conduct of Dr. Lush-ington neould prove to be before any further steps were taken. Dr. LUSHINGTON never could have told this Mr. what-ever his name is, the anti-tax man, that the Tories wanted

Dr. LUSHINGTON never could have told this Mr. what-ever his name is, the anti-tax man, that the Tories wanted to eject Ministers; because Dr.LUSHINGTON knows that the Tories could have sent the present people to "the right about" whenever they close. Dr. LUSHINGTON ought to have had the manihess to say that he supported the taxes because he knew they were essential to the support of the dare say he did say so, for he is a perfect gentleman, a wise man, a man of honour, and was the friend and executor of the late virtuous and exemplary Queen CAROLINE. Sir SAMUEL WHALLEY thas caught it : he too was the idd of Lord GREY and of the people : and he was forced upon Marylebone when Mr. PORTMAN, the gentleman, found he could not go the lengths of the reformers. Lord GREY was supported by the radicals; WHALLEY was a radical, and was supported by Lord GREY. The moment the idea of popular clamour comes, he pulls his fingers out of the mud, and cuts the connexion :—

The receipt of popular clamour comes, he pulls his fingers out of the idea of popular clamour comes, he pulls his fingers out of the mud, and cuts the connexion :— Thursday the members of the Marylebone Association met in the Mechanics' Institution in Circus street, Newroad, for the purpose of prosecuting their opposition to the assessed taxes. There were nearly 300 persons present. This is the parent Association, and now contains nearly one thorsand members. The Chair was taken by Mr. Wilson. The Chair was taken by Mr. Wilson. The Chair was taken by Mr. Wilson. The control of the Marylebone householders it was announced that forty-four new members had been enrolled within the week. The receipts of the week were 51. 13s., and the addition of members within twenty-one days was 108. Mr. Stavau moved that Deputations from the various Associations he requested to attend their public meeting. The only reason why he joined an association was because he believed that i was the only course open for compelling Ministers to redeen their pledges by shandoning these taxes. He believed they would never repeat them if left to themselves. But the people would never be content iill these taxes were repeaded.—(Circis of " Never.")—The Ministers had deceived them, and could they now rely on their pledge?—(Circis of " No.") – It had been said that these taxes were pledged to the fund-holder, but he denied such was the case; at least if they were so pledged they did not join in the pledge, and let, therefore the pledge he redecued by those that made it. This was not a time for them to be idle or indifferent, and it might be necessary to send Deputations to form similar Associations. There would be nothing illegal in this. Lion Inn, in Westminster, MR. (Loud cherrs.) Mr. Thousa then announced Mr. Birch and a deputation of twelve from Marylebone, who were received with three rounds of applause. The Lambeth then followed; and lastly the Chelsea entered the room, and were loudly cheered. Mr. FARREN said that he had the pleasure to announce that since he had been in the room he had received subscriptions from fifty tradesame nucle and are conciled their names in the Association. (Loud cheering.) The Charnann said that the Association just established in Lam-beth was daily gaining strength, and it was the intention of the Committee to call a general meeting of the inhabitants in a few days. It was also the intention of the inhabitants of the outward of St. Genere's, Finiteo, to torm an Association for the same purpose, and they would meet next Friday evening at the Belgrave Hotel, Ebury street. returned thanks, the Meeting adjourned alter giving three cheers at the cause. These proceedings are worthy of close attention on the part of Lord GREV—that is to say, if he ever means to return from Howjek to public business. Who Mr. FARREN is, is a matter of some speculation; and we think it right to say, that we consider it incumbent upon a gentleman who has lately appeared much before the public—not on the stage—but in pamphlets and at Court, fo put an end to a rumour that he is the individual thus dis-tinguishing himself. As to Mr. BIRCH and his statements, we have only to observe that Messrs, DEACON, the proprietors of the Auction-room, to whom he altuded, have positively and distinctly contradicted every word the man said about them, in a letter to the Times of Friday. On Thureday evening deputations from the parishes of St. Inter-

On Thursday evening deputations from the parishes of St. Like, Middlesex (including several of the parish oblicers) from St. An-drew, Holborn, from Clerkenwell, and, by invitation, from the parish of St. Giles-in-the-fields, held a numerous metarism at the Bull Tavern, Wellington-street, Goswell-street, St. Luke's, for the purpose of arranging proceedings, in order to cooperative in the other parishes against the house and whidow there with the other parishes against that in needed but few worlds to impress upon them the importance of the object they had in view, which was the resistance of the assessed taxes. They were war taxes, but our Government had made them peace taxes. (Hear, Iwar), and it appeared that unless they instituted their intentions thry would prepetuate them as peace taxes. It was a duty therefore they asset to themselves, their finities and their country. to make one grand unicessal stand against such encroachucents. (Cheers.) Mr. Hovte, of St. Giles's, seconded the Resolution, which was as follows:—" That the assessed taxes, pressing on the industry of the pression of trade, and the ruin of the comparcial interest of the ountry, and that the evident intention of this Majerty's Minister to uploid them as long apossible, rendered it essentially meessary to resist, by every leval and constitutional means, the collection of the appointer, with power to add to their number, and the arefurensive that due the deling, in order to carry the follows are requested to adopt measures to call a public meeting of the assolution. Several inhabitants of the out ward addressed the Meeting at some length, and a Committee was formed. A Secretary having been appointed the Meeting adjourned after away three cheers to the success of the cause. The peaceable and legal resistance which these foolish and marish people propose, is exactly like that which O'Con-NELL advocates in Ireland, where murder, arson, and every horrible crime are now in full vigour; and in a month from the present time the position of a tax-gatherer in this country will be exactly similar to a tithe-protor in that. We state this advisedly, and we'Cell Lord GineY that he is now reaping the fruits of his own defusive promises, and at before Christmas, if he requires the collection of the assessed taxes, it must be enforced WITH THE BAYONET. A DIFFIDENCE in ourselves induced us last week to be-bere that we had been wrong in mentioning Major-General ELLICE, the very near connexion of Lord GREY, as the Approximation of the link Household, and that all the other Appers were right in giving that appointment to Sir HENRY GREY, the Premier's brother. We seldom are in error, but there was an air of con-dence in the statement which startled us, and knowing we peculiarly sensitive Lord GREY is about that par-degree anonexion, and being ourselves not in the slightest detudats amiable and excellent in themselves, we ne-eleded to assure ourselves of our own correctness. the agreemens of a residence in the Castle, a table, carriages, &c. &c. &c. &c. &c. . THE Times of Friday contains an extremely long article on the Government of Ireland—we have not room for all of it; but it appears to us so extraordinary, and above all, so convincing a proof of the discordancy of the members of the Cabinet, that we cannot help submitting part of it, disclaim-ing, in so doing, any sort of participation in its satire or its sentiments. The article is not rendered less piquant, how-ever mean and dastardly the mode of attack, by supposing the observations it contains to be, those which may be made by the Conservatives. These are extracts:— ". Lord WELLEBLEY, as the ostensible organ of the Reforming Mi-nistry, must expect to cadure every species of anongance that our de-sparing Conservatives and the species of anongance that our de-sparing Conservatives, but they have grown cautious now-adays, and as they will no loncer be able to pack Juries in the metropolis, their 'bottle-and rattle' courage will de away and be no more leard of. "As far as Lord WELLESLEY has yet appeared in public he has proved himself to be an eloquent actor, an imposing mouth-piece for Mr. LITLETON; and he would become a still more effective one if he would get an entire set of teeth from BNOTWY, who actually remade Lord ANGLEY'S mouth, and enabled him to harangue the 28th in the Castleyard with case and accuracy of protunciation. A governor in Ireland gains nothing by inspiring the sentiment of pity. He also needs a lootstool to the throne very much, for kis legs actually dangle in the cluair that Lord WHITWORTH used to sit in with such a prace. To these extracts, so complimentary to the present and late LOUD LIEUTENANT, appearing in the paper avowedly the organ of the Ministers, and occasionally written by them, public attention is called by a leading article. There are mysteries in all families, and, we suppose, in all newspapers; but this is far beyond our comprehension. As for Ireland itself, the horrors daily and nightly com-mitted are of the most appalling and revolting character. Murder appears an every-day business; the dagger, the pistol, and the fire-brand are in active employment, and yet we are to be told that the country is in a wonderful state of tranomility.

EVERYBODY knows whence the Cabal arose-from the memorable combination of initials which marked the names of CLIFFORD, ASHLEY, BUCKINGHAM, ARLING-TON, and LAUDERDALE. The present Ministry has got its name too-the initials of GREY, RUSSELL, ALTHORP, and BROUGHAM have been adopted, not only by the people, but by themselves, as designating their administration. It is called by the Political Unions the G R A B Ministry.

The following is a list of the European Monarchs, with their ages :-

By the death of Sir RICHARD GOODWIN KEATES, a Grand Cross of the Bath and the Governorship of Greenwich Hospital fall into the gift of the GRAB Ministry. This Government, which has always been selected for some veteran officer—to whom it afforded a calm and honourable retreat—is destined for Sir THOMAS HARDY, than whom, perhaps, there is not a better officer on service—he was the Captain of our NELSON, and received his dying injunctions, his parting embrace —but he is nearly the youngest Ad-miral in the fleet. Why, then, is Sir THOMAS HARDY, full of vigour and activity, with years of work in him, to have this?—Because he has a seat at the Admiralty Board, and because the Duke of RICHMOND wants that seat for a friend of his.

friend of his. Is it not strange that this piece of patronage, so peculiarly the KING'8-so peculiarly this KING'8, of the sailor KING who has himself served and fought, and who loves the service to which he belongs—is snatched from the Royal hand to make a job for the Duke of RICHMOND? Lord NAVARINO looked for it—he felt that shelving him would be beneficial to all parties—but no. Sir THOMAS is to have it; and when the new Lord of the Admiralty is appointed in his room, it will be seen that we are justified in what we now sav. sav.

The Post of yesterday says :---"It appears that the French Cabinet has been endeavouring to-obtain the consent of the Diet of Frankfort to the alienation of a part of Luxemburg from Holland without the intervention of the King of the Netherlands. Several diplomatic notes have passed upon the subject between the French Minister at Frankfort and the Representatives of the Germanic body, some of them, we understand, written in an angry tone. The result of the correspondence we believe to be a refusal on the part of the Diet to accede to the wishes of the French Government.

JUSTICE demands that we should say a few words in prefere to be a reliast of the part of the Diet to accede to the wishes of the French Government. JUSTICE demands that we should say a few words in prefere and annual, published by Mr. BULL, of Holles-street. The illustrations of this work are after drawings by Mr. DANELL, who is distinguished from all his brother acade-micans by his intimate and correct knowledge of Asiatic scenery, derived from a long residence in Eastern countries. The views in the work of which we now speak are alike remarkable for gracefulness and truth, and, with the literary portion of the work, from the pen of the Rev. HOBART CAUNTER, render it altogether a most interesting publication generally, and to gentlemen from the East particularly so. We have also been much gratified by the appearance of the fifth volume of the Landscape Annual, the literary part by Mr. ROSCOE, and the illustrations from drawings by Mr. HARDING. The tour is through part of France; and brilliant subjects as Italy, it is far more abundant in objects of deep interest than the casual observer might imagine. The engravings are beautifully excuted, and the literary part is quite worthy the illustrations; and, upon the whole, the volume—the fifth—fully maintains the high character already established for this delightfully amusing and in-structive work.

The following appears in the Plymouth paper :--"Capt. Richard Dickryson, of the Talbot, is ordered from the Cape of Good Hope to England, to be tried by court-martial, for having opened Admiral Warker's public and private despatches, when lying in Port Louie, at the Mauritius, the Admiral being absent at the Cape of Good Hope. He brings home Captain Potextsonenxe, of the Isis, and Commander Boorn, of the Trincedo, the bearer of the despatches in question, as his wirnesses." The last court-martial before which Captain DICKENSON appeared, completely established the character of Sir ED-WAND CODRINGTON; we hope the gallant Officer will upon this occasion be able to establish his own in a very different.

THEATRES.

The Siamese giants, bound together by the fleshy bond of union,. Great Russell street, have begun to move-the Patent Theatres are open, and what may appear very strange to those who see nobody in the streets in the day time, are full every night. We are extremely glad to find that public patronage is bestowed upon active service; but the readiness—almost anxiety—with which the public-go to the two Winter Theatres, which, last year, were splendid descris, is only a new proof of that eccentricity of popular taste which is notorious. Drury Lane-to which the circumstance of the actors being still

Drury hand-to which the circumstance of the actors being still called "life Mojesty" Servarias" gives precedence in such matters-opened the campaign; and we must say, in spite of all the wonder-ful praise bestowed upon small Theatres-fit spheres for dwarfs and little men, who want to produce great effects-the magnificent coxpd'ail of the building, the fine tones produced by an uncommonly numerous and effective band, reminded us with no favourable recollections of the cracking and tinkling which the minor orchestres produce in smaller spaces.

An extremely well written address, admirably delivered by that charming actress Miss TAVLOR, beepoke the public favour. It turned happily upon the marriage of the two Winter Thratres; and control aspirity upon the marringe of the two Winter Theatree; and one of the best points was contained in the couplet proclaiming the banns, in which the two houses are announced as "Both of this Parish."

The Tempest, with all its pageantry and charming music followed. Mr. MACREADY was more natural than usual-Miss TAYLOR excel-lent; and as for Dowron and BLANCHARD, they resemble in their career through life the sloth that crawls six feet up a tree in the night and down again four in the morning. They absolutely retro-grade in their age, while they encrease in their power-both of them admirable actors, and-they are no chickens now-were as effective as they were thirty years ago. If the proof of the pudding be in the eating, and the proof of satisfaction be in applause, the actors must have been well satisfied ; and if the still more convincing proof to the manager that zeal and acti-vity will make the "mill go" were wanting, his crowded house must vity will make the "mill go" were wanting, his crowded house must -have given him great encouragement. On Monday the Thespians travelled across the street and warmed . up old Covent-Garden. At it again, charming Miss TAYLON-there she was, with her speech and her address together, and an excellent opening of the Session it was. There had been some amendments moved and inserted in the address, but they were not perceptible by the novices who heard its repetition.

Pizarro, the best pantomine perhaps that ever was got up, and scriously succeeded as a tragedy, was the first piece. Mr. Kixs played Rolla, and he will play anything else better; he speaks like a Rolla, and he will play anytuing cise vetter; he speaks like a gentleman, not like a Peruvian gentleman, but an English gentleman; he was fluried in the beginning, but rallied as he advanced. According to a new-fangled and absurd custom, he was called for, to make his bow half an hour after he had been shot. Why will English people borrow from foreigners the frippery they must in their hearts. despise 3

A Miss PLACIDE-from the United States-did Elvira. We have lady's being in that line on her return homewards as speedily as A Farce called My Neighbour's Wife followed—which, we must say pos years. Coopen, good in everything and where, by the way, have we versatile and so generally an effective actor-and BARTLEY, a ering hand-both field officers in the theatrical campaign-both "Lieutenant Generals of Field Marshal Bunn"

we trust, for her own comfort and our security, we shall hear of th

did their best-the Town knows what that is; and then again came Miss TATLOR, who is to us, what the Page is to the Count in The Follies of a Day, always a startling object; "and so handsome too," as that Page says-and acted inimitably well-nothing could nore intraguivocally successful. ter all this came Cymon. "Why so much and why not more. be,

After all this came Cymon. Three pieces are too many-they fatigue the audience, and give a character of lateness to the performance which deters many families-we mean matter of fact, good pay at the door pumpkins of people-from going to plays at all; and they are moreover tiresome; but if three pieces were to be played, and Cymon were to be one of them, why displace Durwsrr, who seemed, in that particular charac-ter, inspired. His acting as well as the singing was excellent—and if so, why cram and poke women into breeches. What a bore it would be in society to hear a fellow talk Hebrew or Hindostanee all day, merely ecause he was a perfect master of those languages-is it not quite enough for ladies to know they have handsome legs, without always lugging them out at full length as an exhibition? Let women be women-what can they be more charming; but in the name of nature, decency, and the respect which every man of feeling must have for a lady, let us have as little of breeching females as possible. On Tuesday, "hey presto," away go the Thespiane, hop, skip, and jump-then we are at Dury Lane: Macreary as Macheth-Mac-READY, in the minds of most of his suditors, is as old as Macheth himself. They have never seen KEMBLE-no more will their grandchildren see MacRanov; and so it goes on-When port and claret's gone and spent, Then table beer's most excellent.

Not that we mean to infer that any of the great serious Histrionicisers of the day think " small beer" of themselves, but we mean to say now that KEMBLE is dead, CHARLES KEMBLE gone to the placide land of stripes and stars, and Youwa has betaken himself to the really placid retirement which his honourable career has secured and his general qualities so richly adorn, Mr. MACREADY is the King of the crait—nobody approaches him. We enter into no discussion why he has no rivals; there is the fact, physical and moral, and accord-ingly he did Macheth better than anybody else "alive and acting" could have done it. Miss PHILLIPS is also, perhaps, the best Lady Macheth to be had. However, we cannot hope that every bird should be a phoenix, and whatever was wanting in pre-eminent excellence in the leading characters, was made up by general effectiveness. It not crowded, the house was extremely well filled for the time of ye.

At Drury Lane, on Thursday, The Tempest, was repeated, with an Interlude, and The Mayor of Garratt. Why the Interlude? RUSSELL, after many years absence from this stage, appeared as Jerry Sneak : and, like Dowron, seems to be an evergreen : his acting was as admirable and as comical as ever, and his celebrated Robinson Crussoe song met with what would be by some called its "usual" encore from an audience who, in all probability, never had previously heard it in the whole course of their lives. The Olympic looks down this year—another proof of the change of popular favour—it may be that the dandy race of theatrical sup-porters are at present unable to get to Wych street—just now it is at a discount, while the Adelphi is powerfully flourishing. We dare Lekinda is a very fine thing, and a spectacle is a very fine thing. but not in a playhouse where tin and tinsel look like tin and tinse and nothing else, and where the dirty stockings of figurantes and the paint patches on the checks of old supernumeratics are not disguised by distance. Let Mr. YATES give us another Wreek Ashore — another Victorine; and all the tin and tinsel may be laid by for the rest of the season. The Adelphi has, in the wife of one of its proprietors, the best living actress—give us, we say, a simple drama that shall cost five pounds in getting up, with her as ine, in a part suited to her wonderful powers, and we promise the concern five thousand.

Among the visitors to the Adelphi theatre during the last week

Lord Sefton and family; Lords Strangford, Thynne, Fife, Fitz-arence, Allen; the Earl and Countess of Munster, the Marquess (Worcester, Lord and Ludy Tullamore, Count d'Orsay, Lady lewart, Lady de Clifford, &c. &c.

There are several of the little goes doing very well; the Victoria. which is doing admirably, however, cannot be called a " little go, for it is a great one-but that is in Surrey, and out of our scor shall look for theatrical criticisms upon that, in the Guilford Chronicle or the Kingston Gazette.

THE GREYS.

This family alone monopolizes more lucrative offices in the Church and under the Crown in Foreign Embassies and Treasury Charcen and under the crown in Foreign Enhousance and Freadery appointments than any ten of the oldest Tory families in the country. Talk of the MELVILLES, the BERESFORDS the BATHURSTS, indeed the name of GREV swamps them all 1 There is more public money eived by that family than by the whole of the established Clergy of Scotland, or by two thirds of the working Clergy of England. The project of erecting a grand bronze statue of Earl GREY at the top of Baker street, Portman square, has been abandoned. The Noble Earl, as a "Liberal," could who had assembled to witness a game or quote, having connect-tionally stopped the way. The Noble Earl, as a "Liberal," could not brook this insult, and, in the excess of his anger, he loudly voci-ferated from the carriage window, "I will not again suffer this interruption, the village shall be removed," and that this was not an interruption at the village shall be removed," and that this was not an unmeaning threat is proved by the subsequent fact of his Lordship having, as we are informed, actually given orders to sweep the devoted village from off the face of the earth.—Durham Advertiser.

LORD GREY'S COUSING IN GAOL -- On Monday last an omnibus

was observed to stop at the door of our County Gaol, and two persons vere conveyed into the prison. Every one was on the qui consequence of a report that the individuals had been committed for poaching, and were cousins to Lord GREY. It seems they have been rambling about the country on a sporting expedition, and with but one license between them. Several cases were substantiated against them before the Magistrates at Daventry, and they were committed. There is something very mysterious in this affair. All that we can say is, that we have every reason to believe that the relationship in question is one created by marriage. We conclude the prisoners will be speedily released .- Northampton Herald.

SUNDEBLAND BOBOUGH REVISION.-The Revising Barristers. Messrs, VENABLES and Bosanguer held their courts at Sunderland on Friday last, for the revision of the electoral list for that borough. Considerable curiosity was excited on the occasion from the great number of objections that had been made against the Overseers for Monkwearmouth Shore, which had been manufactured by the Lambton and Williamson party, for the purpose of giving the Whig boroughmongers a majority on the register. These pattern reformers, rever, met with such a rebuff as they will not easily forget, and the dismay which it has occasioned in the ranks of the party will long the subject of mirth and ridicule amongst all classes. In Monk outh Shore 193 objections were taken to the list, and of these 167 were struck off by the Barrister, leaving the reforming Baronet register of his vassals reduced from 206, which it was last year, to 124, being a decrease of 82 instead of an encrease, as they anticipated, of 94. Such a victory as this could scarcely have been anticipated, and we congratulate the independent party on the splendid success which has attended their timely and assiduous exertions. The Assistant Overseer was severely rebuked by the Revising Barrister, who also sent for Messrs. HUSDELL and LAMB, the two Overseers, and gave them a firm but gentlemanly admonition on the impropriety of their doings, and further cautioned them to make out their lists in future as required by the Reform Act, and not to suffer any individual to interfere with them in the discharge of this duty. The Barrister appeared astonished at the barefaced corruption which was proved against this list, and expressed the strongest disgust at the manner in which it had been made out. We hear that it is not at all unlikely but it will be further the subject of judicial investigation, and that actions are likely to be commenced against the offending parties for the penalties incurred under the Reform Act. In the different town ships of this borough 32 others were struck off the lists, making a total of 199, all of which belong to the immuculate party of Sir HEDWORTH and Lord DUBHAM. During the investigation oaths were bolted as readily as DANDO swallowed oysters in his victimizing exploits. We shall not repeat all that we have heard on this subject, but merely add that the result of the revision has encreased the strength of the independent party by above 200, so that Lord DURHAN may sigh in vain to make a pocket borough of this important and spirited constituency-although he has contrived to get all his under strappers on the revisiter, even it they only occupy a water-closet in his coal fitting office. The independence of the borough has now been finally consummated, yet we caution the worthy electors to be constantly on the watch, and ready to defeat any attempt that may hereafter be made upon their integrity.

Messrs. RAWLINSON and STRYEN, the Revising Barristers for Somerset, have come to an exactly osite decision as to trustees !

A correspondent of the Cambridge paper says—" There have been bany conflicting and absurd decisions made by the Revising Ban risters appointed under the Reform Act, but none exceed surdity a decision made last week by the Revising Barristers at Huntingdon. By the 39th section of the Reform Act, any perman objecting to the name of a claimant on the list of voters, is give a notice of his objection to the Overseer, and the Act says the person so objecting shall also give to the person objected to, or the person so objecting shall also give to the person objected to, or leave at his place of abode, or personally deliver to his tenant in occu-pation at the premises, a notice in writing.' In the case at Hunting-don a notice of objection was given to the Overseer, and was also pe-sonally delivered to the tenant in occupation of the premises; but because the provide the tenant in occupation of the premises is but objector himself was not present when his own written notice was del vered to the tenant; and for this reason the notice was objected to, and decided to be invalid. It was contended that the word 'personally' referred to the objector, and not to the tenant; or, in other words, that a man must deliver his own written notice and this was held to be the true meaning of the Act !!! Now as a mere matter of grammatical construction, such a decision seems to be ridiculous enough. The words are not, 'he [the objector] per sonally shall deliver to the tenant,' but, 'he [the objector] shall personally deliver to the tenant a notice in writing.' In the former ca sonally deliver to the tenant a notice in writing. In the lot mercase, the word 'personally' immediately following the word 'he,' and preceding the word 'shall,' weekld apply to the word 'he [the objector]; but, in the latter, it applies to the tenant, and the words 'shall personally deliver to the tenant' mean the same as 'shall deliver to the tenant personally.' But considered in reference to the absurd. By the former part of the clause, it is optional with the objector to give the notice to the person objected to himself, or to leave it at his place of abode; but if he chose to serve it on the tenant, he is required to deliver it to the tenant personally. The object of the Act was, that the person objected to should know of the objection made to him. If the notice was given to himself, he was certain to know of it; if left at his house, he could hardly be mis-informed of it; but if left at his lewant's House, there might be some doubt of its reaching his hands, and to guard against this, the notice was to be given to the tenant Aimself, in order that he night haveno excuse for not informing his landlord of it. No possible end could answered by requiring a man to deliver his own written notice. the object was to prove identity, his signature to the notice would sufficiently identify him. All notices of objection which heard of were served by third persons; and we are informed that the attorney who took this objection had notices of objection served in the same way. It is to be hoped that the Reform Act will be amended, so as to prevent the recurrence of such absurditics in future.

out their discontent if they wished so to do, instead of those protest ations of unshaken attachment and confidence that now constantly salute his MAJESTY's ears. If the crafty Frenchman and his dupe. saute nis warren's ears. If the crafty frencing and his dupe, the English Foreign Secretary, had proposed terms to the Dutch of a more equivocal character, they might have had a chance of separating in opinion the Monarch and his people; but with such terms as are offered by these liberal diplomatists they could only expect a determination on the part of the KINO and his subjects to stand or fall together. Lord PALMERSTON may be angry at it, but he cannot help it.

A letter which has been received from Ballyshannon mentions a report prevailing there of a desperate conflict at Kilcar, in the county of Donegal. It is stated that "a party of police were brought to that parish for the purpose of protecting some persons brought to that parish for the purpose of protecting some persons who were valuing tithes. The tithe valuator had a notice of his intentions posted up, and a policeman was left to prevent its being torn down. In a short time upwards of 300 persons assembled, shot the policeman, then proceeded to the land where the valuators were engaged, and commenced a general battle. It is said that several of the police were wounded, and that they, in their defence, were compelled to fire, when five of the peasantry were killed, and several wounded."

WESTMINSTER SESSIONS .- (YESTERDAY.)

WESTMINSTER SESSIONS.-(YESTERDAY.) THE RIGHT OF OMNIDUARS TO PLY IN THE STHAMD. This was an appeal by Mr. Join Chancellor, the proprietor of a large number of omnibuses, against a conviction by Sir F. Roe, recently made at Bow-street. On that occasion the defendant was convicted in the penalty of 40s., for standing and plying for passen-gers in the Strand, such act being contrary to the statute for the regulation of those public conveyances. Mr. Bodkin addressed the court for the appellant. The Chairman said that when omnibuses became an absolute matter of annoyance, it was the duty of the Court to deal with the complaint according to the Act of Parliament. The last Act must, in his opinion, be that by which the judgment of the Court ought to be governed; and although that instrument gave a power to "stand or ply" within five miles of the General Post Office, it was not intended that such standing and plying was to be allowed in an illegal place, nor were they to stand for half an hour and stop up the public hithway. His opinion therefore was, that the con-viction must be affirmed. The other Magistrates, with one exception, were of the same opinion.

THE ASSESSED TAXES. Wednesday afternoon a General Meeting of the Marylebone Asso-clation, and of Deputations from most of the other Associations, formed for procuring the immediate abolition of the assessed taxes, was held at the Yorkshire Stingo, Paddington. There could not be less than 600 persons present, and many were compelled to go away for want of room. A gentleman from the office of Mr. Guaxey was present, and endidly avowed himself to be sent to take notes for the use of the Government. The several Deputations as they arrived and were announced were welcomed by enthusiastic rounds of applause. On the motion of Mr. Birch, seconded by Mr. LLOYD, the Chair was taken by Mr. SAVAGE, of Marylebone. The Cantamana, fare stating the object for which they had deemed itencessary to call this Public Meeting, and expressing his pleasure at seeing it to fully attended, said they would deserve the lasting reproaches of their children if they had not now manfully come for-wind to avow their sentimenta - (Cheers).—He begged their atten-while the Report was read by the Secretary. The Report was then read. On the motion of Mr. Paron, the Report was received and agreed to. Mr. Buccs, of Marylebone, moved the first Resolution. They had

The Report was tread by the Secretary. The Report was tread by the Secretary. The Report was there read. On the motion of Mr. Paron, the Report was received and sagred to. Mr. Bucs, of Marylebone, moved the first Resolution. They had assembled, he said, to deplore the existence of an evil which had long been deeply felt and patiently borne, but which could be borne no longer.--(Cheere.)--It was thirty-six years since he first became a housekeeper, and he had no sooner entered upon it than he found himself up to the chin in the vortex of taxation. He had struggled through many difficulties to enable himself to satisfy at once the cravings of his family for bread, and the importunities of the tax-ratherer for money. Occasionally when he wasin arrears the collector had shook his head, and said something must be done; and he thought also something must be done, but then he and the collector differed as to that something. Mr. Buck resumed-Before proceeding any further he would read to then the Resolution he intended moving. It was-" That this Association, having had recourse to every measure consistent with heir duty as good citizens to obtain relief without effect, are now compelled to declare that they can no longer pay in money those iniquitous impost, the house and window tax; and that they will neither bury or sell goods that may be taken from those already borne down by the non-fulfiment of a former Minister's pledge to the nation that the entire repeal of these taxes should take place two years after the ratification of peace." They were anzious to avoid anything like hostility to the Govern-ment. They loved their King-(Laughter and hisses.)—He was sorry they did not hear the concluding part of these sentee before expressing an opinion. He would repeat that as a country they loved their King-(Laughter and hisses.)—He was sorry they dured not speek bold/w. Now, however, the tables were turned, and they had no lear in proclaming openly that they sould no longer pay these locker such was the spirit of John Bull that he would never relate to pay; but when the locker, as was the case now, wate anyle, what else could he do ? Mr. Barnan begged to be allowed, as a sixty-one years' resident in Marylebone, to second the motion. Mr. Jonsson, of St. Giles's, next spoke. He said their meeting this day would teach the Government a lesson which it would be impossible for them to mistake. Their enemies said their object was to introduce namely and confusion, but this he utterly denied. On the contrary, pace and order were their objects, and these they best promored by endeavouring to procure for all the full enjoyment of their social rights. It was rumoured Government intended to introduce a law to put down these Associations; but he would holdly reply, they dared not-they could not.-(Cheers.)-He should be salamed of his courty it is sufficed so buttorous an enactment to pass. He felt sure the Government would never be permitted to introduce a saw to put down these Associations; but he would holdly reply, they dared not-they could not.-(Cheers.)-He should be ashamed of his courty it is sufficed so buttorous an enactment to pass. He felt sure the Government would never be permitted to interest the sit did unhappy Ireland during the last session of Par-liament. They had now become of importance, and the Press found intersteed lodgers as much as housekeepers, for such was the competi-tion which existed in the metropolis that fail of therent of apartments must follow the removal of the assessed taxes. If any poor persons who were not in a condition to meet their just debts had been terri-fied into paying these taxes he pitted him; but if any had paid them in preference to their just debts, with a view of upholdiner, sind push to be endured in this courty.-(Cheers.)- He hough be hough to fore long they would have again to meet there, and conditer the best means of clebrating their victory, and the termination of the holy war.-(Cheers.) The Resolution was then put, and carried amid loud cheers

The Resolution was then put, and carried amid loud cheers. The Rev. Dr. WARE said he had a Resolution to move, which he would commence by reading— "That notwithstanding the votes and professions of the present Administration when out of office to repeal these taxes, they have rendered them more galling and oppressive by causing the elective franchise to depend upon their payment within a limited period, thus marking and degrading an industrious portion of the community, and punishing their poverty as a crime by depriving them of their political rights."

Administration when out of office to repeal these taxes, they have rendered them more galling and oppressive by causing the elective franchise to depend upon their payment within a limited period, thus marking and degrading an a crime by depriving them of their political right." Here was displayed the sin of ingratitude, manifested, lying on the consciences, or ought to be on the consciences, of the Ministers. After what the people had done for the Ministry they ought to be shamed of having so violated the common feelings of our nature. They (the people) had been denounced as conspirators, and vilified in various way; but this conflict of opinion between the Ministry and the people had been denounced as conspirators, and vilified in various way; but this conflict of opinion between the Ministry and the people had been denounced as conspirators, and vilified in various way; but this conflict of these taxes hadleen very appropriately de-nominated by the last speaker a holy war. It was on the part of the Ministry look around on the preventing distress; is them observe the shut up houses, the crouded paumbrokers' shops, and the depth of poperty ubich, in some instances, had led our ine, and no thers to suicide; and then let them say, it they could, that the people were able to bear threse taxes. The Tory Government was abd enough, but the Whings had become worse, for they had enforced payment with greater rigour. The Associa-tions had taken a morel, a proper, and a good course in resisting the attempts made to crush the people. There had been a talk of resis-tions had taken a morel, a proper, and a good course in resisting the attempts made to crush the people. FOREIGN AFFAIRS. According to the Journal de Paris, nothing new had occurred at Madrid on the 7th instant, which capital, as well as Castile, conti-nerd undisturbed on the 8th, when a commercial messenger de-parted. The Journal des Debats adds, that at the latter period the road from Madrid to Bayonne was perfectly (rec, and the Queen's Government acquiring more and more solidity. It was known at Madrid tast Don Carlos had 1-ft Don Miguel's head quarters on the dith, and netred Spain-in what direction had not been ascertained. M. de Burmont, General Larcocke Jaquelin, and several other French officers had lass outerted Spain, and were performing quaran-tine in a small town of Estremadura, whence they were to be con-vered either to Malaga or Cadiz, there to nembark. Such are the statements of the Juste Milicu's orables. The accounts given in Ba-syonne and Borleaux papers are noto somiling. Though the reported movement at Vitoria serma doubtful, and the massacres sacribed by toose liberral prints to the Carlisto Biscay are another of their charitable inventions. The only person who is believed to have fillen is the Deputy General Vilagon. According to the Carrier Francai's information, the Regent expected that Biscay, Navarra, and part of Catalonia, old Castile and Estremadura; would pro-claim Don Carlos, but that Valencia, Andalusia, Murcia, and all the cosast along the Meilterranean, would alhere to her cause. It appears that on the 8th of July, a copy of a secret article, Madrid to the Ministers of the fire principal Powers. By this stride the Sublime Porte ''agrees to close, in case of medi, the Straits of the Dardanelles ; that is to say, it will not permit the straits of the Jurdanelles ; that is to say, it will not permit the straits of the Dardanelles ; that is to say, view and preces theateer.''-This is a pretty good specimen of the success of Russian diplomacy. RussrA—The journals continue to give accounts (mostly from the German papers) of the journey of the Emperor to Germany and poland. After reviewing the troops at Modin. and inspecting the works of the new citadel of Warsaw, which will be completed in a year, his Majesty returned to Modin, and, on the 26 h, in the morn-ing, inspected a battalion of the regiment of Archangel, which, having been on duty, could not be inspected with the other troops. His Majesty highly commended the fine appearance of the men, and after having cordially thanked the Marshal and the Generals of his army set out for St. Petersburgh, taking the road to Kowno. At Ostrolenka his Majesty stopped to view the celebrated field of battle "ØSth May), of which General Bug, who had taken an active part in that brilliant affair, gave him a description on the spot. Having crossed the kingdom of Poland in its greatest breadth, from Kalisch to Koron, his Ir perial Majesty arrived on the 23th of Sept., in per-fect health, at Cararkojeselo, where her Majesty the Empress now is.—St. Petersburgh Journate. JOHN BULL.

LONDON, OCTOBER 20.

THEIR MAJESTIES continue at Windsor till the 30th, when the Court proceeds to Brighton.

THE extraordinary silence with regard to Portugal con-tinues, and BOURNONT, if he has left the KING's army, is lost in a most curious manner; for, although all the friends of the Brazilian Pretender tell us with great confidence where of the Brazilian Pretender tell us with great conndence where he is not, nobody seems to renture a guess as to where he is. Our accounts from Spain are, upon the whole, satisfactory. It is clear that, if the Spanish people are left to themselves, Don CARLOS will eventually be KING: he appears to be universally respected, and his influence with the priesthood is served. is great We

e have often before taken occasion to notice the won-We have often before taken occasion to notice the won-derfully rapid improvement which has within the few last years taken place in Spain : she has made more pro-gress during the last eight or nine years than she did during the whole of the previous century, and, under the government of the misrepresented FENDINAND, the road was opening to much more extensive and valuable improve-ments. No event could have been more injurious to the best interests of the country than the demise of the Sove-valer interture.

ments. No event could have been more injurious to the best interests of the country than the demise of the Sve-reign just at this juncture. The Spaniards enjoy all rational liberty, and express their political sentiments with the same freedom as English-men, and we have the best authority for knowing that the Liberal party is confined almost exclusively to the inhabit-ants of the sea-ports; and it is because the people, with all their personal attachment to Don CARLOS, believe that if he should succeed, the Government will be carried on upon the principles which that genuine patriot M. ZEA DE BERMU-DEZ has uniformly advocated, that the popularity of the Prince may be really attributed. The Revolutionist is a rare character in Spain, but the Constitutionalist much more rare still. All the intelligent men desire the improvement of the country, but there exists a universal distate for a Constitutional system of govern-ment, amounting almost to horror. The general feeling at this moment in Spain is, that the insery of the war of independence was nothing compared with that of the period of the Constitution. It was a time of the most frightful nanchy and confusion : the dissolute, the idle, and all the disreputable and bad members of society literally preyed, during that time, upon those who had any-thing to lose, or of which they could plunder them : to have property was a crime, and many of the most respectable men in the nation, who were never concerned in politics, were compelled to save themselves by flight, and conceal themselves in the mountains to save their lives. The number of cruel murders wantonly committed (many of which we some time back detailed) by the patriot mob themselves in the mountains to save their lives. The number of cruel nurders wantonly committed (many of which we some time back detailed) by the patriot mob leaders, was immense. Scenes the most appalling and dis-gusting, and sometimes ridiculous, were constantly exhibited: soldiers and officers were put on a level, and feasted together, and got drunk together (a practice till then unknown in Spain); and after these saturnalia, and in a state of un-controllable intoxication, they plundered and butchered the peaceable people.

Spain); and after these saturnalia, and in a state of uncontrollable intoxication, they plundered and butchered the peaceable people. At that time legions of clerks and functionaries were paid out of the revenue and compulsory loans which were raised upon the inhabitants, not because they were wanted, or had anything to do, but merely because they were "exaltados" on the side of the Constitution at its commencement; but even these people were so horror-struck at the frightful excesses committed, that they withdrew as rapidly as their safety would permit, and these very men are ready and anxious to support any system which will ensure to the country tranquility and peace. When the French reached Madrid they were received with more joy than the English in 1812. The very word Constitution seems to convey to the mind of a Spaniard something terrific and revolting; and their influence is now infinitely greater than it was in 1820. For the sake of one of the finest nations in the universe, we sincerely hope that there may be no violent movement. It is true that, if Dow CARLOS succeed, Spain will lose some of the advantages which it enjoyed under the late KING; but if France interfere, and through her aid the Liberal party gain the upper hand, the Spanish people are destined to a repetition of all the Constitutional atrocities of other days.

THE game the Government has been playing in Ireland is equally disgraceful with that which is going on in England; and, although from the violence with which the Ministerial papers have been ordered to attack Mr. O'CONNELL within the last day or two, and the activity which he has evinced in the collection of his rent, it may be suspected that there is a hitch, and that the Ministers have not yet bid high enough, we are enabled to state with perfect certainty that a coquec-ting, the most disreputable and undignified, has been for some time going on between the new Irish Government and the Agitator. THE game the Government has been playing in Ireland the Agitato

the Agitator. Every whim and humour of his, has been gratified and deferred to, and even the retirement of Sir WILLIAM MACMAHON from the Rolls to make way for him, has been seriously discussed. If he looks to the Seals, we think he must be disappointed—that would be even a caricature of BROUGHAM's elevation to the Chancellorship here: but short of that, Mr. O'CONNELL, we are convinced, may make his terms. his terms.

Should he know when he is well off, and accept the cersubside into an Equity Judge, having thus wisely consulted his case and the nature of his finances; but not before he has his case and the nature of his finances, but not before he has spoken and written, and blustered and denounced, and per-haps told us that he conscientiously believed that he could be of more use to Ireland in that capacity than in any other. If he is standing out for the Seals, our readers will know the precise moment at which he succeeds, by the alteration of tone which they will perceive in the Government newspapers.

THAT the unbappy, degraded, false, and faithless truck-lers to the mob-the prolegeés of the Political Unions-the acceptors of Sir KEY's pouny cups-the MINISTERS-are involved in difficulties, as they have involved the country in a attended by many of the most emineut physicians, sance-confusion and anarcury, is, as we said last week, no cause for gratification to us. We knew what they would do— we refer our readers to the files of this paper for a distinct prophecy of what would happen to them. Our forebodings are realized, and the Government of the country is trans-ferred from the Cabinet to the Club-room—the functionaries of the State are supplanted by the delegates of the mob, and the duties of Parliament are usurped by the National Assembly at the Yorkshire Stingo.

of the State are supplanted by the delegates of the mob-and the duties of Parliament are usurped by the National Assembly at the Yorkshire Stingo. We continue our report of their meetings, because here-after it will be interesting to refer to the estensible causes of the troubles that are at hand. Deeply and bitterly do we lament the state of things, and most earnestly do we oppose the wicked combination forming on every side against the Government upon this point. It is folly to call the Assessed Taxes war taxes, for they have continued through sixteen years of peace : it is worse than folly to refuse their pay-ment, because, if withheld, the existence of the country as a governable nation must terminate; but the greatest folly of all, and which amouts to wickedness, is to be found in the conduct of our Ministers, who, hating and despising the mobocracy as they do, and as Whigs have ever done, should, for the sake of carrying a point and keeping office, have pledged themselves to do what they knew was imprac-ticable, without involving the destruction of the State, and promised their dupes what they equally well knew, when they did so, they never meant to perform. Upon this point, the people, who rusted these hollow pre-tenders, have a right to complain and be dissatisfied. The fault, then, is not with the people, who only claim the fulfil-ment of the conditions upon which they supported the Re-form Bill, and the redemption of the pledges which its inventors voluntarily gave;—but the people should have some compasion upon the wretched victims to their own. thirst for power—not for their sake, but for their own. The course the people are taking leads to nothing but anarchy and confusion—and, clearly as we foresaw the consequences of Whig domination, and richly as the Whigs have earned the tontempt and hatred in which they are held, we do trust that the tax-payers will remain quiet until the opening of Parliament—which we suspect may occur sooner than the fazete of last week declares. They may rely upon it they will find the feeling excited against their disgraceful abandonment of their principles, and their shameless viola-tion of their promises, perfectly congenial with that, which has already been expressed at every one of the numerous meetings held upon the subject. Lord GREY would more clearly prove the degree of in-terest he takes in this struggle—produced by his "opening the door"—if he came up from Howick to Downing-street to assist his helpless associates—colleagues, in a Depart-mental Government, they can searcely be called. It is not because his Lordship's son-in-law offers his private advices as cx-Privg Seaf, nor his son, as ex-Colonial Secretary, makes his suggestions—it is not because his Lordship's brother prays for us as a Prebendary at Westimister, and preaches for us as Bishop at Hereford—it is not because his Lordship's brother-in-law regulates the affairs of our army, nor because his Lordship's son-in-law conducts the business of the Treasury—it is not because one of his Lord-ship's sons commands a Regiment for us, sits in Parliament for the independent borough of Wycombe for us, and has the care of his noble father's private papers—it is not be-cause another of his Lordship's brothers condescends to wear two Grand Crosses, and command a Regi-ment in India for us, which he never saw—it is not because his Lordship's nephew-in-law isgod enough to assist the Treasury-board for us, nor that his Lordship's two consins by marriage are our Home Secretary and Under Home Secretary ; nor is it because another consin is Chief Commissioner of Woods and Forests for ns—it is not because another cons on the Lordship's is a Governor in the Medi-cerance for us, no hecause another consin is Chief Commissioner of Woods and Forests for ns—it is not because another consin of his Lordship's is a Governor in the Medi-Consists by marriage are our from Secretary and Under Home Secretary; nor is it because another cousin is Chief Commissioner of Woods and Forests for ns—it is not because another cousin of his Lordship's is a Governor in the Medi-terranean for us, nor because another cousin is Ambassador for us at Constantinople; nor is it because another very near connexion of his Lordship is at Lord WELLESLEY's elbow as Comptroller, nor that another of his Lordship's sons, HARRY CAVENDISH, is an Aid-da-Camp in the same establishment—it is not because a brother of his son-in-law, the late Privy Scal, is in personal attendance on the KING, as Groom of the Bedchamber, nor because the brother of another son-in-law, Mr. BULTEEL, is labouring for our spiritual welfare in a fine living in Devonshire. It is not freem all these, nor from the cir-cumstance of having been deprived by ill-health of the labours of another son-in-law at the Admiralty Board, nor from the actual services of his Lordship's son, FREDERICE WILLIAM, on full pay as a Captain in the Navy; nor from the equally meritorious toils of his Lordship's boolter-in-law, the Lord Bishop of DERRY, equal, no doubt, to those of his Lordship's brother, the Bishop of IERREFORD; nor is it from the diplomatic services of that Bishop's father-in-law, Sir ROBRET ADATR, in the Netherlands (equal, no doubt, to those of his Lordship's worbrother-in-law, Lord PONSONBY at the Porte), nor even those of his Lordship's graceful cousin, Sir FRERTEN LAMB, at Visnon3; it is not, we say, the assurance of all this assistance and support which the coun-try receives from this galaxy of family islent that can recom-pense us for the absence of its noble head himself from the councils of the Cabinet. We tell his Lordship's the is wanted;'' and, we add, that if he does not come, 'he will be wanting''—at least in the appearance of respect to the resor LS, which although he does not feel, he ought at least to affoct.

For the reports of the Anti-tax Meetings held this week. we refer our readers to the 2nd page.

There has been a "blow up," as the powder merchants say, at the Dispensary in Aldersgate-street, in consequence of the resignation of all the medical officers.

This resignation was caused by their opposition to the principle adopted by the Committee of permitting sub-scribers to vote the moment they had paid their subscrip-tions, by which permission any one of the candidates for any of the offices might, by subscribing fitly or five hundred guineas, instantly secure for himself fitly or five hundred votes

In the meantime a new set of officers have been elected; but his Royal Highness the Duke of SUSEX, displeased, we innagine, at the attempt to a lifer the old plan, has im-vocably resigned—a loss the weight of which may easily be imagined.

Imagined. WE have already noticed the extent of the national obliga-tions to the GREY family for the number and variety of channels through which it aids and assists in its Government. It has been represented to us that the benevolent feeling which Lord GREY has exhibited in thus sacrificing the ease and quiet of his amiable relations to the good of the country, arises from an hereditary disposition that way, derived from his Lordship's eminent father, whose name and memory are intimately associated in the West Indies with numerous acts of similar disinterestedness; the only difference being that Sir CHARLES had fewer relations, and, therefore, concen-trated in himself more profit than his eminent son has been enabled personally to secure. But we ought to de LOH GREY justice ; there are instances in which his family feeling—or failing—has been corrected; and where a grateful recollection of eminent political series has stayed his proverbial voracity, aud dispensed the bouny of Government to dear and worthy supporters. We need only allude to the office of £400 a year given to the Siannese double unit, Master JOHN K INGSMILL GROVE KEY, the son of the Contractor—Lord GREY's patron and friend in the Penny Cup affair—whose Effigies, as a patrious Reformer, an honest Member of Patriament, conferring honour, like Sir Something HARTY, of Dublin, on the Baro-netage—is to be handed down to immortality between the two Whig worthies of the day, Lord GREY and Lord BAROGHAM. Mr. HAYDON has admirably succeeded in the portraiture-WE have already noticed the extent of the national obliga.

We will call the attention of the reader to one, which is highly and nobly characteristic of the illustrious man to whom it relates. WE most sincerely regret having stated in our last number that Sir RICHARD GOODWIN KEATS was no more: our belief of the fact arcse from the open manner in which the intentions of Ministers with respect to the gallant and venerable Officer's Governorship of Greenwich Hospital was spoken of. We had previously heard that Sir RICHARD was dangerously ill, and we could not believe, even knowing them as we do, that the members of Government wousded arrangements consequent upon his death, unless that even had actually taken place. We are extremely sorry if we have caused any pain to any part of the venerable Officer's family; and we most sincerely wish that Sir RICHARD may not afford the official sharks an opportunity of bolting his valuable appointment for many years to come. valuable appointment for many years to come

Whilst the Reformed Government are making savings by defauding the Chelsea pensioner, and compelling the half-pay officer to sell his scalty pittance, and curtailing the Mili-tary Governments by limiting the grant from 30,0001, a-year to 18,0001, we think we shall do the army an act of justice, and the public some service, if, from the mass of evidence spread through 354 pages, we let our readers know what the British service is, and how it is remunerated as compared with foreign services.

the British service is, and how it is remunerated as compared with foreign services. Abuse of the army has always been a favourite topic of Whig vituperation—the officers of the army have been held up as so many blood-suckers, as well as blood-takers, by those very unen who are now striving to make good their assertions, when in opposition, by attacking the interests of a body of men, whom they hate for their loyalty, and whom they attempt to degrade as useless sinecurists. We have already submitted, in a former article, an extract from the Duke of WELLINGTON'S Memoir, stating forcibly and clearly the importance of a British officer's duties, and the scantiness of his remuneration : we cannot resist giving, in addition, the concluding observations of his Memoir, and then a brief comparison between the British and French service.

giving, in addition, the concluding observations of his Memoir, and then a brief comparison between the British and French service. We should be glad that Lord GREY—or perhaps his son, Lieutenant-Colouci GREY, should read this particular por-tion of the Memoir with attention:— "This officer," says the Duke, carrying on the case which he so ably supposes, "has but little hope of promotion, unless he en parchase it; nor of rest, nor relief from his exertions, if he should obtain it, as long as he has health and strength to serve. "When heattains the renk of a General Officer, he must manage Legislature; he must perform the most difficult and ardnous func-tions of government which can be entrusted to any subject, if he must be qualified by education, prudence, and other qualities, and even in England). He General Officer out take upon himself, and must be qualified by education, prudence, and other qualities, to correspond with the Magistrates, to superinted and direct their exertions. "Surely, men with such qualities, and so employed, cannot be allowed to believe that the Legislature is unmindful of their services, and that their Sovereix is at this moment to be deprived of the spring which with has been done—the KING has actually been deprived of this power, and we beg the particular atten-tion of Lieutenant. General Sir HERBERT TAYLOR to the next sentence. If he has a regiment, and ought to stand by his ""Three is mothing so casy as to give any institution an uppopular Order":-

"There is nothing so casy as to give any institution an unpopular name, and then to run it down and abolish it. Accordingly the military governments are called sinceaves. "It is positively the tact, that these governments, whether neces-sary or not for the performance of the military service of the country, are held by those otherers who have most distinguished themselves in the late wars, as the reward of their services." We shall now give some extracts from the evidence of the Department of the performance of the military services."

We shall now give some extracts from the evidence of the Quarter-Master-General, Lient.-General Sir WILLOUGHBY GORDON. At page 176, in comparing the French service with the British, he says— "The French army, like the rest of the armies of Europe, com-"the french army, like the rest of the armies of Europe, com-is whether a man shall serve in one county of England or in another; the officer gets a short leave of absence, for six weeks or so, and tamasts his private business, for the French have no part of their relatar army in the colonies, exceed Algiers may be considered a server, is but in the colonies usually so called, beyond sea, none what the french army consisted some months mgo of about the believe (in May last) that the whole army was nearly, if not quite effective to that establishment."

He then gives the details of a regiment of four battalions,

He then gives the details of a regiment of the second says:-"Thus it will appear that their regiments have nearly, if not quie, as many officers as we have, and a greater number of non-formissioned officers; so that if we had the same number of persons to assist us in maintaining the discipline of our army, a freat deal more of expense would be incurred, but much crime and consequently of punishment be prevented." " In time of peace the British army is worked in a way that no other army ever is, or ever has been; if you employ an army it should be paid according to the work work; if you cannot afford to pay, then you should not have an army." It is not necessary to multiply evidence—take this festimony of the Quarter-Master-General of the Army in con-junction with that of the Duke of WELLINGTON, and then ask any reasonable man living safely at home in a healthy climate, whether this is the mode in which officers of the British army, of the highest qualifications, ought to be remu-nerated for their risks? But let us also ask who reduced these Colonial allowances? Lord HOWICK—stand forth and answer. Poor Lord RIPON was the mere tool and instru-ment of these cruel reductions—but the Whig Government have adopted them, for they constitute a large portion of the have adopted them, for they constitute a large portion of the reductions so much vaunted of in the Whig pamphlet, which they have widely and gratuitously circulated all over the kingdom.

After which, they proceeded in a body to Sir JOHN KEY's residence, where they informed him of what had passed, and requested him, in compliance with the wishes of his constituents in general, immediately to resign: which he instantly declared he would not do ! He was then told that the present visit was intended to spare his feelings the disgrace of being called upon by a public meeting of the inhabitants to restore to them his forfeited trust; and that he had better take some little time to reflect on the proposal. THE arrival of Captain Ross safe and sound after his perilous expedition, is a joyous event for his family and his country—to himself nothing can be more flattening and complimentary than the discovery that an expedition had been fitted out to search for him. We believe Captain Ross is not actually arrived in London, but it has been resolved to send off a despatch to Captain

Back, to recal him, lest he should lose himself in trying to find the man who is not lost. The despatch may be extremely laconic—it might run thus:—Ross is come—Come Back.

If we mis-take not, that gentleman seceded from the Church—defied his Diocesan, preached in the open air, and played a variety of pranks, which seem to us to render it impossible that the Reverend Gentlemen preferred by his connexion, the Pre-mier, should be the same individual. The members of the Cabinet sat several hours in close discussion, as it would appear, on the general state of Europe, and that of our foreign policy in particular, in which is seems that some great change will unavoidably take place." We merely notice the highly-respectable source whence we derive this paragraph, because, after the scolding letter we received from our in the correspondent, Mrs. RAMS-BOTTOM, we could not venture, of ourselves, to doubt the splendid health of the Herculean Chancellor-particu-larly after Mr. JAMES BROUGLIAM had also volunteered a fraternal certificate of the extraordinary robusticism of the "Noble and Learned" LORTS

The animal seized her hand with his paws and teeth, and severely lacerated it in trying to obtain the fruit. Mrs. Maxwell struck the animal with her parasol, upon which the monkey flew at her face, and bit her very severely. It was with some difficulty that the boy could get the monkey away. The ladies were conveyed home in a coach.—We are no great friend to monkies, but we should think that young ladies who walk about the streets with apples in their cannot be very sensitive.

The accidents which happen in one-horse carriages-more espe I the accidents which happen in one-horse carriages-more expe-cially those which are made for safety-are very numerous. There must be some sad mismanagement somewhere. We have two here recorded :- It is our painful duty to record a most serious accident which has plunged a respectable family into the deepest distress. Mr. Bias, a surgeon, drove to Worthing on Sunday in his pony Mr. BLAS, a surgeon, drove to Worthing on Sunday in his pony sig, accompanied by a female of his family. On his return the pony became restive on reaching a place called Hammerpot-hill, between Worthing and Arundel, and upset the gig. Mr. BLAS was thrown to the ground with great violence; he was taken up insensible, and conveyed home in a lifeless state. Every means was resorted to to restore him, but in vain; he lingered for a short time, when he expired. The deccased was 69 years of age, and was universally respected.

On Wednesday last THOMAS FLUITT, Esq., of Chester, was out on a shooting excursion in company with his friend, ROBERT JOHN MOSTYN, Esq., of Calcot Hall, near Holywell. They had nearly reached Northop, on their way to Chester, in a gig when one of the springs broke and the horse set off at full speed. Mr. MOSTYN, who was driving, stood up, and endeavoured by main force to rein him to be built fortune to the prior spring and an endeavoured of the store and the spring store of the spring store of the spring. in: but unfortunately, the reins snapped asunder, and Mr. Mosrys was thrown backwards out of the gig, and had his elbow and shoulder blade dislocated. Notwithstanding his accident he had sufficient blade dislocated. Notwithstanding his accident he had sufficient presence of mind to call to Mr. Fuurr for God's sake to keep his seat. It is probable that this salutary advice either was not heard or was disregarded in the confusion of the moment by Mr. Fuurr, for the unfortunate gentleman either leaped out or was thrown out of the giu immediately afterwards, and killed on the spot. Immediate assistance was at hand. Mr. Mosrrw was conveyed to the Vicarage, where he experience the ready hospitality of the Rev. HEARY JONES and his lady, and hopes are entertained of his ultimate recovery.—Maccles-fold Counter field Courier.

Considerable excitement and rancour have been occasioned at Wick Considerable excitement and rancour nave peen occasioned at wick by a controversy of a religious nature, relative to the stage. Mr. Ryper, manager of the Aberdeen Theatre, took his company to Wick, where he met with general success. The Minister, the Rev. Mr. Prins, being strongly opposed to theatrical representations, on the ground of their alleged immorality, immediately began to preach the ground of their alleged immorality, immediately began to preach against them, and sofar has the Rev. Gentleman carried his opposition, that he declares it to be his intention of refusing to administer baptism, marriage, and other church privileges to all families and individuals who shall hereafter attend the theatre. Many respectable inhabitants, including some of the Magistrates, also consider them-selves as pointed out and denounced in the Minister's discourses ; and a keen, bitter, and personal war of opinions has sprung up to divide and annoy the community of the town and nelablourhood,-tis clear that the canter of Wick is mistaken in his notion of *wick-*edness-but we conclude that the Reverend blockhead is not quite so great an ass as to believe that he dure refuse the performance of any of the rites of the Church to any Christian upon the ground he has taken up.

Anongsat the objects landed from the Lazor, now at Rouen, is a sarcophazas, the property of the officer of the vessel, who took dvantage of their residence in Upper Expt to search for antiqui-ties, and discovered this fine specimen at the bottom of a shalt in the form of a well, 125 feet deep, arched over with brick, and filled with earth and stones, and which led to two chambers, the second of which contained the sarcophagus. It is in basalt, and is covered inside and outside with hieroglyphical inscriptions. At the bottom is sculp-ured a human figure lying on the bark, which is also represented in profile, on the top of the lid or covering. All the sculpture is in the most perfect stake of preservation. According to the conjectures of M. Champollion, this was the tomb of Queen Unkaas, wite of Amaxis and daughter of Pasumeticus II., whose Croon was usurped by Amasis. This monument, as well as many others, was violated on the invasion of Expt by the Persians under Cambyscs. In forcing off the lid be Persians booke one of the sarco-phagus with a lever made of sycamore wood, which was still found with it, though between 2,000 and 4,000 years have elapsed since it was used for this profanation. Outside of the tomb there were like where found some of the bone of the nummy, which, according to Tradition, was burnt by the Persians, and some of these bones still tradition, was burnt by the Persians, and some of these bones still tradition and all portions of which had except the whole mummy was en-veloped, asnall portions of which had except the effects of the fire. *m. EVAPLY. PARIS, Oct. 23 - The Kingdom of Navarre is declared in a state of siege. The whole of that kingdom is up in arms, and nothing can exceed the enchusiasm of the people. The papers of Bourdeaux and bayonne speak of the movement in Navarre as one which is very serioss. The execution of Santos Ladorn is said to have produced a bad effect for the Queer. Her troups are not sufficiently numerous to maintain the state of size, which has been declared by the Go-vernment of the Regent. It is reported and believed thata thirranda a corps of the Carlist troops marched out with the Priests, the cross, and the host at their head, and it is addad thas when the cavalry of the Queen came in sight of them, they all turned round and took to flight.

wrament of the Regert. It is reported and believed that if Mranda a corps of the Carlist troops marched out with the Priests, the cross, and the host at their head, and it is added thes when the cavalry of the Queen came in sight of them, they all turned round and took to flight.
 The Memorial Bordekies contains the following :—

 "By letters from St. Jean Pied de Port, of the 16th of October, we learn that the rising in Navarre is general; every where the people have taken up-arms at the order of the priest. Two days ago Col. Eraso, perhaps against his own conviction, yielded to the entreaties of the Canons of Roncevaux, and proclaimed Don Carlos. His example was immediately followed by the inhabitants of the different valles.—The news of the defeatand of the execution of Santos Ladron, at Los Arcos, has redoubled the energy of the insurgents. This morning it was reported at Roncevaux, and ta detachment sent from Pampeluna was marching rapidly on that place; but what can a feeble detachment effect againet a whole country in arms, protected by ravines and numerous defiles?—At Pampeluna the agitation was extreme. The inhabitants were fing aloutin confusion, and groups forming in every part. The garrison is very feeble; three of the gates of the constants. I write at the moment of the departure of the courier."—To these details it is added, " that the insurgents attacked Valcarlos, which they easily took, for the mountaincers were persuaded by the monks to e-list under the colours of Don Carlos. It is dated Abrantes, the 1st of October, and we subjinin it:—
 "Artory and it has corres of the combating in the heived the investigator of the constants." Investigator was expected the next weat last received the Proclamation of Don Carlos. It is dated Abrantes, the 1st of October, and we subjini it:—

 The New York Commercial Advertiser of September 27, contains the following paragraphies:—
 "Fans Missico.—The mortality occasioned by the cholera has been no where so server on this continent as it is represented to be which 14/000 (or about one in every twelve) are said to have died of this disease. Within the last three days preceding the 24th ult, the deaths are said to have amounted to be tween 900 and 1200 persons daily. Were not these frightful accounts received from several quarters, and substantially confirming each other, we should be led to doubt their correctness, from the appulling magnitude of the calimity.—The disease was prevailing in many other places in the republic, and particularly in the army, where it is so fatal that hostilities have been supended between the contending parties. It had als oppeared at Vera Cruz, and at the last advices was still existing, bint in a milder form. In consequence of the people."

POLICE BRONNG LETTERS.—On Thursday two respectably dressed females, same brought before the Lord Mayor, charged by Wr. Hubbard, a were brought before the Lord Mayor, charged by Wr. Hubbard, a blockson merchant, in the Minories, under the following circum-

ere proven: church in the Minories, under the following circum-tances... Mr. Hubbard stated that Mrs. Bowditch called upon him and presented an appeal to his compassion in behalf of Mrs. Muller, thom she represented as the widow of a man who had been in the tabe of the presented as the widow of a man who had been in the tabe of the state and no more about him at that time, but would wish her to call agin. This was in the passage leading to the counting house, and the state of the state of the state of the state of the state phouse... A langh... He of course declined; and suspecting that the story of the distress of the widow, who was represented as having the belpless unprotected children in a foreign land, was a fiction, he made inquiries, the result of which convinced him that the application as part of a system, and he then had the woman apprehended. The Lord Mayor, finding that the speal to the humanity of the whole affair had symptoms of humbug and deception about it when were not to he mistaken. His Lordship asked whether Mrs. Bowditch's husband was present. Mrs. Bowditch-My Lord, he has been here all the morning. The Lord Mayor.But were is he now? This is the time for him to be present.

The Lord Mayor-But were is he now (This is the time for nim to be present. (Mr. Bowditch-II he is not here, my Lord, I dare say he is to be found on (Change-(Great aughter.) The Lord Mayor-Ay. I dare say you have a 'Change of your own, where you trainsact your begging business.-(Laughter.) Mrs. Bowditch declared that she was induced to make the applica-tion for Mrs. Muller from mere motives of humanity, and that she had no idea of deriving the least profit from her interference. His Lordship then directed that the wastinduced to make the applica-tion for Mrs. Muller from mere motives of humanity, and that she had no idea of deriving the least profit from her interference. His Lordship then directed that Count Wackerbarth and Mr. Bowditch should be sent for, and questioned the gentlemen when they attended. Mr. Bowditch said his circumstances had been once good, but now were much reduced. His wife was not a begging letter writer or barer, and he had himsell nothing to do with such things. The Lord Mayor-Perhaps Count Wackerbarth will tell me whether the recommendation of Mrs. Muller to people's charity is his writing.

In recommendation of hits, wanter to people a state, it is in ring. The Count looked at the writing, and seemed to hesitate. The Lord Mayor—is not that in your hand-writing, and is not that usrsal? The Count put his finger upon a line, and said, "Why, yes, this is." The Lord Mayor—Give the Count a pen and ink, and let him write, and we'll tell him whether it is or not.-(A lingh.) The Count wrote a few words and handed the paper to the Lord favor.

and we'll tell him whether it is or not--ca ungary. The Count wrote a few words and handed the paper to the Lord Mayor. The Lord Mayor--Why, yes, to be sure it is your hand-writing, every word of it. The Count-Yes, my Lord, it is my writing. I met Mrs. Muller at Hamburch, and she wanted vera mush money, so I wrote for her. I an a Gentleman and Literator. The Lord Mayor-Exactly so, and she has been handing about your Countslip and your magnificent seal to make dupes of people. I believe these two women to be guilty.--(Here Mrs. B. said, "Oh!" and three back her head as if about to faint.)-Oh.don't faint. But I don't think the case is one in which a conviction could be obtained; it therefore shall discharge them. See how fast Mrs. Bowditch recovers from her fit.--(Great laughter at the expedition with which the recovery took place.) Mrs. Bowditch was about to relapse, when The Lord Mayor said-You may ro away; but if ev. I catch you at this work again ['I] send you as rosues and vagabonds to Bridewell. And, Count Wackerharth, if you lend your name and fine seal to people of this kind you'll be taken for one of the parties, and run a chance of the discipline of the tread-wheel, although you are a Count. --(Great laughter.) JOHN BULL.

LONDON, OCTOBER 27.

LONDON, OCTOBER 27. THE Court remained at Windsor until yesterday, when their MAJESTIES proceeded to Brighton, where they pro-pose to remain till the first week in March, unless unfore-seen circumstances—and upon which no man can confidently calculate—should interfere to alter the arrangement. On Wednesday the Honourable CHARLES WELLESLEY, eldest son of Lord COWLEY, and nephew to the Duke of WELLINGTON, was married to the Hon. OLIVIA de Roos, daughter of the late Baroness de Roos by the late Lord HENRY FITZGERALD, and sister of the present Baron (the premier Baron of England). The bride was given away by the KING, and the ceremony was honoured by the presence of Her MAJESTY. His Grace the Duke of WELLINGTON was also present, as were several branches of the two families, and the superior officers of the Household. The Bishop of WORCESTER performed the Ceremony, and Lady GEORGINA HOWE and Miss TAYLOR were the bridesmaids. After the marriage the happy couple proceeded to the Queen's Lodge, in Busly-park, to spend the loney moon. Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of CUM-

Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of CUM-BERLAND and Prince GEORGE have arrived safely at Berlin.

THE aspect of our domestic affairs is becoming extremely we have collated the accounts of proceedings at the seriousvarious Anti-tax Meetings of the metropolis, and a detail of what took place upon the seizure of some goods belonging to a Mr. SAVAGE, of Marylebone, which, taken together, afford the most unequivocal evidence of the consequences of

This is all extremely fine-but which is a the former $t_{\rm ext}$ and the the set and the set warfare—so they actually call it—against the Government that has betrayed and the Ministers who have deceived them.

 This is all extremely fine—but what happens? Goods are seized belonging to a man who refuses to pay, but who, acting upon the avowed principles of the Association, makes no resistance to the seizure—not he—he is no revolutionist—and his goods are put into a van and wheeled off; in its progress through the streets a mob of upwards of a thousand people assemble, and a woman—a poissarde de Londres—rushes from the midst of it, seizes the horse's head, and upbraiding the cowardly men, cries, "On to SAVAGE's."
 The mob follow their leader—amidst yells and execrations the goods are brought back to Mr. SAVAGE's honse, and as soon as the van is emptied, the mob in an instant break it into a thousand pieces.
 The Associations immediately meet, and disclaim these acts of violence—no member of an Association took part in the violence offered or the outrages committed. Here, then, we have the grand exposition of the peril to which we and our lives and properties are exposed. Grant that the members of these associations have no revolutionary objects—grant that they themselves offered no violences and committed no outrages—what does it prove?—that the revolutionary mob, who pay no taxes, who have nothing to low in an overthrow of the country, but everything to gain by a system of an archy and plunder, take instant advantage of the legal resistance—nice legality—of the Associations, to commence their illegal acts of riot and robbery, of which Thursday aforded the first exhibition.
 Those who are old enough to recollect the riots of 1780, know that the principle upon which the mob was first collected was wholly lost sight of in eight-and-forty hours, and that the burnings of prisons, of chapels, and of dwelling-houses, were committed by miscreants who, taking advantage of a popular ferment to commit these excesses, turned them to personal advantage in variage of a popular ferment to commit these excesses, turned them to personal advantage in the way of robbery and plunder.

The destruction of the waggon on Thursday-paltry as the object itself is—is the carnest of what is at hand; the man who owned that waggon, whoever he might be, was neither concerned in levying the taxes nor in the distraint—he might have been perfectly ignorant of the use for which it had been hired—he most probably was not a gentleman, and certainly not a Lord—and yet he became liable to popular fury, and his property was triumphantly knocked to atoms by an infuriated mob.
As we have already said, the waggon of itself is not much to talk of—but as a proof of the spirit—as an evidence of the principle, and a type of the character of passive resistance, its destruction is most important: a house—a warehouse—in which the goods might have been destroyed as the waggon—the right to destroy it would have been requally good, and by such a splendid manifestation of popular courage and independence an innocent man might in an hour have been reduced to beggary.
This, we repeat, is the alarming part of the present rising against the Government. Lord GREY—unhappy man—has husself told us of the danger of opening the door—and never too often can it be repeated upon him. What does he think now of the acknowledge difficulty of closing it?—has he given it up hopelessly?—why is he not here, at the post of danger?—dowing that the Guards were under arms all Thursday night?—is that the way he means to shut the door? Nom can defend or palline the conduct of the anti-tax meetings—no man can justify their conduct—they boast of "their property, and deny the state their support. Deluded, it was the state their support.

weak, and wicked men, will not the affair of Thursday warn them of their fate?—Will it not teach them what, in the confusion they are creating, they themselves are to expect? Firm to our principles in good report or evil report, we hold it to be our duty, without regard to party differences, to uphold the Sovereign and the country. The difficulties of the Ministers and the dangers of the State are evident; far be it from any man professing Conservative politics either to triumph in the results of their blunderings and faithlessness, or to endeavour to embarrass or impede their efforts at ex-trication from the awful perils with which they and their country are threatened.

commons: What must his feerings be at this junctife of affairs? It really seems as if the moment had arrived when a great stringgle must be made—not by Whig against Tory, or Conservative against Whig; but by the Royalists against the Revolutionists. We confess we see the collision fastsap-proaching; the tone in which the speakers at the meetings address their hearers, the avowed contempt for distinction of persons, the coarse allusions to the KING, betrayed and deluded into unpopularity by his popularity-hunting Minis-ters, all speak the mischief which lies under the surface of pacific hostility which these people arow. At such a time, we say, party distinctions should be abolished; but the very first step towards the salvation of the country should be, AND MUST BE, the explision from the KING's councils of themselves inherently Revolutionists and approvers of the mobocracy. bocracy.

There are such, who now either hide their fears of the consequences of their own conduct under a shew of mock disapprobation; or who, unequal to the task of improving the state of affairs, keep aloof altogether. We cannot do better than conclude these few observa-tions with the following paragraph, which we find in the Times of yesterday; nothing can more satisfactorily show the PROPLE the enormity of their crime in opposing a diovernment, or resisting the payment of taxes which that for the enormity of their crime in a prosing diovernment imposes, than seeing such sentiments and opinious expressed in their own journal-the energy of Tory persecution-the leading advocate of Reform-the admirer of LoUIS PHILIPPE and the three glorious days-the worshipper of freedom-the champion of QUEEN CAROLINE, and the friend of revolution all over the world :-orld .

Outputter, and the times, "can be more certain or more gratifying "Nothing," says the Times, "can be more certain or more gratifying than that the sympathies of the grate mass of the inhabitants of this immense metropolis are at present array d on the side of the law, and that the proceedings of the anti- tax associations, which are co-deavouring to excite tunnultuous disturbances, are generally viewed with indiguation and abhorence. The people of England know, better than any other people, that the sametity of public authority must be upheld in eventhing legal,—that the blessing of order cannot be second where individuals or functions perfead to resist the general will get the community at the dictates of theor own judgment, interests, or cuprice,—and that where grievances are left, they must look for rediress through a change in the policy of the state, and not through a battle with its efficient functionaries—through Parliamentary discus-sion, and not through the outrageous violence of a mob."

THE Royal Hospital at Kilmainham—the Chelsea of Ire-land—has ceased to exist. The pensioners, who were secured by the country in the possession of board, lodging, and clothing, are set adrift. Men with wooden legs are obliged to travel for a new home in their old age, and veterans with an eye a-piece compelled to look out for a hovel to hide their heads in. As a compensation for the loss of all their com-forts, and as the amende for breaking the national faith with them, the unfortunate men get an addition of two-pence a-day to their pensions. Here is another blow at the army. To say the least of it, it is an ill-chosen time for such ex-periments. THE Royal Hospital at Kilmainham-the Chelsea of Ire periments. It seems pretty clear that we must make up our minds to a general war on the Continent. How England will be engaged, or what part she will take, depends, of course, upon our excellent Ministers, to whom the absolute neces-sity of universal hostilities may be fairly attributed. The Queen of SPAIN has thrown off the masque and professions and protestations of her first Proclamation ; it seems she has followed Lord HOLLAND's—we beg pardon, Lord PALMERSTON's example, and has recognized the Brazilian Princess as Queen of PORTUGAL. We inadvert-ently said Lord HOLLAND, because his Lordship, we be-lieve, directs Lord PALMERSTON as regularly and success-fully as Mr. EDWARD ELLICE manages Sir HERBERT TAYLOR. No matter—the Queen Regent of SPAIN has as we are confidently told, received the assurance of French support in maintaining the throne for her daughter. In the meantime the liberal newspapers have been enjoy-ing the absence of any late news of Don CARLOS—they have asked where he is, and what he is doing ?—they will know soon enough ; and the very fact of the difielty of as use are qually agitated ; in the Pyrennean vallies the spirit is rapidly spreading, and Don CARLOS in arms; the Astruins are equally agitated ; in the Pyrennean vallies has published a proclamations at Abrantes. From what we of ourselves know we have no doubt of the success of Don CARLOS—and, of course, none of the promised interference of the Clizen-King; the effect of that interference is not pro-blematical; the attempt to spread recolutionary principles and force liberal Constitutions down the throats of the and force liberal constitutions down the throats of the nitons of Europe at the point of the bayonet will be re-sisted ; and while France—is England to be dragged into systems her people detest, as we have heen trying to drive protugal into principles which her inhabitants abhor, the protugal into principles which her inhabitants abhor, the such needless iniquitics, and interpose their au

Preserve that neutrality and non-intervention to which our wretched Ministers stand pledged. Of the eventual success of Don CARLOS, without French intervention, we have not the slightest doubt. The people are with him—the Clergy are with him; and however light the their state of religion, we know that, as Don Mieura, would surely have been seated on his throne long before this, if there had been no interference in favour of his rebellion enemies, so, without the support of revolutionized France, the Queen Regent of SPAIN would not be able to hold her ground for three months. It is quite clear that if the Queen Regent listens to the professions of M. RAYNEVAL, or attends to the suggestions of that infinitely more agreeable and talented person Mr. VILLIERS, M. ZEA BEAMUDEZ cannot long continue her Minister. He would not, we are convinced, have remained in office under her for one moment, if he had not hoped and believed, that he could influence her so far as to secure the existing institutions of his country, without any attempts at new-fangled reforms. If the Regent takes a different course, we hope, for the sake of Spain, and in support of his own personal honour and consistency, which we have ever felt proud to maintain and vindicate, to see M. ZBA BERMUDEZ at the head of the Councils of Den CARLOS, the rightful heir to the throne of Spain. With respect to the King of PORTUGAL, it appears, after all the histories of his defeat, and the annihilation of lis army, that he has designedly fallen back from Lisbon, upon Loure Lumiar and the Estrada de Sacaverm—a distance of twerker with a designedly fallen back from Lisbon, upon Loure there stiming its during and made with the view of still for-ther retiring to Abrantes—which DUMORIEZ said was the kying of SPAIN occurred, it was resolved to withdraw the main body of the Royal Portuguese army from before Lisbon, and whither, since the 3d of October, great quantities of heavy baggage and stores have been removed, it having been finally determined to fortify and victua

THE Morning Post of yesterday says :--We are enabled positively to state that Mr. BELLENDEN KERR and Mr. Le MARCHANT, the Private Secretary of the Lord CHANCEL-on, are the joint authors of the Ministerial Pamphelt." This announcement, some people think, has arisen from the unwillingness of the two learned Scribes to hide their rush-lights under a bushel; but we suspect it has been made at the desire, or under the orders, of those to whom the pamphlet has been very generally attributed, in order to rescue those noble, wise, and honoureable personages from the blame of it. It is curious, at all events, to see the arowal peep out so immediately after the lashing the pamphlet has the plane of $h_{\rm c}$ is better of the lashing the pamplifet has got in the present number of the Quarterly, in an article which proves to demonstration the absolute folly of its exul-tations, the falsehood of its assertions, and the absurdity of tatious

Which proves to demonstration the absolute folly of its exui-tations, the falsehood of its assertions, and the absurdity of its enlogiums upon the conduct of the Ministry, which it professes to worship and admire. The pamphlet opens with a declaration that the first Ses-sion of the Reformed Parliament has closed without producing the effects anticipated either by the Duke of WELLINGTON or Mr. CROKER—the DUKE having asked Lord GREY how any Ministry would be able to carry on a Government if the Bill pressed, and Mr. CROKER having said that " the first sensible effect of the Bill would probably be on that part of the prerogative which the Quarterly says :— "Accordingly the very first sensible optration on the Government insiters." Upon which the Quarterly says :— "Accordingly the very first sensible optration on the Government all his former popularity that he was—(on an opportunity which he very unnecessarily, we think, afforded)—most unceremoniously detruded from that Reformed Parliament which he had helped to call into existence; and the office vacated by him was filled by a person who (however otherwise fito candidates was sure of his a vaced approbation of the Ministry, with the avowd approbation of the Ministry, with the avowd approbation of the Ministry with the source of the passed to restore to the Crown that percogave of schult the referse fito restore to the Cover mater to be called by a schult he three first months of the Reform Bill have shewn it to be actually deprived."

This fulfilment of Mr. CROKEN'S predictions renders the allusion of the pamphlet-writers to their groundlessness somewhat ridiculous. The Quarterly then says that Mr. CROKEN'S next "terror"—which the pamphlet-writers affect to ridicule—was thus expressed (in his celebrated speech):—

It is said that on the late trial of PALMER, of bill notoriety, for felony, the Magistrates at Clerkenwell, while they themselves dined, allowed the Jury to go at large; and that the defendant intends to impuga the verdict on that ground by writ of error.

The Lords of the Admiralty have resolved to appoint young and The Lorus of the Administry have resolven to appoint young and effective lieutenants as directors of police at Chatham and Sheeneas yards. Lieut. FRANCIS GRAT, of the Ordinary at Chatham, has been accordingly appointed director of police in Chatham dock-yard; and Lieut. Epwart Wiss to the same situation at Sheerness. We understand the former director wardens, Lieut. CockRAFT, made lieutenant in 1790, and Lieut, Dr. MONTNORENCY, made in 1801, are, in cense quence of their long and honourable services, to continue to enjoy the same benefits as they did as wardens, and to be provided with residences until opportunity offers to bring them again forward in situations more suitable and adapted to their age and long servitude. -Maidstone Gazette.

By His Majesty's steamer Hermes we have intelligence from Greece of some importance. As we predicted from the beginning, the throne of King OTHO is unsteady. A conspiracy, headed by COLOCOTRONI has been discovered, and he is arrested. Martial law was proclaimed, the Bayarians were dying in great numbers, and those who could escape were meditating a return to Germany; on the whole Greece presents a most melancholy aspect.

It is reported, with a great show of probability, that his MAJESTY has expressed his intention of creating a few Peers, with a view of preventing those unscendy and dangerous collisions which have recently taken place between the two Houses of Parliament. Lord DUNRAVEN, as a resident landlord and a liberal politician, is eaid to be one of those about to be introduced into Parliament; and a worthier choice certainly could not be made. Mr. SHAPLAND CAREW, the Lord Lieutenant of the county, and Member for Wexford, is another. The third Irish gentleman whose name has been mentioned to us is Mr. Sr. Gronge, of Tyrone, in the county of Galway, a Gentleman of great property, and all his life astaunch Whig.-Dublia Post.—We can positively state that the report that Sir John Ker is to be created Lord KINGSMILL is wholly without foundation.

We have seen a letter from the Governor of Madeira, dated 2d inst., which states that the 29th Sept. (St. Michael's day) had been celewhich states that the 29th Sept. (St. Michael's day) had been cele-brated with every demonstration of joy in that island, and vivas to Micure, the First were heard in all directions. The troops, who appeared well appointed on the parade to celebrate the day, joined with the populace in expressions of loyalty to the King. In the evening there was a spontaneous illumination, and the troops and populace were domains and achilities other deconstrations of joy populace were dancing and exhibiting other demonstrations of joy during the greater part of the night.

The Mediterranean steam packet brings letters from Patras of the 30th ult. The discontent and disturbances increase in Greece, and the Greco-Bavarian Government is fully occupied in suppressing conspiracies. Troops had been sent from Nauplia to Times to suppress insurrection ; and Colecutrons, Coloroulo, GRIVAS, GAVELLAS, and mentrection; and Colecotrons, Collorouto, CRIVAS, CALEmand many other Greek Chiefe, had been arrested. Martial law had been proclaimed for offences against the Government. King Orno was at proclaimen for opences against the Government. A mill of the 25th ult-Navarin. On Thursday evening, so great was the alarm in the metropolis on the seizure of the goods of Mr. Savace, of Circus-street, Marylebone, for the house and window duties, that orders were issued from the Horse Guards for the Cultures that the King's Horse Guards for the Coldstream battalion of Guards at the King's Mews Barracks, Charing cross, to be in readiness, and keep under arms. Mr. Bennett, Luyus. J. BAIRROW. On board the Isabella, of Hull, Baffin's Bay, Sept., 1833. Sin-Knowing how deeply my Lords Commissioners of the Admi-galty are interested in the advancement of nautical knowledge, and particularly in the improvement of geography. I have to acquaint particularly in the improvement of peography. I have to acquaint particularly in the improvement of peography. I have to acquaint particularly in the improvement of peography. I have to acquaint prince Regent's Inlet, and which sailed from England in May, 1829, particularly which obliged the vessel to refit in Greenland, reached the beach on which his Majesty's late ship Fury's stores were landed to be store of the works. After completing in fuel and other neces-markances, which obliged the vessel to refit in Greenland, reached the beach on which his Majesty's late ship Fury's stores were landed or the 13th of August. We found the boats, provisions, &c., in excellent condition, but years and the boats, provisions, which were and the start the western shore close on board, ran down the coast in a S.W. and W. course, in from 10 to 20 fathoms, until we had passed the latitude of 27, north in longitude 94. west; here we found a considerable trance, the shallowness of the water, the rapidity of the ides, the tempestuous weather, the irregularity of the coast, and the nume-possinets and rocks for which it is remarkable, our progress was po less dangerous than tedious, yet we succeeded in penetrating after having carired us as far east as 90, took a decided westerly direction, while land at the distance of 40 miles to southward was seen extending east and west. At this extreme point our progress was arcsteding the the distance of 40 miles to southward was seen actending east and west. At this extreme bolt our progress was arcstedio on the 150 October by an impenetrable barrier of ice. We, however, found an excellent wintering port, which we named heredly in January, 1830, we had the good fortune to establish

The next day, when the rate abated, we crossed Ad-miralty Inlet, and were detained six days on the coast by a strong north-cast wind. On the 20th we crossed Navy Board Inlet, and on the following morning, to our inexpressible joy, we descride a ship in the offing, becalmed, which proved to be the lsabella, of Hull, the same slip which I commanded in 1818. At noon we reached her, when her enterprizing commander, who had in vain searched her, when her enterprizing commander, who had in vain searched her, when her enterprizing commander, and hospitality which I manity could dictate. I ought to mention also that Mr. Humpireys, by landing me at Possession Bay, and subsequently on the west coast of Bafin's Bay, alforded me an excellen topoptunity of con-cluding my survey, and of verifying my former chart of that coast. My steady and faithful friend, Mr. William Thom, of the Royal Navy, who was formerly with me in the Isabella, beides his duty as third in command, took charge of the metereological journal, the distribution and economy of provisions, and to his judicious plans and suggestions must be attributed the uncommon degree of health which our crew enjoyed; and as two out of the three who died during the four years and a hilf were cut off early in the voyage. by diseases not peculiar to the climate, only one man can besaid to have perished. Mr. MJ Jairmid, the surgeon who had been several voyages to three regions. did justice to the high recommendation I received of him: he would be an ornament to His Majesty's service. Bank Long Ann. 16 11-16 11 Consense for Account S/i 3 The civil war in Spain appears to be making considerable progress. It appears that almost all the northern provinces are in arms for Don Carlos, and the fidelity of the troops of the Queen is not to be im-plicitly relied upon. The following is from Pampeluna, dated Oct. 16.:—" We have had blood shed in this city. The revolutionists have shown what we are to expect from them. Santos Ladron has been shot, and that without trial or condemnation. This measure has produced its natural consequences. The population of Pampe-luna has risen en masse for Don Carlos. The very next day 700 young Spaniards of the first families of Navarre rose in this city in his favour. They all left the city armed, and forming themselves into Corps of volunteers, joined the Carlist Guerrillas. The whole of Navarre is in flames. Santos Ladron will be avenged. The insur-rection is going on most rapidly; and the whole of our province is in a state of size...

About nine o'clock yesterday morning the Sheriffs Harmer and Wilson accompanied the sheriffs' Officers, who had under their orders about a dozen constables, and proceeded from the police-office in Mariborough street to make a levy of goods in the event of a continued refusal of payment, upon two shopkespers in Oxford street. In one case only was it necessary to make a seizure of property, which was effected under the immediate personal superintendence of the Sheriffs. Upon the second householder being applied to, and an instant seizure of goods being threatened, he complied with be demand, and paid the sum due by him. The Sheriffs then went on ward to Lisson-grove, where another householder who had refused to pay up his arrears of taxes, upon the threat of an instantaneous eizure of goods being enforced, produced the money, and thus eacaped the consequences of alvy.

The Dutch papers contain the badget of 1834, as proposed to the Second Chamber of the States General on the 28th alt. The finan-rial affairs of the King of the Netherlands appear to be admirably manaded. One item forces itselfon our attention. "You will find," says the Dutch Minister, "that the colonies will furnish to the mother compared the propert to gave put down to the ordinary, and 500,000 to the extraordinary revenue. This is a large credit of Holland, possessed, in the midst affairs to taken the down to the ordinary, and 500,000 to the extraordinary revenue. This is a large credit of Holland, possessed, in the midst affairs to taken to take a state of the state distress of the moment, still less to conceal the apprehensions that may be entertained for the future (but somethe) I may ay, that if we compare our financial situation with that of other countries, and even reals on those, and none to despair, that concord at home, confi-dence in the Government, and pace alroad, may yety well bring the result of the State into a safe larbour." The Genema napers of the 28th uft, inform us that much anxiety exists in Vienna with respect to the affairs of the Peninsula. The Belgian question is there considered as of ascondary importance, when compared with "the events which are occurring beyond the Pyrenees." By his Maiesty's ship Rattlessade we have received the Buenos

By his Majesty's ship Rattlesnake we have received the Buenos Ayres mail conveyed by the Hornet to Rio Janeiro. The dates from Buenos Ayres are to the 9th of August. Tranquillity had been re-stored to the province of Cordova by that old-fashioned republican specific-shooting some of the leaders of the adverse faction. The House of Representatives had not determined on an answer to the Executive respecting the suspension of the election in June, and areat excitement continued to prevail. The winter had been nuusually severe, and business ware adult. The Government had issued a Decree allowing the exportation of coined gold and silver, but prohibiting for, as there are no mints in the country to coin the bullion, it amounts to a prohibition altogether.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, NOVEMBER 3. THEIR MAJESTIES arrived at Brighton on Saturday and continue in the enjoyment of excellent health.

THE stock-jobbers on Monday murdered the King of PORTUGAL, whom they represented as mortally wounded, in his luuried retreat before the victorious rebels under the Brazilian ex-Emperor. It is needless to add, as the joke-writers say, that there is not a word of truth in the report. Don MIGUEL as we last week said, long before this well-described sortie from Lisbon, had resolved upon occupying Abrantes; and in pursuance of that resolution he has fallen back upon it. The war is not yet over; neither is the QUEEN of Downing-street and the Tuileries, yet Queen of POR-TUGAL. TUGAL

TUGAL. TUGAL. The cause of Don CARLOS is silently but seriously pros-pering. The barbarities which have been committed by the subordinates of the Regency have failed in their effect, ,or rather, they have produced a very violent effect, of a per-fectly different nature from that which was anticipated. We spoke advisedly when we foretoid the certainty of the success of Don CARLOS, if the QUEEN'S party were un-aided by foreign troops—of this opinion we still remain. The KING and QUEEN of the Belgians are at Paris. His MAJEST was graciously pleased to bleed a courier who fell from his horse in the road. A grand ball was given at the Tuileries in honour of the Royal arrival, the company at which was very numerous.

THE effect produced by Baron SMITH's charge to the Juries in Ireland, has been very great—it has caused many very faces at the Castle. Outrages in Kilkenny—in King's County—and Queen's County, are again becoming extremely common: the means of enforcing the Coercion Bill having been removed by the new Government, it seems most probable, as we a few weeks since anticipated, that the usual winter disturbances may be renewed: in order to verify what has been so often observed, with regard to Ireland, that she can only be either in a state of anarchy or under the coercion of severe laws. Is it not melancholy that she should first have been quacked, and then dosed to remove the effects of the quackerv.

quackery. Mr. O'CONNELL'S appearance in Dublin is anxiously ex-pected; then will be made evident the effect which has been produced upon his mind by the arguments and reasonings of Lord PLUNKETT and Mr. ANTHONY BLAKE. We feel A LOTA FLUNKETT and Mr. ANTHONY BLAKE. We teel pretty sure that he will make no decision as to joining the Government, until after the Rint day; but we are perfectly convinced that the negociation is still pending, although, as Mr. BLAKE has for some time been looking after the Mastership of the Rolls for himself, he seems to have the Mastership of the Rolls for himself, he seems to have been a very old person to employ to prevail upon O'CON-NELL to take it. The fears of the Government induce them to catch at any

The fears of the Government induce them to catch at any support, however disgraceful and dangerous it may be—and we can tell them that the only chance of keeping the revo-intion within any bounds is denying themselves such aid as Mr. O'CONNELL can give them. The movement of the people both in Ireland and England is against property; a union between the best of the Conservatives with the DURHAM principle is adopted—all must go.

DURHAM principle is adopted—all must go. THE Earl of DURHAM is, perhaps, the luckiest man in the world—he has been seeking for notoriety in his dignified retirement, and, in one fortnight, has attained as much as would satisfy the veriest glutton. The noble Earl—who, let it never be forgotten, is indebted for his peerage to the almost culpable kindness and good nature of the Duke of WELLINGTON—after having rooted up Mr. WARD's posts and rails in the 1sle of Wight—after having been subjected to the untoward circumstance of having a flag of his own hoisted over the Royal Standard of England, in his yacht at Cherbourg; and after having year worried by the accidental display of the revolutionary tri-colour rag of liberalized France, at the top-mast head of the said yacht in the Tyne, the said tri-colour rag turning out to be nothing more than No. 3 of the signal flags of the Royal Political Yacht Squadron,—has been most shamefully charged by the Durham Advertiser with having ordered a village to be swept from the earth because his carriage was stopped in its street. be swept from the earth because his carriage was stopped in its street. This allegation caused a considerable effect upon the public mind, more especially as the just published number of the Quarter/g gives an account of an African chief of the name of CHAKA, "who suffers no one to see him eat or "drink; his chiefs approach him in a crawling attitude; if "any one should laugh or smile, or cough or sneeze, he is "immediately put to death. One ugly person having dis-"turbed the screnity of his features he called out--' Take "turbed the screnity of his features he called out--' Take proceedings against the proprietors of the newspaper, in which we find--and therefore think it right to give--the following disclaimer:--The Durham Advertiser says:--

The Durham Advertiscr says :-

We understand his Lordship's letter to allude to a paragraph h appeared in our columns on the 4th instant, stating that, in equence of the Noble Earl having met with some annoyance in the village of Multidelphia, he had threatened, and subsequently given orders, that 'that village should be swept from off the face of the serth.' It must, we think, be writen to every one who has given the subject the least consideration, that the editor of a news-paper, however cassitons he may be, cannot at all limes avoid misin-formation. As repards ourselves, we do our best to guard against it, notvithetuding which we do, like the generality of our contem-poraries, sometimes find ourselves wrong. We believe we have been ded into an error with respect to the paragraph in guaviton, which reached us from a quarter that forbade us to doubt of its accuracy, and gave us confidence in its truth; indred we considered that the party from whom the information proceeder was more likely to con-ceal than give publicity to a state area which might be considered to the disadvantage of Lord Durnass. That a report corre-sponding with that which we published, in almaion, however, to the village of Wapping instand of Philadelphia, must in circulation at theister to Street mud its neighbourhood is must certain, and it is not denied, each by his Lordship s friends. that the former village is to be publied down, though the cause of its intradet removal is not draited on by his Lordship s friends. that the former village is to be publied down, though the cause of its intradet removal is not draited con the werey statement. After the Noble Earl's supparified con-tradiction to our paragraph, we are bound to believe that it is not thrue, and we therefore must express our rearet that it is should have been admitted into our columns, our most anxious desire being to exclude from them every statement which is not based on truth."

and we therefore indic typics our regirt that it should have been admitted into our columns, our most antious deaire being to exclude from them every statement which is not based on truth." The measures which Lord DURHAM has thought proper to institute against the Advertiser have produced much more discussion than, in our opinion, either the Lord or the subject deserves—it has also produced a great deal of Whig scurrillity directed against the Tories, which, as the Whigs are uniformly the aggressors in libel and vituperation, comes with an ill grace from that quarter, as does the sweeping and flippant denunciation of the anecdotes of Whiggery as false-loods, which from time to time it becomes necessary to give to the public in order to illustrate the character of the party. —But the best part of the joke is, that Lord DURHAM should be found attacking the press—he, who is known to be one of the sharpest lampoon writers in the political world. Lord DURHAM, however, has saved us much trouble in establishing the truth of most of the charges which have been made against himself—his party—his family—his mind, and his feelings, by making, in the course of a few hours, such a display as man perhaps never made before. In order to soothe the anger and anguish of his Lordship's mind, and restore serenity to a temper which angels them-selves might envy, his partizans and others—friends we apprelend his Lordship to have few—got up a public dinner in his honour, before, and at which, the proceedings were such, that we deeply lament the want of space to give au account of them in detail. apprehend his Lordship to have few—got up a public dinner in his honour, before, and at which, the proceedings were such, that we deeply lament the want of space to give an account of them in detail.
It seems that as soon as this public festival was resolved upon, Mr. CHARLES ATTWOOD, President of the Northern Political Union, wrote to a Mr. BROCKETT, the Secretary of the Dinner Committee, to Know whether it was intended to compliment Ministers on the occasion, and restrain the free expression of the popular feeling against them; to which Mr. BROCKETT, with a certain justifiable degree of secretarian circumlocution, replied, like Lord Grizzle in Tom. Thumoh, that "as far as he could guess he did not Know." Equivocation would not answer the purpose of their High Hightinesses the Political Unionists, by whose grace and favour the Ministry exists, and therefore it was determined by Mr. ATTWOOD and his lifes, that if Lord DURHAM came to Gateshead he should be favoured with grace before dinner, in the shape of an Address cranmed full of the real sentiments of the reformers of that district.
Accordingly, when the illustrious Earl made his appearace for the purpose of being fed, Mr. ATTWOOD, who had posted himself at the head of about three thousand persons in the court leading to the Black Bull, where the banquet was preparing, the moment his Lordship's carriage approached, rushed forward with his address—out jumped Lord DURHAM, and after him ran Mr. ATTWOOD, rushing through the interposing crowd of ostless and waiters as a Catamaran-man buffets the surfs at Madras, following his Lordship into the ante-room ; here Mr. ATTWOOD, the farmer during for protection—white, instead of yellow, with alarm. Much violence was used, and Mr. ATTWOOD quilted the from in the chaftist othe PROPLE, who, after hissing and groaning in honour of the Noble Earl, dispersod.

upon compulsion, however the object may be obtained, lusse hal is grace, and very often all its value." (Loud cheers.) Whether this is Lord GREY's intended method of proceeding we know not-that it is Lord 'HOLLAND's principle we do know-and we are quite satisfied of its ultimate success us far as the "CROWN and the GOVERNMENT going;" yet we cannot reconcile this amiable agreement to the desires af the people, with the extensive military preparations so properly made last Monday for putting down, and cutting down, if necessary, the Reformers, who refuse to pay taxes.

down, if necessary, the Reformers, who refuse to pay taxes. It is not unamusing to find his Lordship, when he re-covered from his fright, attributing to the Tories all the manifestations of hatred and unpopularity by which he was assailed: the Tories had as much to do with it, as his own particular friends—The Reformers—the deluded Reformeri, were the persons who rebelled against the gagging system, upon which this grand political dinner was conducted. Amongst the toasts we find "The Coal Trade." and alter that "The Ladies." nor should it be forgotten in the midst of the respect due to the KING, to whom in his constitutional capacity we owe our duty and allegiance, and by whom in his personal character Lord GREV and his nine hundred and ninety-nine sons, daughters, brothers, brothers.in-law, children of different sorts, uncles, anucs, and cousins from the first to the sixteenth degree, are supported and mais tained, that the health of the QUEEN was speciously and pur-posely omitted. The health of King Cone's with was draw —but that of her MAJESTY was not offered to the company —ice man!—noble man !—the next Lord the Duke of WELLINGTON makes we hope will be something better than this. We company the species without series results the than this.

We cannot quit the subject without again recurring to the extraordinary incaution of his Lordship in attacking the press, the liberty of which, has always been his farourit-theme—more especially after what he has himself done in theme—more especially after what he has himself done h-the literary way. We would advise his Lordship to go and look at a picture (we do not mean the splendid SALVATOR ROSA which he bought at the close of the bubble year, 1825) which now hangs in the National Gallery, and having consulted that beautiful work of art, ask himself—"Who should cast the first stone" against the freedom of the press? Lord GREY, we are happy to hear, is dancing "hey cockolorum jig" with the housemaids at Howick, and there-fore we should, if we did not see through the "plaing," imagine that his Lordship thought well of things in general. We know what his real feelings are, and we suspect we can anticipate what his next measure will be. We can tell him that he will fail in his efforts—HE is not the person likely to obtain the support he requires.

that he will fail in his efforts—HE is not the person inkey to obtain the support he requires. We ought to add, that the sensation created by the con-duct of Lord DURHAM to the Political Unionists, greatly out-weighs in evil to himself and his faction, the good pro-duced by a sharm festival, got up by his own family com-nexions and their creatures.

THE puffers of Ministers talk of English prosperity and THE puffers of Ministers talk of English prosperity and English tranquillity—they would do well to look to the present state of incendiarism in this country; not a night passes but fires occur in every part of the kingdom, all avowedly the works of newly-installed SWINGS. This is a very curious mark of prosperity, and the impunity with which the crime is committed a strong evidence of the activity of the Home Department.

The United Service Journal is full of important and in-terating matter, from which we shall next week make some extracts; and the New Monthly Magazine seems to have taken a new lease; all its articles are more or less talented, and its general character is vastly improved. We see that the Honourable Mrs. NORTON continues to edit the Court Magazine, which contains a beautiful portrait of the beautiful Lady SARAH BAYLEY, and other embellish-ments. The contributions to this work are all of a superior character, and its "getting up," as the publishers call it, is beyond praise. We will

THE Assessed Tax war seems to be raging, if not so

I the Assessed Tax war seems to be raging, if not so vio-leally, at least more seriously and systematically than it was last weak and we must admit that the measures adopted by the unfortunate people to whom the Government is still alted to encrease the excitement which their hollow profes-ions and airty violations of promises have naturally created. We consider the whole affair so entirely matter of history that we unhasimality make copious extracts from the reports of the proceedings of the different meetings which have been held upon the subject, never forgetting to observe, that the strong military preparations by which the people have been awed—we do not meas those elaborated prepara-tions by the building of new barracks in every direction, but by the actual "qui vice" arrangements of Saturday and Monday, when the Foot Guards and the Horse Guards were under arms, and orderlies were ready mounted to bing up Monday, when the Foot Guards and the Horse Guards were under arms, and orderlies were ready mounted to bring up the Artillery from Woolwich-(who, thank Gon and the libe-ral Government, are next year to be quartered in St. James's Park)-that all these just and proper preparations were made for putting down the "great unwashed" who, at Bristol, and Nottingham, and in sundry other places, were, in the beginning of the career of Reform, permitted to mur-der, burn, and plunder, just as they liked. At all events, the Ministers, if they have learned nothing else in three years, have learned the necessity of treating their dear dirty friends with balls, of which-bless the civil govern-ment of Lord GREV, in opposition to the military tyranny of the Duke of WELLINGTON-forty rounds per man were served out.

This is capital—SAVAGE, the man who resisted, and still resists the taxes—MURPHY, the man who heads the mobs—both these gentlemen were talked of as Members for Marybone, and Mr. MURPHY actually went to the poll. Little did these deluded asses, when they were flattered by Lord JOHN RUSSELL and upheld by Lord ALTHORP, believe that it would turn out that, instead of their being Representatives of the new borough, the KING'S Attorney-General would be returned, who, in a few months, would be employed to prosecute them for their opposition to the laws. Whits, if they imagined that they would be permitted to share in the profits of the mischief to which they had contributed. There are, however, some shades in revolutionism—if there be such a word—which are delightful ; we shall take occasion to exhibit them in the course of our selection of the results of the Anti-Tazamania assemblies. On Saturday Mr. Sheriff Alderman HARMER (mercy on us !) and Mr. Alderman Sheriff VILSON personally pro-ceeded to make seizures of property under the auspices of the Government—the accounts of which, and their suc-cess, have no doubt, long before this, been in the hands of our readers. We need only remark that this SAVAGE, having excited the mob by his illegal resistance, led it, to the amount of nearly a thousand persons, to the New-road, when, having got them there, and quailing, as the unwashed universally do at the moment of action, ran away, jumped into an omnibus, and left the dirty fools gaping at the dirtier knave. Mr. HARMER, of Ingress Park, in the county of Kent, Sheriff and Alderman, &c. &c. &c., upon this occasion de-clared he would have no soldiers—nothing but Sheriff's offeers—not even the Police, to assist him ; while Mr. Sheriff WILSON vowed he would have nothing less than three companies of soldiers. As it was, the worthy Sheriff scarried off the property of those who persisted in their refusal to pay their taxes, and got builled and abused accordingly. Immediately after these proceedings, the people of St. ANDREW'S, Holborn, and its rural adjunct, St. GEORGE THE MARTYR, placarded their district with the following :— "Assessen TAXES.—Sr. ANDREW, HOEDORA, NDS T. GOORGE THE Martyra, MIDDLESEX.—Persons who may be distrained on in these parishes, through their insbilly to pay the oppressive house and whod waxes, we requested to forward the earliestinformation of the occurrence to be Connistee." present Ministers and the present House of Commons you have little to expect." Here we have Col. EVAN's opinion not only of the Minis-ters but of the first Rc formed Parlianent. For ourselves we have a very high opinion of Colonel EVANS, and we were quite sincere when we recommended Lord GREV to make him Sccretary at War—he is as brave as his sword (as the French say)—he is an accomplished and agreeable gentle-man in society, and has much distinguished himself in military literature, and is about as much of a Radical as Lord GREV himself in the is an independent man—he took up the cause of Reform no doubt sincerely—he finds now that the whole thing was a humbug and a cheat, and he tells his consti-tuents so—and he tells them so truly. Whether the Gallant Colonel would have said as much if he had been Secretary at War we cannot undertake to guess. Mr. EDWARD ELLICE thinks little less. But to our tax_people:—

BLICE thinks little less. But to our tax-people:— On Monday there was a meeting of the people of St. Pancras—Mr. KING, whoever he may be, in the Chair. Mr. WooD said "that HARMER the Sheriff and his officers had been uncommon leuient in seizing the goods in Mary-hone, and that was something, because it could not be sup-posed that Mr. HARMER, who knew a good deal of what the law could do, would be very civil unless Government had put him up to it." The same gentleman said he had written to a Major REVELL (whose name was formerly Reade), who was also a talked-of candidate for that district, who had written him a laconic note—or rather line—to say be would take no part in the affair.

This Mr. NICHOLSON, one of the Birmingham Union, declares that he wrote a letter to the KING'S CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, charging him with DISHONESTY, and that the Noble Lord answered the letter, and not only answered the letter, but explained away his conduct. If BARBER SHARPE does not cut the hog-feeding Minister after this, we give up the Poles for ever.

On Wednesday the Deputation from this redoubtable assembly proceeded to the Home Office—they had not insulted Lord MELBOURNE, if they had, we suspect he would not have endured it quite so quietly; they sent in their business, and were admitted into his Lordship's room, where they found the Noble Viscount and his brother GEORGE—whom the Cocknies, in consequence of his having studied for the law, call the BAR-LAMB:-

DUBLIN, Oct. 27 .-- The Marchioness WELLESLEY, accompanied by Miss Caron, her Ladyship's sister, arrived at Kingstown yesterday by the Firebrand steamer, and proceeded to the Viceregal Lodge in the Phoenix Park, where they arrived at half past four o'clock. The LORD LIEUTERANT was in attendance at a Privy Council at the Castle when the arrival of the Marchioness was announced. His Excellency immediately left the Castle, in a carriage and pair, to join her Ladyship .- To be sure,

The Devonport Telegraph has the following curious intelligence :-"It is reported in circles worthy of credit, that a union is contem-plated between Sir HENRY HALFORD, M.D., and the Princess SOFHIA. and that Parliament will be applied to on the subject."

His Holiness the Pors has addressed the following letter to LEGTOLD, congratulating him on the happy delivery of the QUEEN,

We have authority to state that the plan for establishing a Policeoffice in Finsbury-equate is countermanded. On Wednesday last the Master of the Rolls heard the application of the city against the roposed measure, and granted an injunction accordingly. Thursday orning the workmen on the premises were ordered to discontinue their labours.

Tuesday afternoon, about three o'clock, Captain Ross waited upon the Commissioners of Police in Scotlandyard, for the purpose of giving information of a loss he had sustained. It appears that Capt, Ross had had in the morning an interview with the Lords of the Admiralty, to whom he presented some of his papers connected with his late perilous exploit, which, on his departure, were restored to The Captain called a cabriolet off the stand in Parliament him. street, and desired the man to drive to his residence at the Portland Hotel. Within ten minutes after his arrival, he, to his confusion, discovered that he had, unfortunately, left in the cab the whole of his important documents and papers he had only just before presented.---This it is to be a genius .- Captain Ross has recovered his papers. The driver of the cabriolet in which he left them, announced, carried the papers to the Portland Hotel, and delivered them to the Captain.

Forty omnibuses and stages start within every hour between Pad dington and the Bank ; and it is calculated that more pers by stages on that road every day than fifty years ago travelled on all the roads in the kingdom.

The Whig writers are not very complimentary to the Whigs Minis-ers. The Westminster Review says-" There would have been a ters. disposition to rely on the Ministers to some certain extent. Non nobody has faith either in their honesty or firmness. The Whigs, indeed, are to be feared. Avowers of good and doers of mischief. Ignorant. self sufficient, wanting honest enthusiasm, what reliance can the people put on them? Let the events of the Session speak for them. The people have been in fault certainly for choosing such a House. The men who govern the country look neither behind nor before them. The whole world is to them the little spot on which they stand, eternity the moment present. They have not principle, and are crushed by detail."

The talented Editor of the Examiner favours them with the following :-- " There is no soundness in their understandings, no power of fathoming a subject even of not extraordinary depth. The person who talks loudest and longest to them carries them along The with him; nor have they even the ordinary good sense to distrust suggestions which come from an interested quarter."

"Happen what may, the authority of Government has received a damage in the hands of these Ministers which can never be repaired till the Constitution is re-cast."

"We are obliged, therefore, when we find the same men at the same time actually crusading against everything which is called avery in the remote parts of the gibbe, and battling for it at home as forthe they are averse to, but only the name ; and that their quarrel will tyranny is not with the tyranny 'itself, but solely with its unpopularity."

Letters from Mexico of the 24th of August, and from Real del Letters from Mexico of the 29th of August, and from Real del Monte of the 20th, received by way of New York, state that the country continued in a very disturbed and unsettled condition. The country continued in a very disturbed and unoctated condition. The President, SANTA ANNA, had returned from the north, and repre-sented that he had lost 2,000 of his army by the cholera, which sented that he had lost zoor of his army by the choiera, which disease was likewise making great ravages among the lower classes in the city of Mexico. At Real del Monte only one death had taken In the city of measure, and the sense of the sense of the city is and the place, that of the messenger last arrived from the city; and the mining operations there, which had previously been interrupted by recruiting parties from both armies, were at the above date going on the sense of with activity and increased prosperity. A party of ABINTA's who had possession of Julancingo, a village about eight leagues from Real del Monte, had been defeated by SANTA ANNA's troops, and were proceeding northward, it was supposed for the purpose of joining the main body of the insurgent troops under Anısra himsel, was was said by the last accounts to have been at Guanaxuato, where, in the adjoining intendancies, it was understood that ARISTA's party were making head against the Government.

The journeymen tailors, following the example of other workmen, have just proposed a charter to their masters. This attempt a revolution presents a notable progress; thus the stone cutters; the carpenters, the gilders, the paper hanging makers, &c., limited their demand to an increase of wages and a diminution of work The tailors likewise require an augmentation of wakes, and are-duction of the hours of work; but they demand more, with a view probably of gaining over the periodical press to their interest. The require the time necessary for reading the journals in the middle of the day. By a special article of the charter, which the matters are invited to agree to, it is provided that the journeymen shall be allowed to smoke in the workshop, which would give an excellent oldour to the garments. Lastly, by a clause altogether democratical, the master is never to enter the workshop without taking off his hat. Until the adoption of this constitution the workwill remain suspended. The journeyrme bakers, also, have formed a combination to obtain an advance of wages. Towards the end of has week 800 of them met at the Barrière du Maine, but the police being informed of it. senta party of officers and dispersed them.-Temps.

By the following paragraph it seems to us, who know nothing about such matters, that the new LORD MAYOR, whose name we donotat the moment remember, is likely to he extremely unpopular; it says :-"The new Lond Mayon and the new Sherifts are commencing their financial year like men of business. It had for some years been the custom for the LORD Maxon to appoint eight Common Councilmen, and the Sheriffs four each, who formed a Committee for making arrangements for the entertainment of the Lord Mayor's Day, one half the expense of which is borne by the LORD MAYOR, the other by the Sheriffs. The consequence of referring the matter to a Committee of Common Councilmen was that anything like economy in expenditure was entirely disregarded, and the cost of the enter-tainment rose in a short time from 1,8001, to upwards of 3,0001. Each member of the Committee appropriated to himself twenty-four tickets-384 amongst the Committee! The new Long Margane tickets-34 amongst the Committee! The new Lonp Mayor and Sheriffs took the business of contracting for the entertainment into their own hands, and when they had made their arrangements com-plete appointed the Consmittee in the usual manner. The selected members of the Common Council, when they found that their courpation was gone, immediately resigned their new appointment, and consideration the matter has since been the subject of very serious and conversation amongst the parties concerned. The members of the Common Council can by no means perceive the wisdom of an alteration that will so materially lessen the expense of serving the offices of Lord Mayor and Sheriff, while those who have these digni-ties in view are well pleased at the prospect of their being less costy than heretofore."

Another of those admirable displays of good feeling which have lately been winessed under the auspices of the Duke of Bucclauten took place on the 17th instant at New Castletin. LUCCLIVEN took place on the 17th instant at New Castleda. His Grace is both the patron and the founder of the Liddesdie Agricultural Society, and this was its first meeting. The show of stock was in every respect highly creditable. The dinner which followed was attended by agreat body of the Gentry and the tenany of the district -The Duke was in the Chair, and by his judicious and urbane conduct conferred the hishest aratification upon the company. or the district of the Duke was in the Chair, and by his judicious urbane conduct conferred the highest gratification upon the compary. Many excellent speeches, in which politics were carefully avoided, were delivered in the course of the evening. The healthout the Duke and his truly amiable Duchess, as well as of the Earl of DALERTRANG his young brother, were drunk with the grentest entbuissem. The health of Lord Low Score was also manimed with the utmostapplase. health of Lord John Scorr was also received with the utmost applause. Such meetings, as we have said before, cannot be to frequent; hey have gained for the Duboof December 2000 and the said of the have gained for the Duke of Buccheuch golden opinions from all sorts of men, and that, we need not say, most deservedly.-Edin Evening Post.

It appears from the return of imports into the port of Hull during the last week, that out of 30 vessels arrived from foreign parts, ten only were British, employing 70 seamen, while the 20 foreigners gave employment to one hundred and thirteen ! Taking this as an gave employment to the number of the trade of the port of Hull, we have average weekly specimen of the trade of the port of Hull, we have in the year, 5,876 foreign seamen supplanting the labours of so many umen in the port of Hull alone; and yet this state of things in Englis Englishmen in the port of a run arone ; and yet this state of things is allowed to continue in order to please the theorising political econo-mists, or to satisfy the cupidity of such men as Mr. WARDURTON, or miss, or to earlies, the capacity of even men as Mr. WARDERTON, or the Wice. ST. PANCRAS LOCAL ACTS.—The Gazette of Friday contains a notifeation that application is intended to be made to Parliament, during the next Session, for an Act to repeal no less than twenty eight Acts of Parliament, which had been thought necessary for the proper regulation of the paving, watching, and lighting of SL Pancras; and to place the management of those affairs in the Vestry of the Parish, instead of the numerous Boards of Commissioners now in esistence. The example thus set by St. Pancras will no doubt, be followed by other parishes where the local Acts are obnoxious to the great body of the inhabitants.

It is necessary to direct the attention of the trading part of the community and the public in general to the notice which has been given by the Commissioners of Stamp Duties, that all stamps (or bills dexchange, promissory notes, and receipts for money used after the 30th of November next will be illegal if not from the new dies, with dates which the Commissioners have had prepared for the purpose. The stamps of the form at present in use will be exchanged for the new ones if presented within three months from the 30th of Novemher next.

MARCH OF MIND .- The window of a house in Brighton, some time MARCH OF MIND.—The window of a house in Brighton, some time since, presented the following notice: "Single young men taken in mod done for," which has been often and variously remarked upon. At the window of a shoemaker's shop, in Lamb's Conduitstreet, was put up, about six weeks since, "A woman's man wanted;" but over the door of a house in Cheshunt, Herts, kept by a Mrs. BENDAL, is ow to be seen the following Indicrous advertisement: "Real Yar-mouth bloaters, and other oysters."

We call the attention of the public and of our Vice President of the Board of Trade to the subjoined certificate. We understand this plan of running timber and other foreign articles has been long practised so long that it would appear that our Government have winked at the system. This is one of our free trade blessings, which enable persons to make use of British free ports to defraud the revenue, and also to favour the foreign producer at the expense of our own colonies. In timber it might be checked, by compelling all timber either from Memel or Canada, to be branded :--

The American papers contain a notice of a movement in New York on the on the slavery question. A meeting was called by some individuals in that city for the purpose of organizing a society for the immediate Abolition of all every. When the time arrived, however, it was deemed Prudent by the persons who had convened the meeting not to proceed with their object, and if the temper of the crowd collected be justly may write. The people were, according to the account in the Commercial Adver-tion, absolutely furious, especially against a Mr. GARMSON, a young man when man who was expected to have taken a leading part in the cause of abolition. If he had been present, the journal conjectures, at the least, Mr. GARRISON (whose only crime was a desire to emulate in America the fame of WILBERFORCE and CLARKSON) would have been tarred and feathered.

 The latest accounts from Paris state that the insurrection in Navarre is becoming serious, and akirmishing is going forward in different quarters of the northern provinces of Spain. It was reported that Don Carlos had entered Estramadura at the head of 400 horse. It was also reported on the Bourse that General Saarefield was about to be supersed in his command ior not displaying sufficient energy in quelling the insurrection in the revolted provinces. The Svetbian Mercury informs us that a German Congress will be soon assembled-for what purposes we are not informed. The Swetbian Mercury informs us that a German Congress will be to Heury V.. and his answer. The Munich paper calls him the Duke of Bourdeaux; but the young Frince hints very significantly, that a day may come when he shall be able to prove that he recollects the devotion of his adherents.

PULICE. Mansion House.—A stupid looking mariner, named Alexander Smith, was called upon to give evidence against a poor druked woman of the town, who he thought has bubbed him. The prote-cutor was sum of lew words. Jobs Forrester, sen., stated that the defendant and the complain-ant were found blind druk together and carried into the watchhouse, where they soon fell asleep before the fire, and alarmed the neigh-bourhood with snoring. In the morning the mainer said, "I'pe lost my watch, the woman robbed me." The unfortunate female however had neither a watch nor any thing else worth a halfpenny about her.

The case is in fact similar to that of Portugal, where, in spite of all the libels and calumnies which have been inces-saidly and unsparingly circulated, there can be no doubt, but that if foreign aid and inducace had been withheld. Don MIGUEL would have continued, as he was for upwards of four years, King of his country de facto as well as de jure. Don MIGUEL, it is true, is for the present deposed, and the Pretender, supported by foreign money and foreign troops, is in possession of his throne. The very circumstance of a similar attempt to support the QUEEN DOWAGEN REGENT and her daughter in Spain, is the most likely in the world to overthrow the Usurper of Portugal, and re-establish Don MIGUEL. If Don CARLOS be permitted to take his course without the interference of France, King of SPAIN Don CARLOS will be; and if France interference to keep him down, the result must be the immediate interference of the other European Powers to counteract so dangerous a couspiracy against the will and inclinations of the Spanish people. The moment this necessity becomes evident, the very same means which will be required to emancipate Spain from the liberators, and rescue it from its protectors, will be applied to the regeneration of Portugal and the restoration of her whether the very Hightful KING. In these contingencies the shortest-sighted politician even in Downing-street must see the germs of a general Conti-neutal war, in which, thanks to Lord HOLLAND and his man PALMERSTON, England and France-natural enemies --will be found linked to each other, with all the powers of the Continent united against them.

the Continent united against them. The game of the Royalists in Portugal will soon be made evident, and General BOURMONT will, do doubt, turn up in a place where he and those in his confidence think it best for him to be; in the mean time every hour confirms us in the justness of our views and the excellence of our informa-tion with respect to the state of SPAIN, and the cause of her herithmate Surgeorgies. legitimate Sovereign.

legitimate Sovereign. THAT extremely wise and liberal Prince, LEOPOLD the first and last, of Belgium, has been setting all Paris in an uproar, by appearing in public wearing the insignia of an order expressly established by the Emperor of RUSSIA to celebrate the occupation of Paris by the allied troops. It was erroneously supposed by the French, at first, to have been a Waterloo medal, and, in spite of the opinion which some of the Brazes bares of freely expressed, that the French at the sight of this supposed memorial of the greatest triumph of the British arms caused, was such, that the National Guards would neither parade before King LEOPOLD in the morning, nor dance before him in the evening. King LEOPOLD had not the honour of being at Waterloo, but that he wore the medal commemorative of the occupa-tion of Paris by the Allies, is most true-commemorative the epoch when the Cossacks were encamped in the Champs Eugsees, and the English guards did daty at the Tuileries-but, according to public notice, he did not wear it at the verse. The popularity of Citizen LOUIS PHILIPPE, which is at present extremely equivocal, is not likely to be strengthened by this visit of his son-in-law, the motives for whose eleva-tion to the ricketty throue of Belgium, on the part of our wise Ministry, seem to be duly appreciated by the people of Paris. The reception of the two Monarchs on the day of the review, was of the negative order; but the sullen silence of the people upon the occasion has been very cleverly con-strued, by the French writers, into a noble contrast to the subscriptent loyalty of nations governed by absolute Monarchs, which shews itself in lond and animating cheers. We can imagine no person to be placed in a more awk-ward position than the Belgian Monarch. It is weak ac-ceptance of an unstable Monarchy-his worse than weak perversion to Popery; his professed liberality of opinions, and admiration of the existing order of things in his father-in-law's usurped kingdom, coupled with his display of a memorial of the triumphs of the Allied Sovereigns in the eause of legitimate monarchy, the critical state of his public finances, and his careful appropriation of the 50,0001, a-year freen the English Exchequer to the purposes expressed in bis act of relinquishment of it, must occupy and worry his small uniad in a very great degree; while, to sum up all, the present state of the Conferences, and the dignified firm-ness of the patiotic King of HOLLANN, must occasionally cause laim some little uncasiness as to his probable position in Europe ten years hence. THE extraordinary conduct of Lord MELBOURNE is ex-citing a considerable degree not only of surprise but indig-mation, amongst flows who have always hitherto been sindaced to believe it the duty of Ministers to upload the dignity and character of the KING, whose servants they are.
What Sir WILLIAM HORNE, as King's Attorney-General, may think of the legality of the combinations formed to resist the payment of the KING's taxes, we do not renture to surprise, nor has the opinion of the Honorrable and Learned Member for the free and independent Borough of Mary-bone been yet called for; butwe can tell Lord MELBOURNE what the popular opinion is of a Minister of the Crown-as Secretary too, for the Home Department, who not only re-ceives, with "is usual urbanity." a petition to be presented to the KING, from a Society established with its Chairman, its Committee, its Secretaries, and all the subordinate offi-cers usually appointed, for the avowed purpose of with standing the demands of the Government upon the people.
We can tell to Lordship more-we can tell lim that, the however great a dereliction of duty they suppose his Lord-ship to have committed in receiving and communicating with the functionaries of this combination, they think that is presence-a mark of such entire indifference to the dignity it of the Crown and the rectings of the Illustrions Personage who wars it—is a much more alarming sign of the times. Jgmo-rance, idleness, inattention, or thoughtlessness might have betrayed him into receiving the deputation—but what pre-vented his stopping the perusal of so shameless and insolent an Address to the Sovereign?—what could have induced him to have twice repeated the assurance that it should be laid hefore the KING? We do not venture to answer the ques-tions which many of our correspondents ask upon this subject. Lord MFLBOURNE has, we perceive, a second time admitted a deputation for a similar purpose, and in giving the following report of the proceedings upon that for Ministers to hear what the country thinks of liten, but when the MONAUCH is attacked for their misdeeds it is their bounden duty to protect IIIs MAJESTY from unmerited insult and undeserved reproach :— "A deputation from the parishes of St. Andrew, Holborn, and St. George the Martyr, waited upon Lord MELDOURNE on Nonday, with a memorial to the KINS, persying his MAJESTY for Nonday, with a memorial to the KINS, persing his MAJESTY is convenent the Parlia-mentforthwith, and recommend the abolition of the buse and window

WE recollect to have read a short time since an account of some barbarous experiments of a Monsieur Somebody, a surgeon, who had discovered a peculiar quality in an animal, which, astonishing as it may seem, had the effect of re-pro-ducing its head—that is to say, when the Chevalier cut one of them into two pieces, each piece, after the lapse of about a fortnight or three weeks, was furnished with its capital. The only other animal which possesses this quality is a GRRY; it matters not how much you cut them up—chop them into bits ever so fine and minute, out they sprout, and flouxish in a most extraordinary and surprising manner. When Lord WELLESLEY was made Lord-Lientenant of Ireland, because Mr. LITTLETON would not accept the often-rejected Secretaryship unless he was; one of Lord GYEY'S sons was appointed Aide-de-Camp, and Major-Gene-ral ELLICE, brother of the Right Honourable E. We ventured to assert this, and make some remarks upon the family job, and after an attempt to get General Sir HENRY GREY, G.C.B. and G.C.H., into the situation, it all went by the board; and although we know that General ELLICE had prepared himself for the assumption of the duties, the affair ended. We flattered ourselves that we had killed one good fat job— bagged it—but no: having chopped off General ELLICE's head as Comptroller of the Irish Household, out he sprouts as fresh as a rose, in three weeks after, as the successor of ship, upon the contingency of there being no Lord Lieute-nant at all. What makes this appointment particularly striking— more especially just at the moment when the Committee of the House of Commons upon military appointments has concluded its sittings—is, the fact that Major-General ELLICE is one of the youngest Major-Generals in the ser-vice; and, as we are credibly informed—not through his fault, but his misfortune—has seen no more service than his gallant and highly-distinguished connexion, the doubly-decorated Sir HENRY GREY. KILMAINHAM is abolished; the Irish military school is closed; the War Office has reduced hundreds of old soldiers to begary, by buying up their pensions at sums considera-bly below their value; Government has issued—but nega-tively rescinded—an order for lengthening the services and di.uinishing the pensions of the men; they have threatened the security of the half-pay; they have denounced all mili-rary appointments, except as rewards for long services; they have bestowed two Grand Crosses upon Sir HENRY GREY; they have bestowed two Grand Crosses upon Sir HENRY GREY;

and they have bestowed a valuable government and con mand (for such in fact if is) upon Major-General ELLICE.

The object of severe criticism, when it is purely con-genetious and independent, is the eventual improvement of the author, whose faults, for his own sake and that of the public, the critic points out; but it is really a most gratui-tous and wanton exercise of critical prerogative to try back upon established and successful works of living authors, in order to suarl and snap, for no purpose but to exhibit either ill-humour or ill-feeling towards the individual. Some time since, in a criticism upon a new performer, the Open of Lukle and Yarico was subjected to one of these riolent—we might almost say inhuman—attacks. We are not going to vindicate the tal-nts of its author, Mr. COLMAN, because we might just as well set about writing an essay to prore that the sun is bright, or that snow is not sugar, nor sugar salt: we believe, however, we may safely claim for him the highest place amongst our living dramatists; but, apon a piece, so unquestionably successful as Lukle and Yarico was at the time of its first appearance, and has been ever since, would be as unjust as it is absurd. Why did it succeed i—why has it kept possession of the stage for half a century? But, without stopping to answer these ques-tions, we satisfy ourselves with the fact—it is so. Then, upon what principle of fairness or justice are the feelings of aman like COLMAN to be assaled by a criticism "fifty years after date," or his reputation attacked upon the score of having written an Opera as a young man, which has been universally successful all over the cmpire till the day when, though still young in mind, he has become old in years? and the exposure so complete, that we shall conclude the legal "shew up" in our next number THE following description of the Bishop's College at Cal-cuita we extract from The East India Magazine, an extremely useful and valuable periodical, which, by some accident, we have not seen for some months :--"A grant of land, of about twenty acres, was made by the Go-vernment in India, for the purposes of the College, to which a farther grant has since been made. It stands about three miles below Calcuita, in a fine situation, on the opposite bank of the River Hoophly, which is there much wider than the Thames at London. The spot is peculiarly favourable for privacy and retire-ment; and 'the scenery is such.' Bishop Minbuzron observes, 'as to graify and soothe the mind.' " The foundation stone of the College was laid, on the 15th of December, 1820, by Bishop Minbuzron, the sum of 5,000], to enable him to commence the work; 5,0001. were contributed by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge; 5,0001. more were voted by the Church Missionary Society; and the British and Foreign Bible Society has added 5,0001. This sum of 20,0001, was sugmented by collections in all the cluerches in England and Wales, in conse-quence of a 'King's Letter,' which amounted to 45,0001, with which the building has been completed. " The Sollege consists of three piles of buildings, in the plat Gothic style. These buildings form three sides of a quadrangle; the fourth, or south side, being open to the river, which in that part flows nearly from east to west. The whole is formed on the plan of combining comfort and convenience with an elegant simplicity. "Bishop's College is under the immediate direction of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel; but the statutes are so framed ag to afford opportunity both to the Government in India and to the religious societies connected with the Church of England, of obtaining under certain regulations, the benefits of the college for such students as they may place there. "For the regular supply of students, the Society for the Propa-gation of the Gospel has adopted the measure stated in the following extract from a late Report:-- Ten theological scholarships and ten lay scholarships have been formed by the Society for native op European youths educated in the principles of Christianity; and the sum of J.0001, per annum has been appropriated to this special pur-pose. The ordinary age of admission is fourteen." "The Christian Knowledge Society assists in this plan of scholar-ship; having placed the sum of 6,0001, at the disposal of the Gospel Propagation Society, for the purpose of endowing five scholarships, to be called, in memory of the iounder of the College, e. Bishop Middleton's Scholarships.' This grant is also intended to provide a salary for a Tamul teacher in the College, that being the language chiefy used in the Society's missions. "The Church Missionary Society voted a grant of 1,0001, per annum for several years, on account of the imprance of the institu-tion, and of the co-operation it afforded in their department of labour in India. -I think the remarks and calculations contained in SIR. the subjoined epistle, which come from the pen of an old experienced planter, carry with them so much truth and conviction, as to be well deserving the attention of those who conviction, as to be well deserving the attention of those who have so stremously, but I fear very indiscreetly, advocated the measure of emancipating the slaves in the colonies; and therefore you will oblige me by giving it insertion in your valuable paper.—I am, Sir, your most obedient servant, 4th Nov. 1833. A WEST INDIA PROPRIETOR.

Jamaica, 25th August, 1833. Data Six,—Emancipation and compensation is the engrossing theme amongst us here; and I assure you my head is so confused with uncessing reflection, trying to analyze the subtle sophisticated al destruction, that at times I feel as ab eme for cold sent as if l had no head at all.

had no head at all. One point, however, I have pursued, until I think I have demon-strated, beyond refutation, that to take from the proprietor and give to the negro one-fourth of his time or labour, begars the former. I take my stand first upon the fact that one-fourth of the gross pro-ceeds of the planter's estate is, as the times now are, as much as comes ; and this fact I deduce from an account of sales of 20 shar hhds. of sugar :--

Oct. 1832-To wit :

And the planter's share will be for 20 hbds. of sugar£62 6 7 of Government?

As the first step, according to Mr. STANLEY, would be to proclaim their freedom, in order to release them from their owner's authority, and place them above the jurisdiction of the laws enacted for their government as slaves, I think it is conferring too much liberty at once, ever to expect that they would consent to become apprenticed slaves : no - they would say, once free, we will keep free. Aware from experience of the effects of novelty upon the negro mind, I am pretty confident they would not resume their bill and hoe, as long as they could find means to support themselves in idleness; and from the generally cultivated state of the Island in provisions, they could easily help themselves, for who would there be to prevent them i Talk of stipendiary magistrates and a military constabulary. &c., it is Taik of superdiary magnetizes and a minicity conscionary, e.e., it is all absurdity! They would turn Arabs, and probably keep up a con-stant guerilla warfare. There are, I believe, many persons who differ from me in opinion, but I don't think they can have studied the negro character dispassionately. For my part I resignedly look forward to an approaching dissolution of the Colonies, unless by supernatural interposition they escape the snares with which they re now beset. It is a gloomy prospect; to beg I should be ashamed, and in the atumn of three-score-and-ten l could not dig much, and I am not a little pleased with my philosophical efforts to contract my wants and desires into the narrowest scale, so that the common necessaries of jife will suffice. I can assert, that the opposition of the colonists to emancipation was founded in an odious attachment to the system of slavery, to be as cursed a libel as was ever uttered; for I can posi-tively declare, that the planters of Jamaica for years past have been desirous, ready, and willing to resign their estates for an equitable equivalent to enable them to raise a dependence in some other corner of the world, and that their attachment is only what is common among men in every country—an attachment to property, the source whence they derive the means of livelihood; and whether those means aroac out of sugar, collec, cotton, &c., or out of wheat hardey, outs, turnips, potates, or cabbares, I am sure never weighed a straw in their consideration.—I am, dearSir, &c., &c., A WEST INDIA PLANTER. to be as cursed a libel as was ever uttered; for I can posi

TO JOHN BULL TO JOHN BULL SIR,—Mr. MURPHY having endeavoured, in the public vestry-room of St. Pancras, to castan approbrium on the pa-rochial Clergy for having left the cholera patients to the care of a Catholic Priest, I am anxious, through the medium of your paper, to vindicate them from this aspersion. The cases in the cholera hospital were not numerous, compared with those in other places; and as they were chiefly com-posed of Irishmen and Catholics, this may account for the attendance of the Priest ; but it is altogether incorrect to insi-nuate that the Clergy either declined to attend cholera patients, or were remiss in actual attendance. I know not that if such of them, at least as had families depending on them—(for celibacy is no part of the rows of a Protestant Clergyman)— had been prudently reluctant to thrust themselves into uncebit there is no part of the rows of a Protestant Clergyman)-bad been prudently reluctant to thrust themselves into unne-cessary darger, they would have been greatly to blane; but even among those there was no instance of refusal. Major General Sir BENJAMIN D'UNBAN and auite have taken their passage for the Cape of Good Hope in the Mount Stuart Elphinstone Indiaman, which is expected to sail from Portsmouth on Monday next. Five years is about the average period for a Governor and Commander-in-Chief to remain in the colony. The gallant General has appointed Lieut. BERESFORD, of the 7th Fusileers, to be his Aide-de-Camp.

Mr. SPURRIER has been appointed Law Professor at King's College. The following gentlemen have been appointed Lecturers at the Law Institution :--Mr. WILDE, for Conveyancing; Mr. DODD, for Common Law; and Mr. H. N. COLERIDGE, for Equity. Mr. THEOBALD will take the Common Law department during the temporary illness of Mr. Dodd. Mr. Amos will be as usual at the London University, but no course by Mr. AUSTEN is announced.

We understand that His MAJESTY has appointed DANIEL WHITTLE HARVEY, Esq., M.P. for Colchester, one of the solicitors for the distribution of the twenty millions granted as compensation to the slave holders in the West Indies.

It appears from the evidence of Lord FITZROY SOMERSET before the Committee of the House of Commons that during the six years his Lordship has discharged the duties of Military Secretary to the General Commanding in Chief, namely, since 1827, he has not been beent from the Horse Guards more than a fortnight at a time. Sir HERBERT TAYLOR, it seems, found the duties of the appointment so onerous that he resigned it. The salary is now 2,0001, per annum; it was formerly 2,5001.

It is reported in the City that one of the arrangements the Vice-President of the Board of Trade has entered into with the French Government is to reduce the duty on brandy to ten shillings per gallon. If this be the case we shall hope to hear of run being admitted into France upon proportionably advantageous terms.

A Special General Meeting of the Medical Society was held on Monday night at the Society's house, Boltcourt, Fleetstreet, for the purpose of taking into consideration the conduct of the late medical officers of the General Dispensary, Aldersgate street. The Meeting was numerously attended, and Resolutions were passed conferring the thanks of the Society on the physicians and surgeons who resigned their offices, " when they could no longer hold them without compromising their professional honour and independence," and expressing "regret that any of their medical brethren should have so far forgotten the dignity of the profession as to allow them-selves to be appointed to the vacant offices."

The pilkrimage of the young French Royalists to Prague bas not been without its rewards. They have seen their idol—they have offered their homage—it has been graciously received, and a promise is held out that their loyalty and devotion will some day meet its reward from the future Sovereign of France and re-establisher of the throne of the BOURDONS. The following is the speech addressed in the name other you our nomage. Depleased to accept our wishes, which are the same as those which we cherish for France with respect to its deliverance and its happiness. Born to consolidate its destinies anew, it will owe to you all that it oved to some of your glorious ancestors; and you will become, Sire, as you yousel have promised, the second HENRY IV of France." The Duke of BORDEAUX answered as follows:-- " Gentlemen, I cadeavour to the utmost of my power to make myself worthy of the important duties which my birth imposes on me, and of which you have now reminded me; I believe that I have thus found the surest means to shew my gratitude for the sentiments which you express to me in the name of my young countrymen. I shall not be happy till I shall be allowed to unite my efforts with yours for the deliverance of our common country. Be convinced, Gentlemen, that I appreciate the motives of your journey. I shall be happy to retain your names in my memory, and sell more to prove to you one day that I have not lost the recoilection of them.²¹

The Post says :- " We have for some time past been attracted by " By the Authority of Parliament," relating to the Glasgow Lottery, We have been labouring under an erroneous impression, we can clude, that such speculations had ceased to exist 'by authority. clude, that such speculations had ceased to exist 'by authoring' Parliament,' for we can scarcely imagine that it would be attempted to advance any private speculation by this announcement. The vigilance of the Government would surely have discovered such as attempt to impose on the public, and the Law Officers of the Crow would at once have proceeded against the offending parties, We have, nevertheless, the impression strongly on our mind, that no later than the last Session of Parliament, Lord ALTRORF, in reply as more observation on the subject delared that though them rity of some observation on the subject, declared that, though there might possibly be a flaw in the Act which for the present might seem by tolerate this particular case, nevertheless, even should this head, it should be his care to prevent the possibility of any second attempt by renew those nuisances, and that his immediate attention should be given to the subject for this purpose. Our present observations have nome observation on the subject, declared that, though there might given to the subject for this purpose. Our present conservations have been called forth by seeing the second drawing of this same lottern headed by the words which we have quoted above. The disgraceful negligence, however, which such an oversight on the part of the Government would evince, leade us to pause, and to seek from our Ministerial contemporaries some information on the subject being we lay so heavy an accusation to the charge of the Government.

One of the most remarkable signs of times is the attempt which is naking to propagate the St. Simonian doctrines in this country. In France they have followed upon the heels of the liberal and deman rrance they have followed upon the neers of the internal and demo-cratic principle at the present day with the same natural affinity and on the occasion of the former Revolution. It is not, therefore, very unreasonable in the aposites of St. Simonianism to hope that, as the liberal and democratic principle has also been acknowledged as the rule of government in England, a similar progression may be calculated upon among us. The English people are, however, not yet ripe for the inculcation of these doctrines, whatever they may be come hereafter, should the cant of liberality, freedom, and equality continue to influence our Councils. For the present St. Simon is received with jeers and ridicule; and the odious and profligate character of the system bearing his name is justly considered to be equalled only by its wretched absurdity.

We regret to have to announce the death of Mr. JOHN WONTNER the Governor of Newgate, which took place on Wednesday night at the Governor of Newgate, which took place on Wednesday high a his residence in the Od Bailey, occasioned by a brain fover. Mr Woxrwsz had been for some years past in the service of the Corpo-ration; first as one of the City Marshals, and while filling that offic he was thrown from his horse and fractured his leg, which was after wards amputated. The situation of Governor of Newgate soon after falling vacant Mr. WONTNER was elected ; and during the long period which he held this important office, his conduct has been such as not only to call forth the approbation of the Mayor and Sheriffs, but repeatedly of the Judges. The deceased had only been indisposed two days; he has left behind him a numerous family.

The Etonians had a "turn-out" on Friday last, possibly in imita-tion of the "Gentleman Cadets." They sallied forth in a body of tion of the "Gentleman Cadets." They salited forthin a bouy or between 300 and 400, armed with blud, cone, hammers, and stakes, determined on mischief. Entering the town they assailed all persons they met with a volley of crackers. On reaching Thamesstreet and attack was made on the house of Mr. Fox, to whom they owed a "grudge" for a twelvemonth, and the work of demolition commenced. Every pane of glass was broken, the goods in the window destroyed, the apprentice compelled to seek safety in another house, and several persons who attempted to interfere were ill-treated. Another move ment on Saturday evening was contemplated, to give Mr. Fox a "finisher," but the masters, having intimation of it, frustrated their designs by meeting them on the bridge and taking down the names of the ringleaders, in consequence of which eighty of these "young heroes" have been ignobly flogged ! Mr. Fox's damage is estimated it nearly 30! .- Reading Mercury.

The excavations preparatory to laying the foundation of the New National Gallery and Royal Academy, are now in a state of const-Automal Gallery and Koyal Academy, are now in a sade. The old derable forwardness through the whole of the east wing. The old news still remains untouched. It will be difficult to establish a good basis at this point, a great portion, to a depth of nearly 20 feet, being a soft mud soil, which must be cleared away before there can be any safety in commencing the work ; indeed we think it not unlikely that the greater part of the sum voted for the whole building will be such the greater part of the sum voted for the whole bulkers with such in the foundation by the time it is carried up to a level with the street. The line of direction taken by the front of the foundation $t_{\rm train}/t_{\rm train}/t_{$ tion is decidedly an encreachment upon the portice of St. Marin's Church. That line bears directly against the south side of the third column, from the north angle of the building ; consequently ne one-half of that beautiful specimen of Roman architecture would be excluded if the new edifices were carried on by this line; indeed, of two serious evils the new the months and the protocol two serious evils, the smaller would be to shut out he portion altogether, rather than leave it mutilated, and its just claims to admiration rendered doubted. A very melancholy occurrence happened yesterday morning. A fady, understood to be one of the hearers of Mr. TAIT, threw herself over a window in her house in Gardener's-creecent, and was killed on the spot. We are not so versed in all the strange workings of the human mind as to trace this classrophe directly to the influence of bose wild doctrines of that sect of which she was a member; but emsidering that lamentable delusion, the miserable consequences which it has produced—consequences which our delicacy really forbids us to mention-we hope we do not go too far when we say that the soi disant prophet ANDERSON, is now confined in a madhouse.'

On Tuesday evening a very numerous meeting of the Chelsea Association for the Repeal of the House and Window Duties took place at the White Hart in the King's-road, Chelsea. Mr. G. L. Banxes was called to the chair, and congratulated the meeting on the accession of several influential and respectable parishioners who had enrolled themselves members, and said that he was happy to find had enforted themselves memoers, and said that he was happy to find that there was a general feeling throughout Chelsea for the abolition of those obnoxious taxes.—Deputations from several Associations were here announced by the Chairman, and received with loud theers.—Mr. Coarts moved the following Resolution, which was seconded, and carried unanimously:—"That the meeting feels proud of the recognition of the rights of an Englishman to appear in person in his Majesty's Court of Exchanger on a writ when served by the chief Crown Law Officer at the instigation of the Government; and, when such an admission is made by a Judge of that Court, this meeting cannot but reverence the purity of that justice which such a Judge is especially provided by the law to administer alike and impartially to the poor as to the rich; and, consistently with these feelings, it cannot but consider Baron BAYLEY highly deserving after reenings, it cannot but consult. Such as integrity, uprightness, and the protection of the rights of the subject characterise his con-duct as a Judge."—Several other Resolutions were passed, and a abuses of rests members enrolled themselves. After a number of speeches, in which the conduct of Baron BAYLEY was warmly sulo-gied, thanks were voted to the Chairman, and the meeting adjourned.

For 27 years his valuable abilities were devoted to the public service in the Navy office, where, by his indefatigable zeal during this long period, he conciliated, not only the good opinion, but private friendship of that valuable public Servant, the late Gronge DAYEH, Esq. in whose department he served, and received the highest testimonials from the Board upon his retirement from office a few years since, and voluntary relinbis retirement from office a few years since, and voluntary relin-quiahment of his pension. He succeeded his friend Mr. DAYSH, as Secretary and Treasurer of the Old Naval Club, which situation he filled for filled for many years; and with the same generous and independent pirit, refusing any emolument for his services, which, as every Member of that Club can testify, were most zealous and valuable to its interests. His generous and liberal acts would occupy a volume auffice it to say, no one ever applied to him for assistance in vain and though too often repaid by acts of the grossest dishonour and ligatitude, his heart remained sensitive to the wants of others to the ligat. INCENDIARISM .- We lament to state that the devastating hand of the midnight incendiary has been employed in the county of Sussex to a frightful extent. A fire occurred on Saturday night (which has been partially noticed in the Papers) on the farm of Mr. DAWES, near Battle. It broke out about eleven o'clock in a stable, and the flames spread so rapidly that, before any effective assistance could be ren dered, the flames communicated to a barn adjoining. An engine from Battle arrived, but the fire spread with such fearful rapidity, that the entire building was speedily consumed. Four fat oxen were destroyed by the conflagration .-- On the following night another fire was lighted on the farm of Mr. ParckaRe, about two miles from Battle, and shortly after it broke out the inhabitants of Battlerushed simultaneously to the spot, and by their exertions much property was saved. One whole wheat rick, however, was consumed; and the incendiary had selected the centre rick of nine, with the intention, no doubt, of destroying the whole of the produce, but fortu-nately his diabolical designs were frustrated by the timely exertions of the Battle people. We look forward with fearful apprehensions to the coming winter.—A most flagrant instance of willul fire-rasising to the coming winter.—A most flagrant instance of WHUL DECLASING was committed on the night between Tuesday and Wednesday last. The barnyard belonging to Mr. Francis Deas, farmer, at Culteuchar, on the lands of Mr. OLIPHANT, of Condie, was completely burnt up. The crop was all in the yard, and consisted of thirty large stacks of different sorts of grain. We understand it is but partially insured. The conflagration was not discovered till past two o'clock in the morning, when the whole was almost totally consumed. Mr. Deas received an anonymous threatening letter about a fortnight ago; and his suspicions attach to an individual unknown, to whom he had whice refused employment on account of suspicious appearances.— Another destructive fire occurred on Monday night a short distance from Uxbridge, on the London road. Three stacks of wheat, and a shed which contained several agricultural implements, were burned to the ground. The latter was insured, but the stacks will be a total 0.48. The property belongs to Mr. Nichotson, of Uxbridge, who was a sufferer last winter by a similar circumstance. 1038.

PROJECTED WHIG DINNER AT LEEDS .- We know that there will be PROBECTED WHIG DINNER AT LEEDS.—We know that there will be men present, and join in the cheering too, and appear very zealous, who privately hold Lord MONPETH to be a young Whig Lord of ex-cellent character, yet bent upon supporting his party in whatever that party may stake its official credit or existence upon; who hold Mr. MACAULAY to be the mere political creature of those who have purchased the aid of his talents by paying for them with the public community below who have money : who believe Mr. JOHN MARSHALL to be an honest, good sort of a gentleman in private, but utterly unfit for the high duties of senatorial discussion and national legislation; who consider Mr. STATEMENT as blunt in speech but willy of purpose; who give him credit for a theoretic independence of political action, but who see, beneath his outward garb of candour and apparent singleness of purpose, the slipperiness of the cel, though not the wisdom of the serpent. Tell us not then of the unanimity, or even genuine cordiality, of the dinner caters. Many will go there with a desire to question, to lecture, and to oppose in their hearts, but will be re-strained by prudential considerations, or because they have given a pledge (we shall be understood) that they will remain silent for the sake of "the party." As Othello exclaimed when about to murder. "It is the cause, it is the cause, my soul;" so they exclaim, while compromising their feelings and giving a covenanted sanction to that which they most heartily disapprove-it is the cause !- Leeds Intel.

astand. Out of eight hundred French here, only eight have died; and five of these were tipplers. Sume German drunkards, who were attacked, have escaped. We see no end apresent to the civil war." We regret to learn that Lord Grunwine has squain been attacked by apoplexy, and that from the state in which it has leit him, he is con-sulered to be in the greatest danger. Lon Mayon's Day.—The Lord Mayor elect, Mr. Alderman Parebrother, accompanied by the civic authorities, proceeded hy water to Westminater Hall, where his Lordahip was received with the customary coremoines by the Judges. The procession afterwards returned in the same state. The fineness of the morning, and the more tian usual splendour of the gageantry, attracted a most nume-rous assemblage of spectators. THE Assesser Daxes.—Friday night a meeting of the Central Committer, which represents nearly all the Associations for the sholition of the assessed taxes, was held at the British Horel. Cock-spur street; Dr. Wade in the chair. Some members expressed surprise that the King had transmitted no answer to their petition.— Mr. Tripp, broker, asid it was very currently reported that the King had declared that he would not suffer his peole to be opercased by the barsh exaction of these taxes.—Find here had he believed the report was substantially correct.—The meeting adjourned, after agreeing to a resolution calling on parishes to meet on the subject of the assess taxes.— The Members of the Colchester Conservive Club held their monthy meeting on Tuesday evening last, at the George Inn. The usual loyal toasts were drank with much enthusisme; also the healths of "R. Sanderson, Eag. M.P., and Mres. Sanderson; " " Sir G. H. Sunyth, Barc.; " T. White, jun. Eag.," " The Clergy of Easez," & C. The meeting, at a late hour, separated, highly gratified with the convivaility of the evening. RENTS.—A correspondent in the south assures us that a regular organised system against the payment of rents is in progress in the county of Cork and other districts in Munster.

The Memoirs of Marshal Ney, of "which the English Translation has just appeared, are unquestionably published by his family, fom the documents and papers in their possession, and the ancedotes with which they are interspersed have plainly been collected with reat care from all the early friends of that illustrious warrior. These Memoirs may be regarded as the Ney Papers, connected together by an interesting Biography, abounding in an ecdote and full of patrimic spirit and military adveature. Blackwood's Magazine.

THE CHURCH IN RUSSIA.

THE CHURCH IN RUSSIA. The following statistical view, derived from the most authentic sources, will be found to supply many important points of informa-tion, not furnished either by writers on Church history, or on the general history and geography of that colossal State. The Established Church in Russis is commonly known by the name of the Orthodox Greek Church, but at the same time all other denominations are tolerated – Jews, Mohammedans, Lamaites. Brahmans, and Shamarites. Of the Established or Orthodox Greek Church, the members may be said to amount to 31,782,000. The Emperor is the head. With respect to its constitution and independence, it has no connexion with any of the four Patriarchs of the Oriental Church. The will of respect to its constitution and independence, it has no connexion with any of the four Patriarchs of the Oriental Church. The will of the Monarch is the highest point of appenl, but the business of the Church is under the management of the Holy Synod, in connexion with the Minister for Ecclesiastical Affairs. To this supreme legis-Court, the Consistories and Clergy, both superior and inferior. lative are subject.

are subject. The Consistories are divided into three classes. The first class comprehends Kief, Moscow, Novogorod, and St. Petersburgh; the geond, Kazan, Astrakhan, Tobolsk, Jaroslaf, Pskof, Reazan, Tver-Jekaterinoslaf, Mohilef, Tshernigof, Minsk, and Podolia; and the third, Ralugu, Smolensk, Nishegorod, Kursk, Vladimir, Vologda Tula, Vialka, Archangel, Voronege, Irkulsk, Kostroma, Tambóf, Orel, Pultowa, Vollynia, Perm, Pensa, Slobodsk, Ukraine, and Oremburg. Each of these Consistories stands under the Presidency of an Archiereiss, or one of the dignified Cleygy, and forms an Enarchy.

Eparchy. The Clergy are divided into two classes, the secular and the regu-lar Clergy :--1. The secular Clergy consist of the Archihierei, or Eparchs, such as Metropelitans, 'Archbishops, and Bishops, the two former of which dignitaries are not confined to any particular Sees, but depend simply on the will or favour of the Monarch. Some of but depend simply on the will or favour of the Monarch. Some of the dignified Clergy are liberated from the charge of administering the effairs of the divcess to which they are attached, and there are othere who have no eparchy in Russia, but live there as titled dignita-ries. The lower orders of the Clergy, such as Protopriests, Priests, and Deacons, slob belong to the secular class.—2. The regular Clergy consist of Archimandrites, Priors and Prioresses, Monks, Nuns, and Anchorites. Though the cloisters are not so numerous as they once were, there are still 480 monasteries and 70 munneries. The number of Monks exceeds 3,000, and of Nuns shout 1500 about 1,500.

about 1,500. 'The number of Churches in Russia amounts, in all, to 26,747, and that of the Clergy to 67,900 persons. Taking, however, into the account the additional number of individuals attached to the Clergy yor the service of the Church, not fewer than 188,475 persons are dependent on the altar for subsistence. These are, for the most part, paid out of the public funds—Go-vernment having, since 1764, secularized the lands belonging to most of the churches and monasterice : some however, still retain their the secure still retain the secularized the secularized the secure still retain their appropriated lands. The great proportion of the Clergy who receive their education in the ecclesiastical seminaries, and at the four existing academies, are exceedingly ignorant. Pew of them are versed in the higher branches of science, and three is every reason to fear, that fewer still are inhued with the grenuine spicitod Christianity. Vast numbers of them are barely qualified to repeat the Church service, and were it motiof the clerical habiliments, scarcerly distinguishable from the low-est of the people. They are only permitted to marry once, and are prohibited from marrying widaws. Their sons devote themselves to the same profession, and from them the demand for the future Clergy is supplied. The Archihierei are obliged to remain in a state of cellbacy.

celliasy. No person who is a member of the National Church, is allowed, whatever may be his convictions, to leave that Church and join any other communion; and all who join it from other communions must submit to become cattechurmens, and receive the rite of baptism according to the Greek forms.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, NOVEMBER 17.

THE Court continues at Brighton, where their MAJESTIES enjoy perfect health. Their Royal Highnesses the Princess AUGUSTA and the

The Noval rights are also there. The King of PRUSSIA has appointed his Royal Highness the Duke of CUMBERLAND a General of Cavalry in the Prussian service.

THE Ministers are arrived in town—so is Lord DURHAM. It is not because his Lordship is in himself a person of much consideration that we mention this circumstance, but because his coming to town, when no actual business calls him hither, so soon after the elaborated explanation of his political views and feelings at two public dinners in the north, gives an air of probability to a rumour, the realization of which would be the signal for general confusion in the country. No man, who has his eyes open, can doubt that we are in rapid progress towards the most extensive changes in all our institutions. Ministers are of the same opiniou—nay, they go farther—they believe that those changes are inevitable; and this belief is strengthened, because they are conscious that they possess no power, no means to resist or check them. We have no hesitation in adopting the declarations and opinions made and expressed by Lord DURHAM on the two of which, we are seriously threatened he is soon to become a member. This change will confirm our present views, and satisfy the nation, as we are already satisfied, that the inten-tion of the Government is to advance with the movement— THE Ministers are arrived in town-so is Lord DURHAM.

satisfy the nation, as we are already satisfied, that the inten-tion of the Government is to advance with the mouvement-Unable, and perhaps unwilling to arrest it, rather than throw up the power which they are unable to exert, they will quietly submit to the demands of the Unionists and the dicta-tion of the Ten-pounders. One of their favourite projects of popular ingratiation is said to be the reduction of the privileges of the Peerage; in the first instance, that of voting by proxy is likely to be annulled;--what will follow when once the inroad is made, it is not difficult to guess

aminited ;---what will tolow when once the information induce, it is not difficult to guess. That the Political Unions are to rule the nation, nobody who has watched the course of events within the last few months can doubt; the vacillating, temporising, equivocating measures of the Ministry-the awe of the press in which they stand--prove that they are ready to obey the commands of the "Sovereign People" according to Lord DURHAM's axioms, and do anything its Majesty may command, except resign their places. In order to make way for the new-comers, Lord GREV, it is said, will resign-so will Lord ALTHORP: this, it may be remembered, we some week's since foretold. That Lord DURHAM would like to be Premier, nobody doubts; but everybody doubts whether anybody would hold office under him : besides, what would become of CUPID-as my Lady calls Lord PALMERSTON-? We have but one view, if a break-up takes place-Lord BROUCHAM will be Premier, and the Seal will be put in Commission. In this arrangement or any other, which delivers us over, bound hand and foot, to the mob, we still believe Mr.STANLEY will not coincide :--there is still a hope. THE news from Portugal completely confirms all the earlier authentic reports upon which was so firmly relied. The KING has possessed himself of one of the strongest and most important positions in the country, where he has con-centrated his forces, and is in possession of all the advan-tages derivable from the command of the fertile provinces in his rear, the whole of which are devoted to his interests. The position which his MJESTY occupies is of tenfold importance, now that the affairs of Spain have assumed the aspect which we were the earliest to forcell, and the most auxious to behold. A junction, if necessary, might be formed in a very short space of time with the arruy of the lawful KNG of SPATS, and by mutual assistance these out-raged Monarchs might assert their rights in the face of the leagued hirelings who have been forced into the Peninua. Intelligence, impartially given, leagued hireings who have been forced into the remissina. Intelligence, impartially given, has been received, which may be relied upon, that the army of Don MIGUEL re-mains in health and spirits, undiminished by the desertion of one single soldier from its ranks since the hour it quitted Lisbon-and here we may be permitted to observe that General MACDONALD vouches for this fact—while the troops of Des Uppro are high terrard not half noised and in a state of Don PEDRO are half-starved, not half-paid, and in a state

General MACDONALD vouches for this fact—while the troops of Don PEDRO are half-starved, not half-paid, and in a state very nearly bordering upon mutiny. The recruiting in this country for the Pretender, the Globe says, is stopped; but too late to save from miscry, and ruin hundreds of deluded men, who, in the hopes of pay, which com-mon sense ought to have told them they never could receive, and of promotion which never could be of use to them if they had gotten it, have abandoned their country and families only to return degraded and disgraced—hirelings without reward, rebel & without motive, and victims without neonor. We have, throughout the whole course of the Portuguese contest, placed our reliance upon the popularity of Donna MARIA. as the test by which the national feeling should be tried. It has been tried—tied in the extremest possible cases—for not only has the rightful KING maintained the affections of the great mass of the people, but the sole chance which Don PEDRO ever had for shaking his Throne or disturbing his country was obtained by the aid of foreign troops and foreign money. The foreign money is now all spent—the foreign troops, all heartily disgusted, and we have no doubt, when the eyes of the spendthrifts and speculators, who have been forced by poverty in the one case and rapacity in the other to aid in the cause of injustice, are opened, that the bubble will burst, and Don PEDRO will either try to regain his Caciqueship in Mexico, or hide himself on the Continent, while Donna MARIA will become again an inmate of Grillon's Hotel, or perhaps rather of her favourite villa at Laleham. In Spain the Carlist party—if that may be called party which embraces the great majority of the people—is fast en-creasing, and the position of that fine and noble country is most awful and perilous. The QUEEN REGENT is as averse from revolutionary principles as Don CARLOS—ber struggle is to maintain the Crown for her child; and if she continue to oppose herself to the general wish of the people—not for a revolution, recollect, but for the accession of Don CARLOS—she will open a stage for the enactment of a bloody tragedy by foreigners, which we have seen acted in Portugal under the auspices of France and England—eren if France should not march an army into Spain.

As far as the adoption of liberal principles (as they are called) and the introduction of liberal principles (as they are called) and the introduction of liberal institutions in Spain spaces, the bait will not take—the delusion will not succeed. Spain neither desires, nor is ready for any such changes. The Spanish people are everywhere opposed to innovation, and the alteration of the succession, at the moment at which it and the alteration of the succession, at the moment at which it was made, just in the present state of Europe, appears to us unaccountable; more especially as the precarious state of the KING's health necessarily rendered the agitation of the question an event so shortly to be expected. And this too, setting aside the injustice of the KING's abrogating the law of succession in favour of his own child, to the prejudice of his brother, that law being coeval with the establishment of the favilue mone the throne.

of his brother, that law being coeval with the establishment of the family upon the throne. That M. ZEA DE BERMUDEZ, of whose abilities we have always entertained the highest opinion, should have caused the present conflict in Portugal, and which, it is clear, he so unequivocally deprecated—is to us unaccount-able. As far as King FERDINAND is concerned, a thou-sand motives may be attributed to him; but we cannot yet understand how such a Minister as we have always consi-dered M. ZEA BEWIDEZ to be could have consented dered M. ZeA BERMUDEZ to be, could have consented— with such an example before him—to a measure which has fastened upon him an imputation of impolicy and want of foresight unequalled in modern times, excepting always in the measures and movements of our own Reform Collicit Cabinet.

Cabinet. As far as the measures to be taken by France in case of need, we hear that both SOULT and SEBASTIANI are for proceeding at once to hostilities. Against any morement of French troops our Ministers have, what they call, protested. What means England has to hinder France from doing exactly what she pleases, we do not exactly see—War Taxes would not sound well in the popular ear just at this crisis ; and if France make any morement, war is inevitable. Austria, Russia, and Prussia will instantly interfere, and the only difference, as far as we are concerned, will arise upon the point whom we are to fight with, and whom against. If we oppose France, she, of course, becomes our enemy---if we support her, the rest of the Continental Powers will be on us.-HAPPY EXCLAND ! LOBED DUBHAN is coing, to perscute—we beg pardon—

if we support her, the rest of the Continental Powers will be on us.—HAPPY ENGLAD ! LORD DURHAM is going to persecute—we beg pardon— prosecute us, for having, in the innocence of our hearts, and ignorance of his Lordship's character, copied, without a remark for our own, a piece of intelligence from a provincial paper. What adds to the singularity of his Lordship's con-descension in our favour, is the fact, that as an act of jus-tice, we took the trouble to insert the retractation of the his-tory, which subsequently appeared in the journal whence we first copied it, and with which, it originated. We admit having first mentioned the circumstance of hoisting the Royal Standard at Cherbourg, under the Lamb-ton arms; that was declared to have occurred by accident. We copied the account from a country paper of the tri-coloured flag having been hoisted at the mast-head of his Lordship's yacht in the Tyne: that tri-coloured flag was shewn to be No. 3, in the elaborated and very comical dicede of signals belonging to the Whig Yacht Club. We copied, in like manner, the account of his Lordship's alleged dictum as to the razing of Philadelphia, and, as we have just said, we did more, we contradicted it the moment it was contradicted by the original narrator. Philadelphia re-mains, but we are attacked. Weil '--be it so. It seems hard that one of the most satirical writers of the day should be so extremely thin-skinned himself'; but, perhaps we do bis Lordship in jus-tice—the prosecution against us may not have its origin in any private feelings of our aspirant Premier, but may spring from the noble ambition of practically vindicating the free-during their political lives, so nobly supported theoretically. The following annears in the Times of Friday :-- dom of the press, which his Lordship and his friends have, during their political lives, so nobly supported theoretically. The following appears in the Times of Friday :--"Yesterday the 2d battalion of the 1st rest. of Grenadier Guards, commanded by his Grace the Duke of Weitsworos, at present sta-tioned at the New Barracks in the Bird cage walk, mustered in the manaplace of parade, and marched to the King's mews-barracks, (Carina cross. This proceeding was considered rather extraordinary, but was done to avoid publicity, as no punishment could well be inflicted at the barracks in the Bird-cage walk without the whole neighbourhood hering of it, particu-larly as the cries of the wretched individuals had often ollended the care walk without the whole neighbourhood hering of it, particu-larly as the cries of the wretched individuals had often ollended the read over the minutes of the Court martial which had breenheld upon Onaza, when it appeared that he was charged with insubordinate, then read over the minutes of the Court martial which had breenheld upon conduct, that he had come in a state of invoxication on duty, and when desired to give up his arms, he had unreated but un the first enced to receive 500 hashes. We have not space here to enter into a discussion upon the question of the absolute necessity of corporal punishments in our army and navy—it is one which has often been treated, and never perhaps with greater ability than in the United Service Journal of the present month. All we shall do at the moment is briefly to examine the points of the individual "article of intelligence" (for such only it assumes to be) now before we

Onted Service Journal of the present monut. All we shall do at the moment is briefly to examine the points of the individual "article of intelligence" (for such only it assumes to be) now before us. Our first observation is upon the distinct mention of the Duke of WELLINGTON'S name as Colonel-Commandant of the Regiment to which the soldier punished, belongs, Of course upon all occasions (more especially since the burst of popular feeling on Lord Mayor's-day) the Duke is to be attacked and vilified by the Whizs, and whether in his own-person as Colonel of the Guards flogging a soldier, or in the person of his imaginary groom riding over a non-existent dd iady in Hyde-park, it makes no difference to the partizans of those who hate, because they at once envy and fear him ; but the fact is, that the Duke of WELLINGTON, as Colonel of the Generalier Guards, knows no more of, and has no more to do with, the details of its regimental duty, than the Honour-ahle General, Sir HENRY GREY, G.C.B. and G.C.H., has, with those of His MAJESTY'S 13th Light Dragoons, which galant Regiment, now serving in India, that distinguished officer has never, since he commanded it, had the satisfaction of seeing. So much for the paltry introduction of the name of the Duke of WELLINGTON. We must next remark upon the extraordinary proceeding-walk, because the people living in James-street had offen been annoyed by the cries of the " wretched individuals" punished. Supposing this to have been the case, there would be nothing extraordinary in preventing so disagreea-ble an occurrence ; but the truth is, that the yard of the new barracks now occupied by the Guards in Bird-cage-walk, is open to the public eye, being separated from the Park by an riorn railing only; and certainly the synetal for milary punishment is not one which would be agreeable to the passengers through, or the promenaders in, that place of general resort.

general resort. Then, let us look at the crime of which the man had been convicted—" Insubordinate conduct, coming on duty in astate of intoxication, and when desired to give up his arms, threat-ening to run any person through who dared to take them from him."

from him." In very high society, "insubordinate conduct, and coming on duty in a state of intoxication," may in these days be thought little of—we rather think it is—but in the army, superadded to the threat of murder, it is a crime which, in any other country than this, would have been punished with death. death

And now for the punishment awarded this man:-He was, sentenced to receive five hundred lashes; he received two hundred without a murmur-not a sigh or a groan escaped him 1-so that he might, as it turns out, have heen punished under the windows of the sensitive inhabitants of James-street and Petty France, without exciting either their horror or compassion; but, having received these two hundred lashes, not one half of the sentence ordered, he was taken down, and carried to the Military Hospital in a coach, "his back being dreadfully lacerated." As the flogging, mitigated as it was, and reduced to less than half its quantum, was never intended for anusement or child's-play, but as the atomenent for a crime wholly subter-sive of military discipline, punishable by the common law of the land to a much more serious extent, and in any other army than ours, by death, the result does not seem surprising... And now for the punishment awarded this man :- He was.

than ours, by death, the result does not seem surprising. It is curious to see the partisans of a Ministry which has during its short career done more to injure the interests, It is curious to see the partisans of a Ministry Wine has during its short career done more to injure the interests-comforts, and character of the army than any men ever effected in a similar period of time, endeavouring to create a sympathy for the mutihouts and disreputable portion of its subordinate members. Prolonged services, decreased retire-ments, inequitable commutations of pensions, Jewish pur-chases of half-pay, reductions of rewards, destructions of military hospitals and asylums, compulsory ejectments of worn-out veterans—these are the measures by which the (dovernment have endeared themselves to our soldiers; and, as a set-off to these injuries and indignities, their journals, with a sneer at the illustrious Hero to whom the army, with the rest of Eugland, looks with veneration and confidence, give us, as a loorrible incident, an account of the punishment of a drumkard, a mutineer, and an intended mur-dcrer, which punishment was not inflicted to one-half of its nominal extent, and which, during its limited progress, extorted neither groan nor murnur from the culprit who received it. received it.

MAJOR-GENERAL ELLICE-whom we confess we think an not to be Governor of Portsextremely ill-used man-is not to be mouth and Commandant of the district.

We have commandant of the district. We just subjoin the following paragraph from the Globe, with an appended note of the Times:-"We have reason to believe that all the fine writing about Gene-ral ELLICE becoming Governor of Portsmouth is interly grainious, as no such appointment has ever been in contemplation." – Globe. "This is just what we expected." – Times. This, the Times (which heaves of example as well as we

"This is just what we expected."--10063. This, the Times (which knows of course as well as up the do that the appointment of General ELLICE to Portsmoth was actually settled), thought would be sufficient to get id of the affair; the appointment was abandoned, and that was enough: but no--there was another person to be satis-fied as well as Lord GREY, and a more claborate explanafied as well as Lord GREY, and a more claborate explain tion became necessary. Mr. EDWARD ELLICE, to whose influence over the Premier the appointment of Major-General ELLICE had been gene-rally attributed, became anxious to vindicate himself from the charge of having exerted his interest in behalf of his brother for such a purpose, and, accordingly, finding that an ironical in the Times some days since, had not the effect of shaking in the Times some days since, had not the effect of shaking or, at all events, to prove that the appointment, if really or, at all events, to prove that the appointment, if really nearer and dearer connexion of Lord GREY's, than binself or any of his family.

nearer and dearer connexion of Lord GREY's, that -or any of his family. In furtherance of this plan, the Times of Friday (aban-doning the subterfuge adopted by the Globe and other Ministerial papers, of declaring that no such appointment was ever intended), puts forth an article—by the same hand as the ineffectual ironical one, already mentioned—in which, at least by implication, it admits all that has been stated with to the appointment, but vindicates Mr. EDWARD. ELLICE from any share in the proposed arrangement. As we have already said, we have reason to believe that

November 117 We LIJCE was not the person who suggested the appoint-ment to Lord GREV, and therefore do we abstain from extract-ing from the Post of yesterday some admirable lines, written marker the supposition that he was; but we cannot resist the epiportunity of exhibiting the extraordinary veracity and ac-curacy of the Whig-Ministerial papers throughout the whole period during which Major-General ELLICE's name has been kept before the public, by calling attention to a state-ment, first made by oursclves respecting that gentleman, and which was, at the time, unequivocally contradicted by the whole legion of Whig and Radical writers. When Lord WELLELEV was made Lord-Lieutenant by Mr. LITTLETON, it was a condition stipulated for by Lord GREY that one of his younger sons should be put upon his were both made, and one, that of Captain GREY, was officially amounced; the other was delayed, and, as we have said, po-stively denied by the Ministerial papers, who even went the length of praising Lord WELLESLEY's excessive liberality in retaining so many of the members of his noble predecessor's establishment. We knew the truth of the fact we stated still General in retaining so many of the internet so in notice protections establishment. We knew the truth of the fact we stated: still General FLICE did not take possession of the appointment—(which, by the way, is worth just one quarter of what the newspapers have ralued it at)—and we could not well account for the delay. Now, the secret is out—Portsmouth was to be vacant; and, to

Now, the secret is out—Portsmouth was to be vacant; and, to a family, an independent command in England, and a house and other advantages, were preferable to rooms in Dublin Castle and a civil office contingent upon the stay of the Lord-Lieutenant in Ireland; and so, until it was decided what was to be done with Sir COLIN CAMPBELL's government, General ELLICE took no notice of the Irish Comptrollership. Now, what will the Whig papers say ? Will they tell us that we are wrong, or misinformed, or that we maliciously in-vent and circulate calunnies and falsehoods ? Major-Ge-neral ELLICE, defeated in the attempt made—not exactly by fimself—upon the Hampshire district, to which they declare his nomination was never contemplated, is on the eve of start-ing for Ireland, to fall back upon the Comptrollership, to which they, five weeks since, asserted he never was ap-pointed. pointed

THE effect produced by the Emancipation Act upon the Whites in the West Indies is somewhat equivocal—they ac-cept the compensation under protest—but they accept it, glad to get any thing; they will be no doubt much happier when they do get it—but when that will happen, Lord AL-THORP knows much better than we.

when they do' get it—but when that will happen, Lord AL-THORP knows much better than we. Upon the Blacks, however, the scheme seems to have acted somewhat differently—they are convinced that they are free, because Mr. STANLEY has decreed and declared that slavery has ceased to exist. But what, say they—as, be it recollected, we always foretold they would say, and as Lord BROUGHAN, in his book on Colonial Policy, said, thirty years ago—what is freedom without idleness—we want our masters to feed us and clothe us as usual—else "what for good friddom?" Accordingly—as one sees in these days the strangest people in the world presuming to write their names down at the Pavi-lion at Brighton—two hundred of these niggers, nol longer slaves, have called upon Lord MULGRAVE, just to pay their "free and easy," but the truth is, the "niggers" in Ja-maica, although they are free, are by no means casy—and the results of this long anticipated uneasiness will ere long exhibit themselves in the least satisfactory manner possible. When Lord MULGRAVE accepted the Government, many of his friends thought that a colonial life would give him the "blue decils"—the colour has changed, if the complaint has not, and we hear that his Lordship wishes to return to England, on the ground that the climate does not agree with all a bad Government for Sir HENRY GREY, G.C.B. and G.C.H.

THE proceedings at Guildhall, on Lord Mayor's day, appear to have been anything but palatable to the Ministers. By the way, we heard a Lady, upon that great occasion, make use of an abbreviation for the term "Cabinet Ministers," which struck us to be rather ingenious—her Ladyship (and the was of that civic degree) pointed them out to a young friend, whom she was chaperoning, as the "CAR-MEN."— To the Cab-men then, we say, the shouts of applause which reat the Hall when the Duke of WELLINGTON'S health was proposed, and after it was drunk, rang in their ears so dis-ordanity, and dwelt there so long, that they kad the effect bot only of driving out the sweet yet fainter sounds which their own "healths and speeches" had excited, but of open-ing the eyes to the place which they really hold in pub-te stimation.

ing their eyes to the place which they really hold in pub-ble estimation. It is true, that when "Lord BROUGHAM" was drunk, the cheering was very considerable, and the LORD MAYOR gave the tone to this, by singling out his Lordship, and drinking his health separately, instead of including it amongst those of the Ministers generally : but faint as whispers were those theres, compared—and whence do we form opinions but from omparisons?—with the burst of applause which followed the amouncement of the health of the Duke. It seems that several of the Cab-men affected to join in fuse manifestations of admiration and respect, but their own journalists betray the weakness which themselves so vidulously tried to conceal. The LORD MAYOR is charged with the high crime of Toryism in proposing such a toast as most amounting to an affront upon the present Ministers. We believe the LORD MAYOR to be a Tory—we trust he that particular toast met with? We could cite half a mas deen proposed and refused. The LORD MAYOR may tunit for such a display of public sentiment, and libeled of his hear proposed for having afforded the oppor-und for such a display of public sentiment, and libeled of his hear to but the LORD MAYOR—no more than Lord Vere loudly and unanimously exerted to do honour to the greatest man of our age and country. Breatest man of our age and country.

How far the pacific appearance of Ireland may justify the announcements of the Noble Lord, or the quenched flames in England fulfil his predictions, we take not upon ourselves to say; but we beg to call his Lordship's attention to the following extracts from the provincial papers, in order that he may form his own opinion of the value and merits of both predictions and announcements:—

EVENY well regulated mind must turn with peculiar complacency from the cheerless aspect of public affairs to the contemplation of the munificence of the Clergy, in the support of the Societies and Institutions connected with the Established Church-foundations, which shed a lustre around the name of Englishmen, by mainly con tributing to the high tone of the national character, in a religious and moral point of view, and which principally owe their existence and maintenance to the exertions and bounty of the whole body of the Clergy, and its more opulent members in particular. We feel great Clergy, and its more opulent members in particular. We feel great pleasure in adverting to a late distinguished Dignitary of the Esta-blishment in illustration of the preceding remarks-we mean the Rev. Dr. HUGHES, Canon Residentiary of St. Paul's, who died in January last. Not contented with a large expenditure in the support of public institutions, and the relief of individual distress, in his life-time, he gave by his will very considerable legacies to a few institutions which he selected as most needing or most deserving of his assistance, namely, to the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy. a legacy of 1,2001.; to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts of 1,0001., to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge of 1,0001., and to the London Ophthalmic Infirmary in Moor-fields of 3001. : and these legacies, agreeably to his direction, have all been paid free of legacy duty, which adds 3301. to their amount. duty, which adds 3501. to their amount.

Thus it is, that though calumny is ever at work to asperse the characters of the Clergy, to exaggerate their failings, and to ruin them, if possible, in public estimation, by the quiet and unostenta-tions discharge of their high functions, their steady devotion through will most add and reast to the settime lime most the set of the settime lime to the settime lime of the settime lime to the settime lime of the set of the settime lime lime set of the settime lime lime settime settime lime settime lime settime lime settime settime lime settime se evil report and good report to the spiritual improvement of the comevit epot and good report to an epiritual improvement of the com-munity, and the silent flow of their beneficence to the poor and igno-rant, the Clergy of the Establishment are enabled to lay up for themselves imperishable treasures, and overcome the malice of their inveterate foes, at this period more than ever active to accomplish their destruction. We are persuaded that an illustrious Duke, who always entertained a most sincere and affectionate regard to his Resame eminent authority foretedd that when the Reform Lutor, even to the latest moment of his life, will cordially unite in

HUGHES formed so distinguished an ornament. In the perilous HUGHES formed so distinguished an ornament. In the perilous times, which seem fast approaching, we shall want all their powers to check the flood of impiety, superstition and fanaticism, combined forces threaten the ruin of fair England. Royal Highness felt as we do on this subject, now, ere it be too late, and that he would act accordingly. THE Haymarket, closed its season on Friday, with a com-mon-place farewell address. We hope the efforts of the management which have been so successful during the last few months, will meet with equal good fortune next year. The Winter Theatres, we apprehend, are not fully answer-ing the expectations of the Lessee; there are great com-plaints of unavoidable delays arising from the employment of the same actors at both houses. As far, however, as indefatigable industry on the part of the management in the production of norelites, the public have no right to com-plain. Less puffing, we think, would be wiser; GARRICKS and SIDDONSES are not every-day productions, and Mana-gers may rely upon the truth of these axioms:—Nounsuccess-ful piece can be bolstered into popularity by the applause which free admissions can purchase; and no actor or actress suffers so much, eventually, as he or she, whom, under favour of the press, is extravagantly praised. During the season, we propose giving some account of the proceedings at both houses; at present, we can oaly say, that having last week witnessed, with great satisfaction, what was called in the bills, SHAKSPEARE'S Tragedy of Jane Shore, at Drury Lane, we concluded the evening with a hearty laugh at BEN JOHNSON'S excellent Farce of My Neighbour's Wife, at Covent Garden. In the Morning Post of Monday week, copied from the Neighbour's Wife, at Covent Garden. In the Morning Post of Monday week, copied from the Law Magazine, there is the following just tribute to the merits of the head of a very noble and popular family, just now — a younger brother of the same illustrious house having had the honour of "three groans being most ve-hemently given for him" (W. BROUGHAM, Esq.) at a recent anti-tax meeting of (St. George's) Southwark, when "the other Representative," Mr. HUMPHERY—a smaller personage though, than "the lesser AJAX" (Mr. W. B.)— " was most warmly greeted:"—

" LORD BROUGHAM'S COMMISSIONS .- The present Government have been called a Government by Commission, and Lord BROUGHAM seems resolved to do what in him lies to justify the appellation. His last exploit in this department, according to the newspapers, is the appointment of a Commission to revise and assimilate the Law of appointment of a Commission to revise and assimilate the Law of Debtor and Creditor. This (if true) is a ratification of the Com-mon Law Commissioners have given this branch of Law their fullest consideration, have written an elaborate Report upon it, and, in the Appendix to that Report, have brought together every species of in-formation, both foreign and domestic, to which it can be necessary to refer. To them, therefore, men of acknowledged learning and ca-perience, the task would be a comparatively easy one; and it is to be hoved that the LORD CHANCELLOR will be called upon to explain why he prefers commissioning, and making the country pay a , set of Gentlemen to go through the same course of enquiry again.

persence, use task would be a comparatively easy one; and it is to be hoped that the Lono CHANCELLOR will be called upon to explain set of Gentlemen to go through the same course of enquiry again." Regarding this new, and supernumerary, and unnecessary Commission of Lord BROUGHAM's, we do not think there is much more to be said, at present, beyond what the Law Magazine has expressed, and we have re-quoted from the Morning Post. But upon the outrageous and boundless extent to which Ministers are pushing the system of Com-missions in general, more may well be said than we have room to say; and more of the attention of the House of Commons—its fue Reformed "Cheapening" House of Commons—its due to the subject, than we think the present Parliament will have time—nor inclination neither, from its peculiar unpleasantness to the "Reformed" Members—to apportion to the matter. The Factory Commissioners—those travelling manufac-turers of a Report, as huge as the Colossus of Rhodes, and which, like it, no two men can fathom, as mortals now are— produced—the most perfect and matchless specimen of the pervem in multo, the art of expanding little into much, that official writers, or any writers, have achieved. We have heard something of the selection of the members of this Commission : that one was the elve of this influential vigorous Yoang Whig; that another was the protege of the factory children, for whose amelioration it was professed to bave been formed; and that, with the exception of these journeying and salaried " friends of humanity," the Com-missioners themselves, no human being has obtained one farthing of encreased income, nor one moment of additional lappiness, comfort, or case, in consequence of the labours of these Gentlemen, whatever they may have been—and great they seem, if we may judge from the onerous and overwhelming appearance of their Report—Zounds1 what a pyramid of paper ! what an at hatic of ink l-and the country has had a considerable sum to pay for this Com-mission, from which no one, we r

Ministry are so celebrated. Then, again, the Poor Laws Commission, or Commissions —for there appear to be one (at least) a-piece for England, Ireland, and Scotland; and the Law of Debtor and Creditor Commission; and all the other Law and other Commissions —the number of which are nearly incalculable—they seem to be somewhere about nine hundred and ninety-nine, the exact amount of Lord GREY's "kith and kin" living on the public purse; and we think, without being justly ob-noxious to a charge of party prejudice, we may say that Commissions, which the Whicgs, in opposition, declared were always jobs—an opinion which they appear determined to support by their conduct in office—are, in number and con-

together. They are pleasant, however, to "the parties most inte-rested." Posting paid, on the scale of about 2s, a mile; fifteen shillings or a guinea per diem for "board and lodging;" and 2001. or 3001. for the job—perhaps not of more than two or three months—form a very pretty and agreeable honorarium for young gentlemen, or middle-aged, for the form the set of agreeable honorarium for young gentlemen, or middle-aged, or elderly, or old gentlemen, having any inclination for a "trip," or being ambitious of a little importance or conse-quence, sine pulvere—but, if "travellers," not without a little dust.

little dust. We repeat, this "Commissioning" by the present Govern-ment is immense in magnitude and frequency. If Minis-terial retreuchment be beneficial to an encreased and en-creasing population, which we do not think, seeing that such retreuchment must threw out of employment, and conse-quently more or less out of pay, additional numbers of some class or other, and whatever class it may directly affect, it ultimately falls upon the lower ranks of the population;— but if retrenchment be a good, the all-wise and all excellent "MIDDLE CLASSES," who constitute the Anti-lar Associa-tions, would much better and more reasonably employ their leisure hours in busybodying themselves in petitioning for the diminution of these too-often worse than useless Com-missions, than in combining and conspiring to resist the taxes missions, than in combining and conspiring to resist the taxes —than which there cannot be a more effective example for an inroad and an attack upon the sanctity and security of

"REVISING BARRISTERS .- It is understood that before the nex registration, a general meeting of all the Barristers employed will be held, for the purpose of comparing their notes of disputed cases, discussing their various decisions, and deciding upon the correct interpretation of the REFORM ACT. The result to be ultimately submitted to the consideration of a certain number of the Judges whose decision is to be held as binding on the whole body of revision Barristers."-Lincoln Paper.

A conclave of "Judges," to divine and expound the meaning of a whole new Act of Parliament ! What a beaumeaning of a whole new Act of Parliament! What a beau-tifully clear and clever Act it must be ! we never heard of another that was so extremely plain from beginning to end. This is, truly, an "enlightened generation !"—particularly of late, and at present.

On Wednesday week the Duchess of KENT and the Princess Vic-TORIA, on their return from the Isle of Wight, changed horses at the George Inn, Winchester, during which operation the Mayor and Corporation, and then the Dean and Chapter, appeared, and read addresses to their Royal Highnesses at the window of their carriage.

The Duke of DEVONSHIRE, it is said, has twice tendered his resignation of his wand of office as Lord Chamberlain, which the Kine has declined, and therefore, during his Grace's absence on the Con-tinent for the improvement of his health, his official duties will timent for the improvement of his health, his official duties will necessarily devolve on Lord BELFART, the Vice Chamberlain, who is now staying with his family at Brighton. — The fact is, that no Chamberlain is better than a disagreeable one, and therefore, although the KING loses the services of the Duke of DEVONSHIRE, his MAJESTY, during his Grace's absence, is secured from the inflic tion of a disagreeable successor.

His MAJESTY has assigned the Duchess of MARLBOROUGE ments in the Palace at Hampton Court, and her Grace, accompanied by her nieces, the Misses SPENCER, have arrived there from their residence at Grosvenor gate, Park-lane.

Mr. STANLEY gave the first Cabinet dinner on Monday, all the Ministers were present, with the exception of Lord CARLISLE. Whether it were wine or wisdom that kept them together so long, it is not for us to guess-they did not separate till half past one. "When they do agree," as SEERIDAN says in the Critic, "their una mimity is wonderful."

NOMINATION OF SHERIFFS.—The Lords of his Majesty's most Honourable Privy Council assembled on Tuesday (being the morrow of St. Martin) in the Court of Exchequer, for the purpose of nominating the list of gentlemen to serve the office of Sheriff in the English counties during the ensuing year; Viscount ALTHORP presiding, in his robes of office, as Chancellor of the Exchequer. The Lords pre-sent were the Lord Chancellor, the Lord President, the Duke of RICHMOND, the Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, the Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas the Chief Justice in the Bankruptcy Court, the Vice-Chancellor, Mr. Justice PARKE, and Mr. Justice BOSANQUET. The Puisne Judges in the Courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas, and the Exchequer, were in attendance, to submit to their Lordships the names of gen-tlemen qualified to serve as Sheriffs. The customary oath having been administered to the Privy Councillors, the counties were called over in alphabetical order, together with the names of the three centlemen nominated last year for each county to serve the office of Sheriff. The Judges who had been in the counties, in their respective circuits, then proposed the names of gentlemen instead of the present Sherifis, and also stated to their Lordships, the result of their inquiries relative to the objections made by many gentlemen Some of the pleas were allowed-such as ad minated. On Wednesday night, Captain Rosa, accompanied by some friends, visited the Royal Pavilion Theatre, in the Whitechapel-road, to witness a melo-dramatic piece, entitled Captuin Ross, or the King of the Arctic Regions. The Gallant Captain came incog., but his pre-sence became known, in consequence of a gentleman who had in the course of the day engaged a private box for him, and who had arrived rather late, asking the door keeper if Captain Ross had arrived. The report of his being in the theatre soon got circulated through the neighbourhood, and in a short time the theatre became crowded to excess, by persons anxious to have a sight of the intrepid voyage. During the performance of the piece, which is a dramatic representa-tion of the scenes and privations which Captain Ross and his gallant companions had undergone, Captain R. paid the most marked attention to it, and was frequently seen to laugh heartily at the per formance, particularly that of HISLOP, as the representative of bimself. One argument has been urged upon the peasantry in the provinces, which is not applicable to the inhabitants of cities, as a ason why their contributions to the Tribute this year should be reason why their contributions to the Iribute this year should be dealt out with an unsparing and unusual liberality; and that is, that they have two years' tilhes in their pockets, for which they are indebted to the mighty exertions of the great Liberator. There is no gainsaying this, and the justice of the appeal has been allowed.

HIS HOLINESS AND CITIZEN COBBETT.

The Catholics have ever indulged an expectation that their religion will one day predominate all over the world ; but they say, that a general aprit of irreligion and political corvulsion will be the pre-cursor of this state of things. Cosmerr-who is a "servant of all-work"-has already put forth his Satanic feelers, in an eulogium upon the Catholic hierarchy, and would doubtless have no objection to enlist in this crusade. His idea of a "voluntary Church"—and which is now taken up by the Dissenters from our Establishment-is of the like character with the invidious "Act of Toleration" in reduced by Popish JANES for the destruction of the Protestant faith. The probable effect of this "revolutionary movement" of our Evan-gelical innovators will be an indifference for all religion, carrying ith it consequences "for a time" which it is fearful to contemplate. will at last recoil, and fall back from a position so unnatural, and lay hold, in its first terrors, upon superstition, and a Church which confidently promises safety, to all who take shelter under its pale, in the belief of its infallibility. The connection between the n ments of the "Voluntary Church Association" of our times, and the "Bill of mob force," for the destruction of existing Institutions (miscalled the "Reform Bill,") is as necessarily linked together a cause and effect.

Now, who is it that will not praise the excellent and patriotic disposition of the Gentleman who, unusked, took so long a journey purely to see us Scottish people, and to bestow instruction upon us. here was the more Christian benevolence in this, when we consider. that he undertook all this trouble for the sake of a set of the "moss mean, degraded, time serving vermin upon earth !!" In this de-In this dewhom he scrupted, thus set ring version upon calcult. In this de-scription he has long since included, the man, now slas! no more, whom he scrupted not to revile as ignorant and "insolent," for the glorious stand he made for Scotland in the Currency Question.

But as we could not expect to be enlightened in political science, without being somewhat lightened of our small changes, Connerr patricically combined those purposes together. The silver coin he committed to his wallet. The smell of "All-stinking Edinburgh" would be dissipated before he reached the metropolis with his booty. The terms "the people" and the public, are words so hackney'd of

The terms "the people" and the public, are words so mackney u or late, and applied in so many different ways, as at last to carry no determinate meaning. "The people," according to WitLUM Con-BETT, are those inhabitants of the British Isles who are not owners of any part of the soil of it, or of anything else; who can call no man their determinate here the transmission to them stand in the cir debtor, but who have too many who to them stand in the man there deuter, but who have too many who to them stand in the relation of creditors. COMPET has long laboured to show that this kind of people are most grievously oppressed: such of the other portion of the KING's natural-born subjects, who have lent their money to the State, upon national security, are, according to this arch-anarchist, not entitled to the protection of law! He proposes, therefore it is the the state it the units of the same with their gra-Merchandenist, not entitled to the protection on raw in the proposed berefore, that the "people" should be quits at once with their cre-ditors by a knock-down-blow of his massive gridien. As there is not common honesty in this proposal of the dangerous demagogue, so neither is there a semblance of sound judgment in it. I destruction consequent upon his contemplated convulsion it The terrible to entertain, even in imagination. This is so evident, that it were idle to spend a word upon it. His political philosophy Conserv borrows energies from Tox PAINE; who again copies it from such of the French revolutionary-metaphysiciane as he was enabled to read, through their translators. It is a philosophy which "Railers in their wit or drink

"Do rather wheedle with than think."

It argues that no laws can bind any persons except and unless the law-makers themselves ! its principles, therefore, if followed out, would drive back society to its original savage state; would crive back society to its original savage state; would conter-set the appointments of God and nature, and throw everything where civilized men were concerned into an irremediable chase! where eivilized men were concerned into an irremediable chaos: But even PAINE himself has not gent the whole length of the sponging system. The Right Hon, FRANST JEFRER, in his famous Waterloo oration, comes nearest to COBBETT, when he lays down his Bever to be forgotten apophthegen, that "bad laws enacted by the People Atmosphere in the last of the less that can be People themselves are infinitely preferable to the best that can be Tanued for them by others !" Conserv terms all laws made by the British Parliament since 1688 as usurpations and spoliations of the "people;" these Acts, there-face, upon the principles of the "Rights of Man," ought to be cast into the furnace-that is, to consume the National Debt. Why did has the furnace of the second secon hat COBBETT retrospect until he came at least to the Norman Con-Subscription of the form and the second seco

Our Revolutionist next proposes to sell the Church and Crown lands Our Revolutionist next proposes to sell the Cauron and Crow-lands, which, according to him, are public property. He does not say they are the "people's" property, because le has not yet come to far in his anarchical process as to proclaim an agrarian distribu-Gon of all the property in the kingd m. The lands of the Church and the Come to prove the same to prove the church in distance to the church and the Crown and the Crown, hewever, if sold to morrow, would, in discharge of the National Debt, be but as a drop of water to a very thirsty man. Within him vithin him. Although an unlettered man, he is a person of the largest natural endowments, but a political knave of the most dan gerous kind. He must, and does know, that, in a mighty commer-cial and colonizing empire, a National Debt may be, in effect, a socurity for national stability. He has the talent of urging his sophistries full slap and with vehemece upon the passions, and weak and warped understandings of those they are played off upon. Although COBERT has no acquaintance with the writings of the Greek and Roman historians, as they are to be found in their re-spective tongues, yet it is impossible to doubt that he is sufficiently informed of the fact, that the like democratic doctrines he supports informed of the fact, that the like democratic doctrines he supports pushed the ancient Republics first into blood; and, finally, into the synchronic sector of the support of the sector of the conser-puts forth betarsys its imbecility at every step. "The Church lands the the sector of the cown are public property," quoth Citizen Consert. This, in one sense, is true, because the whole island is the property of the sector of the sector of the sector of the sector ions to individe the sector of the sector of the sector of the sector what an eloquer Frince would WILLIAM CONSERT prove among the Mohawks of the swamps and woods! Edinburgh, Nov. 5, 1833. SENEX SENIOR.

Several points of law were raised by the prisoner's Counsel, Mr. Attex, but which were overruled by the Chairman, Mc. Rorce, who refused to make a minute of any of them. The Jury returned a verdict of guilty, and the prisoner was sentenced to V years' transportation. During the trial the Court adjourned for one hour, and the Jury were allowed to separate for that period, the usual necessary paractice of sweren as a statement of the whole case to be laid before the Sourton that guive diversal were allowed to subject of the paration of the Jury during the trial was fatal to the conviction. TO JOHN BULL. DrAn BULL,—It is now between sixty and seventy years since the Corporation of London and the Court of Assistants of the Miners' Company thought proper in their wisdom to metamorphose the mu-inficent foundation of Gressham College into an Excise Office, thereby completely alienating and destroying the will and design of the nolle-rainded founder, and by translating the Professors from their Col-lexister residence to an obscure room situate in the Belfry of the Royal Exchange, rendered their situations next to a sinecure for their relatives or dependents, under the pretence of reading lectures during a few hours in every Term—duties at the best but carelessly performed, often by departy, and scarcely ever attended, owing entirely to the inconvenient hour and place for delivering the said lecture.

Mustricearr Connuct.—It has been stated in some of the papers, that the Duke of Newcastra is about to dispose of his property at Aldborough and Boroughbridge. The Vicar of the former borough has for some time resided in Aldborough Old Hall, at a low rent, and has expended considerable sums in the necessary repairs. As the loss would have been seriously felt by the Rev. Gentleman, if the property were sold, and he were obliged to leave his residence, he visited the Duke at Clumber, in company with a friend, with a view to obtain a lease of the premises at an equitable rent. When the Duke had heard the statement of the Reverend Gentleman, his Grace told him that he had not been unmindful of the improvements he had effected, or of the money he bad expended; and that he might go home perfectly comjortuble, for whatever become of the Aldborough property, he would take care that the Hall and a small garth statched to is should be made over to the Vicar and his successors for ever; and that, moreover, he would be at the expense of the conveyance. Tast week Lord W. P. CLINTON, fourth son of his Grace the Duke of Nzwcastrae, was entered as a Nobleman at ChristChurch, Oxford ; and it may be mentioned as a singular circumstance, that there are four some of his Grace who are now wenning gold tufts in the above College, viz. the Earl of LINCOR, LOR C. P. CLINTON, Lord T. P. CLINTON, and Lord W. P. CLINTON. In modern times, the Dean and Chapter have voluntarily given up property, amounting to 94,0001, to found the university : to the sup-port of which, the Bishes of Dunax subscribes 1,000, per annum-his Lordslip having made already two donations of 1,000 each towards the building fund, besides giving ad welling house, which he pur-chased, for the residence of one of the professora. VIOLENT ASSAULT AT THE NEWCASTLE JOURNAL OFFICE.

Mayor's Chamber, Newcastle-upon Tyme, New CASTLE SUCKNAL Mayor's Chamber, Newcastle-upon Tyme, Newber 18, 1833, Thismorning, John Coull Carr, Eag, the Earl of Durham's Coal Agent at Sunderland; Francie Ramshaw, Mr. Carr's groom; John Prail Kinism, E-g., the Earl of Durham's Law Agentat Sunderland; William, E-g., the Earl of Durham's Law Agentat Sunderland; William, E-g., the Barl of Durham's Law Agentat Sunderland; William, E-g., the Barl of Durham's Law Agentat Sunderland; William, E-g., the Barl of Durham's Law Agentat Sunderland; William, E-g., the Barl of Durham's Law Agentat Sunderland; Committed at the office of the Neucesile Journal, upon the person of Mr. Hernaman, the proprietor of the establishment, under the cir-cumstances detailed in the subjoined-evidence. Mr. Brutzron, Solicitor, appeared for Mr. Carr and his servant, Francis Ramshaw. Mr. Stroken, Soliketor, was in attendance for Mr. Kidson, Mr. Galley, and Jonassoln. Messes, Stoker and Philipson pressed upon the Bench the pro-priety of proceeding by summary conviction, and a conversation there and Messes, Alterman Reed, Brandling Hood, and there. Eventually the Bench consulted together, and Mr. Alderman Reed announced it to be their determination, as the matter appeared to be a very serbus one, to send it to the Sessions for trial before a Jury.

Reed announced it to be their determination, as the first structure of the avery serious one, to send it to the Sessions for trial before a Vary. Messers. Structure and Purtures again argued that the case ought to be fully gone into, and at once diamissed. The Joan Brows (Magistrates' Clerk) observed, that the parties thad been summoned to appear for the purpose of entering into recognized to a summary conviction. Messers. The decision of a Jury, and not for summary conviction. Mr. Alderman Basen sums could not see white the party had to fear in the case being sent for inquiry at the Quarter Sessions; trial by Jury was the pride and boast of Englishmen. Mr. Alderman Respected to the Statisticy the sessions in the best had been and boast of Englishmen. Mr. Alderman Respected to the Statisticy the sessions is trial by Jury was the pride and boast of Englishmen. Mr. Alderman Respected to the second of the second the session of a jury. All that was necessary, therefore, in the present size of the occeedings, was to satisfy themselves that an assault had been committed, and by whom. They were anxious to do justice to all parties; and they were satisfied that that object would be best accomplished by leaving the decision to a jury of Englishmen. Mr. Harnaman, the proprietor of the Neucoast Journal, was then

Ite deposed as follows:— On Wednesday last, I was writing at my desk in the Journal office. at, I think, about twelve o'clock, when one or two gentlemen came in. They first inquired for Mr. Hernaman. Mr. Hernaman was writing at his own desk, and he came round to speak with them, during which time other gentlemen came in, which augmented their number to five or six. One of them produced a bill, and asked Mr. Hernaman if he was the printer of it, which he answerted by saying. "I twas printed at this office." Mr. Hernaman was then asked to deliver up the author, which he said was not customary, and he must have some consideration. He was asked, "what consideration?" and he said, he meant some time for reflection about the propriety of giving up the author. He was then a sket if he refused to give up the author, and on his saying he was not inclined to give up the name, he was sturk as severe how on his arm or shoulder; I am not certain which. Upon seeing this, I immediately ran up stairs, shouting all the way as I went, to alarm the printers. They instantly came down stairs, and I followed, but I did not get in to the odifice for a short time, because the entrance was blocked up by Mr. Hernamang men. When I did get in the assellantshad disappeared. Hicre the witness was told to look round amongst the prople in Contr. from whom he selected Mr. Carr and Mr. Kidson. He knew them because they were chief spokesmen. These two the added, again looking round] are the only two that I remember to have seen or heard speak. Mr. Kidson (to the witness).—Had I any whip or stick? The witness looked at Mr. Kidson carneelly, and after a short pase for consideration, seid, "I think you had a stick 1' and then, turning to the Bench, "He had a stick to the best of my knowledge and belief. Mr. Philipson wished to state that Ramshaw was not the groom of the Ead

The Mayistrates thought there was not sufficient evidence to war-rant their binding Ramshaw to appear at the Sessions; but the other parties must enter into recognisances, the principals in 401, each, and two survices in 201, each, to answer the charges of assault at the Sessions, and also to keep the peace in the meantime towards Mr. Hernam an.

Sections, and also to neep the prace in the international Herman and Herman and Mir. Stoker applied to the Maxistrates to bind the parties over to appear in the Northumberland County Court instead of the Sessions to save expenses. Mr. Instead was it would be competent for the parties to remove the trial by writ of certiforari, and if they preferred that course let the mass.

the trial by writ of certorari, and a may preserve an event of them does. The Bench decided that they would not be justified in departing from the usual course. Mr. John Coull Carr, Mr. John Pexall Kidson, Mr. David Jonas-sohn, and Mr. William Galley then entered into the required recog-nisances, and the party left the Court.

a paper in which vigour of writing, activity in research, and accuracy of information now blend in support of the cause of the PROPLE against their imbecile tyrants. We give the subjoined article as one combining, in an eminent degree, all the qualities which we ascribe to it :--

"We said some days ago that we had done with the Portsmouth job. And we have done with it so far as the job itself is concerned ; but we have yet one word to say upon the nature of the evidence by which it was proposed to establish the innocence of the parties accused.

"It was alleged that Earl Gaza influenced by love of his kindred rather than by regard for his duty, was about to appoint to the Lieutenant Governorship of Portsmouth an Officer by no mea entitled to that appointment by seniority of rank or brilliancy of entities to that appointment of the service, in manifest forgetig, "If we supposed that Mr. Ebygand ELLIGS, in manifest forgetig, ness of Ms fidelity as a public servant, had, used, his influence with Earl Gazy, his brother in-law, to promote the appointment of this Barl GREY, the broker: in law, to promote the appointment of this Officer, his brother, to the post in question. "The Times took the Noble Lord and the Right Honourable

"The Times took the Novie Lord and the August monourable Gentleman under its special protection, and asserted, in the first place, that the First Lord of the Treasury never intended the applace, that the First Lord of the Treasury never intended the ap-pointment; in the second place, that the Secretary at Warnever and cognizant of the interaction. The Times did not pretend to be alw upon authority, to contradict our statement; but it said the report was false 'on the face of it;' it assumed the impossibility of the interaction of the interaction of the statement. imputed guilt in either of the accused. That Lord Gaur thun meditate such a thing sagmed to the Times inconsistent with the well known 'delicacy and honour' of Lord GREY; that Mr. Edward, Well known 'delicatey and burnout of Loos others, and the Durant ELLICE should recommend such a thing seemed to the Times incon-sistent with the unbiased 'integrity' of Mr. Epwand ELLICE, "First, here is the testimony the Times bears to the delicacy and

"First, here is the testimony the Times bears to the delicacy and honour of Lord GREY Anno Domini 1833:— "The well-known delicacy and honour of Lord GREY would read at the suspicion insinuated by the slanderous Tory Frina that Gre and far more distinguished brethren, from no other motive for the purtiality than his being a connection of a connection of the Noie Em. It would therefore be unjust and offensive to deal with such part falsehoods otherwise than as calamariae." (Times, Norember 9, 1833) "Next, here is the testimony the Times bears to the integrity of Mr. Ebwand Extuce Anno Domini 1833:— " "We are sure that no fraternal preference would have blinded " " We are sure that no fraternal preference would have blinded"

Mr. EDWARD ELUCE Anno Domini 1833 :---""We are sure that no fraternal preference would have binded the discrimination of the Sceretary at War on such a subject or biased his integrity, and we have the strongest reason for alleging that Mr. EDWARD ELUCE would, with whatever violence to his pe-sonal affections, have refused to sanction the choice of his burcher for the Portsmouth appointement, had it been, which it never was, sub-mitted to his approbation. This Right Hon. Gentleman, holding a place of high and important trust, one which, from the opportunity it alfords of intermeddling, more or less directly, with the shale willitary department, and i from the allorement which the political station of its occupant must be suspected of throwing in his sy towards a corrupt or selfish perversion of his extensive power, its becomes the duty of an honest Journalist to wips away from the conduct of Mr. ELUCE whatever foul or infirmines columnt histing and of adverse fuction may have cast upon it?-(Than, November 16, 1833.).

We know well how fickle the Times has ever been in its judgment of men and measures. When we found it thus repelling an accus-tion solely by its confidence in the character of the accused, we could not but suspect that we had formerly heard it justifying the distust which now it so magnanimously disclaimed. But we confess we was scarcely prepared for the discovery which a very brief retrospecthas afforded us. The Times, not twenty four months ago, on one and afforded us. the same morning, within the space of a single paragraph, assailed Lord GREY's 'delicacy and honour' in a reproof quite as storg as any in which we have presumed to assail them; and impeached Mr. EDWARD ELLICE's 'integrity' in sarcasms far coarser than any in which we shall venture to impeach it.

which we shall venture to impeach it. "First, here is the treatimony the Times bears to the delicacy and honour of Lord Gazy Anno Domini 1831:--"Lord Gazy Annows-he must know-wohat the public opinion is with respect to the number of his connections associated with him is place: and he ought to respect that opinion, or it will be too strong for him. His Lordship cannot be as sowrid as to wish to concentrate a mass of public wealth in his own family; but what might bere been indevertence at first will assume a olificent character if prevered in advertence at first will assume a olificent character if prevered in direr it is exposed and the disgust which it occasions stated !-"Times, February 26, 1831. "Next (it is the continuation of same the paragraph), here is the testimony the Times hears to the integrity of Mr. Edwand Elucet Anno Domini 1831:--

Anno Domini 1831 :---

Anno Domini 1831 :--" There is one person in particular unfavourably known in the City for his connection with the celebrated Greek Loan. If Mr. EDWARD ELLICE ought to have shrunk from public life altogether' two years ago, we do not know what renders him fitter for its duties now. The Premier is the same; the Secretary is the same; the Times only is charged. It holds 'his Lordship's' partiality for his family meritorious; it considers' this person's' concern with the Greek Loan creditable. But let it, at least, be merciful to those who have not received in new light. LONDON, NOVEMBER 24.

THE Court continues at Brighton.

THE Court continues at Brighton. It appears that Lord GREY'S anxiety to be relieved from the cares and responsibility of office is not likely to be grati-fied by a removal from the scene of action—his colleagues, independent as they are of each other, think that if he goes, the fabric will fall. People, however, go the length of saying that Lord DUn-HAM is to be his noble father-in-law's successor, and some people go the still further length of saying that such a project has been talked over after dinner by the sea side. Of course we dare not express any opinion of Lord DUR HAM's fitness or un-fitness for such a station, nor presume to pronounce whether he is, as we hear some people say, "the fittest man to lead a Ministry, from his perfect knowledge of the popular feeling;" but this we certainly believe, that if such an expe-dient were hit upon, his Lordship would have the gratifica-tion of forming a new Cabinet.

Teeing ," but this we certainly believe, that it such an expedient were hit upon, his Lordship would have the gratification of forming a new Cabinet.
Every day's experience serves to confirm us in the opinion which we have before expressed—that Ministers will advance with the mouvement. They argue that it is the duty of a Government to keep pace with the people, in order to direct the popular tide—by doing which they fancy they may keep it within some limits, and prevent it from sweeping away everything by violence; but their own misgivings shew that they merely repeat the hackneyed doctrine of the "Sansculott" school to excuse, to themselues and to others, the present revolutionary position of affairs. In this they will never succeed, for not only are all thinking men opposed to them, but their own consciences are against them.
It seems to us, that, without a complete change of Government, nothing can arrest the progress of revolution—not even the barrier of property. But general suffering, of the most frightful character, will fall upon that present sleek, comfortable class in middling circumstances—so many of whom have in mere wantonness joined in the work of demolition, by assisting a faction which has arrayed the demoralized masses of workmen throughout the kingdom against property (for this, we have said orer and over again, is the real point and object of the movement), and against all Government not suitable to the views of the hungry demagogues and their fellow-labourers, the revolutionary writers, who deceive the country by falsehoods, a hundred times repeated, and a hundred times disproved.
These innocent, fai, foolish, and comfortable gulls, will bereafter explate their error in years of suffering and poverty. They do not see their danger, because either they have not read, or will not profit by the experience which the history of their own country affords them, or by the experience which the presented to their observation.

the history of their own country affords them, or by the examples, which in their own times, other countries have presented to their observation. The false, selfish, jobbing, grinding Whigs, tell them that they are advancing alaudable scheme for renovating a worn-ont Constitution; and they will tell them any thing, so that they themselves may keep their places, and the pelf which swarms of their hungry relations have got from the pockets of the people. But, let them reflect that the present nominad KING'S Government holds its authority only on the frait tenure of doing the work (up to a certain point) of the demagogues and revolutionists, many of whom are now half frantic with joy at the almost certain prospect of enjoying that wealth and comfort of which, they speedily hope to deprive the middling and upper classes of society; but, when the moment arrives—and rely upon it we are fast ap-proaching it—then will these Whigs be kicked aside, and property and station, and institutions, having none of those barriers to protect them which are essential in all settled countries, will be, in a moment of phrenzy, overwhelmed by the rush of the revolutionist, at a blow, the long career of glory, of renown, of encreasing civilization, and of property, such as never was known in any age or country, will be closed, and succeeded by a dark period of democratic crime and confusion, attended with more general misery than has heretofore been experienced by the people nisery than has heretofore been experienced by the people of any nation.

BY a letter from Brussels, and from a correspondent upon whom we can implicitly rely, we hear that the King of the BELGIANS is in a most desponding state. He feels that he has made no progress towards a settlement on his throne, and that, after all the farce of negociations and conferences, the King of HOLLAND has maintained the principle upon which he started, and that, in fact, the dispute is just where it was two years ago, and the struggle only now beginning. The KING admits to those in his confidence that he is un-happy, and that, atthough he of course dare not openly con-fess it, he looks with regret and anxiety to Claremont. Some of the newspapers have said His MAJESTY has grown hear y—heavy in hear the may have grown, but he is wasting away in body, and looks at least ten years older than he did when he left this country. A CORRESPONDENT tells us—what we can hardly believe.

A CORRESPONDENT tells us-what we can hardly believe, though he refers us to the head of the Department for ali authenfication :-- a source of revenue which has, in the most unaccountable way, hither to escaped the notice of all preceding statesmen. We will not—we CANNOT believe this. way, W

MR. O'CONNELL has pocketted his rent, Hibernically drawn from the empty pockets of a starving nation, whose revenue is derived from the exportation of provisions—and has re-commenced his attacks upon the King's Government and popular tranquillity, like "a giant refreshed." This proves that the "Sop." has been rejected, and that the hu-miliating offers of his Majesty's Ministers to the great Agi-tator has been rejected. tator have been rejected.

miliating offers of his Majesty's Ministers to the great Agi-tator have been rejected. No doubt can exist that the breach is now wider than ever. The Times—blest advocate of liberty—talks of chains and strait-waistcoats, and recommends for the immediate pacification of Irelaud the instruction of its population in reading and writing; it advises the Government, moreover, to head the confederation against the tythe system, of which it says, precisely as it did five years ago of Popish emancipa-tion, " it is the one great evil which comprehends so many others,—an instrument in the hands of uoprincipled men, whereby they may inflame at pleasure the feelings of a vele-ment people, and enlist, not merely the impatience of suffer-ing, but in some measure the sense of justice and the sug-gestions of foresight in a league against British connexions." To concliate the Irish people—that is to say, to truckle to Mr. O'CONNELL, whom the Government is now pleased to abuse because they cannot bribe him—another principle of the Constitution is to be overthrown. The concession of the Popish claims was to tranquillize all Ireland—but that failed, and then the Reform Bill was to do it; indeed, Lord JOHN RussELL stated in Parliament that it had done it : and now the Government papers attempt to persuade the people that, if tibes can abuilt a number of the people that, and then the Reform Bill was to do it; indeed, Lord JOHN RUSELL stated in Parliament that it had done it: and now the Government papers attempt to persuade the people that, if tithes are abolished, peace will be established; and that they moreover ought to be abolished, because the abate-ment of that grievance would rob Mr. O'CONNELL of his principal chance of enforcing the repeal of the Union. This is the first development of the principle of Govern-ment to which we have elsewhere alluded. "Unable as we are," say the Ministers, "in the present state of our popu-larity to withstand any encroachments, we must run before the cry, and head the mob in the work of destruction, in the hope of conducting it in an orderly manner." The Times concludes its article with the following paragraph ;—after laaring pointed out the course to be pursued with regard to the aboliton of tithes, and what it calls " idealing rigorously with the frightful abuses of the landford powers," which we presume to mean the cruel exactment of rent, it says:— " Then indeed will the 'matter of sedition' be exhausted, and the dynasty of demagoues be overturned; then will the platform drop 'repeal of the Union' will sink into some partial and feeble murmurr, and law and constitutional authority will assume in Ireland the exer-cise of those rights from which entire centuries of oppression and faction have ousted them."

That is exactly the thing-give up tithes and rent, and

That is exactly the thing—give up tithes and rent, and teach the Irish people to govern themselves, and then it is probable they may be satisfied. The concluding passage about the "dropping of the platform" is one which, although no doubt purely figurative, must sound very unpleasant to Mr, O'CONNEL'S ears. Some people are unlucky in their jokes—this bit of metaphor seems to us to be no joke at all. But now, for one moment, let us glance from Mr. O'CON NELL's to the Marquees WELLESLEY, and his Secretary and son-in-law. What a position they are placed in ! While they are pledged to maintain the Union, and uphold the KING's authority in Ireland, they dare not declare open war against the Agitator, who is working against everything they are bound to support. They are at this moment playing a second part to Mr. O'CONNELL—nay, they are his most nseful allies in the great cause of repeal and confusion, for at the very moment when the Ministerial papers here are talking of strait-waistcoats, and chains, and platforms, they in Dublin are bowing, and soothing, and hoping, while he is organising all his measures for the subversion of the 'existing order of things.

organising all his measures for the subversion of the existing order of things. The policy which they are instructed to adopt is, to do anything but their duty; because, although the Times of yesterday breaks out violently, the greatest dread the Mi-nisters experience, is the loss of O'CONNELL's support, and that of his Tail, in the House of Commons: they care no-thing for alienating from England the loyal and respectable partien of the neoule, or about maxing the way for the thing for altenating from England the loyal and respectable portion of the people, or about paving the way for the greatest calamity that could fall upon the country. This is not lost upon their driver—he knows their fears and kceps them well up to the collar. If they kick or wince, or shew any disposition to pull unsteady, crack goes his whip, and any disposition to put unsteady, crack goes in swinp, and on they go again. We must say His Excellency and his son-in-law are in a woful plight; until Parliament meets they will have no rest, and then not much, as the Lord-Lieutenant will be left "alone in his glory" in Dublin, and we shall receive back the poor, jaded, and nearly foundered Secretary, in a very bad condition indeed. had condition indeed.

WE are obliged, in justice to an extremely ill-used man, to recur for one moment to the conduct of Lord GREY'S Government to Major-General ELLICE. Major-General ELLICE, nearly connected as he is with the Premier-a Premier, whose liberality to his relations is proverbial—had a right to expect some attention to his claims, founded as they were upon several grounds, and a share of family pa-tronage suitable to his rank in the army, and agreeable in a professional point of view.

This point was conceded, and he was promised the first military appointment which should meet his wishes, In the meantime, but certainly, as we shall presently shew, not in lice of any such appointment, Major-General ELLICE was nominated Comptroller of Lord WELLESLEY'S House-hold hold haid. Shortly after this, the Government of Nova Scotia having been given to Sir COLIN CAMPBELL the Government of Portsmouth was vacated; and General ELICE, having the promise of the first suitable military post, claimed that pro-mise, and it was granted—when all at once the Times and Globe fell foul of the appointment, and having violently stigmatized the Government for thinking of such a thing, got out of the scrape into which they had brought their friends, first, by forcing them to abandon the appointment; and, secondly, by declaring, with an air of the most perfect confidence, that no such appointment had been in contem-plation.

that, which, according to promise, would be gazetted in a few days after. But now comes the best of this history. The Ministeriah papers, as we said last week, denied the previous appoint-ment of General ELLICE to the Comptrollership of the Irish Household. We, to-day, found our conviction of General ELLICE's confidence in his Noble relative's promise of Portsmouth upon this fact—that when General ELLICE went over to Ireland to assume the functions of the Comptroller-ship, and perhaps receive a quarter's salary; instead of taking a house and establishing himself in Dublin, he borrowed the residence of Colonel SHAWE (Lord WELLESLE's pri-vate Secretary), in the Pha nix Park, because, as his occu-pancy of the Comptrollership would only be temporary, it was not worth while to make any permanent arrangement for his stay there. for his stay there.

for his stay there. We say that General ELLICE has a right, upon every principle of honourable feeling, to the Government of Potts-mouth. We shall not be surprised if he yet receives it. It is true that General ELLICE has not seen much service; It is true that General ELLICE has not seen 'much service'; that is no fault of his—he had seen just as much service when Loid GREY promised him the first military command that fell vacant, as he had on the day when he was told that he could not have it. If General ELLICE is not appointed Governor of Portsmouth, the Times and Globe govern the country instead of his Majesty's Ministers. In the Morning Post of Wednesday we find the following comparison between the services of Major-General ELLICE and of Sir COLIN CAMPBELL:— MAJOR GENERAL ELLICE.

was Governor of Portsmouth, but he has vacated it, and, of course, since General ELLICE has seen no service at all, any other very distinguished officer, in a similar manner, would have the advantage of him. What we mean to say is, that this want of service, as a plea for breaking a promise, is futile and idle. What service has General the Hon. Sir HENRY GREY (the Premier's brother) cere seen ? Yet he has a Regiment, a Grand Cross of the Bath, and a Grand Cross of the Guelphic Order—nay, putting aside the family feeling—or failing—let us look Sir JoHN DALRYMPLE, an officer who, while his brother officers were campaigning abroad, remained invariably at home, electioncering in Scotland, and whose last political effort was made in the shape of a never-to-be-lorgotten speech on the Reform Bill. To Sir JOHN DALRYMPLE be present Ministers grave a Regiment—and yet now, because the Times and Globe affect to be shocked at the favouritism and patronage which attach to the Portsmouth affair, Lord (fREV is forced to break his promise to General ELLICE, and disappoint the expectations of one to whom he is most justly and affectionately attached.—Poor Lord GREY ! We had written thus much when we received some in-formation which makes us believe that Lord GREY will not tamely give way to the dictation of the newspapers. We understand that Lord GREY cannot, and will not en-dure the idea of losing this appointment for his son-in-law, particularly, stimulated as his inordinate propensity for mo

Tamiery give way to the dictation of the newspapers. We understand that Lord GREY cannot, and will not en-dure the idea of losing this appointment for his son-in-law particularly, stimulated as his inordinate propensity for mo-nopolizing places for his family is, by solicitations which few men can resist, when urged by a person of the most amiable character and captivating manners. His Lordship's infirmity of temper is also excited by what he feels and calls the degradation of submitting to the dicta-tion of the Times, which ironically sneers at him for "honour and gentlemanly feeling" in family transactions, merely for the purpose of drawing public attention to Lord GREY'S personal connexion with General ELLICE; his spirit as a gentleman, and his discipline as a Premier, are further pra-voked to resist the mutinous member of his Government who, manthorized by his Lordship, has dared to deny by authority, in the Globe, that there was any truth in the con-templated appointment of General ELLICE at Portsmonth-when, as we have said already, Lord GREY Indeer and point that he should have the government, and Major General ELLICE hinself naturally told his friends that his Lordship had done so.

point that he should have the government, and have figeneral ELLICE, himself naturally told his friends that his Lordship had done so.
Thus, natural affection—temper, pride, and the haughy freedbettion of what his character once was, will, we repeat it, induce Lord GREY to carry this job at all hazards. He has had the abuse of the Whigs already, why not have the profit—why not make the Commander-in-Chief the scape goat—why not make the Commander-in-Chief the scape goat—why not make Lord HILL sanction the appointment of his military character and responsibility?
For ourselves, we think Lord GREY ought to succeed but, we will tell his Lordship frankly, why we think he will but, see used the gage of GREY first urged Lord HILL to make the commons, and at page 133 (we thank our correspondent for the reference), we find the following evidence proceeding from the Military Secretary:—
Q. Do unot consider it essential to the good of the service, that the Commander-in-Chief should have the power to select the most meritorious officers for appointments of reward, &c. &c.?
A. Yes, I consider that the just reward of individuals in all ranks, but particularly in the ligher ranks, is a very important duty for the Commander-in-Chief to discharge, but the evelit of the contray, and the honour of His Majesty with the credit of the the outer system of the King's service, but the credit of the the ufficers of the King's service with the credit of the the ufficers of the King's service with the credit of the the ufficers of the King's provident of the service with the the following of the file why head the following of the service of the King's distingthered and the distingthered and t

GREY job. Lord HILL must know that 12 or 14,000 gentlemen, who Lord HILL must know that 12 or 14,000 gentlemen, who are commanding officers, with their numerous connections, are spectators of this farce—that the "credit of the country, and the honour of his Majesty himself are to be affected" by his resisting or sanctioning this most improper appoint-ment—for mark, the Secretary at War, Mr. EDWARD ELLICE himself, admits, in his authorized disclaimer in the Times and Globe papers, that his brother, the General, ought not to have this appointment on account of his unfit-ness.

As regards Lord HILL, therefore, we are confident the KING, the Country, and the Army, may rely on his doing his duty—unless Lord GREY conveys the KING's order for the appointment to take effect; and if so, then we shall the app know whose job it is.

We find either that we did the Postmaster-General an in-justice last Sunday, or that the Postmaster-General has since that time altered his plan of extending the limits of the Threepenny Postround London. The Post towns in-cluded within the circle are to be considered as "general posts" for all the purposes of franking as at present—and the option is given to the person despatching a letter to such places to send it by either the General or Threepenny Post, which he may do, by putting it into the box of a receiving-house of either department, at his pleasure.

house of either department, at his pleasure. Dow MIGUEL, who, about three weeks or a month ago, was killed by all the revolutionary and Ministerial news-papers, and whose downfal was croaked all over London by that freg of diplomacy the Brunmagem TALLEVRAND, ap-pears to be proceeding not only scientifically and systema-tically in his campaign, but successfully: the last accounts describe the defeat and flight of the Pedroite insurgents in the most agreeable colours- agreeable to us, because they display the hopelessness of the rebel cause upon the only ground upon which we ever sought to oppose it—we mean the devotion of the people of Portugal to their lawful Mo-NARCH, and their determination to have no participation in the unnatural war which is carrying on by mercenaries of all nations.

nations. An officer signing himself BIRT—whether that be his name or not it is impossible to guess, in an army which fights in masquerade, and coupled as it is with Captain NAPIER'S letter, signed "CAPE ST. VINCENT," (to which, if he had any right, he has certainly no right to sign himself as an English nobleman does; the custom with foreign letters being always to prefer the rank of the person signing to the signature)—gives the following account of the action at Aleacer do Sal, which account the Gallant CAPE ST. VIN-CENT, in a letter not worth inserting, bitterly laments and verifies:—

By a Police Report in another part of our Paper it will be seen that a few gentlemen and others, connected with Lord DURHAM, made a party one day last week to vindicate the liberty of the press in their own persons, by most unmerci-fully beating the proprietor of the newspaper against whom Lord DURHAM had previously moved for a criminal informa-tion.

The Joshny AM had previously moved for a criminal informa-tion. The feeling excited by this ambidextrous support of freedom, and that which, like the air, we die if we have not, is universal—with, indeed, one exception—the Times justi-fying the assault of eight or ten men on one, upon the ground that there are offences which, being explated in good society by an appeal to the sword, must in the case of newspaper editors be punished by the bludgeon. The editor of the Times does not place the editorial office extremely high in the scale of society, it must be confessed. As far as an appeal to the sword goes—metaphorically sword—in fact—Pistol, everybody knows that Lord DUR-HAM would gladly put his fame and fate upon that issue rather than upon a dry law proceeding at any time; but surely it is not because his Lordship, like Lord Grizzle (who, in Tom Thumb, declines fighting Glumdatlea—not because she is a giantess, but because she is so big), sub-vaunted freedom should be assailed in the press and its vaunted freedom should be assailed in the press and its vaunted freedom should be assailed in the press and its it is amusing, to be sure, to hear the Times expressing its horror at personalities and libels—a paper in which more bitterly vindictive personalities have appeared than perhaps in any other; and still more amusing to see it vindicating a breach of the law as the means of upholding the character of those libels. We recollect when Mr. WAITER was horse-whipped by mistake, it did not appear to the Times a matter either so jocose or so justifiable. THE Corporation Commissioners, or, as the lawvers call whipped by mistake, it did not appear to the Times a matter either so jocose or so justifiable. THE Corporation Commissioners, or, as the lawyers call them, the "Un-read Rovers," have been carrying all before them—examining, overhauling, prying, spying, and demanding information upon all the minutest points connected with the corporate bodies, with whose interests and affairs they have been directed to meddle, and have met with nothing but passive obedience, and a sullen but implicit compliance with their dictatorial demands. This sort of thing could not go on for ever—much mischief thas already been done—and those writers who are favourable to the Star-Chamber proceedings of the Rovers chuckle at the fact, that the flaw has not been found, nor the blot hit, till irrevocable damage has been done to ancient institutions, hateful to them only from their legality and antiquity. The Merchant Tailors' Company have manfully resisted being pulled to pieces by any such process; they have taken no less, we believe, than fifteen opinions—all the lawyers rousulted are unanimous, Mr. PEY's, the embryo Solicitor-General, excepted, and he does not differ in opinion, but cleverly contrives, in his answer to the quère propounded, to give no opinion at all—his observation being, that "he considers it an impossible case that any Corporation should refuse to afford every information voluntarily which may be required from it." We regret that we have not space for the whole of Sir JAMES CARLETT's opinion. Mr. FOLLETT's, as being the most concise, and yet embodying the whole point of the case, we give, reserving to unscleves the pleasure of selecting small portions from that of Sir JAMES, who has gone more elaborately into the discussion of the subject :— "M. ROLETT's ASNEM. "I am of opinion that Municipal Corporations are not compel-lable by legal proferes to furnish the information required by the Commission structs, perfectly concliding in this avey of the case, says— "I am of opinion ther there of any legal or constitutio

TEPED & THE

TUNE-" The Old Maid." "When I was a girl of eighteen years old." Miss ELIZABETH BULL of good eense was as full As any young lady need be; I'll tell you a tale of her uncle, Old BULL, And of her; as she told it to me.

- I'm heiress, she said, to a wildish estate, Which very productive might be; But'twas going to rack at a terrible rate, And I thought there'd be nothing for me.
- I just dropp'd a hint of impeachment for waste,
- Unless uncle Burt would agree To get better Stewards; when, lo ! in great haste, The old ones came courting to me.
- With one tooth in his head, and ten jobs in his eye, And " his garter below his knee;"
- And "his garter below his knee;" The first thought my passions and feelings to try By a pledge that he'd stand by me.
- 'Twas he who once said " by his Order he'd stand," Yet for dinners with Alderman KEY, And a small penny cup from a sad dirty hand, Broke that pledge, as he'd break one to me.
- Go! I cried, and if ever you speak to a Peer, Let your key be a minor Key; The man who his Order gave up for a cheer, Is no man for a lady like me.
- The next who appeared was "a candid man," Who admitted he did not see
- That two five-pound notes would make sovereigns ten, If one, would give five pounds to me.
- He stammer'd much stuff about stock and the stocks,
- Tithes, factories, and niggers, and tea; ut I found he was only a judge of an ox, So I told him he should never lead me. But I
- With his hand to his head, and a tear in his eve. Carre the niggers' late Massa Grandee, Vith razors and shoes, and with millinery, He had filch'd from those niggers, for me. With
- Oh, how from a man by such presents endear'd, In my heart could I find it to flee? He who tried to shave niggers who have n't a beard, Might next, perhaps, try to shave me.
- The next one who came, owed nature a spite, For a poor younger son was he; His body was parch'd by a withering blight, But his mind seem'd more blighted to me:
- That body, thus parch'd, was all one little sting, He'd have made a most capital fea; It seem'd a disgrace that so puny a thing Should have spoilt the estate for me.
- But next a great lawyer was minded to woo; Peradventure his bended knee Though it moved not the Lords, would without much ado, Gain the vote of a lady like me.
- He tucked up his gown, and he perked up his wig, But his nose I most marvelled to see It twitched, for it knew it descreved a good twig; So he failed in his love-suit to me.
- The next, the Whig ladies all deemed a great prize-I was blind if I did not soon see. That of Whigs he had much the most beautiful eyes, Which he lovingly fixed upon me.
- With a "what does it signify" sort of a look, And an air of so witching a glee, He skipped like a lamb, and invited my crook, But no crook was held out by me.
- But no crook was need out by me. Then a gouty old Lord was wheeled in, in a chair, And right merry he seemed to be, Till they told him "my Lady" was waiting there, When he turned off, away from me.

- I saw one in sanctity's odour recline, Strange guest !--or that lady's settee ! But the odour I smelt, was the odour of wine, It seemed to be Port wine to me.
- I looked on the next, less in anger than ruth,
- For once of high promise was he; But they lured him away from the friends of his youth, And so-he was lost to me.
- Then awaggering came, with his hat on one side, A landsman, who talked of the sea, A sharpish young lad, I perhaps might have tried, But his friends were all too bad for me.

- I had nearly forgotten to mention the while, One, who proved very wordy to be, Who spouted a question as long as a mile, Which was all without point to me.
- Then a middle-aged beau with a tittupping walk.
- And the best cut of costs you could see, With the largest of whiskers, the smallest of talk, Came philandering up to me.
- Old TALLY was jealously limping behind
- With tittering ladies three; Over-reach'd, over-woman'd, it wouldn't be kind Or pleasant to take him to me.
- What a set! but I told them I found them all out; I saw how it was, and would be; That they were the cause of the general rout, And had wrong'd my poor Uncle and me.

- My Uncle I told of a straight forward man, From humbug and treachery free; Who would save the Estate—if any one can And improve it for him and for me.
- "I'll take," then he said, " this old friend of the BULLS, An honest good Steward he will be;
- The Tenants no more shall be treated like Gulls, As they have been-between you and ME."

WE must look out for squals—M. de TALLEYRAND is coming back. What we are to do next, of course depends upon his Highness's will and pleasure. It is said he is opposed to the intervention of France in the affairs of Spain, and our Government ore said to be equally firm in their opposition to the march of a French army into that kingdom. Under these circumstances, the following extract from the City article of yesterday's Times may not be unanusing to those who know how strictly we have maintained our nea trality with regard to Portugal, and thence form their anti-cipations of the course we shall pursue with regard to the neighbouring nation, placed, as she is, in a precisely similar situation :

Anybody who knows the present state of the Chancery bar—the deter-mination of several of the leaders not to practice at it, and the distinclination of solicitors to bring on causes before his Lordship, would perhaps have kindly advised the Times to have been quiet. The influx of business into the Exche-quer, may perhaps relieve Lord Chief Justice DENMAN and his learned brothers of some trouble, but nevertheless, it is neither indicative of the expedition of the Court of King's Bench, nor particularly complimentary to its learned chief. The CHANCELLOR's holiday is thus explained by yes-terday's Post:—

"We are alarmed at the plan of apprenticeahip—it will never answer; it is calculated tolretard cultivation and manufacture, and to cause annoyance in every shape. By our Resolutions you will see we are, of two evila, for choosing (if we could have a choice) the least—viz., total emancipation. Your wiseacres appear to think, or would induce us to believe, that they have adopted as the most pre-ferable, the principle of coercion by punishment, or fear of punish-ment; but you can well judge of the order that will be maintained in a population of near 30,000 persons by two or three magistrates—the thing is impossible! Must we be perpetually going to magistrates who know nothing of our localities, and will not for many months be able to understand the peculiarities of the negro? And if we begin wrong the game will be up! The negroes are dissatisfied, we are dissatisfied, all are dissatisfied. The negroes generally say, they would rather remain as they are, if that is the sort of freedom they are to have; and the field labourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field labourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field labourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field labourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field labourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field habourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field habourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field habourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field habourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field habourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field habourer gets outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field habourer gets outrageous outrageous on hearing that he is to have; and the field habourer gets outrageous outrageous on hearing thab habed condidated in us, and hav

I think our situation would have been greatly im-proved; we could have framed laws which, as far as human foresight can so, would have been asfe and satisfactory to the better-disposed part of the negroes, and by them the remainderwould have been kept in check, and wradually have been brought into a proper train for the enjoyment of more unrestrained liberty; as it is, the former class already perceive the difficulties which surround the question, and say, nothing will be safe if vagabonds are suffered to roam at large; that they need not plant their grounds, as they should never be able to reap the fruits of their labour, and that they would rather remain as they are.

" St. Kitts, Sept. 26, 1833.

"It appears by the accounts we have received by the first August packet, that the Emancipation Bill had passed the House of Compacket, that the Emancipation Bill had passed the House of Com-mons, and that the period of apprenticeship had been shortened. I greatly doubt the efficiency of such a system, though I suppose our Legislature must from necessity give the plan a trial, rather than throw all controul out of their own hands by passing an Act for com-plete and immediate emancipation. But why the distinction should be made in the Bill before Parliament in respect to the period of apprenticeship of different descriptions of slaves, is very difficult to discover. If that part of the scheme is ultimately passed into a law, it will cause great dissufficient moment the field neurose and will in a cover. If this part of the scheme is infinitely passed into a law, it will cause great dissatisfaction among the field negroes, and will have the very opposite effect of attaching them to agriculture; they cannot comprehend why personal servants, with their comparative licht work and additional perquisites and comforts, should be entitled to greater favour than out-door daily labourers! A very short time, however, will no doubt bring us the final details of the measure, in the shape of an Act of Parliament."

The gallant Admiral on seeing in the public prints an account of five persons being rescued from a watery grave by a boatman, at Plymouth, named Jace, (the particulars of which appeared in the papers a fortnight since;) imme-diately wrote to H.S. THE HOUSE AND WINDOW TAXES .- Monday afternoon a meet ing of the inhabitant householders of the united parishes of št. An. drew, Holborn-above-Bars, and St. Gorge-the-Martyr, Middlese, including the major part of the governors and directors, was held in the hall of the work-house in Gray's-inn-lane. Mr. G. W. Casr, a governor and director, was unanimously voted into the chair. The chairman, in opening the proceedings, read the printed placard calling the meeting, and observed, that he was happy to inform the assem-blage, that none of the warrants, which the Sheriff now holds, had yet been put into execution, although, according to notice, it was gene-rally expected that they would have been enforced that day. (Ap-plause.) Mr. SOMENSALE, after addressing the meeting at some length, moved the following resolution ;---* That this meeting da adjourn until after his Majesty's Ministers shall think fit to order the execution of the warrants of distress already placed in the hands of the Sheriffs. Mr. Lovicz, in a brief address, seconded the resolu-tion, when several other gentlemen addressed the meeting, after which, the resolution was put from the chair and carried unanimously. Previously to the commencement of business, deputations from the various associations entered the room, as did also a Government reporter, who (the latter) was very attentively engaged in taking down copious notes.

We have read the evidence in both cases. and we can solemnly assert, that, of the two, Sir CHARLES GREVILL'S innocence is rather the more unquestioned; and what adds to the wonder which this plain statement must excite is, that on the Committee which unseted Sir CHARLES GREVILLE we find the name of Lord MARCUS HILL !!!"

Amongst the numerous projects on foot is one for making a tunnel and railway to extend from the north end of London Bridge to the Uxbridge-road, with branches to the extreme of the Birmingham Uxbridge-road, with branches to the extreme of the Birmingham Railway, adjoining the Hampstead road, and to the entrance of the Great Western Railwayat Milbank. The work is intended to be carried under ground, hencath some of the most populous streets of the metropolis, in the same way as the tunnel at Liverpool. The distance will be about five miles.—This is a project under foot.

The Commissioners of the Metropolitan Police force have approved I BE Commissioners of the Metropolitan Police force have approve of a new hat of a novel and peculiar manufacture, intended for the use of the men while on duty; it was submitted to their inspection by the inventors, Messrs, Moont, BICKNELLS, and Moore, Old Bond-street. The basis is formed of lastic states to the intercommentation by the inventors, pressrs, moore, DICKNELLS, and mount street. The hat is formed of leather rendered perfectly waterproof and afterwards covered with an adhesive composition, to which the usual covering of felt and beaver is attached. It appearance is exactly similar to a hat of the ordinary make, but the advantages which it necessary on the beat is a transmission of the average of the average of the state of the state of the average of the state of the state of the average of the state of the average of the state of t which it possesses over the bats in common use are its extraordinary durability, and being capable of resisting exposure to the weather for any length of time; it will also protect the head of the wearer against a blow of considerable any rength of time; it will also protect the head of the wears of a blow of considerable force. The increase of weight is but very trifling. Messra, Moons and Co. have contracted to supply the whole of the force with them forthwith. By this contrivance the hats will be full and the blow.

RECRUITING FOR PORTUGAL. - The Leeds steamer, which has been ALCOULTING FOR PORTUGAL.—The Leeds steamer, which has been at the tail of the bank for the last few days, waiting for volunters, sailed for Portugal this morning at five o'clock. She had on basd provisions for 500 men. On Thursday 250 young fellows went on board of her, from Edinburgh, Dundee, and Cupar; and we believe she sails with nearly 500 ensuits. STROUD, Nov. 15 .- This week most of the manufacturers have erived from Government very ample abstracts of the Factory Act, printed on broad sheets fit to hang up in the factories. The time is now fast approaching, when the Act is to come into operation, and now isst apploading, which the left is before the only interformation and the manufacturers are preparing themselves for it, by turning off all children under eleven years of age. The graduated scale of ages adopted in Clause 8 of the Act, causes the infliction to descend upon the working classes with less force, and protracts the consummation of the evil, but the ultimate effect is not the less certain ; a man may have eight or nine children under thirteen years of age, and after the expiration of thirty months from the passing of this Act, not one of such will contribute to the family fund, unless public benevolence interferes and dictates some other mode of employment for them than that of working in factories.

MAXERSTREA. NOV. 12.—Mr. RICKARDS, the Inspector of Factories, arrived in this place on Saturday, at the house of A. GLENDINING, Eag. (the Temple.) On Monday, he waited upon the authorities to request they would provide him suitable offices; they refused, saying that they had no power, under the Factory Act, to pay any money Br that purpose. He then inspected the cotton mill of Mr. Ηυση Bravos; to day he will make arrangements for inspecting other cotton mills and silk mills in the town and neighbourhood. In Manchester and the immediate vicinity it is estimated that there are 20,000 children under 13 years of age, employed in the factories, wh under the Factory Act. are to be educated. Forty or fifty schools will have to be built, at a cost of 5001. for each school; 100 school-masters will be appointed, at wages not less than 601. a year each schoolmaster. Mr. RICKARDS is Inspector (as he informed the writer) for the north of Derbyshire, Cheshire, the whole of Lancashire, Yorkshire, Cumberland, and Westmorland. It is understood that every factory and every school will be most minutely inspected by a Superintendent (who is to be appointed by a Secretary of State,) at the least twice in every week, and one Superintendent will be required to every six or eight mills and schools. The Superintendent: must be respectable men, at a salary of at the least 1501. a year.-There is no estimate of the number of Superintendents which will be required; certainly not fewer than, perhaps, four hundred for Mr RICEARDS alone.

DEATH OF ADMIRAL SIR HERBERT SAWYER, K.C.B.-This gallant officer departed this life on Wednesday last, at Bath, where he had been residing since he left Plymouth (to which he was much attached), in consequence of the health of Lady SAWYER. He was the son of Admiral HERBERT SAWYER, and served under his father during the war with our Transatlantic Colonies, at the conclusion of which he was in command of the Porcupine sloop, at Jameian. He was made Post Captain in the early purt of the year 1779, and in the following Year appointed to the Pegasus, 28, on the Newfoundland station. In 1793, when the war with France commenced, he commanded the Amphion frigate, from which he was subsequently removed (1795) to the Nassau, of 64 guns, and cruised with the North Sea Fleon till 1979 mbmi. 1797, when he was appointed to the Saturn, 74, attached to the Western Squadron. In 1799 he succeeded Sir H. TROLLOPE in the Russel, which he continued to command until the spring of 1801, when he joined the Juste, 80, and accompanied Sir R. CALDER to the West Indies. On bis return to this country he was appointed to superintend the payment of ships at Plymouth, and which appointment he held until promoted to the rank of Rear-Admiral, October 2d, 1807. In the early part to the rank of Rear-Admiral, October 2d, 1807. In the early part of 1810, Sir HERDERT SAWYER was appointed second in command at Portsmouth, and in the latter part of the same year was promoted to the rank of Vice-Admiral, and appointed Commander in Chief on the Halifax station, which he held until 1813; and when about to leave that station was presented with an Address from the Consul, merchants and inclusions that prime from the zalignt and unmerchants, and inhabitants, thanking him for his gallant and un-ceasing exertions in the protection of the colonies from the attacks of the A Consider exercions in the protection of the colonies from the attacks of the Americans. In the same year he hoisted his Flag as Com-mander in-Chief at Cork; and on the 2d of January. 1815, was nominated a K.C.B. Data BULL—In running over the Acts of last Session I have just met with one which displays another instance, if any were wanted, of disinterestedness in my Lord BROUGAN, and of desire to diminish the expense of litization. I do not remember to have seen it made public before, and I wish your assistance for that purpose, as all nue know how anxious you are to meet and refut the calumpiles daily heaped on our Noble CRANCELLOR. The Act is entitled "An Act to diminish the Expense, do. of Commissions in the nature of Writs de Lunatico Inquirendo." The Act contains twelve Sections, of which five relate to the appoint ment and payment of new officers. The second Section empowers the CRANCELLOR to appoint three persons (two physicians and a barrister of five years" standing) Visitars for reporting upon the treatment of lunatics. Salaries to the Medical Visitors 5000, per annum, and 3000, per annum to the other. Travelling expenses to he also paid. Sec. 7. FOREIGN AEFAIRS. We are told by the French papers of Wednesday, that it was on the recentieth of November that General Saarsfield took possession of Vittoria-the date at first assigned was the 19th. We are left will without any particulars of this event, and it is as doubtful as every other piece of intelligence which we have had of late from Spain. "The Sentinelle des Pyrenees of the 23dult, says -----"Up to the night before last General Castagnos had not received any news from the meterior of Spain. He knew nothing of the movements of Generals sarsfield and Pastor. People hewildered themselves in conjectures respecting the motives that induced him to this unexpected step. (Selim Bey and ome other officers of Ibrahim's suite arrived at Constantinople in the beginning of October.) Differences have arisen respecting the tribute to be paid to the Porte by Mchemed Ali. LONDON, DECEMBER 1.

THEIR MAJESTIES continue at Brighton. The KING, we are glad to say, is in good bodily health, but Her MA-JESTY is, and has been for the last few days, indisposed. We believe a cold is the extent of Her MAJESTY'S com-plaint, but confinement to the Palace is considered prudent in this uncertain season of the year.

Diamit, but commendent to the False is considered plateau in this uncertain season of the year. SEVERAL years have now elapsed since, with a full con-viction of the justice of his claim to the Throne of Portugal, we became the advocates and supporters of the cause of Don MTGUEL—that ours was the first, and for a considerable time the only English journal, that stood forward to vindicate the rights of the libelled and persecuted MONARCH, is, to us, a matter of considerable satisfaction, now that the great trial has been made; and that after a conflict most iniquitously and unfairly carried on by his enemies, the truth for which we have always contended is pretty well established—the People of Portugal are with him: besides being KING de jure, he is the chosen MONARCH of the nation—in the teeth of a merce-nary array and a bireling navy, he has maintained his ground until the period has arrived at which the Government of the Pretender to the Crown has, by its rash and premature display of tyranny and absolutions, in its constitutional pro-veedings, disgusted the few partisans whom the lowe of money, or the fear of punishment, had attached to it—and at which, while dissensions and disorders agitate their councils, their ill-paid auxiliaries, are scattered, defeated, and dispersed, by the legitimate array of Portugal, firm to the KING, and zea-lous in his cause.

ill-paid auxiliaries, are scattered, defeated, and dispersed, by the legitimate army of Portugal, firm to the KING, and Zea-Jous in his cause.
 We give the following extract from a letter of a correspondent of the Times, dated Lisbon, November 20, which appears in that paper of yesterday:  LISBOR, NOV. 20.-Little of moment has taken place this week, excepting a strong letter written by the Conde da Taipa to the Duke of Bragames. requesting that the law of the liberty of the press should be put in force, and that a change of the Ministry should take place, as those in office had lost the confidence of the nation, with several other stores prime animadversions on their proceedings, which have been the means of their two bitters being able and are daily getting more obnazions, owing to their urbittery proceedings.
  Respecting the Minister have become. and are daily getting more obnazions, owing to their urbittery proceedings.
  Tespecting the Minister have become. and are daily getting more obnazions, owing to their urbittery proceedings.
  Respecting the Minister have become. and are daily getting more obnazions, owing to their urbittery proceedings.
  Respecting the Minister have become. and are daily getting more obnazions, owen to the business at Alcacer de Sal was more diseastrous than at first reported : out of 1,400 men, not 400 have come back, many of the Portugueses obliers, actually sticking in the mud up to their throats, were drowned by the tide making over their heads. Some 500 or more were taken prisoners, and on arrival at Abrantes not more than 400 reached that citadel, the roseast having advertably buckhered on the road more than 100, among which, it is asid, were two British officers. Lieutenauts Barber and Fitzgerald, and some twenty marines!! It is the current report Pedro does not intend to attack Santarem : it appears the taking of thas place would cost some 4,000 men, which he cannot atford to l directions.  We have had arrivals of Irish recruits, but they have been allowed to ramble the streets, getting drunk and causing great disturbances, owing to the inefficiency of the War Minister, who actually left them one night in the streets. The street of the streets is the street of the street disturbances, owing to the inefficiency of the War Minister, who estually left them one night in the streets." We have ventured to underscore one or two lines of this very satisfactory communication. The fact that the Libe-rating Ministers, who came with the Mexican Cacique to re-lleve the Portuguese nation from tyranny and oppression, have become hateful on account of their arbitrary proceed-ings, is good; nor is it much less amusing to hear a pursuing army, triumphantly driving a flying foe before them, called "raceals" for having gallautly performed the duty of cut-ting of a hundred of the enemy, including two officers. But the great secret comes out at last, as we have always said it would, and proves to demonstration the accuracy of our views of the Portuguese conflict from the begiuning. If we had adhered to strict neutrality, and permitted the Portuguese people to settle their own affairs, according to the solemn pledge of non-intervention given to the English nation by the present Ministers upon their taking office, the result would have been, as we always forctold, the peaceable settlement of Don MIGUEL upon his throne, and, as far as England was concerned, a restoration and revival of the important commercial relations existing between her and her ancient ally. We said this, because we knew the national feeling of years been denouncing the King of PORTUGAL as a manuter hateful to the prevales (office has have for years been denouncing the King of PORTUGAL as a ally. We said this, because we knew the national leeling of Portugal—it is now made evident; and those who have for years been denouncing the King of PORTUGAL as a monster bateful to the people—(after he has in the first instance quietly occupied the throne for three or four years, and now, after he has withstood the com-bined attacks of French, English, Irish, Scotch, and Belgic soldiers and sailors, paid. supported, and protected by foreign governments)—are, after proclaiming his victorious army, barbarians and rascals, obligd to admit that nothing can shake his popularity or overthrow his claims, unless "the foreign powers take the case in hand." "This avowal of a correspondent of the Times, added to a statement in a letter which appeared in Friday's Courier, that "the lower classes are as firm as ever to Don MIGUEL," is sufficient for us. We cannot, however, quote this last ine without remarking upon the fact it establishes, that the PEOPLE—the lower classes, as they are called in the letter— have ALWAYS BEEN FIRM to Don MIGUEL—which fact, we believe, has never till now been so distinctly acknowledged by his enemics.

THERE is no news from Spain of a decisive character but the San, a few evenings since, stated that our Govern-ment had detained a vessel bound from the River Thames to some Spanish port with warlike stores for the service of Dou CARLOS. This looks as if an intention existed of play-bein CARLOS. This focks as if an internet of contact of pag-ing a promiuent part in the approaching conflict. Don PEDRO's nay have made a prize of an English mer-chantman : but in these days such an affair, perhaps, is not worth noticing.

It is generally reported that his Grace the Archibishop of CANTERBURK has stated to Lord GREY his intention to oppose several of the clauses and conditions of the Minis-terial Church Reform Bill. It is with infinite satisfaction we perceive that Addresses from every diocese in his GRACE's province are in course of signature, expressive of a confilence in his GRACE, which his uniformly orthodox and consistent conduct has excited in the hearts and minds of those who are, by conscience and duty, both religiously and politically attached to the Estab-lishment of the Church of England. We have received a copy of the Address prepared in the diocese of Bristol, which we subjoin :-- diocese of Bristol, which we subjoin :-"To the Most Rev. Father in Gop WILLIAM, by Divine Provi-dence, Loid Archibishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England. "We, the underwigned Clergy of England and Wales, are desirous of approaching your Grace with the expression of our veneration for the sacred office to which, by Divine Providence, you have been called, of our respect and affection for your personal character and of our septent and affection for your personal character and said sources of the same with the expression of our seneration for the sacred office to which, by Divine Providence, you have been called, of our respect and affection for your personal character and sour have evinced in a season of peculiar difficulty and danger. rooted attachment to that venerable Liturgy, in which she has embodied, in the language of ancient piety, the orthodox and primi-tive faith. "And while we most carnestly deprecate that restless desire of change which would rashly innovate in spiriual matters, we are not less solicitous to declare our firm conviction that should anything from the lapse of years or altered circumstances require renewal or correction, your Grace may rely upon the cheerful co-operation and duiful support of the Clergy in carrying into effect any measures that may tend to revive the discipline of ancient times, to strengthen the connection between the Bishops, Clergy, and people, and to promote the purity, the efficiency, and the unity of the Church." The Address of the diocese of London will, we under-stand, be signed not only by the Clergy but all those of influence and weight amongst the laity, who, admiring and venerating the public and private character of the AuCH-BISHOP, are anxious, by putting themselves under the im-mediate spiritual protection of his GRACE, to evince in the most striking manner their feelings towards a Prelate, whose mild and dignified bearing and orthodox principles so eminently deserve, and so entirely command, their respect and confidence. and confidence.

and confidence. In the claracter of the Archbishop of CANTERBURY there is none of that restless littleness, that fidgetty desire for spurious popularity, which, unaccompanied by moral courage or manly firmness, are the indications of smaller minds and meaner dispositions. Upon his GRACE, the people feel that they may rely for an earnest support of the Church of England, and it is in this faith and in this confidence that they are desires of draving cheer the conversion that they are desirous of drawing closer the connexion which exists between them. Nothing can be more flattering to the ARCHRISHOP, nor anything more gratifying to those who wish well to the Established Religion of the country.

EXAMPLE is better than precept—NoRWICH, LEICRS-TER, and MAIDSTONE have already followed the example of the Merchant Tailors' Company, and have refused to attend to the demands of Lord BROUGHAN'S Municipial Commis-sioners—the Un-read Rovers may speedily return, for all the information they are likely to extort by their illegal and un-constitutional enquiries. Good GOD —what a position for our good KING, WILLIAM THE FOURTH, to be placed in—one of the kindest-hearted men living, without a feeling that could be perverted into oppression—without a feeling that could be perverted into of a MONARCH exerting an uncon-stitutional power to enforce an inquisitorial and illegal scru-tup into the private concerns of corporate bodies and char-tered companies. tered companies.

tered companies. Of course, the country knows how such Commissions —and look at the infinity of Commissions, and paid Commis-sioners too, now afloat—are prepared, and with whom they originale; but it really is painful to see the MONARCH's popularity trifled with—his good name sullied—his generous character first betrayed, and then injured by such proceed-ings. If His MAJESTY felt half the indignation which has been explicit in the houst of this lower the indignation which is officient.

ings. If His MAJESTY felt half the indignation which has been excited in the hearts of his loyal subjects, by this affair, we think the delicacies and difficulties of Lord GREY's retirement would be very soon obviated, by a summary notice to go-and take the hopeful CHANCELLOR with him. But no; the KING forgives—That he can forget, we doubt. When the Rovers got to Norwich, the usual form was gone through: out with your muniments—open your charters—dug out your documents—shew us your claims—and, above all, criminate yourselves—according to the new law. To their mandate touching these matters, the "Un-read" received the following answer from the Sheriffs:—

criminate yourselves—according to the new law. To their mandate touching these matters, the "Un-read" received the following answer from the Sheriffs:— "Acrueich, Nov. 25, 1833. "Gentlemen,—As Sheriffs of Norwich we address you in your capacity of Municipal Commissioners. "To you personally we would willingly pay every courteous atten-tion, provided that in paying it we might not incur the just imputa-tion of aderelicition of principle; but remembering that a Commission issued by virtue of the Royal prerogative alone is a process unknown to the law of England, and eminently hostile to public liberty, we feel ourselves compelled to avoid the slightest act of recognition of your authority even by implication. "We decline, therefore, to attend at the proposed enquiry; nor shall we permit our officers to furnish information relative to the consti-tution of the Sheriffs' Court, the fees therein received, or any other matter within their province. "It may be said of us that our determination is the result of mere matter, and low-citizens will kive us credit for higher and better motives, firm and loyal attachment to the political institutions of the country as settled at the Kevolution of 1688, and a persuasion that in these like the present it is a paramount obligation on the subjects of these realms, especially when charged which those laws confer, and which are the best security of the Crown, and the mest valuable in-heritance of the popele.—We have the honour to remain, Gentlemen, "It may be all commissioners, Norwich." "To the Municipal Commissioners, Nornich." In that well-conducted constitutional paper, the Kentish Observer, we find the following account of the proceedings at Maidstone:---"The Municipal Corporation Commissioners have made their appearance in this county; and we trust, for the honour of English-men, they will have to walk out of it again, with just as much infor-mation as they brought into it. They arrived at Maidstone, we understand, yesterday week, having sent a communication (from Chichester, we believe) announcing their intended visit. This communication creached Maidstone on Tuesday, and was imme-diately forwarded to Mr. Marks, the Mayor of Maidstone, who hap-pened to be at Tumbridge Wells. Mr. Marks lost no time in returning-not, we are happy to say, to violate his oath, and betray the rights and privileges of the Corporation, but (if we are not midulary down and privileges of the Corporation, but (if we are not midulary and privileges of the Corporation, but (if we are not midulary down and privileges of the Corporation, but (if we are not midulary and privileges of the Corporation, but (if we are not midulary and privileges of the Corporation, but (if we are not midulary and privileges of the Corporation, but (if we are not midulary and brivileges of the corporators are the lawful guardians, An intimation to his effect was, we learn, unhesitatingly given; and we trust it will be as unhesitatingly acted upon." Than any measure ever undertaken since the Revolution. WE last week gave a few details respecting the Ports-mouth Government job; and expressed our conviction that, if it were eventually carried into effect, we should know whose job it was, whatever might be the pains taken, or the indelicacies committed, to throw the responsibility upon the wrong shoulders. Our brief observations upon the systematic attempts which have been making, during the last two years, by the Minis-try to deprive the Commander-in-Chief of his right of pa-tronage, have produced a communication from a military correspondent, who completely corroborates our statements, and gives us several very striking instances in which the plot has succeeded, and several others—equally shameful—in which it has failed. One, which appears to excite his indignation in a very.

Which it has failed. One, which appears to excite his indignation in a very particular degree, is that, to which we last week referred, of the bestowal of a regiment upon Sir JOHN DALRYMPLE, who, during the entire Peninsular war, was employed on the Staff in Scotland, and never saw a shot fired—except at a grouse—during the whole of that eventful and glorious period.

Our correspondent tells us, that the mode by which the period. Our correspondent tells us, that the mode by which the Ministers proposed to interfere with the proper paronage of the Commander-in-Chief, was by picking quarrels with the Horse Guards, by complaining of the undue interference of that department with the functions and attributes of the Secretary at War, who, as the Comptroller of military expenditure, is, under the present system, unable entirely to re-carve and revolutionize the army according to his own fance or the principles of Whig Government. While upon this subject, we cannot avoid making one ob-servation made by the Times upon the present Secretary at War, Mr. EDWARD FLLICE. The Times newspaper has denounced him as unfit for any public office, and, most of all, unfit for any office connected with Finance. Now, certain it is, that no Tory papers, which the Times so flippanty ac-cuses of dealing in calumnies and libels when they opposed the ELLICE job, ever calumniated or libelled Mr. ELLICE so coarsely or so vindictively as the "retired private gentle-man" has done-no Tory paper, even in the heat of political auimosity against one of the most mischierous enemies of the Constitution (which we consider Mr. ELLICE to be) eer assailed him in terms so coarse, so vindictive, or so ungenc-rous as those adopted by the Times. If Mr. ELLICE is, in the opinion of the Times, so unfit for any office, what will it say when it finds that Right Honourable Genteman in the Cabinet--where, if Lord DURHAM become Prime Minister, he will unquestionably be ? The Military Committee in their Report have, in meagee terms, admitted, that " they have derived a favourable im-pression from the evidence as to the general economy and management of the army, their emoluments being the same management of the army, their emoluments being the same they were a century ago ;" but the attempt was, never-as they were a century ago ;" but the attempt was, never-theless, made to arrigin the conduct of the Horse Guards. We here beg to say to MILES (our correspondent), that we admit our ignorance in not exactly comprehending the Minute in Council signed by Lord LIVERPOOL, laying down the line of demarcation between the duties of the Com-mander-in-Chief and the Secretary at War, which, he says, Sir JOHN CAM HOBHOUSE had proposed to alter, for the purpose of acquiring additional power. We request further information upon this subject; and for the present content ourselves by giving a few specimens of Sir HENRY PAR-NELL's evidence, as we had previously proposed to do, leav-ing the army and the public to appreciate as they may the blessing of having Mr. EDWARD ELLICE, in spite of the job and the Times newspaper, to superintend the finance of the army.

At page 239 of the Report, Sir HENRY PARNELL informs the Committee that he was ten months Secretary at War; that he could not, consistently with his duty to the public, propose in the Army Estimates for 1832 a charge for those establishments anything like the amount which had heretofore been voted, and his opinion was so fully made up on this point, that it was his determination to resign his office Wit were not acted upon by Government. Now, we certainly always understood that Sir HENRY PARNELL was dismissed for not voting on the Russian-Dutch Loan job; however that may be, he at once attacks the Commander-in-Chief by stating (at page 242), that if the duties of the Commander-in-Chief were confined to what they ought to be, some part of the establishment might be reduced.

Sir HENRY then goes on to say

Q. Will you state the particular points of finance to which u allude? you you allude? A. Sir H. PARNELL—" I shall state them, but very shortly, under general heads; because, in consequence of the time that has elapsed since 1 left the War Office, I cannot undertake to enter into all the details that may be necessary to establish the opinion I have given on this matter. As far as I could collect while in the office, it appeared to me that the Commander-in-Chief entertains applicatious touching the interpretation of warrants, under which pecuniary allowances are made, which he ought not to entertain, but which ought to be referred to the Secretary at War; that the Commander-in-Chief, according to the practice established, takes a part in regard to claims of passage-money which ought allogether to be left with the Secretary at War; that with regard to the discharge and enlistment of soldiers, it would appear that the Commander-in-Chief carries his interference further than is necessary or consistent with his particular duly as Commander-in-Chief of the Army—that is, into matters purely financial; and that, in regard to the non-effective service, in various ways, there is an interference? 11 Q. What instance took place of the interference of the Commander-in-Chief upon these points during the time you were in office? A. A. I DO NOT JUST NOW REMEMBER ANY PARTICU-LAR CASE THAT CAME DEFORE ME—but there was a case that came before Mr. WYNN, which scened to me to shew that all I have stated is quite correct! Q. But if no particular instance came before you when in the War Office, what great saving could occur in labour to the Commander-in-Chief's Office, or an expense of clerks, by transferring the duties you have described to the Se-cretary at War?

 A. I do not doubt but that the interference was going on, but I say I do not now remember any particular instance that came before me requiring my decision on it.
 Q. You have stated that the commander-in-Chief impro-perly interferes with the non-effective branches of the Berrical Lower but the state of In what way does he interfere with the noneffectives?

A. I will not undertake to go into particulars. I have stated that the opinions I formed from enquiries made at the War-office induced me to come to the conclusion that he does so-that is my opinion-but I certainly do not recollect at this moment the names of individuals or of cases to be able in that new term in that way to support my opinion.

Upon this clear, accurate, and comprehensive evidence of Coporthis clear, accurate, and comprehensive evidence or the "stout gentleman" who was Secretary at War for ten months, a word would be superfluous. In conclusion, we cannot, however, avoid remarking, that no successor to the gallant Sir COLIN CAMPBELL has been yet gazetted for the Portsmouth district.

The scene occurred at the Old Bailey, on the trial of a man named BERTHOLD, for robbery. The first witness who presented himself for the prisoner gave his name Julian Hibbert, but on being tendered the book to be sworn, he said he had no belief in its contents. The Recorder-Js it the Old or New Testament? Witness-It does not matter ; I have no belief in either. I made the same objection here two years ago, and was rejected. Mr. Phillips: Not Atheist?-Hibbert: I am. He then walked down, when Mr. Phillips called him back. and observed. "We may have mistaken you; I hope we have. Did you say you were an Atheiat?"-Hibbert: I did. Mr. Phillips: Do you understand what is meant by the term?-Hibbert; Yrs.

Hibbert: Y-s. Mr. Phillips: Do you not believe in the Supreme Being?--Hibbert: No. Mr. Phillips: Are you so destitue of feeling as to declare so?--Hibbert nodded assent. To describe the feeling that ran through the Court would be impossible. It broke forth in one simultaneous burst of disappro-bation, and amidst the hissing, the cry of "Turn him out" was requent.

Mr. Philips immediately exclaimed, "Stand down. Sir."--M'Pherson: Why? Mr. Philips : Stand down, Sir. I say. I am engaged for the prisoner, and I would ask you whether conduct like yours is calcula-ted to benefit this poor man?-M'Pherson: I have been sworn. Mr. Philips : I will not disguise from the Court the observation I heard you make as you came up after being sworn. Now you have gone through the ceremony, stand down, Sir. I shan't examine you at all, Sir. Recorder: Do not examine him. Mr. Phillips, unless you like.

It may not be uninstructive to observe that this Mr. BERTHOLD, the convicted felon, is the editor and concocter of that most nefarious compound of falsehood and scurrillity, the "Black Book ;" of which, no doubt, his most respectable witnesses are most ardent admirers.

MR. HOOD, whose fund of humour will, we think, never be funned out, has hit upon a subject for his talent, of which he has taken wonderful advantage. He argues that the total alteration produced in maritime proceedings by the general adoption of steam and machinery, has rendered it necessary to alter all the established nautical songs (grown classical in our language) so as to meet the change of tactics. We have not yet seen his Comic Annual, but we find the following new version of STEFVENS's "Storm," upon the improved principle, in yesterday's Times, whence we bor-row four verses. The idea is admirable. "I's arg Mr. Hoon, "have cooked STEFVENS's, or rather

"I," says Mr. Hood, "have cooked STEEVENS's, or rath screpon's 'Storm' in the same way; but the pathos does not se by the tenderer for stewing :-or rather

"Four feet water getting cold." THE War Office having of late so busied litself in cut-ting down the pay and emoluments of the Military and of old soldiers, and also in buying up half-pay like "marine stores," it may perhaps afford some amusement to our military readers, to lay before them a comparative statement, shewing how the War Office stands with respect to its own emoluments, as compared with those of the mili-tary-and let the War Office remember; it is they who have thrown down the gaunutet. The fact is, that the War Office, by keeping up the farce of economy, in which they are daily absorbed, and which they are about to introduce into every department where their power extends, think to keep off Mr. HUME, whom, like the Israelites, they consider as the destroying or economical angel. The Secretary at War has 24001. a-year-not overpaid, all must allow-no comment necessary.

officers. Six clerks of first class, running from 5001. to 5001. a-year, being in all nearly equal to the Colonelcies of six regiments, or more than the pay of six general officers. Bighteen clerks of second class, running from 3001. to 5001. a-year, being equal to the Colonelcies of nine regiments, or the pay of twelve general officers. So that the War Office, without the Secretary at War, and without the third and fourth classes, who may be considered as the working part of the machine, equals in emolument those of twenty-five general officers. We now come to the veterans, who in the army have not been spared. Mr. MOORE, as retired Deputy Secretary at War, with one thousand pounds a-year, being equal to the half-pay of three Colonels. Mr. MRRN, as Deputy Secretary at War, has retired with 2,5001. a-year, a sum equal to the half-pay of nine Colonals.

Colonels. Mr. BROWN, a clerk, has retired with eleven hundred pounds a-year, being equal to the half-pay of four Colonels, besides' enjoying two hundred and seventy pounds a-year half-pay as a Commissary (for services per-formed while a Clerk in the War Office), one hundred and fifty pounds as a half-pay retired Private Secretary, and three hundred pounds full pay as Agent to about seventy retired Chaplains, being in all equal to the half-pay of SIX Colonels. nels.

Colonels. No comment being necessary, we conclude with the earnest hope, that should any military eye run over this statement, it will view the emoluments enjoyed by the CIVIL Department (the War Office) with the same chari-table feelings that the War Office has at all times viewed those of the military.

It appears by the accounts from Leghorn that the Ex.Dey of Algiers has contrived by a russ to escape from his thraldom, in which, though nominally free, he was actually held by the French Government. It is already known, that the Ex.Dey had given out that he intended leaving Leghorn for the purpose of taking up his residence at Alexandria, and visiting Mecca. The French Govern-ment, however, had some misgivings upon the subject, and de-matched a week of mere workh the Humans are used down into the spatched a vessel of war to watch that Hussein proceeded really to the destination he had fixed upon. This vessel, however, met the Carlo Alberto during the last mysterious voyage of that mysterious vessel, and, instead of proceeding to watch the Ex-Dey, she commenced a voyage of bo-peep with the steamer. The dethroned Dey availed himself of this to quit Leglorn, and, instead of proceeding to Alexandria, sailed for Malta, where, throwing off the mask, he placed himself under the protection of the English Government.

FOREIGN POLICY OF THE FRENCH COURT .- Intervention has ceased for a while to be the favorite Ministerial topic, and occupation is talked of in its place. The projected Italian Confederation is frightened the Juste-Milieu and their friends the Whigs, and as the latter can do nothing but advise, the former have, it is said, on the suggestion of their British friends, resolved to increase their forces at Ancona and to take possession of Civita Vecchia. Thus in case of the general roture, which scone or later must occur, the Citizen King will be secure of certain favourable points in his enemies" quarters. With St. Sebastian, Barcelona, and one or two more strong holds in Spain, Civita Vecchia and Ancona, in Italying Belgium on the one hand and England on the other-Louis The program of the one hand and program to inter-Dotts Partures aspires without departing from his usual pacific intentions, to that universal dominion which Napoleon by the slaughter of millions could not ensure. The consummation of the Royal Citizen's ambition remains to be seen. It would be gratifying to him, no doubt, were he as sure of ultimate success in his enterprising career, as he is of the servile aid and warm friendship of his Whig allies.

The meetings of the Conference on the affairs of the Netherlands, which took place on Saturday and Sunday, referred, we understand to the document which had been drawn up by one of its members relating to the proceedings of that body during the last summer and autumn. We believe that some objections have been raised to it on the part of the Representatives of one or two of the Powers composing the Congress, and on that account a revision of the document in question is considered necessary.

SUDDEN DEATH OF COUNT FUNCHAL, THE PORTUGUESE ANDABSADOR -Brighton Nov. 29.-The Count arrived at Brighton on Wednesday 'nnight, and took anartments at the Marine Hotel. On Monday he called and left his name at the Palace. He retired to rest yeste day evening at his usual hour, without any symptoms of illness. He had been in bed a few hours when he called his servant, and com plained to him of a pain in his chest. A surgeon was called in, who administered an emetic, which did not operate very powerfully. The Count fell asleep between twelve and one o'clock, and slept till four p'clock. He then awoke, and complained of a violent pain in his chest; about half an hour afterwards he heaved a deep sigh, fell back, and expired. A Coroner's Inquest will be held on the body. deceased was 75 years of age.

Captain FENTON, the Member for Huddersfield, died on Wednesday morning, at his house near that town. The circumstances attending this melancholy event (says the Huddersfield Express) may, perhaps. this mean near least of the numerical trapess) may be have, be cleared up op an investigation before the Coroner for the district, but at present they are involved in considerable mystery. As far as we have been able to gather them they are as follow:—About.half-past eight in the morning Captain F. quitted his chamber, and went into his usual dressing room on the higher story. Nothing unusual was observed in his manner. In about five minutes after he had gone up stairs a female servant, who had just crossed the area into the kitchen, heard something fall heavily behind her, and turning round, beheld the almost lifeless body of her master, who had fallen from the window of his dressing-room. Every possible assistance was immediately rendered, but as the unfortunate gentleman had failen on his head, every symptom of consciousness was gone. Life, however, continued to linger till about eleven o'clock, when it fled for ever. Capt. FENTON has left a widow and two daughters in a for ever. Capt. FENTON has left a window and two dauguters in a state of suffering better imagined than expressed. Nor are these the only persons who will acutely feel his premature decease. Ten orphan children, five belonging to a deceased brother, and five left by a brother of Mrs. F., looked up to him as their protector. Capt. F. was of a most amiable disposition, and greatly beloved by his tenantry and neighbours. His melancholy decrease has cast a deep gloom over the town which he represented. A vacancy in the repre-sentation of Huddersfield arising out of this melancholy event, some of the electors are already on the alert.

TITHE MEETING IN SUBBRY .- A large and respectable meeting of nded proprietors and yeomanry residing in the eastern part of assex took place at Battle on Monday last, to take into considera-Ianded tion the propriety of expressing their continued anxiety to have the tithe question settled, and the opinion of that part of the country as to the principle upon which it should be effected, when several resolutions were carried, declaring tithes to be injurious to agriculture. to religion, and the best interests of the country; that they ought to be totally abolished, upon a fair commutation; that such commutation should be grounded upon the rental and real value of the land and that the landowner should in all cases have it in his power to redeem his property for ever from the burden. That resolution which declared that tithes should be abolished by a fair commutation which declared that titles should be abuished by a line commutation was opposed by a few persons, one of whom proposed an amendment-omitting the words "by a fair commutation," which was, on being seconded and put, lost by a very large majority, and the original resolution was carried almost unanimously.

We have much pleasure in announcing the birth of a son and heir to the Right Honourable the Earl of WILTON. This joyful event took place at Heaton Park about three o'clock on Monday morning, and we are happy to add that the Noble Countess and the young stranger are both doing well.

Count JOHN CHARLES BENTINCE died vesterday se'nnight, at his residence in Wilton-crescent, in his 71st year. He was an officer of some distinction, and since July, 1820, he had borne the rank of Major General on the continent of Europe. He was collaterally related to the Duke of Portland, and married Lady JEMIMA de REEDE GINKELL eldest danghter of FREDERICK sixth Earl of ATHLONE, by whom he was the father of Count WILLIAM BENTINCK. Chamberlain to the King of HOLLAND, and of Col. CHARLES and HENRY BENTINCK.

A PROTOERT DUCTENIAN.—" What is the matter with you?" said agentleman to an old Dutchman, as he was crossing Johnson's square a short time since. "I got de rheumatia." The gentleman advised him to rub himself with brandy until it penetrated well.—" Oh man, I dosh better as dat," replied Mynheer; "I drinks de prandy, and den I rubs my leg wit de pottle .- Liverpool Mercury

The Earl of ALERMANLE is going on very favourably. The accident happened on Thursday last, when his Lordship was riding a pony in the neighbourhood of the Stud House. The animal stumbled, by which the Earl was thrown to the ground.

Anoric Experition .- Together with other curious circumstances connected with this expedition, there is one which deserves particular notice. Among several articles insured at Lloyd's there were two valuable chronometers, which Capt. Ross, at the request of the maker, took with him on his voyage to try what effect the cold climate in the northern regions would have upon them, in keeping time, which, it appears, had none whatever, for when brought back they were correct as to time. Three years having elapsed without any tidings of Captain Ross, and such being the period, under such circumstances specified in the policy when persons who insure can legally claim the amount for which they insured, certain claims were accordingly amount for which they named, certain trains acts according, made, and the demands discharged by the Company at Lloyd's. The articles thus insured in the present case became the property of the Company, to whom Captain Ross delivered the chronometers. om their correctness, are considered of great value .- This ounds like a time bargain.

Capt. HowARD, who was accidentally killed last week in Ireland. was in his 28th year : he was promoted to a company in March, 1827. and it was expected he would have shortly attained his majority by purchase. He was elected for Morpeth at the last election, and the purchase. He was sected to not period the task election, and the vacancy will probably be filled by the return of one of his brothers, or his uncle the HON. WILLAST HOWARD, who has already represented the borough. In consequence of the melancholy event Lord and Lady CALLISES and family will stay at Castle Howard until after Christmas.

The principal topic of conversation in Dublin is the flight of JOHN Scort VANDELEUR, Esc, charged with having committed forgeries to a large amount. It is said that the Bank of England is the prin-cipal sulferer, owing to forged powers of attorney. The branch banks at Limerick have been losers to the amount of 9,0001., and some bankers in Dublin have sustained considerable loss. Mr. VANDE-LEUR is son to the late Colonel VANDELEUR, and a near relative of the venerable Judge. He was High Sheriff of Clare two years ago. About seven or eight years since he married Miss MALONY, of that county, with whom he received a fortune of 20,0001. By this hady he has five children, and it is said she received a letter from him last Monday, stating that neither she nor his children would ever see him again. He was a member of the Kildare-street and other Clubs, and played high. Mr. VANDELEUR's age does not exceed 33. Peace officers have been despatched after him to England.

GILDY, who delivered a congratulatory address on his Grace's visit to this new estate. He expressed the pleasure which is constrained to the intervention of the same which the Conservatives of Montgomeryshire felt in having so distinguished and amiable a Nobleman among the landed proprietors their county. This unexpected compliment was acknowledged by the Duke of Nzwcasrue in an appropriate and feeling eddress, and the carriage moved on amidst the joyous acclamations of the people assembled.

It is estimated that the recent 'exportations of silver have withdrawn full two-thirds of the stock previously in the Bank, though it is understood that the stock of gold has not been diminished in any thing like the same proportion.

On Tuesday a strong sensation was created in the Royal Exchange in consequence of Mr. N. M. ROTHSCHILD, the eminent capitalist, being prevented from taking up his usual station, with his back leaning against one of the pillars of the building, at the south-east corner of the Royal Exchange. A person named Rose, who had no business to transact, placed himself in this particular spot just as Mr. ROTHSCHILD entered the Exchange to conduct his extension transactions in the foreign exchanges. In vain did Mr. Rormsento courteously remonstrate with the intruder; in vain did the Exchange porters exert themselves; Mr. Rose would not stir from the nills and Mr. ROTHSCRILD was ultimately compelled to retreat to the benches in the rear. Mr. HUME is not more attached to his place by benches in the rear. Mr. HUME is not more attached to his place by a certain pillar in the House of Commons than Mr. ROTHSONIL is to his accustomed station in the Exchange; and he was so excited by being displaced that he was some time before he could compose himself and commence business. We believe that some time ago a similar attempt was made to oust Mr. ROTHSCHILD from his pillar, but without effect. Mr. ROTHSCHILD has been of late subjected to warious petty annoyances of a similar kind. M. Romascuric having learned that the Rector of Boulogne, near Paris, had been robbed of all his plate, which he was unable to replace, sent him a chest fully making up the loss .- French Paper.

On Monday the officer of the Sheriffs of Middlesex and his men put into force the remaining three writs which were issued some time since against certain inhabitants of the united parishes of St. Andrew, Holborn, and St. George the Martyr, for non-payment of their assessed taxes. The three individuals were Dr. Pollock, of Gray's assessed taxes. The three individuals were Dr. POLLOCK, of ORJ Inn-lane; Mr. PERRY, baker, at the corner of Bell-court, Gray's Im-lane; and Mr. BERKELV, undertaker. Dr. POLLOCK was heard to say, "Well, they may take all my goods, and they shall out out my vitals before I pay the obnoxious imposts." The goods were recorded million any combine on the cherrife. Maserk WIRD removed without any opposition, and the Sheriffs, Messre. WILSON and HARMER, were not in attendance as on Friday. There was much excitement in the neighbourhood of Gray's Inn-lane, and, as the seizures had been anticipated, bills announcing a meeting of the parishioners were placed about the mark. parishioners were placarded about the parish.

ENIGRATION TO ENGLAND .- The arrival of the ship Carroll, of LAIGRATION TO ENGLAND.—The arrival of the ship Carrow Carrollton, Captain BIRD, from New York, within the last eleven days, with 171 steerage passengers, would seem to indicate that the tide of emigration is flowing from America to, instead of from, England; at any rate, so great a number of steerage passengers in one vessel is an unsure discussion of the steerage data and vessel is an unusual circumstance.- Liverpool Standard.

A trial has recently taken place at Sydney, at which the late-appointed Judge Buarox presided, regarding the legal right that settlers have to their hand before their grants are issued. The Judge, it unnears desided that the Charge and a second full power Judge, it appears, decided that the Government possessed full power to resume all lands under such circumstances, though, he added, he did not think that any Government would do so.

The Glasgow Chronicle says :- We have been desired to state, in reference to the double return of Mr. Cocspush and Sir DANELK. SANDROND to the honourable office of Lord Rector, that it would be contrary to the addute of the state of the state of these control to the statutes of the University to invest the latter of these and kentlemen, the Professor of Greek, with the Rectorial dignities and powers: the University for the Rectorial dignities and powers; the University visitation of 1717, expressly excluded from this office all characteristic visitation of 1717, expressly excluded from powers ; the University visitation of 1717, expressly exclude unu-this office all dergymen or other persons holding any other office in the University. The visitation of 1727, while it transferred the right of voting from the manufacture to the underse and faid down the University. The visitation of 1727, while it transferred the right of voting from the professors to the students, and laid down the forms at present observed in conducting the elections, expressly creating d' that all other rules concerning the election of the Rector conform to the machine startles be observed." In conforming with these regulations, the Royal Commissioners of 1920 emitted following another startlessions, to the crown, "That neither a Principal nor a Professor of smy of the Universities shall be eligible to the office of Rector," It will be found that the proceedent is in eract conformity with this state of the law. No Professor has held erset conformity with this state of the raw. Not Professor has need the office of Rector since 1717. Dr. ADAM SMITH was Rector in 1787, but this was 23 years after he had ceased to hold the office of Professor of Moral Philosophy, in which he was succeeded by Dr. REID, in 1764.

About thirty miles of the line of the London and Birmingham About thirty miles of the line of the London and Birmingham Railway, in parts where the greatest quantity of labour will be required, have been staked out. About 95,0001. (out of 125,0001.) of the second call have been already paid up; and it is not expected that any material deviation from the line for which the Act was obtained will be necessary. The important undertaking is now proceedinig with great spirit.

Some light as at length been thrown upon the horrid circumstance of the murder of Mrs. JEFFS, in Montagu place, some years since. It will be recollected that this horrid deed was attributed to some relation of the murdered lady, and for which a man, named Joxes was tried at the Old Bailey, and acquitted; but for another offence was transported, and some months back was hanged for some crime was transported, and some months back was hanged for some crime in Van Diemen's Land. The night before his execution he sent for the Sheriff of the Colony, now in England, and confessed himself guilty of many crimes and several murders; amongst others that of the unfortunate Mrs. JEFTS.

At a sale in Tiverton last week the likeness of Mr. JAMES KEN-MEDT, the M.P. for the borough was offered for sale. It was handsomely framed, and represented the "Honourable Gentleman" whilst at college in the gown which he wore there. Many of these likenesses were some time since distributed by Mr. K. to some of his almost zealows supporters, and have advanced their dwellings, and were almost worshipped as a sort of Penates. However, notwithstanding all the exertions of the indefatigable auctioncer, who repeatedly said all the exertions of the indefatigable auctioneer, who repeatedly said that he "Mr. K. was worth ten times more than was bid for him," no person could be found to bid more than nine shillings! for the senator, at which sum he was "knocked down." The person who had bid this sum could not, however, be prevailed on to accept his bargain, when the next bidder claimed the member at 8s, 9d. !! which was accepted nuch to the chagrin of many Kennedyites who were present. The frame alone was worth double the money, and the person who how the he likeness a foremeted offened to sail it which was accepted much to not support to support the money, and were present. The frame alone was worth double the money, and the person who bought the likeness afterwards offered to sell it without the frame for 3d.! A wag, hearing this, said he would not give that, but he would toss up whether he should give 4d. or nothing for it, this was agreed to, the lot was east, and the "Honow-able Member" eventually went for nothing !!!-Western Laniary.

COMBINATION OF WORKMEN AT DERBY.-During the past week it is said that upwards of 800 of the workmen have joined the Trades' Union, and entered into engagements with each other, under the sanction of an oath, which is imposed on every member, but the terms of this compact are kept a profound secret.-Derbyshire Cour

There will be five eclipses in the ensuing year, three of the sun, and two of the moon, the whole of which, with the exception of a partial ecclipse of the moon on the 16th of Jec., will be invisible here. The latter with his belts and satellites, will be very beautiful in Jan. Feb. Sep. Oct. Nov. and December. The changes of Saturn's ring will be seen during the first half of the year. Of the eclipses invisible here, one is a total eclipse of the moon on the 21st of June, and an eclipse of the sun, which, in South Carolina, will be nearly total. On removing some old lumber a few days ago, in an unoccupied foom at Wentworth Castle, a small box was discovered, and on breaking it open it was found to contain a plaster cast of the head of King CHARLES the First, taken after the head had been severed from his body --- a very old charge to dimension under such a selic. his body :-- a very odd place to discover such a relic.

TRE CIVIL WAR IN STAIN.—By the French papers and letters of Thursday, we are supplied with some important intelligence relative to the affairs of Spain. It seems now almost certain that the report of General Saarsfield's successes in the north of Spain are fabrications. The Memory and Castagnos at St. Schastian did not produce the carnage which was stated. The insurgents withdrew fighting all the time like the Partheans before Pastor, who pursued them to Hernani; but as soon as the chief returned to St. Sebastian, the Carliste to General Saarsfield is not more correct than the other share that which was said relative to General Saarsfield is not more correct than the other share that which was said relative to General Saarsfield is not more correct than the other share share a forward inovernent. And that some partial engagements have taken place between his forces and some of the bands of Merino, but nothing like a decisive combat has been engaged in. Saarsfield relies no longer on his troops; and, perhaps, even the government of the Queen does not reckon much upon him. It is said that he will be replaced in his command by General Quesda."
As for the alleged taking of Vittoria, it still remains in the same state of uncertainty as at the period of our last advices.

as the favourite resort of the inhabitants of the northern districts of the metropolis. At the Annual General Meeting of the Governors of the Royal Dispensary for Diseases of the Ear, lately held, it appeared that, since its establishment, 8520 patients had been cuced or relieved, including several cases of deal and dumb. A vote of thanks was afterwards passed to J. H. Curits, Eac, the Surgeon and founder of the Institution, for his humane and skillul attention to the patients; and it was recolved that a gold medal be presented to that gentleman at the next anniversary dinner.

THE EARL OF LONSDALE AND THE CARLISLE

The LARL OF LONSPACE WRD THE CARLISLE JOURNAL. (From the Level Intelligencer.) Havine some local knowledge, we are enabled to apeak from our own observation, and can would for the accuracy of what we state. The newspaper in question, for years past, has been an unceasing and most reneorous libeller of the Earl of Lonsdie, and his political and even private friends. Within the last three or four years these nnnogades were extended. The supersion and insuits which origin-ated at Carlisle were repeated at Whitehaven, with additions and aggravations, and were echoed at Kendal, vice versa. Lord Lons-dale wava length advised, for the comfort of himself and his friends, and now without regard to public Millity, to commence proceedings in the Court of King's Bench, in a form which enabled his lordship to make an affluavit of the utter falsehood of the charges of "pechla-tion" and " public robbery" which were incessantly flung out against him in three journals acting in manifest concert, and repeated so often, that the inventors themselves appeared to believe that which was originally the offspring of their own imagination. Crimi-nal information was moved for and obtained, not to harses or punish, as the defendants well knew, but to correct their practice, and to hal information was moved for and obtained, not to harsas or punish, as the defendants well knew, but to correct their practice, and to afford a proper opportunity of retractation or apology. Two of the parties did acknowledge their error, and the Noble Lord at once put at end to the proceedings. At the last Cumberland Assizes the case of the Whitehaven Herald was merely opened in court to be dis-missed for ever, the defendant, through his counsel, having simply watted that he had done the Noble Earl wrong, and regretted it. The same terms were offered to the Carlisle Journal and rejected. The author was apprised of the misnomer before adverted to therefore, as far as he was personally concerned, he could maintain a tone of defiance without risk; but he left his principal to be tried, trusting, most likely, to the feeling which a jury would naturally entertain towards a female, that female a widow. So strong was the lease, however, that the jury, as conscientious men, were compelled to trusting, most likely, to the feeling which a jury would naturally entertain towards a female, that female a widow. So strong was the case, however, that the jury, as conscientious men, were compelled to pronounce a vordict of Guilty, and then recommended her to mercy; as much as to say to the Noble Earl, "Better not bring her up for judgment, as the real libeller is not by herside." Yet this was not all. The jury's recommendation was of course dependent, as to its application, inpon the conduct of the defendant herself. If the paper which she controlled had merely ceased from its old courses, we are use that she would have herard no more of the conviction. No such ine was pursued. Investment and a pology, or figuret, or abstinence, the reserve of the Editor was made a matter of indeern backing steps incidental to her verdict, the Court of King's Bench is treated with the customary strain. And therely ceased from the time arrived for con-forming to the law and the rule of the King's Bench is treated with the trustomary strain. And therely counce of the control here is the strain the trustomary strain. And there the King's Bench is treated with comming to be law and the rule of the King's Bench is treated with the output of the case of cruelty imputed to the Earl of Lonedale. This, then, is the case of or rule two or an individual is atroncest. However painful it may have been to proceed, the Noble Earl has positively no choice; for had he shrunk back, from the purest feelings of humanity, it wory for brance would have been converti-into means of new aspersion. Every could and rational person will threfore see that the defend and have been convert-ing the staffer the defend had and rational person the staffer humanity, it wory for brance would have been convert-ing the staffer the defend is is lerowne staff that she has acted in this aftair, with a full knowledge of causes and consequences. The truth is the whole affair—the continued abuse—the contempt acted in this affair with a full knowledge of causes and consequences. The truth is, the whole affair -the continued abuse-the contempt of Court-the defance of the law-the outry of oppression-are all in the way of trade, to keep up excitement. They attract public attention; they are advertisements for the paper; they stimulate purty patronage; hey, in short, bring arist to the mill, and thereby the end is answered. To compare this to Lord Durham's case is absurd; there is no similarity; and it is still more absurd to pretend to act the intervention of the payer. They are advected by the proceediness of the Tory Earl of Londale an excupa-tion of the Whig Barl of Durham, who professes to be a patron of a stretch of the liberty of the press amounting to licentiounes, yet files criminal informations for paragraphs which could not affect the character of any public man, much least the obtains who only acted as copyiste; and the whole have admitted error, inserted contradic-tions, and made direct apologies. There is no semblance in the two cases.

The Post says,— "It is not to ften that we are tempted to notice, except in our or-dinary reports, the proceedings of the learned confraternity of Westminster Hall. But there is something so remarkable in the case entitled "Dicase N. Lord Bnours u," which was tried the day before yesterday in the Court of Exchequer, that our readers will work the subscript four remarks upon it at our bands. It must indeed possibly expect a few remarks upon it at our hands. It was, indeed, a case of no ordinary kind, and we believe, as the Advocate of the Noble Defendant asserted, the first instance of an action, brought on the score of ignorance and oppression, against a LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF ENGLAND.

We make my Lord BROUGHAM welcome to the creditable singularity thus claimed for him. And doubtless to so great a friend to innovation it must be a subject of no inconsiderable pride that he has afforded in his own person so remarkable an exemplification of his favourite doctrine. 'I am the first CHANCELLOR,' he may boast, 'who, in my zeal for correcting the abuses of the may boast, "who, in my zeat for correcting the abuses of the Court over which I preside, have not hesitated to sacrifice my own character in order to throw a stronger light on the odious prerogatives which I, in common with my corrupt pre-decessors, have been compelled to possess. True it is that they, in their anxiety to maintain these odious powers undiminished, have cantiously abstained from abusing them. Their forbearance was a summer during for adding the morely of forder is the full of the cunning device for deluding the people of England into a helief that an authority which was never employed but for purposes of justice might, after all, be by possibility beneficial. But it remained for m to dash away this flimsy imposture-to demolish this crafty sophistry. It was for me to show the innocent public how grossly they have been gulled, if they have ever been trepanned by such arts into such errors. I was determined to convince them how mischievous such errors. I was determined to convince them how mischievous such irresponsible and arbitrary powers might be, if lodged in hands inca-pable or dislonest, and, thank Gon, I have succeeded in my disin-terested design.' And, to give the devil his due, or (dropping the moral) to do Lord BROUGHAN but hare justice, we must say that if such were his generous purpose it has been, peradventure even beyond his hopes, effected.

" Let any man cast his eye over the proceedings in the case to which we have referred, as narrated in the columns of the daily Press; let him read the manly and able speech of the Counsel for Press; let nim read the many and able speech of the Counsel to the prosecution; still more, let him peruse the speech, not less able, if somewhat less man'y, of the Counsel for the defence; and then, "much considering" the wrong without a remedy, which has con-

fessedly been committed on the unhappy plaintiff, let the stoutes champion of old practices contend, if he can, that the

Crangenzion of our practices contend, if ne can, that the powers of the Crangenzion are incomente of show, or underswing of restriction, "Here is a poor with life all what is to a wide for a quarter of a-year by the fast of the 'poor man's figure ', "High's the administration of the two for endersor justly odious by one whose noisy vanue it is that he will render the Taw helowed se noisy vaunt it is that he will render the law beloved. "Here is gross ignorance of what the law is on the part of one who is for ever proclaiming that he will make it what it ought to be. "Here is the most callous indifference to the liberty of an indi-vidual, in the great emancipator of all mankind.

"Here is the haughtiest contempt of just complaints, the sturding refusal of rightful redress, by the assailant of aristocratical price, the champion of equal fights, the indignant censor of Ministrial reseion oppression. "And here too—'Oh lame and impotent conclusion !'-is the meanest sheltering of admitted injustice under the wing of official irresponsibility by him who was the warmest in his challenges of popular investigation, the loudest in his denunciations of exclusive privilege.

"An attempt was made to negative the illegality of Mr. Dreas's imprisonment, even in the face of Lord BROUGRAN's admission of it, as testified by his rescinding his own order of commitment; but it failed,_miserably failed, and the SOLICITOR GENERAL, driven to the last shift, was forced to protect his Noble Client from the inevitable last shift, was lorced to protect his Noble Cheft from the interitable verdict by putting forward the objection of a Judge's irresponsibility. He admitted, for he could not deny, that the Loan CRANCELLOR had acted without authority of law. He admitted, for he could not deny, that Mr. Dicas had been incarcerated without colour of justice. He admitted, for he could not deny, that every ap-plication for redress had been contemptuously rejected. Dis then, said he, no action will lie against a Judge for a wrongful act committed by him in his judicial capacity; and he then proceeded to quote, as a parallel case, an instance of a Judge having committed a Jury to gaol because they refused to find the verdict which his Lordship had directed. Again, we say, the LORD CHANCELLOR is welcome to the defence of his Counsel; and if he is content to escape welcome to the defence of his Counsel; and if he is content to ecape in company with the Judge whose conduct and whose impunity were adduced in his behalf, God forbid that we should attempt to sepaacduced in his behalf. God forbid that we should attempt to sepa-rate those whom Mr. Solicitor has joined together, or deny that the rule of law which can protect the one may well preserve the other. All we do say is, that, giving the LOAD CHANCELLON full credit for his anxiety to make his own authority odious as well as his Court empty, we cannot sufficiently congratulate him on the triumphant heroism which has simultaneously achieved both the one and the other.'

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, DECEMBER S.

THEIR MAJESTIES continue at Brighton. The QUEEN has recovered from her late indisposition, and has appeared again in public. Letters have been received from Berlin which contain a very favourable account of the results of Baron GRAEFFE'S treatment of his Highness Prince GEORGE of CUMBER-

AND. Intelligence has also been received of the birth of a Prin-ses to their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of CAMBRIDGE.

CAMBRIDGE. THERE have been numerous reports afloat during the week about Lord GREY's resigning. The cry of wolf has been so often raised, that, knowing his Lordship's insatiable vora-city for "good things," we doubt it. We certainly believe that a proposition has been submitted to the KING for bringing Lord DURIAM back to office. This, our readers may recollect, we forefold the moment we heard of Mr. ELLICE's visit to Lambton Hall, after a stay at Howick. If this point should be carried, Mr. ELLICE will have a seat in the Cabinet, at least if he can persuade his uncertain friend, the Times newspaper, to let him have it. Since writing the above, we have ascertained that, for the present at least, the attempt to force Lord DURINAM upon the KING, has failed. Certain it is, that the bare effort to bring his Lordship into the Cabinet, after his Lordship's clare and dinner, is sufficiently alarning, as indicating the feelings and intentions of some of our Ministers. Thankful indeed must His MAJESTY, as well as the country be, to the two Noblemen who firmly and conscientiously opposed such an infliction. We shall see whether Lord GREY is as tenacious upon this two Noblemen who armiy and constructions y opposed that in infliction. We shall see whether Lord GREY is as tenacious upon this point as it affects one son-in-law, as he is upon that which concerns another—we mean, Major-General ELLICE Ports-mouth is not yet disposed of, and we will even now back General ELLICE against the field.

NOTHING decisive has occurred since our last with regard to the affairs of Spain or Portugal; nor indeed have any of the minor events which have transpired during the week in connexion with those countries, afforded us any reason to alter the opinion which we entertain, and have so frequently expressed—that if the Spaniards and Portuguese are left to themselves—and if they are not, a general Continental war is inevitable—Don CARLOS and Don MIGUEL will, before the expiration of a twolvemonth, be quietly seated on their respective Thrones. With respect to our position as regards Eastern affairs, it is anything but satisfactory. During the last few days the differences between our Government and that of Russia have assumed a very serious character. It is generally supposed that the French troops collecting in the Mediterranean, under GUILLEMINOT and CLAUSEL, are destined to proceed to Cyprus, to check any attempts which Russia may contemplate upon Turkey. This military French force is, we understand, to be supported by an English fleet: the consequences are evident—we shall become the humble servants of our deceifful enemies, and be involved in a war, with every European Power but one, against us. Wer hellens it to be the the start the settemation of the superior.

WE believe it to be quite true that an attempt is making to consolidate, as the Whigs call it, several of the Military departments, by removing the heads of those departments, and putting them all under the controul of some one indi-vidual officer of the Government. We are inclined to believe this, because the Military Com-mittee reported that the military departments at the Horse-Guards were all ably and skilfully conducted; and, more-over, because Mr. EDWARD ELLICE, who is at the bottom of this consolidation, no doubt believes and considers the Secretary at War as the functionary most fit for the general controul. controul.

control. Amongst the offices to be abolished, that of Master-General of the Ordnance is said to be one; if this is true, it accounts for the constant occupation of the Duke of RICH-MOND in the affairs of that department: to have the un-settling of anything which had been admirably settled by the Duke of WELLINGTON, would, to his Grace's mind and feelings, be the most grateful pursuit imaginable.

feelings, be the most grateful pursuit imaginable. To the report of the proceedings on the impeachment of Lord Treasurer MIDDLESEX (22d James I., 1624) there is appended a letter from JAMES HOWELL to his father, dated March 22, 1622 (Letters, book 1, § 3, letter 1), in which a passage descriptive of his Lordship's sudden exaltation to honour and dignity occurs, whence, we think we might, with great propriety, borrow a term for the purpose of applying to a very great and variously employed family of the pre-sent day. He says, "There is now a notable stirring man in the place, my Lord CRANFIELD, who, from walking about the Exchange, is come to sit Chief Justice in the 'Chequer Chamber, and to have one of the highest places at the Council Table. He is married to one of the TRIBE OF FORTURE—a kinswoman of the Marquess of BUCKING-HAM." HAM

This is the term we propose to borrow—it would as well apply to the innumerable GREVS, PONSONRYS, BULTERLS, ELLICES, LAMBS, LAMBTONS, JENKINSONS, BARRING-TONS, WOODS, BARINGS, &c. of the present day, as it gid to the creatures of BUCKINGHAM'S bounty in the days of JAMES; that it was a term generally in use at that period there can be no doubt, for in WILSON'S account of CRANFIELD, in his history of James IL, he, like HOWELL, adopts it, and says, "His marriage into the HOWELL, adopts it, and says, "His marriage into the HOWELL with this excellent precedent, we shall for the future speak of the GREYS and their connexions as the TRIBE OF FORTURE.

FORTUNE.

THE following advertisement appears in the Irish news-

We have elsewhere given the report of proceedings in the Jamaica House of Assembly upon the occasion of a most flattering vote passed in favour of Mr. BURGE, the Colonial Agent, and only regret that we cannot find space for more copious extracts from the debate which occurred on the Copious extracts from the active association occasion. By letters which came at the same time, we hear, as indeed we always anticipated it would be, that the dissatis-faction at emancipation is now infinitely greater amongst the Blacks than amongst the Whites; it they mover wild-would bear the alteration patiently and even good-lumour-edly-but the Blacks are outrageous. First, they are outrageous, because they are to work as they did before, and nobody is to find them in food and clothing. Secondly, they are outrageous, because, in many instances, those negroes who have been advanced to impor-tant duties on the sugar estates, are now reduced to appreninstances, those negroes who have been advanced to impor-tant duties on the sugar estates, are now reduced to appren-tices; and thirdly, fluey are outrageous—and upon this third point much danger and difficulty will arise—because they have been " warned out" of the huts and gardens, which, while they were slaves, were granted to them by their mas-ters, and to which they assert their right now that their con-dition is changed. The only persons who at present appear in any degree happy under the great measure are the "Com-missioners" (another splendid job), and the Solicitor, Mr. VIZARD, whose eventual profits (he not being paid a salary, but allowed the advantages of his profession as a Solicitor) will amount to nearly two hundred thousand pounds. We shall next week take a cursory review of the actual state of the West India settlements, in order to exhibit the readiness of the intractable planter to conduce to the com-fort of the Blacks, so long as he is not called upon to involve himself in any share of the awful responsibility of so tre-mendous a revolution as that which has been worked amongst the slave population.

the slave population. THE aspect which the Trades' Unions in this country has assumed is frightfully alarming—this, even the "prosperous" Ministers themselves admit. We shall next week call at-tention to the subject, and endeavour to awaken our readers to a sense of the dangers to which the mal-administration of public affairs will infallibly expose them. In Ireland agitation and sedition have so completely cor-rupted the working classes of the metropolis, that a system of combination (and outrage against those who do not com-ply with their arbitrary rules), such as never before existed in any country, now prevail to such a degree, that the mer-chants and traders have called a meeting, in the hope of devising some measures to put down such a tremendouseril, which threatens to involve the whole population in ruin, as the dissolute workmen will not permit any business to be carried on, except upon terms which have first been sub-mitted to them for approval. This is one of the blessings of democracy—in a very short time this country will be in a precisely similar position.

MR. BABINGTON MACAULAY, the devoted representative of Leeds—the independent man of the People—has been appointed, under the provisions of an Act of the Reform Parliament, to a situation in India, of at least TEN THOT. SAND FOUNDS STERLING PER ANNUM. There is another new office created under the same Bill, which is better— SIXTEEN THOUSAND ayear—the Governorship of Agra, to which Sir THEOPHILUS METCALF is nominated; but BAB. BAR. MAC. comes in, or rather goes out, second best, and is appointed Law Member of the Supreme Council at Calcutta. "ANABALUTHA comes in for a share, "(And little Don CANGO'S awithor looks there.)" —Ten thousand pounds per annum for BAB. MAC. is a good deal. We fear that the climate of India will agree with him (judging by his personal appearance), as Sierra Leone has agreed with the prolegés of the illustrious ZACK, his sire—but so it is—the appointment is settled. It is quite clear that Ministers have made this office for the BAB. MAC. BAHAUDER, as POOLE, or BEAZELY, or PEAKE, or any of our popular dramatists write a part for a particular actor—BAR, is the LISTON of the Farce—the thing is done expressly for him. No men take such measures without motives. BAB. MAC. BAHAUTER having done his little possible to injure the West Indies as much as he could, is advanced from the Secretary-ship of the Board of Controul, and sent out to do all the good in his power in the East, thus slightly transposing some of the heautiful lines of the author of The Twopenny Post Bag—Lallah Rookh—M.P., or the Blue Stocking— The Fudge Family, and The Gipsy Prince, which are set in his "Melodies" to the country dance of Garry Ocen :--"He but risk as avect and then flies to the datest; And when plensure begins to grow dull in the YEST. He orders his wings, and is off to the East." Old Mrs. M. and some of the Ministerial toadies say that BAA. MAC, will be a great loss to the Minister-Why 3 "Because," say they. " he is just the man to say anything and plenty of it." This is a curious compliment both to man and Minister: but the case is different—BAB. The fact is, the RUSSELLS, ever since the defeat of Lord JOHN RUSSELL, have been very shy of the Whig Corporation, who, through their unpopularity, occasioned his losing the election in 1830. We should not be at all surprised at the resignation of the Recorder, the Duke of BEDEORD, who is never known to favour the Aldermen with his company; and the venison is not so plentiful as heretofore. The last act of his Grace the Duke of BEDFORD Recorder, was to put his name at the fag end of a requisition, signed by some eight or ten Aldermen and Common Councilmen, to conby some eignt or ten Andernen and common comments to convenie a Council to put the corporate seal to a petition in favour of Lord Jonnyr's Reform Bill; when a somewhat awkward circumstance occurred:--the requisition was solong detained at Woburn Abbey that it was at first printed without his Grace's signature; and a second handbill was subsequently printed, with the Duke's name as the last handon't was subsequency printed, with the Duke's name as the last signature. This petition was got up at a time when the Corporation were so unpopular, that they dare not ask their fellow townsmen to join in the cry for Reform. An attempt was made before the Muni-cipal Commissioners to prove that this Whig Corporation had no eye to politics in the choice of the Members; but the Town Clerk's evi-dence excited great mirth when he announced that, " with respect to the political state of the Corporation, nine of the Common Coun-climen were WHIGS; and FOUR Tories. The two Chamberlains are -one a Tory, who votes with the Whigs! and the other does not vote at all, being a Government officer." In a subsequent part of the pro-ceedings it was stated that in 1802 the Duke of BEDFORD, finding the Corporation unpopular, requested twelve respectable persons to joir the body corporate, and, vociferated the Aldermen, they were hall Whigs and half Tories; but the Town Clerk, to their dismay, said that eight were Whige, and four Tories. The Town Clerk also said. Query, are the inhabitants to have a third Soli-citor of his Grace's to fill up the chasm occasioned by the Duke's nephew's resignation. An attempt was made to prove that the old Duke of BEDFORD was not the Recorder in 1769, when 500 honorary freemen were made, which, however failed; and the 200 made in 1790 and 1791 were proved to be all the tenantry and tradesmen of the Duke of BEDFORD, from Woburn and its vicinity, with the addi tion of the tenantry of Lord FITZWILLIAM from Higham Ferrars. The borough was supposed to be regularly sold in 1790 to 1791, as the Commissioners remarked, upon a sum of money being paid about that time that the Corporation wanted the money and Colhoun a seat in Parliament.

The United Service Journal says-" We regret to find that the breach in the 15th Hussars, which we thought had been healed by the judicious and equitable interference of the General Commandingin-Chief, has been re-opened. On the merits of the present case, though accurately informed, we refrain, of course, from pronouncing an opinion pendente lite ; but we do not hesitate to observe, gene rally, that a system of government has been lately developed in raily, that a system of government has been lately developed in the distinguished corps alluded to which is obviously at variance with the temperate and rational spirit inculcated at Head Quarters, and which, for the interests of the 15th Hussars and of the Army, must be checked."

is from the same excellent periodical :-"Quarter-master Jackson was the son of a Quarter-master in the regiment. His father not having the means of providing for him, the young fellow went on board a man of-war in a fleet going to the Mediterranean. A party of the crew made a descent on the coast of Spain-this was in 1734; the party was surprised, and Jackson made prisoner by the Spaniards. In order to obtain his liberty from a gaol, after twelve months' captivity; he enlisted in the Spanish army; and the year following, being on command on the coast of Spain, his party was surprised by the Moors, he was made prisoner, carried to Oran in Barbary, and exhibited as a slave for sale. The English Consul, seeing something in his appearance that made him suspect that he was his countryman, spoke to him, and finding him a British subject, purchased him, brought him home to his house, and made him super-intendent of his family. After some years, he obtained his discharge, returned to Ireland, and found his old father living. Lord LIGONIER permitted him to resign his warrant to his son. Some time after, the permitted him to resign his warrant to his son. Some time after, the regiment being upon Dublin duty, Jacsson, passing through the Castle yard, observed a soldier standing sentinel at the gate, and perceived, as he passed him by, the soldier turned his face from him. JAcsson, returning to the barrack, found himself unusually distressed; he could not banish the idea of this same sentinel out of his mind; he had an anxiety (that he could not suppress) to know who he was; and going next morning to the Castle, he waited the relief of the guard, he found the man that he wanted. Jackson addressed him, guard, he found the man that he wanted. Jacksow addressed him, told him that his face was familiar to him, and begged to be in-formed where he had seen him; in short, in this soldier he found his protector, the Consul of Oran, who had redeemed him from slavery. The account that he gave of this extraordinary re-verse of fortune was, that 'shortly after they had parted, his affairs run into confusion,—he had outrun his allowance, had overdrawn, was recalled, and was obliged to return to England; where, upon his arrival, he enlisted with the first recruiting party that he met, and now was a soldier with his fortune in his knapsack.' Jackson made every return in his power to his benefactor; obtained his discharge, and had him taken in a trooper in the Blacks, where Jackson shared his pay with him. In the course of six months, the unfortunate Consul died of brandy and a broken heart."

At a Court of Aldermen held on Tuesday last, Captain Ross was voted the freedom of the City. Mr. Core, the City Marshal, was appointed Keeper of Newgate.

MR. D. W. HARVEY AND THE BAR .- The proceedings before Sir WETHERELL and other Benchers, in the case of Mr. HARVEY, were resumed on Tuesday evening, at seven o'clock, and continued until ten, three hours being the time agreed upon for the discussion to last each evening. There were no witnesses called, the time being con-sumed in arguments, interruptions, and in referring 'to matters' arising out of the inquiry; after which there was a further adjourn-ment to Friday, when a few witnesses were called in favour of Mr. HARVEY : and Mr. SEDGWICK, one of his counsel, commented on the evidence produced, and a further adjournment of this very tedious business took place till Tuesday next, when the inquiry is ex-pected to close. Should the Benchers decide against Mr. HARVEY'S claims, they must state their reasons at length to the Judges, before whom the business will be heard, and on these the counsel of Mr. HARVEY will argue, before the matter can be brought to a final conclusion. These proceedings have all been conducted with closed

THE Jamaica and Leward Island Mails have arrived, announcing The Jamaica and Leward Island Mails have arrived, announcing the receipt of the Slavery Abolition Act. The only Colony that has yet acted upon the law by any legislative proceedings is Antigua, where a Committee of the two Houses has reported in favour of the abolition of slavery, compared with the apprenticeship plan. This feeling pervades the legislative colonies, but only applies to the dry weather islands, where the negroes are hand-fed, and there are no surplus loads. surplus lands.

surplus lands. The Anti-slavery party in May, 1831, defined abolition to mean the transfer of the power of punishment from the master to the Magis-trate. The West Indians were satisfied with this as their ultimatum. No sooner had the Abolitionists gained this outpost than they called for unqualified freedom, and induced Lords GODENEGR and Howres to assent to this desperate experiment. The Cabinet saw the dan-ger, and Mr. STANLEY and M. LEFEVER succeeded them:¹. No one who has had intercourse with these Gontheme can fail to hear testiwho has had intercourse with these Gentlemen can fail to bear testiwho has had intercourse with these Gentlemen can fail to bear testi-mony to their desire to do justice to the Colonists as far as they had the power to do so, and to the talents, judgment, and unwearied labour they bestow on their official duties; but their minds were not permitted to have fair play. We have reason to know that their original scheme of apprenticeship was unshackled by those limitations as to labour, restrictions as to authority, and regulations as to food, clothing, &c. which were afterwards introduced. These regulations, restrictions, and limitations, so onerous to the planter and so full fraught with suspicion and implied reproach, made the and so juil fraught with suspicion and implied reproach, made the apprentices lin, with all the advantages of a short adscriptus glebæ, utterly intolerable. The Saints having thus rendered the appren-ticeship, as required by the Act impracticable, the colonists were driven into immediate emancipation as the least of two evils,— entrapped, as it were, in a snare. No wonder, then, that they should feel indignant.

As to the compensation of twenty millions sterling, it is somewhat more than one-tenth of their property. If the measure succeed it is not a gift jift if all the planters are ruined. No wonder they desired not to be disturbed; for, under the most favourable circumstances, it will be absorbed in the increased expences. The report from Antigua should be read by every person who pre-tends to talk on the subject; it complains loudly and justly of the obnoxious impost, the four-and-a half per cent duty, a tax which has taken more than six millions sterling out of the pockets of the Planters, and put three millions only into the Exchequer—a tax uguinst which Lord ALTRONF and this colleagues have voted as often as Mr. CREEVY pressed it to a division—" a tax described by Lord Chancellor BROTORIAN as beyond comparison the most injurious to

The people of Antaguasay to the Government, andfarr.y, relieve us rom this burthen, put us on a footing esto the cost of cultivation in the Britsh or other markets with the newly-acquired colonies, and then we shall believe you sympathize with our sufferings. The produce of the tax is a mere trifle in the revenues of the scountry-too insignificant to waste a thought upon stenling, namely, one eighteen-hundreth part of the whole revenue, and out one two-hundred-and sixtiethp art the six millions and a half revenue derived from the sugar coones.

It shewn by the Parliamentary Papers, 1832 (381) that the four and half per cered tury o many states comes out of the capital, for in unayourable years the Planter has sometimes no income; but still the repeal of this tithe in kind tax, collected under interference, partaking more of the vaxious claracter of Excise than of Customs, would form an immense relief to the revenues of the distressed, shouth form an immense relief to the revenues of the distressed, burthen burthen

"We have no doubt the Government will abandon this tax. Gne word more at parting to our friends the Saints, who are so fond of quering scriptural authority—they resisted compensation to the planters, even a title of the value of their property. Let them look into WHEFON'S JOSEPHUM, book 12, chap. 2—" When Protexy set the Jewish captives free he paid the full outles for every slave." We do not quarrel with Mr. STANEXY for giving as much as be could get—he steed between the Colonies and the saintly rabble and rabital republician mob, who "damn the people's cause by their supget'—whose councils and overt acts will undermine all that is good and worth preserving in this country—substitute vice for virtue, and Absorbation the loss of the word they will bring about a Absorbation at home, no less ruinous than that which, through their parterse and uaromitting exertions now threatens our colonies and degeoadencies in both hemispheres.

IT appears that Alderman THOMFSON has resigned the honourable and important office of Chairman of the Committee at LLOYD's, in consequence of some imputations having been cast upon him by some members of that establishment, because he had secretly connected himself with a society formed at Sunderland for effecting marine assurances, and having (arthered its objects by conduct likely to be injurious to the interests of that establishment of which he was already the head.

Mr. THOMPSON most distinctly repels the allegation that he had secretly allied himself to the society at Sunderland—with which town he is intimately connected—because the prospectus of the Sunderland Insurance Society, containing his name as one of the Presidents, has been long published, and repeatedly advertised in the newspapers, so that it neither could have been a secret at LLOYD'S, nor bould he have wished or intended that it should be. Mr. THOMPSON positively denies that the proceedings of the Sunderland Company could in any degree or by any possibility interfere with LLOYD's; but at the same time he could not avoid feeling that the only course left for him to pursue was to retire from that establishment the moment such a feeling had been excited. On Tuesday, therefore, he resigned the chair—the Committee accepted the resignation, but much regret it, and the cause of it. His letter, and the answer of the Committee, will be laid before a general meeting of the subscribers, which is to be held on Wednesday next.

The Duchess of CAMBRIDGE was safely delivered of a daughter on the 27th ult. at Hanover.

A Proclamation for the further prorogation of Parliament will appear in Tuesday night's fazztite, and on the following Thureday it will be prorogued with the usual ceremony in the Housa of Lorda, and a day appointed for its meeting for the dispatch of business.

The bronze statue of the Duke of YOBK in the course of a few weeks will be placed on the pillar lately erected to receive it on Calton-terrace.

We regret to state that Lord Viscount EXMOUTH expired on Theaday night, at eight o'clock, from the effects of the scarlet fever, with which his Lordship had been attacked about eight days. His Lordship, who was in his 47th year, was the eldest son of the late Right Hon. Viscount EXMOUTH, who died in January last. His Lordship was a Captain in the Royal Navy and one of his MAJESTY'S Naval Aides-de-Camp, and had much distinguished himself in several actions during the late war. His post commission bears date January, 1806. His Loodship was an active member of the Yacht Squadron, and in the summer of the present year he made an uausually rapid voyage to the Baltic in his yacht, the Ganymede; and a schooner is now building at Cowes in which he intended to make a voyage to the Mediterranean next year. His Lordship was twice married, first in 1808, to ELIZA HARAIST, eldest daughter of Sir Gronds HILARO BARKOW, Bart, G.C.B., from whom he was divorced by Act of Parliament in 1820: secondly, in 1822, to Genorat JAJEST, eldest daughter of Muxao DICK, Esq., of Richmond. The Hon. PERCY TAYLOR PELLEW, his eldest son by his first marriage, now in his nineteenth year, succeeds to the family honours. The Viscountess is in town, staying at the residence of the Hon. Captain F. PRLEW in Gratton-street. His Lordship's remains will be removed from the Colonnade Hotel for interment in the family honours.

The marriage announced between the Hon. G. A. CRAVEN, brother to Earl CRAVEN, and Miss SNYTHE, sister to Lady FREDERICK HEARDERY BATHURST, is understood to have been deferred until the consent of the Court of Chancery can be obtained, the young lady being a ward of the Court, and under age. However, the proposal and settlements are now before one of the Masters of the Court, and it is expected that the ceremony will very shortly take place.

We understand that the exaggerated and very incorrect reports respecting JOHN SCOTT VANDELEUR, Esq., son of the late Colonel VANDELEUR, collector for the county of Clare, appear to have arisen merely from the embarrassed state of his affairs, which his relatives and friends are taking steps to arrange amicably. It is, however, to be regretted that the representative of the eldest branch of the

The anniversary of the natal day of the Duke of Breckswen was celebrated by the customary rejoicings on the 25th ult. at Dalkeith Palace. The Noble Duke completed his twenty-seventh year. Lord J. Scorr has left town to join the Duke at Dalkeith. A mercantile letter from Alexandria, dated the lst of Navember,

A mercantle letter from Alexandra, dated the ist of November, states that the Pacha of Egorp had remitted 100,000 plastres to the SULTANAS an instalment towards the first payment of a million of plastres, to be given as a tributary sum to the Sublime Porte.

Sir KENNETH DOUGLAS, Bart., one of the Jurats of the town and port of Hythe, departed this life, in London, on the 22d ult. The worthy Baronet was a Lieutenant-General and Colonel of the 58th, or Rutlandshire Regiment of Foot. He was better known as Brigadier-General MACKENZIE, who, under the direction of the late General MOOAE, so effectually trained, at Hythe and Shornchiffe, the eleborated light Brigade of the 55th British army, composed of the 43d and 52d Regiments, and the then 95th, now Rifle Brigade. Sir KENNETH became a Baronet about two years ago; when on the death of a Scotch relative the name was changed, and an ancient Baronetcy, some time dormant, was revived. The remains were interred in the family vault on Friday. Sir KENNETH is succeeded in his title by his eldest son, Captain ROBERT ANDREWS DOUGLAS, of the 12th Regiment of Foot.

Some of the Officers of the Bankrupt Court lately waited upon Lord BROUGRAN, to represent,that the amount of business there was so small as not to furnish sufficient to defray the expenses of the establishment. The Noble Lord's remark in reply to this statement was laconic and gentlemanly—" It is owing to all those dammed attorneys!" "No, my Lord," observed the deputation, "it is not owing to the attorneys, but to the merchants, who are so indignant at the plan of paying five per cent. to an individual, for doing what they thermselves would willingly do for nothing, that they rather prefer a deed of composition, however unsatisfactory or defective, to making the debtor a bankrupt; and the consequence is that the Judges are not supplied with business enough to occupy their time." "Then," quoth the CHARCELLOR, they shall go Circuit, and assist the Commissioners of the Insolvent Court in their vocation."

A warm contest is likely to arise between the barristers and attorneys as to the propriety of attorneys being allowed to plead as advocates in the Sheriffs' New Courts, and it is announced that the Bar have signified their intention to attend those Courts if the exclusive right of audience be given to them; but that if, on the contrary, attorneys are allowed to plead, the barristers will absent themselves entirely from the Courts.

The following is from the New York Journal of Commerce:--"Frauds on the revenue have increased to an alarming extent on the northern frontier; there is an immense smuggling business done on the Canada frontier; and done in such a manner as to set the Custom House and all its tuain at defance, and public sentiment will not stop it while our duties are 55 per cent. payable in cash."

The Bank of Ireland is to advance the million required by Government to make up the deficiency of Irish ithes, and is to receive Exchequer bills bearing interest at three per cent, which are not to be put in circulation for three years.—Irish Paper.

GENERAL ELECTION.—The following historical fact, being peculiarly applicable to the present period and recent events, is particularly deserving of notice. Its application cannot be mistaken even by the dullest capacity, and appears to have been a prophetic allusion uttered by an English Sovereign upwards of two centuries ago. The subsequent questions were submitted to the nation as points of advice in the reign of JAMEN I., and applied to the then existing Parliament:—

Parliament: — "Have we cast our eyes upon the worthinst men of all sorts, knights and gentlemon that are lights and guides in their counties, experienced Parliament men, wise and discreet statesmen, that have been practized in public affiring, whether at home or abroad; grave and eniment lawyers, substantial citizens and burgesses, and generally uch as are interested and have a portion in the State ? "Have we made choice of such as are well aflected in religion, without declining either on the one hand to blindness and superstition, or on the other hand to schiem or turbulent disposition ?"

At Aix, on the 25th, says a French paper, the police and military were attacked and pelted by the Republicans, whilst conducting to gaol an amateur of 1793, who had sported a red cap at the Theatree. The troops having been made to charge a few patriots were bayonetted. The son of the Duke of FITZJAMES is to take his trial at the Calvador Assizes, in a few days, for having ventured to dispute Louis PHILIPPS's sacred right to the throne, by inscribing "Five Henri V." on the walls of a tavern.

We have had occasion on more than one instance to notice the ambitious strides towards dominion made by the French in Africa, and the passive indolence with which our Ministers have seen them extend themselves along that important coast. We see in the French Papers that very important preparations are making at Toulon to equip an expedition of scarcely less importance than the original one gainst Algiers. It seems that the Bey of Costantrus has been found by the French Government guilty of the dreadful crime of hating the invaders of his country instead of receiving them with open arms, and has dared to refuse that his dominions shall become the scene of pillage, disorder, and violence. In consequence of this, in the approaching spring a force of 20,000 men, viz. 18,000 infantry and 2,000 cavalry, is to be despatched against this Chieftain, under the command of Marshal CLAUSEL, who is to be accompanied by the Duke of OLLAUSE as a pupil in the art of extirpating the inoffensive Arab. This army is to proceed in two divisions, the one to dissenbark at Bona, and the other at Bugia, but the two corps will form a junction a few miles from the devoted city of Constantine, preparatory to the commencement of the work of blood. But it would seem that the designs of the Citzen-King extend source haved a beyond the presession of the territry of the Bey of Costantvict, for a naval to convolutions of size and of the line, six trigeton, eighteen smaller vessels of war, and numerous transports, is to form a portion of the expedition, the magnitude of which leads to the inference that some ulterior design is in contemplation. At Toulon already had much preparation been made for the equipment of this force, which certainly descrees the watchful eye of our Government, as the aggrandizement of France, although in perfect keeping with the system of the Whing Ministry, may cause their successors no little trouble.

COLORE EVANS AND THE WORKING CLASSES.—Last week a deputation of the working classes waited upon the gallant member for Westminster, at the Royal Hotel, Manchester, for the purpose of "making known to him their real condition." A variety of statements were made by the men, to show that the wages they received were scarcely sufficient to provide their families with food. A person named CLARKE introduced himself as the representative of 800 tailors, not one in twenty of whom, hesaid, could earn more than 108. or 11s. per week! Col. Evans, after listening to all that could be urged upon him, said that with regard to Trade Unions, he approved of them to a great extent, but he condemned the system of intimidation and pick ting, to raise wages assuch means would always prove abortive, and they were quite as despoir cas the combination laws. What he would recommend was, that the operatives should unite, and communicate with their fellow-operatives in other towns, and also with the independent portion of the press; that they should call on the Government to effect measures of amelioration, and endeavour to send men to Parliament who would cause their representations to be listened to.

The Select vestry of Marylebone have caused the requisite notices to be affixed to the doors of the Middlesex Sessions House of their intention to apply, during the ensuing sitting of Parliament, for an Act empowering them to raise the requisite funds for erecting buildings.engines, and laying pipes, for supplying the streets, squares, shops, and private houses with gas throughout that extensive parish.

The usual quarterly notice was issued on Thursday, by the Bank of England, that it was ready to advance loans in sums of not less than 2,0001. upon the deposit of bills of exchange, Exchaquer bills, East India bonds, or other approved securities, such loans to be repaid on or hefore the 14th January next, with interest, at the rate of three per cent. per annum.

Saturday the Masonic Grand Lodge of Scotland elected as its officers, the Kino, Patron; the Marquess of Douclas and Chros-DALE, Grand Master Mason; Earl of BUCHAN, Sir JOHN HAY, Sir DAYID BARD, RONALD MACDONALD Of STAFFA, &c., the other grand officers. The dinner at the Waterloo Hotel in the evening was of the most sumptuous description; the Marquess of Douclas presiding over about 200 of his brethren. The spectatel of a masonic dinner has not occurred in Edinburgh for some years.

A scene of true old English hospitality took place at Withyam on Tuesday se'anight, being the tithe audit of the Rev. SACSYLLE BAR, on which occasion the venerable and truly-liberal Rectorentertained his parishioners with an excellent substantial dinner, after which several loyal and appropriate toasts were drank—but none with more hearty plaudits than that of the Rev. Gentleman himself, who, in returning thanks, stated that it was the fifty-sixth time le had done himself the pleasure of meeting his parishioners. Then followed the healths of the different branches of the family; also that of Earl de la WARs, whose tenantry form the principal body of the parishioners, and all of them expressed themselves highly thankful that they lived under such a landlord and pastor, whose motto ever had been "Live and let live." It is gratifying to add that the tile was collected without one complaint.—Brighton Gazette.

At a meeting of the Gresham Committee, held on Tuesday last, JOSEPH PULLEN ESQ., M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, was unanimously elected to the Professorship of Astronomy, vacant by the resignation of Dr. SANDIFORD.

A meeting of the Clergy of this town and neighbourhood was held on Tuesday last in the Chapter House of the Collegiate Church. The immediate object of the meeting was to convey to his Grace the Archbiahop of CANTERBERY an expression of the high sense entertained by the Clergy of his past services to the Church; of their devoted adherence to its aspostolic doctrines and polity; and an assurance of their co operation in carrying into effect "any measures that may tend to revive the discipline of ancient times; to strengthen the connection between Bishops, Clergy, and the people; and to promote the purity, the efficiency, and the unity of the Church."-Manchester Courier.

The Brighton Gazette says—" At an Anti-Tithe Meeting which was held last week at Battle, Mr. Curarzs made another attack on the tithes and the Clergy, but expressed his determination to support the Corn Laws. At the dinner which followed, Mr. Examisross (who officiated as Chairman upon each occasion) observed that if wheat fell in price in consequence of an alteration of the corn laws, "rearts nonlid fall also;" and this was received with "bad cheers." Now Mr. Curarzs may rest assured that the same mounts ment which he is adding to pull down the Church, will next direct its force against the landowners;—their turn will come next. The farmers at the dinner seemed to understand this better than Mr. Curars. He wants to get rid of tithes, that he may get his rens; the formers see that if the Corn Laws are abolished, and wheat Mi--which it would do,—new arrangements must then be made with landlords, as landlords now want new arrangements made with be andlords, as landlords now want new arrangements made at these end that must auffir. Conviction of the Hon. Frederick Cavendish.-On Tuesday nd Wednesday week the Court of Common Pleas, Dublin, was occupied with the trial of the Hon. FREDERICK CAVNDISH, proprietor of the Castlebar Telegraph, or Connaught Ranger, at the suit of the Marquess of SLIGO, for the publication of three libels (in the Castleban Telegraph) on the 23d and 30th of January, 1833, on the subject of the ess's proceedings in reference to the election which took place Marquess's proceedings in reference to the election which took place in the preceding month, to the introduction of the extra police in the barony of Gallin, county of Mayo, and other local topics. The defendant spoke as leading counsel in his own defence for three hours on Tneaday, and on Wednesday, at 2 o'clock, was found guilty, and sentenced to pay 2501, damages and 6d costs, which is equivalent to 150] more. He has been now only three or four months out of gao for a previous libel on the Marquess of SLIGO, and then paid a fine of 2001. on the same head.

A Radical Yorkshire paper, which is generally well informed as to the opinions and wishes of the Dissenters in the North of England, states that memorials from the Dissenters of the Independent and Baptist congregations are likely to be forwarded to the Ministers for "an abolition of all exactions from Dissenters for the support of the Church; an admission to all the national seminaries of education; the right of marriage without the Church service or the payment of fees to a Clergyman; the right of burial in parochial burying grounds, their own ministers officiating; a general registration of births."

His MAJESTY'S Government have directed the weekly penny allotted to the most deserving boys in the Duke of Yonk's school at Chelses, to be stopped, as even a penny a week as reward for good conduct is a waste of the public money.—It is not economy which has prompted this magnificent reduction, it is not contain the response of the hatred which the Ministers bear the army—a hatred which they seize every available opportunity of exhibiting in the most glowing colours.

Capt. INCENDIARISM .- In the course of the night of Saturday, Nov. 30, fre was discovered on the premises of Mr. WILSON HOLDEN, farmer, of Barton, in Cambridgeshire. The flames were first seen by a labourer living next to Mr. HOLDEN, who was sitting up with his wife, subscription of the second sec siderable time before the engines could be got to the spot from this town, besides which there was a very scanty supply of water Immediately contiguous to the stack-yard was a haulm inclosure for a portion of the live stock, and three valuable horses and some pigs were destroyed, the heat from the burning stacks being so great that no one could venture near to release them. A considerable number of persons from Cambridge, principally Under graduates of the University, hastened to the spot and rendered great assistance, but we regret that they were unable to prevent the destruction of much property. The following is the account of property destroyed:—a barley barn and its contents, being entirely full of corn, four wheat stacks, two beam stacks, to haulm-stacks, horse, cow, and cart lodges, a pig-stye and hen-house, three horses, pigs, poultry, two rolls, five carts and waynong and bills total based to bills to be rolls, five carts and waggons, and a billet stack; besides which a large granary and wood house were damaged; the value of the whole is estimated at about two thousand pounds. Mr. Holber was insured to the full extent in the Sun fire-office. The farm is the property of the University.

A person of the name of PRIEST attempted Shylock at one of the playhouses on Thursday, and exhibited the most unequivocal proofs of inability, ignorance, and vanity-notwithstanding which, some of the gods persisted in applauding him. Some one expressed his surprise to Mr. Buxron at such consummate folly. "Ah!" said the wag, "it all comes from the venality of the establishment-they had all taken PRIEST'S ORDERS."-We ought perhaps to add, that paper admissions to the playhouses are called "orders."

We have seen with very great pleasure a brautiful illus-trated edition of Mr. NEELE'S Romance of History (an ex-tremely clever and interesting work, published by Mr. BuLL, of Holles-street), which in its present shape exhibits a very gratifying proof of the taste and skill of our English printers and "getters-up" of books. We have by some actident missed seeing the first volume, and were most agreeably surprised by the appearance of the second. Mr. BULL is rapidly rising into popularity as a publisher; the manner in which the Court Magazine is sent forth into the is by the talent and beauty of the literary world, he cannot he seems so worthy to fill.

ON THE ABUSE OF NAVAL PATRONAGE.

MR. EDITOR, -Previous to the Whigs coming into office, a great deal was said by them respecting the abuse of patronage existing in the different official departments under the Government; and if my memory service memory serves me correctly, no one made himself more conspicuous in crein, a in crying down those abuses than the present First Lord of the Ad-minate miralty. Since, however, his accession to office, he appeare to be totally unmindful of the sentiments he formerly entertained, and in sevent is Then to Sir Putresy Malcola to three successive commands—the volast for no other reason than his being a personal friend; for it is absurd to successive the successive commands—the absurd to successive the successive commands—the successive comma urd to suppose that out of our long list of Admirals no one could be found fit for the Mediterannean command but the present Com-mander in Class mander in Chief.

Amongst the list of Commanders of this year are the names of the 1 th

Hon, HENRY KEPPELL, and the Hon. E. HOWARD; neither of these Gentlemen having been Lieutenants more than four years, and having barely served the necessary time to qualify them for the rank they now hold. Perhaps Sir JAMES GRAHAM could inform us what particular claim or merit (independent of his relationship) the Hon. KEITH STUART had to his promotion the day after he passed his examination, whilst so many active and deserving young men are serving, who have been for years eligible for that rank, and are now as far removed from it for ever? But a more glaring case of injustice remains to be told, which l shall relate in as few words as possible :-- A few years ago a sloop of war was sent to the West Indies, in which vessel were two Lieutenants,-the first a man of very great professional abilities, so much so, as to be greatly sought after by the different Captains on the station; the other (though a very good person) remarkable for nothing but his extreme ignorance of the most ordinary dutice of his situation, and after being moved from ship to ship, it was found his services could be dispensed with, and he was accordingly invalided and sent home. In the mean time the first accountry invariant and setu house. In the mean time the mean Lieutenant was promoted by the Admiral on the station to the rank of Commander of a sloop of war, which rank he held for up-wards of a year, when the present Admiralty turned him back to a Lieutenant again, in which capacity he has been actively serving ever since. Shortly after the arrival of the second Lieutenant in England, he married a daughter of a Northern Earl (who is a warm supporter of the Government), and forthwith he was promoted to the same rank the other was so cruelly deprived of. This story needs no comment.

I am, Mr. Editor, your humble servant, NAUTICUS.

TO MAURICE O'CONNELL, ESQ., M.P. Sir,- The English sublic have of late been indebted to the confra-ternity of self-dubbed Patrists, of which you are, from your talents no less than the accident of parentage, so conspicuous a member. no less than the accident of parefitting, so conspicuous a inember, for a series of very amusing letters, the burden of which has been, "Who is the traitor? Who?" I will not stay here to criticize the elegance of their style, nor is it my present object to apply a literary test to the purity of their language. November is a dull month, and any one who contributes to the innocent entertainment of the public at such a season deserves their thanks. It was hardly to be expected weight of obligation by the admirable manner in which they ena weight at obligation by the admirable manner in which they enacted their various parts in the farce of the last Session, would, on their return home, avail themselves of the first opportunity to evince their gratitude for the reception with which they were greeted on this side of the Channel. Letter writing has always been estermed a most attractive form of composition; we have found it so, and we thank you. Having now, in all sincerity, discharged what I felt to be a just debt of gratitude to a set of men to whom we owe much, I am compelled to change my tone and to adopt that of serious re

Upon a first perusal of your inflated letter to Mr. HILL, I did consider that it formed only an agreeable addition to the scriet which had preceded it; and that the concluding sentence might be safely left to the condemnation of the high-minded gentry of Ireland. Subsequent reflection, however, has induced me to think that I may be performing a public service by contributing to unveil the secret motives and objects which have actuated for the most part the recent exhibition of wrathful indignation, and to develop the hidden agents by which the 40 horse power caloric engine, which is dragging asunder the elements of social order and international union, is set in motion. To quit the language of metaphor, and to come to facts. I would, in the outset, may a few words from which you will easily perceive that I am no friend of Mr. HILL'S in disguise. I differ from him entirely in politics and (if report speaks true as to his being a Socinian) in religion. I think that the apology he was mean enough to offer for his vote on the Irish Coercion Bill, when undergoing the humiliating process of catechetical interrogation from a body of supporters, whom he would fain satisfy, but whom he in his heart despises, was most unstatesmanlike and unmanly. As such it must have been received, and if I am rightly informed, he is not likely to hazard another experiment upon public feeling in Hull, where he is looked upon as a hanger on of Mr. Serjeant WILDE's, his friend and patron, and as a hungry aspirant for office under a Government, of which he is considered as having shewn himself a servile supporter, and which can boast of few friends in Hull. I will go further, and say that I think he has, upon his own shewing, committed a breach of confidence in making the anonymous charge he has done.

The main question, however, and the only one of importance is—has or has not Mr. HILL stated that which is substantially true of some one? He is certainly in somewhat of a dilemma, for which he bas to thank his own imprudence; but he appears to me to have adopted a manly and such as have been addressed to him. I believe he has not hitherto such as have been addressed to him. I believe he has not hitherto hesitated to return an explicit and courteous answer. This is the only way to bring matters to an issue. Vapouring public declaimers and illiberal national reflections may do very well with some consti-tuencies, and answer purposes to which I will presently allude, but you may rest assured that they will go little way to satisfy reasonable men of the groundlessness of a charge which you are naturally anxious to repel. I believe Mr. LIVRG was the first member of your hody who acted upon Mr. HILL's invitation. No one who knows Mr. LIVRG could for a moment doubt how the fact would turn out with regard to him. I may add, that no one, and of this you are well aware, ever to him. I mayadd, that no one, and of this you are well aware, ever suspected you (on this side the water at least) of being the traitor. Your policy has always been straightforward and consistent, however ruinous to the permanent interests of your Priest ridden country. I can with sincerity assure you, that you have been hitherto generally spoken of in terms of much more respect than you appear, from your gratuitous insult to the English nation, anxious to deserve. The gratuitous insuit to the English nation, anyious to deserve. The party with whom you act have steadily followed in the steps of your talented father, and while furthering the deep-laid schemes of his dextrous ambition have, I doubt not, many of them been deluded into the idea that they were thereby serving their country. They in general speak and act in Parliament, and out of it, with a consistency which affords no room to question their motives or to mistake their objects. The destruction of the Protestant Church in Ireland, and the extinguishment of the light of the Reformation in your unhappy country, are the ends at which you have long been aiming. Theseverance of the bond which unites England to Ireland is with you a secondary object, but necessary consequence. The ascendancy of Popery and of DANIEL O'CONNELL are synonymous, and to be achieved by the same means. But I am digressing from the main subject of this letter. Whatever may be your real or pro-fessed opinion of the habit of lying inherent in the English nation in fessed opinion of the habit of lying inherent in the English nation in general, or Mr. HILL in particular, it is plain that your constituents do not coincide with you. Of this you seem convinced; else, why this hubbub ?--why all this restlessness ?--whence this sensitive anxiety to purge yourselves from the odious charge ? Is it that your constituents cannot trust you, and have called for disclaimers at your hands ? Are your reputations so slender, as nearly to be snapped asunder by a single passage in a single speech, addressed by one of a lying nation to his constituents in Yorkshire ? Do not mistake me; I blame you not for your anxiety to clear yourself of the imputation of treachery. A short letter to Mr. HILL would have

take me; I biame you not for your anxiety to clear yourself of the imputation of treachery. A short letter to Mr. HILL would have done this. I do blame you, as all reasonable and honourable men will condemn you, for the intemperate exhibition you have made, and for the foul charge you have dared to bring against the English nation, because one individual has stated, with recard to one of your body, what, for all that yet appears, may ultimately turn out to be substantially true. Now, Sir, I ask, do you not know that the finger of the public points to RICHARD LACOR SHILL, as the Traitor? Far be it from me to accuse him. But are you not aware that the English, aye, and the Irish public, believe him to be the man alluded to? Do you not know that that very clever and entertaining person is in the habit of indulging in a lax mode of conversation, which renders him particularly liable to subjecion ? I might, perhaps, go further and ask, do you not believe there will turn out to be ground for the charge in his case? I trust it will prove otherwise, and that a hasty expression has been misunderstood; but this I say, that Mr. Hitl cannot and will not, by reasonable men, be charged with falsehood until every' individual of your body, including Richann LACOR SHILL, has brought the matter to an issue by addressing him personably and receiving an answer in the negative to the question—"Am I the Traitor?" If this be so, how can we account for your conduct, which is at once so unjustifiable and illiberal? A ready answer suggests itself to those Richann LALOR SHIEL D'CONNEL. Richan LALOR SHIEL stands in the way of DANIEL O'CONNEL. Richan BLALOR SHIEL stands in the way of DANIEL O'CONNEL and brave a rich alliance, and is indepen-way of DANIEL O'CONNEL. Richan LALOR SHIEL stands in the way of DANIEL O'CONNEL and shiftion. Ad now is the time to crush him or reduce him to vassalage. Nous verrows, Your obedient servant,

COURT OF CHANCERY.-TURSDAT, DER. 10. HELT OF BLARENET.-In this case Mr. E. I. BLURT that applied directed to deliver out an order made by the Master of the Rolls in this cause on the 37th of November for the payment of money for the benefit of Riclard Mugrave and others. The application was supported by the affidavit of the solicitor and his clerk. The minutes of the order were settled between the parties on the 4kh of Deember. The Registrar's clerk requested to see the solicitor's clerk are morning at the o'clock. The solicitor's clerk called, and was told he must take the minutes of the order to the stationer to be copied and engrossed, and an great to pay for it, and, taking the stationery receipt, he might deduct the sum from the fee payable for the order; that this was necessary in consequence of difficulties occurring usdar the late Act of Parliament and the new Chancery Order. The solicitor relued to take this trouble, and offer due you the Act tops yover everything he received without any deduction. His Lonsaur requested the application might stand over for a day or two, as there source orders coming out which would prevent similar applications. Mr. E. I. Blurn to day repeated his application. His Lonsaur requested the application might stand over, the Role, and requested the application might stand over, has so clearly and completely exbibited all the weaknesses of the great MOUNTAINEER, that we leave it to the able writer in that paper to enlighten our grateful readers. make this 'rule and regulation.' "An Act of Parliament says that, without special direction of the Court, there shall be no recitals in any decree or order. Lord BROUGHAM says that, without special direction of the Court, there shall be recitals in all decrees or orders. We venture to doubt whether the reservation to the LORD CHANCELLOR of power to make 'scub rules and regulations as to the form of decrees and orders as he may deem nccessary or proper' can be construed as enabling bim to establish generally what Parliament has generally abolished—to repeal, in short, what Parliament has enacted. It appears to us that Lord BROUGHAM, although he is empowered to make 'rules and regulations,' must make them in consistency with the Act of Parlia-ment by which he is empowered, and in that case he must authorise the introduction of recitals into any decree or order by a gecial and ont by a general direction. "But the repeal of an Act of Parliament by the Long CHANCELLON Parliament are repealed by Tories with certain formalities. First leave is asked to bring in the Bill, then the Bill is read a first time, next it is read a second time, afterwards its discussed in Committer; and so on. Lord BROUGHAM travels at a faster rate. It calls or a ten in his empty Court, dashes off a 'rule or regulation,' and the thing is done. "A thousand steps must a Tory take."

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, DECEMBER 15.

THE Court remains at Brighton.

THE controllation and integrated THE difficulties of our unhappy country seem to be rapidly encreasing. That our forebodings of a WAR with MUSSIA will speedily be verified, nobody who has read the Ministerial journals for the last few days, can doubt. The Globe of Wednesday speaks out, and consoles us only with the hope of not being left alone in, what it is the fashion to consider, a meritorious crusade against the Emperor NICHOLAS. This is all very fine talking, but the probable results are most appalling. War cannot be carried on with-out money, and nothing can be more lamentably ridiculous than the Job Commission under the Post-master General! formed to break up, or rather break down, the army, at the Usan the Job Commission under the Post-master General! formed to break up, or rather break down, the army, at the very moment when, in concert with France, we are about to commence hostilities against one of our most faithful and most important allies. We know nothing that is going on in the Cabinet—we are not in the way of such things, and if we were, the Cabinet is so united that not one of its members would do so shameful a thing as even hint at the proceedings of the Conclase. It so united that not one of its members would do so shameful a thing as even hint at the proceedings of the Conclave. It is therefore that we should like to know whether or not one line-of-battle ship has been ordered to be fitted for the Me-diterranean, in addition to our forces already there; and whether or not, nine sail of the line and three frigates are ordered to be got in readiness for sea. Should these preparations be really being made-and the demi-official article in the Globe makes us believe they are-we think Lord PALMENSTON'S spirit, and that of his confe-derates, will be put to a more severe trial than merely bully-ing, and, in an underhand manner, attacking the only two Pewers with whom it has been heretofore our policy to be at peace, until the unnatural alliance with France forced him to sacrifice our old friends to his new-fangled schemes for liberalizing the Contiuent, and advancing the interests of our natural enemies. our natural enemies

THE affairs of Portugal and Spain remain much as "per last." It appears that the high and mighty Don PEDRO has been trying the scheme of negociating with the KING-and Colonel HARE has had the honour of being selected to manage this delicate fraternal appeal. The answer might, and colored FARE has had the honor of being selected to manage this delicate fraternal appeal. The answer might, without any great skill in conjuration, have been easily au-ticipated. Don MIGUEL is supported and upheld by the whole Portuguese nation, while Don PEDRO is deserted even by the mercenaries whose venal assistance he pur-

where rortuguese nation, while Don PEDRO is deserted even by the increancies whose venal assistance he pur-chased. What we first said with regard to the national feeling fowards Don MiGEL is now proved to be true—the only ground upon which we afforded our humble but earnest support to his cause has been completely justified. The PEOPLE are with him—he is, as we have always said he was, KING by law—KING by right—and KING by election. Don PENRO has himself exhibited the real state of the case; and the Brazilian Venus, under the tutelage of the Downing-street Cupid, has been shewn up to the world not only as a Pretender, but as a Pretender without any pretension even to the voices of the traitors to her uncle's Government. We are in possession of some very curious documents connected with the underhand proceedings of our Foreign Sceretary touching these matters, which nothing but the ap-prehension of anticipating measures of a much more serious nature, prevents our publishing. Of this fact our readers may be sure—that the reign of delusion in Portugal is over; and that nothing but an open declaration of war against that country, levelled at Don MigueL, will shake him from the Throne, so justly, so peculiarly, and so securely his own. In Spain, no decisive steps hare been taken—General SAARSFFELD, after taking possession of Vittoria, has been superseded in his command, and has returned to Madrid. An atrocious Proclamation has been is used at TOLOSA by General CASTAGNON, in the QUERN'S service, which rivals the most despote documents of the BUONAPARTE era. M. ZEA BERNUDEZ still retains the Ministry; but al-though nothing has transpired relative to the personal pro-ceedings of Don CARLOS, where by time we might have ex-pected to hear of him—ree know that his cause is strengthen-ing daily, and that the delays which some attribute to weak-ness or timidity, are, on the contrary, the results of judicious consideration and statesmanike policy. Ancone, so justly, so peculiarly, and so securely histown. In Spain, no decisive steps have been taken-General SARSFIELD, after taking pussession of Vittoria, has been superaded in hist command, and has returned to Madrid, An atrocious Proclamation has been issued at TOLOSA by General CASTAGNON, in the QUERN'S service, which invistorial sites of the Admiralty for my Lord's brother (who is also Generator the KINS), and the settlement of serveral though nothing has transpired relative to the personal pro-ceedings of Don CARLOS, where by time we might have ex-preded to hear of him-mee know that his cause is strength thave ex-ness or timidity, are, on the contrary, the results of judicious consideration and statesmanike policy. In whatever way the context may iter the resistance which has hew strongly the nation feels the injustice which has been done to Dorr CARIDS, hid How general is the desire that he should not be deprived of the throne which is his, rightfully, legally, and legitimately. During the last ten years, the Government of the late KING has had such opportunities for consolidating a system favour-able to any views which he might entertain as to the exclu-sion of his brother, as probably no Government ever pos-sessed; for out of the misfortunes of the war of independence, and out of the still greater misfortunes of the anarchy of the constitutional system, society in Spain may be said to be reduced to its original elements; and as all resistance to the authority of King FERDINAND was prostrated by the pre-sence of a French army in the country, he, and his Ministers, under the protection of that army, were at full liberty, un-embarrassed by any existing establishments, to rear a sys-tem favourable to his own objects, and more especially latterly, to that most favourite object of excluding his brother from the throne.

tem favourable to his own objects, and more especially latterly, to that most favourite object of excluding his brother from the throne. Upon the death of the KING, the principal commands of the army, and a great many subordinate ones, were in the hands of men known to be personally hostile to Don CARLOS, The civil, legal, and administrative departments were in similar hands; Madrid, a town not so large as Edinburgh, was occupied by 14,000 troops; strong garrisons existed at Barcelona and other important points, commanded by persons who, from causes best known to themselves, were also opposed to the succession of their rightful SOVEREIGN. In the provinces every situation was filled by individuals pos-sessing the same feelings—no precaution had been neglected to ensure the success of the usurpation: for it is well known that the late KING, and his Ministers who sanctioned it, were as much opposed to the impossible system of likeratism in Spain, as was his royal brother, whose sentiments and character have been as much belied in the journals of Europe as even were those of King FERDINAND himself. Now, let us look at existing circumstances. Notwithstand-ing all these precautions, and against such fearful odds—and whoever knows Spain, well knows the power of the army and of the civil officers of the Government, which renders re-sistance to their will fearful odds—the POOPLE have asserted and mainained, at the risk of their lives and properties, the right of Don CARLOS their legitimate Sovereign; and so general has their resistance been to the usurpation, that Madrid has been, and may probably still be, nearly block-aded by an insurgent population. It has been most falsely stated that Priests and fanatics alone favour the cause of the KING, and that their influence over a bigotted peasantry has created the insurrection against the child of FERDINAND and her foreign mother. Nothing can be more falsec—more grossly false, than this : proprietors, farmers, merchauts, traders, artisans, and the working classes of

WE find the following in Monday's Standard :--"The Sombian Mercury gives the following of the 25th ult. from Berlin:-- Before the arrival of the Duke of COMBRARD for family allains. At his return he went to pay his respects to his Royal lighness, hut wasnot received. The Duke, it is said, was offended, because the Noble Lord did not wait till he came." We were in full possession of the fact here alluded to long before we saw this paragraph; but the lamentable insignifi-cance of the person who fancied he was currying favour with Lord GREY by insulting the brother of his SOVEREIGN, hindered our noticing what, we are quite sure was a most agreeable circumstance to the Prince hinself, as justifying his Royal Highness in taking no kind of notice of an indi-vidual whose family, raised by GEORGE THE THIRD and a Tory Minister to rank, station, and the Peerage, have embraced the politics of the Tribe of Fortune with an ear-nestness which has procured as proofs of their purity and independence — an Embassy for "my Lord's brother (who is also General of the Mint (Mintel) in Scotland, and naval Aide-du-Camp to the KING), and the settlement of several other branches of the noble family very conveniently. The fact is, that on the day upon which a large party of the nobility of Prussia and the Foreign Ministers at Berlin met for the purpose of doing honour to his Royal Highness's brother -thought proper to go to TOPLITZ. Does Lord GREY believe that His MAJHERTY does not feel such indignities—such insults askee?--ordoes Lord MINTO-the via the is acting dutifully or properly in so conducting likely to receive from the Duke of CUMBERLAND limed, which, if his Royal Highness had the unhappiness to hav been previously acquainted with my Lord, is not only th most dignified, but the most agreeable reward for his conduct as it secures the Duke from the oppression of any person association with as dull and tiresome a Nobleman as ere only the any personal existed.

Political feelings even do not vary or qualify their animosity towards the military, for Lord FREDERICK FITZCLARENCE is a Whig, and yet he is attacked, because be is also subdier.

WE last week mentioned a report which had been com-municated to us repecting Captain VIGNOLES, of the 19th Foot, who was therein stated to be at this moment a Captain Foot, who was therein stated to be at this moment a Captain on the full-pay of his regiment, which is now in the West Indies, and a stipendiary Magistrate in the south of Ireland. When we inserted this statement we expressed our disbelief of it—it is nevertheless true; and as we were last week ready to denounce it, even discrediting the history, we are now ready to vindicate it, even satisfied as we are of its correctment. correctness.

Correctness. It appears that Captain VIGNOLES is not only one of the most active and efficient Magistrates in Ireland, but that he has rendered the most essential practical services to his country in the character of Commandant of a portion of the country in the character of Commandant of a portion of the PEACE-PRESERVATION Force in his own country. Such, indeed, was the activity of the body under his orders, that Lord ANGLESEY having determined to reduce it, because his EXCELLENCY was pleased to imagine that particular part of Ircland to be most "beautifully transpuil," the following Memorial was forwarded to his EXCELLENCY, signed by hundreds of the most respectable of all ranks and per-susions :suasions :-

Arriving amongst us at a season of fearful outrage and convision, Captain Vicsours has succeeded in allaying alarm, and restoring comparative security to life and property in this Riding, by em-ploying the means at his command with a combination of prompti-tude and vigour, humanity and moderation, as eminently creditable in motive, as successful in effect; and it may not be irrelevant to add, under the peculiar circumstances of this country, that a spirit of impartiality has been as conspicuous in the proceedings of Captain VIGNOLES, as the energy and judgment he has invariably displayed in the discharge of the responsible and invidious duties confided to his execution.

Entertaining, therefore, a well-founded confidence in the protec-Entertaining, therefore, a well-founded confidence in the protec-tion alforded by this highly-efficient Force, the contemplated removal of which occurs at the moment of its complete equipment at the expence of the Riding, and having reason to believe that the inference upon which the propriety of its withdrawal has been founded-viz, the permanent re-establishment of the peace of this district—is at least, premature, we venture most respectfully to solicity our Ex-cellency to suspend for the present the instructions for the removal of an establishment which we deem essential to the maintenance of tranquillity during the approaching winter. The result of this Memorial, coupled with another from the Subject, was the refetention of Captain VIGNOLES in the post which he had filled so much to his own honour and the advantage of his countrymen and neighbours.

the advantage of his countrymen and neighbours. The communication made to us came from a quarter whence, after what had previously occurred, nothing of the sort should have emanated. Once silenced, the petty ani-mosity of rankling jealousy should not have permitted itself again to be heard. We certainly consider dthe case a strong one-we still consider it so: but we are perfectly-satisfied that the claims of Captain VIGNOLES and the Memorials of the Magistracy, and of all the wealth and re-spectability of his neighbourhood, are sufficient to justify, in his case, an exception to a general rule. in his case, an exception to a general rule.

BPLTEEL, one of the TRIBE OF FORTUNE, who is blest with many livings, and is an cage expectant of dignified pre-ferment. Or of Dr. GREY, another of the TRIBE OF FOR-TUNE, who (merely to give him a house in London) has been made a Prebendary of Westminster, he having been made, a short time before, Bislop of HEREFORD. Dr. HUNT's case, however, being, as we are informed, the worst of the three, for a reason which, if what we are told is really the truth, certainly makes that particular instance both "gross and glaring" (we use the Ministerial words). We are told that the Canterbury Prebendaries are bound to a twelvemoath's residence on their first appointment; if it be so (for it is not so in any other Cathedral), it operates most strongly upon the Incumbent of three Livings and the Mastership of a Hospital, inastnuch as neither the parishioners, in three in-stances, nor the patients or paupers (whichever they may nees, nor the patients or papers (whichever they may), in the fourth, can have the advantage, for a year at st, of the religious or moral assistance of their Pastor and be), in Master.

With respect to the Church Reform Bill, the country looks with confidence to the Archbishop of CANTERDURY-more especially do the people of the extensive, influential, and powerful Diocese of LONDON rely upon his Grace in the trial which is at hand. Addresses from all parts of the kingdom are flowing in upon his Grace, and to say truth, we were not a little annused at an observation of the Timas newspaper upon that Address prepared by the Diocese of Chiclester, which it prints in its columns, and praises for fits moderation and dissimilitude to many others which have been prepared in other parts of the country, but more espe-cially at Bristol. It so happens that the Address "circulated in the Diocese With respect to the Church Reform Bill, the country looks cially at Bristol. It so happens that the Address "circulated in the Diocese of Chichester," is verbatim the same as that prepared at Bristol--the Times people not having seen the Bristol Ad-dress, concluded that the known love and affection, and mo-deration, and SINGLE-mindedness, with regard to religion, of Dr. MALTRY, would have corrected the shameful zeal of the Clergy in behalf of the sacred institutions of the country, and so bepraised that as "rational," which, without knowing any thing about it, they contrast with " another copy of itself."

To be sure, after reading the abominations of the Edinburgh To be sure, after reading the abominations of the Edinburgh Review, and knowing who was their author, it seems odd to find "blundering BROUGHAM" (as the immortal BYRON calls him) drawing a bill for the reformation of our Church—That the whole thing is understood, where it is intended it should be but comprehended, there can be no doubt; if there were any, a perusal of the following selections from different un-questionable sources, might dissipate it. As for Ireland, the affair is already done—one year more, and the Church of Eurland follows:— England follows :

PROTESTANISM IN IRELAND.-It is a fact which has attracted less "PROTESTANISM IN IRLAND.—It is a fact which has attracted less notice than it merits, that a very considerable number of Protestants have emigrated from Ireland under a conviction that the progress of events in that priest-ridden and demagogue-ridden country will render their residence there unsafe. A correspondent of the Globe says, 'The extinction of Protestantian in Ireland has been here long since known to be the ulterior object of the O'CONNEL party in all their movements, but too many in England cannot believe it, because they think it never can be accomplished. The Roman Catholic repealers care less for the political than for the religious importance of the design, although both objects are equally pregnant with ruin to the empire. The allusion made in O'CONNEL's speech to the dismissal of the O'range magistrates, his recent comments on other occasions that the Government is unpopular in the North, and to the dismissal of the Orange magistrates, his recent comments on other occasions that the Government is unpopular in the North, and that repeal is winning its way in that district where it never formerly found entrance, are devices of Mr. O'CONNEL, which deceive nobedy here. "The Globe remarks upon this. 'These opinions, although stated strongly, exhibit the soler conviction of no small part of the Protestant population of Ireland.'" "The CHURCH AND THE DISBETERS.—If the Christian Advocate is to be considered as expressing the sentiments of the Dissenters, the latter appear determined to make an effort to force the Church from her present position. That paper says, 'These are not times for Dissenters to trim, and 'halt between two opinions.' The lattle has begun, and neutrality and indifference must not be allowed. Hesitancy is out of the question; a judgment must be formed, and a side taken. The Dissenters are determined upon the entire and absolute separation of the Church from the State. NOTHING LESS THAN THIS WILL, ON OUGHT TO, SATISIY THEN; for, as it is well and forreetly add in the address delivered by Mr. BINSEY, on laying the first stone of 'the New King's Weigh House, a place of worship intended for the use of a congregational church,' of which he is the Pastor, 'THE ESTABLISHED CHURCH SA GAEXT NATIONAL EVIL; IT IS "THE CHURCH AND THE DISSENTERS .- If the Christian Advocate Intended for the use of a congregational church,' of which he is the Pastor, ' THE ESTABLISHED CHURCH IS A GREAT NATIONAL EVIL; IT IS AN ORSTACLE TO THE PROGRESS OF TRUTH AND GODLINESS IN THE LAND; IT DESTROYS MORE SOULS THAN IT SAVES; AND, THEREFORE, ITS END IS MOST DETOUTLY TO BE WISHED BY EVERY LOVER OF GOD AND MAN.'-THIS IS THE TRUTH, whatever some half hearted, temporising Dissen. ters may say; and we rejoice to know that the principles of religious liberty are beginning to be fully understood and appreciated throughout the land, in the length and hreadth of it. The following aphorism is hould acculting viscour and ascendancy in this kingdom: throughout the land, in the length and breadth of it. The following aphorism is hourly acquiring vigour and ascendancy in this kingdom: "A sin civil affairs, according to the principles of the British Constitution, taxation without representation is tyranny; so, in folgion, computery payments to a church from which we conscien-atronage by the state of one sect, is injustice."—The practical entropy of the church is and mission to all the actional sections are in the right of marriage without the church service or the again grounds, their own ministers officiating; and a general with a general back of the induced of the service of the again of births."

(From the Leeds Mercury.)—The proceedings of the meeting held in this town on Tuesday last, on the subject of he claims and grivennces of the Dissenters, have already excited a provential degree of interest throughout the country. It is highly probable that meetings for the same purpose will speedily be held in very part of the kingdom. The Dissenters are strong in their num-bers, wealth, and influence, but they are still stronger in the justice of venture to treat with lightness their well founded demands for referss; but the Dissenters have a preuliar claim upon the favourable attention and zelous assistance of the present Ministers, as they have always weating hope, that when the Administers, as they have always weating hope, that when the Administers, as they have always with hope, that when the Administers on which they stand. The time for action is, hencever, at length arrived, the rotten borough system and slavery have fullen: no greater question now slands, or ought to stand, in the way of the settlement of those important ones which have been brought before the public during the last week. It would be foolish and pusillanimous in the Dissenters for a single session longer to delay their petitions. Let the members of other denominations here, and of all sects elsewhere, at once act as the Independents and Baptists of Leeds; let them now tell Government what they want, so as to a flord no possible excuse for as the independence and Deprises of Lecus; let them now ten Government what they want, so as to afford no possible excuse for ignorance; let them be respectful, but firm and comprehensive, in their petitions; and we cannot doubt that ultimately, nay. in a very short time, they will be perfectly successful. Strange indeed would it be for reson and justice, in these days, long to contend in vain for their right [?

A CIRCULAR has been sent to all the parishes of England and Wales, by Lord ALTHORP's direction, calling upon the Churchwardens to furnish detailed information as to the amount of rent and tithe. Lord ALTHORP means, therefore, we suppose, to resume next Session his measure for commut-ing tithes, which could not be carried last Session of Parlia-ment. The best part of the joke is, that in this "Circular" his Lordship informs the Churchwardens to whom it is ad-dressed, that they need not be particular as to the correct-ness of the returns!

WHO would have thought that the place of an Official Assignee was worth 2,000l, and upwards? Such, however, is the fact, for by a printed return made to an order of the House of Commons, on the motion of Lord SANDON, by the signe was worth 2,000 and upwards? Such, however, is the fact, for by a printed return made to an order of the House of Commons, on the motion of Lord SANDOX, by the present sixteen official assignees (some three or four of them having been previously removed by death or other causes), it appears that they have in the space of little more than four-teen months received, in the whole, the sum of 20,0001 and upwards for their allowances (about 1,2901, each, on an average), and that one of them has actually been allowed for himself more than 2,0001. A pretty startling fact this for gentlemen who complained of not being paid enough for their allowance. One of them has almost as much as the Judges of the Court of Review, and much more than any Commis-sioner of the Court, and the average of each is 1,2901. Large is this allowance appears to be, we find no fault with it, as it is the mode of remuneration pointed out by the Act of Parliament, and by the order of the Court of Review. The official assignees are entiled to receive a per centage in pro-portion to their receipts and payments. They must, however, have no balances in hand; and an express order of the Court of Review directs that as soon as ever their receipts amount to 1001., it is be paid into the Bank of England. But Lord SANDOW most unkindly inquired what sums of money those gentlemen held in their hands on the 16th day of July last inder estates which had paid no dividend. Now since, as we have before said, the mode of remuneration is expressly pointed out by the Act of Parliament for the official assignees, we know not upon what plea or under what pretext they should be suffered to retain a single penny in hand for more than one day; against their keeping more than 1001, there is the order of the Court, before referred to—how well obeyed the present return can testify. Trustees in a Court of Equity are not suffered to retain balances in hand, and why permit official assignces to have any? We do not say they use the money— God forbid—but they may use name of the Accountant-General, the proper hand to hold all money, but somewhere else unprofitable and making no interest at all, or interest for some one else than the creditors under the fiat. If these assignees were to die, a Chancery suit must be instituted in every case to collect these ba-lances out of the hands of their personal representatives, over whom no jurisdiction in bankruptcy has any control; if they become insolvent, a penalty would fall on their surcties, who at the time of being bound for them could never have contemplated their having permission to retain such a large sum of money. We could go on, but our space forbids us; and, in conclusion, we beg that the legal profes-sion at large, the mercantile world, the Commissioners of the Court of Bankruptcy, the Judges of the Court of Review, and the Lord Chancellor, will give the Return we have been writing about an attentive perusal.

We confess, if Mr. SADLER is safe at Leeds, as we are sure he must be, we should very much rejoice in Mr. HETHERINGTON'S return —it would be a glorious triumph for the PBOILS, and would lead the way for putting our HOUSE OF COMMONS upon the right Radical footing.

The following pieces of intelligence from two of the Shrin

The following pieces of interingence from two of the Shrines of Freedom most frequently referred to by the admirers of Black, White, and Whitey-brown liberty, are somewhat amusing :--Warrs.-Washington and Philadelphia Papers have been received up to the 15th ult. We find them complaining that in Georgia nulli-fication had again shown its cloven foot, inasmuch as Mr. Cooren, of Putman, on the Clerk of the House of Representatives reading "Att the theory of the state o Putmai, on the Cierk of the House of Representatives reading "At an Annual Session, &c., in the year of our Lord, &c., and of the sovereignity and independence of the United States, &c.," moved to strike out the word "sovereignty." This word was in the usual form. "Mr. Coopen's motion," says the Journalist, " was put down by an overwhelming majority, but had supporters enough to show that the nullifiers are determined that the United States shall not be sovereign; that each State is to stand sovereign and supreme upon her own basis. This motion, and the support that it received, show clearly the spirit that the nullifiers have brought into the Legislature, and that the utmost vigilance and the most determined patri are required to keep down its turbulent and disorganising efforts.

BLACK .- Port-au- Prince, HAITI, October 4th, 1833 .- The sessions of the Chambre des Representans of HAITI terminated on the 9th ult. The most remarkable feature in the session has been the expulsion of two members of the Chambre des Representans (named HEBARD DEUNELLE and DAVID St. PREUE) for systematically opposing the measures of the executive, and more especially for persisting in demanding a statement of the public expenditure.

WHITEY DROWN. - Captain CREETN, of the ship Jeune Ernest, just arrived at Havre from Charleston, has addressed a letter to a French Paper, one paragraph in which may be of use to Captains of vessels trading to the southern ports of the Union :- "On my arrival at Charleston," says Captain CERETIN. " a free man of colour, whom I had taken on board as a seaman at Bordeaux, was arrested by the police. My applications to the authorities for his release were to no purpose. The American law forbids free peuple of colour from entering the southern states, and this law is as rigorously enforced with respect to foreign as to native ships; the seaman was therefore detained in prison at my expense up to the time of our departure. The motive of these severe precautions against emigrant free blacks I he motive of these severe preconditions applied the summary and avour to is to be found in the fear of the planters that they may endeavour to excite dissatisfaction and disturbance amongst the slaves."

The Corporation Commissioners opened their inquiry at Hull on the 4th inst., when the Town Clek read a protest of the Corporation the 4h mat, when the lown-cleic read a protestol the Corporation against the legality of the Commission, but at the same time stating that it was not the wish of the Corporation to prevent any of their officers from giving such information as might be required.—During the investigation a curious discovery was made of the sources whence the Government derive " their intelligence and advice." The Town-Clerk, during his examination, observed that the questions were put to him from a written paper, to which the Commissioners constantly referred. He remonstrated against this course, and a discussion ensued, which ended in his eliciting the fact that the questions had been sent down to the Commissioners from London, having been prepared and arranged by Mr. ACLAND, now a prisoner in Bury or Ipswich Gaol (we forget at the moment which), for a libel.

As a gratifying proof of the wisdom of the measures and the accuracy of the statements put forth and persisted in by the TRIBE or Fortune, we beg merely to mention, that since our last number we have to record the following results of the happiness, prosperity. and tranquillity of the country, under the influence of the healin measure which has disjointed all society, overthrown all established institutions, and destroyed the comfort and prosperity of the coun-try :- Ten o'clock, Sunday, a firebrand was found stuck into a barr belonging to Mr. GUNINGE, of Apperton, near Eastbourne. A barn and sixty coombe of barley belonging to F. HARE, Esq. of Stanhoe, were consumed the Sunday before.—Saturday week, a barley rick belonging to Mr. Cor, of Sedgfield, was burned; and on the same oright three stacks, containing 100 loads, belonging to Mr. Szernxos, of South Creak, were entirely destroyed.—Saturday, at seven o'clock, a farm was fired at Wanstone, near Cliffe, and a fodder stack of 30 tons consumed, the rest being saved by the exertions of a party of soldiers from Dover .- At Haddon, the farm of Mr. Rowles was set fire to, and a large stack destroyed .- At March, 100 coombs of wheat and a large range of stabling, waggons, plougha, and harness belonging to Mr. VAWSER, were consumed, as were the farm and belonging to Mr. v Awssen, were consumed, as were the term and stock of Mr. C. Boon, of Walpole.—The stack-yard of Mr. HARD STAFF, of Great Hale, was set fire to on Friday week ; 80 quarters of barley and two stacks of straw and stubble were destroyed.-The whole of the farm house, stacks, and all out-buildings of Mr. Tirress Wiscientron were burned down on Saturday, as were those of his neighbour, WILLIAM BARE, Esq., a Magistrate of the district.—On Sunday week, 100 tons of hay, forming a stack in the yard of Lord CARBERT, at Laxton, in Northamptonehire, was burnt; and on Mon-daythe stack yard of Mr. LITTLE, of Eye, was set fire to, when bean-atacks, hay, and stubble to the value of 1001. were destroyed. Holes had been previously cut in the engine pipes. On Monday, the rick-yard of the Rev. Mr. Mourram, of Blunham, Bedfordshire, was set fire to, and partly consumed.—Numerous other acts of incendi-arism have been committed during the same period.—As subjoined to these, we think the following paragraphs very suitable as evidence to our national prosperity :-

Such is the want of employment in the agricultural districts that twelve yeomen, the sons of small farmers, have arrived here this from the north of Devon, to enter as landsmen on board the Thunderer, Capt. WISE. They are to be sent round to Portsmouth to join that ship. There have been several instances lately of ploughmen turning Jack Tars.—Devonport Telegraph. That the first newswork, which has for some years been progressively increasing, has, since last January, very considerably fallen off. The deficit is, as we have heard, 250,0001., of which, within the last week, there has been a falling off of 31,0001. So much for "Agitate, agitate, agitate !"—Dublin Packet.

THEATRICALS.

There is a proverb which says that when two men ride one horse, one, must ride behind. Never was there a better illustration of this "saw" than the present aspect of the Winter Theatres; they are both mounted upon one horse-if such we may venture to call Mr. and Covent Garden, who rides first, is constantly full Drury Lane, who works second, is as constantly empty. Nothing gan more clearly prove that, instead of a third playbouse being wanted, or that there is not sufficient accommodation in the way of theatres for the metropolitan public, there are already too many, and much more room than there is company. This result, it may be remembered, we foretold, and moreover advised the adventurous lessee to satisfy himself with one of his bargains, and by muzzling one of his giants, give the other room to stretch his legs and open his arms. This result also exhibits the justice of the outery about the legitimate drama which has been raised by the advocates of the smaller theatres, where they might act it whenever they chose, only that they know better than to do any such silly thing.—At Drury Lane all the best plays have been brought forward, with all the existing strength of the company, with Mr. MACREADY at its head, aided by those Thespiar representatives of Church and State, Messrs. PRIEST and KING the grace and pathos of Mrs. SLOMAN, and half a hundred other stars, at whose brightness the public gazed, through the medium of newspaper criticisms, till their eyes ached—and cui bono? That che of SHAKSPEARE-(bless their classical hearts !)-Jane Shore a debre of SHARNFARE-(lotest their classical neards.)—Jake Shore, may dance barefoot from Bishopsgate Church to Hoxton, and not a human being care one penny about her; Shylock may go crying "old close," "closuy," all round Houndsditch, and Romeo stand gazing for a couple of hours at the green and silver cherrytrees in old CAPPY's garden at Verona, without exciting the smallest sensation. These legitimate dramas and this splendid acting are however, confided to the boards of Drury Lane, for the edification of the two hundred and seventy-five renters, who, as they all go in free, cannot expect anything better, while at Covent Garden. " the full, true, and particular account of that most inhuman and of Gustavis the Third, King of Sweden, with the exact representa tion not only of the pistol with which he was assassinated, but of the ball at which he was shot," fills boxes, pit, and gallery, with crowds of wondering and delighted company.

What are the pathos of Juliet, the witchery of Macheth, the mad-ness of Hunlet, or the eloquence of Portia, to two dozen and four cutglass cl.andeliers, with six pounds and a quarter of wax candles stuck in them ! Legitimate dramas, indeed ! Here we have a legitimate monarch murdered on the stage six nights in the week, for edification of a well liberalised audience; the effect of the exhibition being considerably heightened by the consummate folly of a herd of amateur visitors of the Coulisses (who really ought to know better), who, for the sake of exercising the privileges which hiding the face at a public masquerade are said to confer, make their appear ance nightly before the audience-exposing themselves equally with those ladies and gentlemen to the temper of the pit and the orange-peels of the gallery.

After the experiment of the present sesson, we suppose, therefore we shall hear no more of the "legitimate drama;" for it is now proved that the spectacle succeeds so well that it pays on one side way for all the failures on the other. As for the " patent moveable company," under the present system, the two houses incur but one expense-no matter where they are - now at the "Lane," now at the "Garden." Cooper and BARTLEY-two of the most effective actors on the stage, and two of the most gentlemanly men off of it-are exactly like Mungo in the farce-" COOPER here-BABTLEY there."

till, like blacky himself, we have very little doubt both of them wish "To their hearts they were dead."

As the leaders do, so must the followers. We are told that at certain periods of the evening it is quite curious to see the actors and actresses running, hurry skurry, skimble skamble, from one house to the other-the Drury Lane Romeo rushing up Martlet-court in his black puffs and bugles, to act Sir Christopher Curry at Covent Garden, bumping himself full butt at the corner against the Covent Garden Jaffier, scudding before the breeze to play Dr. Pan-gloss at Drury Lane; and then the ladies, slips-slops, spangles and sandals, rain or blow, hail or snow, away they go, Peruvian Vir-gins, with suns at their bosome, at full tilt, to become Witches on Macbeth's Heath, well secured from the weather by pattens and plaid cloaks; while a dozen dear old men, who have just doffed their robes as Venetian Senators in the "Lane," may be seen, with corked eyebrows and flaxen wigs, in white stockings, with pink bows in their shoes, picking their way like peacocks through the pud-dles, to act Z-phyrs at the "Garden"—their dutiful little grand children carrying their wings in hat-boxes, ready for fittin n as they get off their great-coats.

How far this system of economy will work well, as regards the health of the "labourers," it is impossible to say, especially when the sharp weather sets in. It is quite wonderful that so few delays take place, and that so little interruption occurs to the perform whelming expenses of our over built and over-encumbered playbouses may be curtailed by the experiment, the public have no r to complain : for as far as they are concerned the liberality of right present lessee is most particular.

Adelphi is flourishing as usual, and the incessent work of the favourites there is apparently borne with surprising ease and gaiety. A new serious drama, full of smuggling and murdering, has just been produced, which, in the hands of Mrs. YATES, is sufficiently exciting for the most ardent admirer of the terrific. This sombre and really affecting piece is, however, agreeably relieved by an episode from Faublas, ably dramatised in the first place, and most skilfully translated in the second. If the Revolte du Serail should succeed it, and succeed too, as it has done in Paris, we must look out next season for a supply of theatrical materials from sources upon which the boldest English play-wright has never yet ventured to draw.

The Olympic attracts its full share of company. Madame VES-TRIS has recovered all her best looks and her best spirits, and LISTON, at the head of a very effective corps, its as fresh as ever; nor ought we to omit noticing the Victoria Theatre, which has now alegitimate tilte to its name, having been bonoured by the presence of the Princess from whose kindness it originally assumed it. The report that Asborr and Ecsarrow vere about to relinquish it has been authoritatively contradicted; they have a lease of it for thirty years. We look forward with all the anxiety of earlier days to the pro-duction of the Pantomines, which, after all, are the most effective portion of the the antomines, which, after all, are the most effective proverbial for its success in that particular, we trust it will not exhibit any falling-off in the display of the present season. The Olumpic attracts its full share of company. Madame Ves-

We have to record the death of Prince NICHOLAS ESTERHAZY de GALAYTA (Ather of the Austria Ambasado), which took place on the 25th ult., in his 68th year. Prince ESTERHARY was taken ill while at Vienna, and iravelled to Italy for the benefit of his health. His Highness appeared to benefit by the excursion, but soon after his arrival at Como he became worse, and died there. The late Prince at one period one of the richest subjects in Europe, was descended from an illustrious Hungarian family. BuoLos d'Estonos obtained in the year 1421 the Lordship of Galantha, in Presburg, by Ordinan-ces of the Emperor Stotsmund. Francis, his great-grandson, was the common ancestor of the ESTERHAZY family. Count PAUL Pala ine of Hungary, was created by the Emperor LEOPOLD I., Dec. 7, 1687, Prince of the Empire ; and by diploma of July 11, 1783, this dignity was extended to the descendants of his grandson NICHOLAS honours of the late Prince NIGHOLLS where those of Prince d'Ester. Count d'EDELSTETTEN, Hereditary Prince of FORCHTENSTEIN, Privy Councillor to his IMPERIAL MAJESTY, Field-Marshal and Colonel Chief of the 32d Regiment of Hungarian Infantry, Captain of the Garde Royale. We are sorry to inform our readers that Newbrook House, the residence of Lord CLANMORE, in this county, was totally consumed by fire on Monday night last. Various rumours are afloat as to the origin of this unfortunate circumstance, but we have, as yet, n iculars to which we might attach credit. We have heard that Mr. PARSONS PERSEE, Lord CLANMORRIS'S brother-in-law, had a narrow scape, having just got outside the door when the roof fell in.-May stitution.

The newspapers say that Lord FITZWILLIAM has written to a friend, declaring his intention to leave no stone unturned for the purpo obtaining a repeal of the present Corn Laws ; and an Anti-Corn-Law Association exists in London, to which several Members of Parlia-ment belong, the object of which is to procure as unanimous an expression of feeling against the Corn Laws, as they possibly can. Under these circumstances, the farmers should not be idle: it is their duty, if they value their own welfare, to take active measures for rouring in petitions to the legislature, as soon as it as embles, for the purpose of asserting their right to protection, and claiming it at the hands of their representatives.

DESTRUCTION OF THE PENNY TRUMPETER WEATHERCOCK AND BROOM -The Carlisle Patriot informs us that the novel weathercock which we described a few weeks since as having been placed u house of Mr. SLEE, in Castlegate, Penrith, was on the night of Thurs-day se'nnight utterly demolished " by some evil-disposed person or persons." The weathercock, it will be remembered, was a repre-sentation of Lord Влоυанам, dressed in his official costume, riding upon a broom stick, blowing a penny trumpet, with a bag of know-ledge-being a copy of the design in the frontispiece of the "Penny Magazine," neatly cut out in wood. Thus to insinuate that the Nobe and Learned Lord had aught of the weathercock in his character, had galled his Lordship's partisans in that neighbourhood rather keenly, and we are informed that some of them are suspected to have caused ffered for the demolition of the apparatus. A reward of 51, has been offer such information as may lead to the detection of the offenders.

The Duke de GRAMMONT, father of the Duke de GUICHE and of the Countess of TANKERVILLE, subsequently to his return to France instituted law proceedings for the purpose of establishing his claim to the property of the citadel of Blaye and its dependencies. This cause has at length, we hear, been tried by the Cour Royale of Bordeaux, and it was decreed that, at the expiration of three years, the State shall pay to the Duke an annuity of 106,000 francs, or reinstate him in the possession of the citadel. The French Government has appealed against this decree in the Court of Cassation.

appealed against this decree in the Court of Cassation. HETKERINGTON, the man by whom one of the most mischlevous of the cheap Papers was established, has been strongly urged by the London Radicals to go down to Huddersfield and offer himself as a candidate for that place. "How," he adds, "would the Lordlings and Right Honourables stare at a working man among them with bis apron on ?" Things apparently as improbable as this have actually come to pass. In the Kelso Mail we find an account of a Meeting of the Presby-tery at Jedburgh, on the subject of the notorious Hobkirk job, which has created such a sensation in Scotland. Our readers may recollect that a petion was laid before the House of Commons last Session by Sir. W. ELLIOT, complaining of the Crown presentation to the living of Hobkirk having been obtained by Captain ELLION, Secretary to the Admiralty, on political grounds-to reward a political supporter, a Mr. Ewen, who. for his services during the Roxburghshire eleca wr. bwerk, who, ior his services during the Koxburghshire elec-tion, had a promise from Captain ELLIOT of the fast Crown living that should become vacant in that county. Captain ELLIOT and his friends denied the allegation, and asserted that the call in favour of Mr. Ewex would be "most harmonious?" that five of the heritors would sign it, and that the other two would also accede. But how would sign it, and that the other two would also accede. But how stands the result? Sir W. ELLIOT, Mr. ELLIOT of Harwood, and Mr. Scorr of Wauchope, the three principal heritors, and representing three-fourths of the property of the parish, together with fifty-right heads of families, have petitioned the local Presbytery against Mr. Kwzw's induction, or the taking any step towards his settlement. Surely the Government cannot thrust this person into the parish after such a demonstration of feeling on the part of the parishioners.

The bishop of CALCUTTA has recently presided at a large Meeting at Calcutta, at which it was determined to introduce infant school's on an extensive scale in that Presidency. The bishop of CALCUTTA has recently presided at a large Meeting at Calcutta, at which it was determined to introduce infant school's meeting of the Churchwardens and parishioners of Wakfeid, held in the vestry of the parish church there, in Angues last, for the pur-pose of laying a church rate, an a mendment was moved and carried, that the meeting should adjourn till " that day vis months." That resolution was tantamount to a refusal of the rate, and the Church-wardens, acting under the advice of the highest legal authorities of the land, assembled on Saturday last, and of their own authority, and without asking the concurrence of the parishioners, laid a rate of reflectually as if it had been laid in the ordinary way. The example thus set by the spirited churchwardens who may be similarly circum-stanced. In addition to the See of Limerick, the See of Waterford also imitation by all churchwardens who may be similarly circum-stanced. In addition to the See of Limeicik the See of Waterford also becomes extinct under the Act passed last Session. The Bishop of Wareproper died previous to the passing of the Act, but the Bishopric has since lain dormant, and will not be revixed. At the Vestry Mreting of St. Mary Magdalen, Bermondsey, holden on Tuesday, the show of hands for the afternoon lecture-ship was declared in favour of the Rev. JOHN DAYES, Chaplain of the Episcopal Floating Church. The numbers were—Rev. Johns Dayrus, S; Rev. MAR COOPER, 25; Rev. W. DEGG, 23; Rev. — TAYLOR, 2; Rev. — GATFIN, Rev. T. S. STEWARG, and Rev. C. DAYES, none. On which a further poll was demanded on the part of the other candi-dates, which will take place on Monday and Tuesday next. A very handsome communion service of plate was last week pre-sented to the partish of Melbury Abbas, Dorset, by the Rector, the Rev. W. F. Gaove.

WE congratulate the country upon the altered manner of Lord MELBOURNE, to the people who unconstitutionally and almost illegally, force themselves into his presence with their resolutions, and petitions, and addresses about the Assessed Taxes. Lord MELBOURNE is thereatly agentle-man; every turn of his thought, every feeling of his mind, is gentlemanly; and in the outset of these rude encroach-ments, his Lordship's natural suavity of temper, earlessness of consequences, and disilke of controversy, induced him to tolerate the impertinences of the incorporated opponents of the KING'S Government, of which he forms a most important component:part. This has worn off: his Lordship has found out that the civility is pretnece—the encroachment reality; and accordingly, we find the following account in the news-papers, of his reception of one of those silly, doltish, paro-chial committees, who want to be relieved from Taxation :--Thursday a deputation from the parish of St. George, Middle-sex, consisting of the Churchwardena, Mr. Gotz, a Commissioner of Taxes. Mr. T. Monans, and other gentlemen, waited upon Lord MELBOURS, at the Home Office, for the purpose of presenting to his Lordship a memorial addressed to His MAJESTY agreed to at a public meeting of the inhabitant householders, and numerously signed, praying for an entire repeal of the house and window taxes. Lord MELBOURS, having hasid, "Very well, gentlemen, I will lay it before the KISA." Mr. T. MONRIS wished to direct the attention of Lord MELBOURSE to the present situation of the Tower Hanlets, the inhabitants of which derived their chief support from the shipping trade, which flourished most in time of war, and had been gradually wasting away ever since the prace. As these taxes were levied to support the war, with a prohie of repeal at the removal of these taxes would only benefit the landlord. Mr. Moaras wished to convince his Lordship he was wrong in his inference; but it was so evident that Lord MELBOURE. Mr. Maaras wished to convince his Lordship he WE congratulate the country upon the altered manner of Kiso contained some very strong remarks upon the conduct of his Ministers. THE following extract from the report of the proceedings at the East India House, on Wednesday, is not bad, as an illustration of the present state of affairs :-"THE LATE ORDERS IN COUNCIL. "Sir C. Forness, in reference to the Orders in Council lately made public, asked it was really the fact that the Court had received from the Chinese Government any official document authorising the Government to establish a judicial court at Canton. It so, perhaps a copy of it might be provided for the use of the proprietors. The original ought to be deposited in the British Muscum as a great curjoity. He dishelieved that the Celestial Government and applied to a Whig Ministry on the subject, and the atternpt to establish auch acont would be against the laws of China, and be productive of the most damacennus consequences. "The Chairman referred to an edict dated in 1831, signed on behalf of the Chinese Government, It referred to the anticipated changes in the Company, and directed a notice to be issued to the might be prevented from going wrong. The document concluded with the words:- Oppose not-hasten, hasten? "State. The expressed himself strongly against the Indege dues to be paid on British vessels at Canton, has the Directors would remonstrate against them. "The Chairman said the Court of Directors were not responsible for the orders in Council-they had represented in strong terms their dissutification with the tonnage dues. "The Chairman said the. So much for that-Now let us look at another states-manther and apple the adverted. America ! First comes this :--" The sum paid, and to be paid, to the holders of Irish tobacco, entitled to compensation for what they held by the law which prohi-bited them from growing it in future, amounts to eight hundred thousand pounds !"-Cork Reporter. May we just take the liberty of superadding the following observations from the Evening Mail :--" Eight hundred thousand pounds' worth of tobacco has been de-stroyed within the last three months by Ilis Marsery's Whig Mi-listers-for this simple reason-because it was Irish-the produce of Irish skill, capital, and labour upon an Irish sol. "That is very good. "Oh it is excellent to have a giant's strength.

Itress skuit, capital, and labour upon an Irish stoil.
"That is very good. 'Oh I it is excellent to have a giant's stremth.'
"Weil, then, what is the upshot of this precious scheme ? So much Irish tobacco being consumed. is put out of consumption to make way for so much American produce, and to heneft the Excise.
"That is very good, too. Bet let us see what benefit has arisen to the excise.
"Not one additional sixpence has yet reached the lands of the collectors, and probably never will, as a consequence of this destruction of property. For we are gravely told by a Government authority that the whole bargain was only available to the purposes of the snugeler.
"How is the nation benefited by this strange proceeding?
"Whot, annihilated—as completely annihilated as if eight hundred thousand pounds of the snugeler.
"I how so the nation benefited consoling; a precious sample of the snugeler.

MR. EDITOR-Having observed that you have made some remarks, moreived not in the best spirit, upon the recent appointment of conceived not in the best spirit, upon the recent appointment of Dr. Huxr to a Prebendal Stall at Canterbury. I take the liberty of stating to you what I know of the individual against whom you have chosen to direct the shaft of your censure. It is true that he holds three pieces of preferment, but it is not the that any one of them is a valuable piece of preferment. I have reason to believe that for one Living of 6001, per annum he would willingly resign the three. With respect to his merits, I can safely aver, that there is not a respectable individual in the town of Bedford most opposed to him in politics, who will not admit that he has well earned by his services to the cause of religion the Stall now conferred upon him—who will not allow that he is an asproved, elevant scholar. allow that he is an approved, elegant scholar, a strictly orthodox divine, and has shown himself through a long series of years a zealous and useful parish Priest.

As an old sub-criber to your Paper, I venture to send you these remarks, which you will, of course, salopt or discard according to your 'humour.—I am, your humble Servarit, C. C. C. Dec. 19, 1833.

JOHN BULL

LONDON, DECEMBER 22.

THEIR MAJESTIES are in excellent health at Brighton, here, in spite of the boisterous weather, the Court remains.

THE truth is out—the nine sail of the line, of which we spoke last week, are fitting for service—and the English force in the Mediterranean are to rendezvous at Malta, where they are to be joined by a French fleet of equal force— What, again? more indignities? To be sure—the Army have had their turn, why should the Government not insult the Navy? — We may should the Government not insult the Navy? — We may should the Government not of the Vents'' in the East. It is quite clear, from what we see in the Times that

It is quite clear, from what we see in the Times, that It is quite clear, from what we see in the Times, that Government are prepared to enlist MEHEMET ALI, the Pacha of Egypt, against the SULTAN; that is to say, the rebel subject against our ally the GRAND SIGNOR—mercly because the latter is weak and unfortunate—the former, strong and successful. But, who weakened the SULTAN? —the Greek interference and the last " untoward event" at NAVARINO had a most decided influence in breaking down bis strength. The same palew which has had Lord PAL.

a Minister, whose foreign policy is justly to be stigmatized and recorded as being the curse of England's friends wherever he has interfered, and the dupe of French diplomacy wherever TALLEYRAND has condescended to and recorded as being the control of the dupe of French diplomacy wherever TALLEYRAND has condescended to over-reach him? Lord PALMERSTON'S conduct, we repeat, is calculated to make every ally of Great Britain shun and avoid our friendship as the forerunner of mischief and treachery. He professes to be the champion of liberal principles, and pays six millions of the Dutch Loan to Russia whilst engaged in putting down the insurrection in Poland. He makes the King of ENGLAND publicly profess neutrality in the Portu-guese struggle, and break his plighted faith by secretly aiding that party to which the Portuguese, as a nation, are opposed; and it is enough that any ally of Great Britain should be in distress and calamity to ensure her aid in com-pleting the work of her destruction. But, can Lord PALMERSTON induce Prince TALLEYRAND to go with him in his Eastern crusade? Is not LOUIS PHILIPPE aware that Prussia and Austria must and will make common war against Russia—and that France, to PHILIPPE aware that Prussia and Austria must and will make common war against Russia—and that France, to have any chance of equality in the approaching struggle, must appeal to the "discontented spirits of Europe," as Mr. CANNING called them? And what has LOUIS PHILIPPE to gain by such an appeal? His interest is to uphold the monarchical principle, and the first military successes of the Srench army would in all probability elevate the success-ful General into a FIRST CONSUL, while the new dynasty of the ORLEANS, having neither hereditary claims de-tived from ancient discent, nor military talent to dazzle the people, would at once be dismissed into a private station, or seek an asylum amongst the Whigs, who, according to their established principles, would avoid misfortune as they

their established principles, would avoid misfortune as they would a pestilence. We therefore suspect that Lord PALMERSTON will act Braggart—he will talk big, and insult Russia hy insolent and intemperate notes—receive, in return, insulting replies—and having degraded the majesty of the throne, and rendered England ridiculous in the eyes of Europe, be very glad to back out of his protocols—whilst Russia will, by Whig folly, steadily accomplish her designs, by the achievement of which the balance of power in Europe will be essentially altered, to the detriment and danger of the best interests of our unhappy country. unhappy country.

THE news from Spain is unequivocally favourable to Don CARLOS. Two battles have been fought, in which the Carlist CARLOS. Two battles have been fought, in which the Carlist troops have been victorious. It is, to be sure, somewhat comical to read in the private correspondence of the Standard of Friday, that "a bloody battle has taken place between a detachment of three hundred infantry and fifty Lancers, and the 5th battalion of the Navarrean Volunteers." Our ideas of battles have been so vastly enlarged by the achieve-ments of our DUKE in his glorious campaigns, that when we hear of a bloody battle fought between 330 men on one side, and about as many on the other, it is impossible not to feel disappointed, not at the brilliancy of the play, but at the pau-city of pieces. city of pieces. We do not alone calculate upon the two brilliant little actions

We do not alone calculate upon the two brilliant little actions in which the Carlists have triumphed as any great points in the great contest, but we do calculate upon the encreasing manifestation of the universal feeling which we know to exist, and we have no hesitation in saying, that it must be by foreign aid alone that the Queen of SPAIN will be able to subdue that feeling; it is admitted on all hands, that the moment the weather softens, and the spring advances, the peasantry will rise in one body in defence of their lawful King. KING.

THERE are reports in town of an action having been fought near Santarem between the King of PORTUGAL's army and that of the Pretender, in which Don MIGUEL was wounded. As we have already said, the whole history of the campaign has been one series of Stock Exchange fabrications—we pay no attention to rumours of this nature.

THE Military Commission, with the Postmaster-General THE Military Commission, with the Postmaster-General at its head, is proceeding with great zeal and activity. Our attention has been particularly called to a sale of Ordnance Stores, which has been going on during the last week; the extent of this sale has been great, and amongst the articles sold, we find, in company with hundreds of great coats and thousands of sacks, the following items:—I mop-head and handle, 5 earthern dishes, 1 coal-hole plate, 3 dust pans, I carving knife and fork, 1 bib cock, I coal scuttle, and 2 tin funnels. There occurs, however, something more re-many of the lots, particularly those of ironmongery, are markable in the affair than these small absurdifies; a vast many of the lots, particularly those of ironmongery, are composed of entirely new articles. The principle of buying with one hand and selling with another, is not so clearly comprehensible to ordinary minds as it probably is to the purchasers and venders themselves. It appears, however, that the Postunaster-General's Com-mittee, for destroying the Ordnance department altogether, are "taking evidence." Can anything upon earth be more Indicrous!--Whom have they examined?--We cannot an-swer that question so satisfactorily as we are enabled to answer another---Whom have they not examined? They have not examined the Duke of WELLINGTON, who presided over the department for eight years--they have not examined Sir HENRY HARDINGE, or SIR HERDERT TAYLOR, both of whom have filled important offices at that Board and in other military departments,--none of these are

TAYLOR, both of whom have filed important omces at that Board and in other military departments; --mone of these are called, because perhaps the truth would be inconvenient. Petulent and presumptions as the bearing of the Duke of RICHMOND has frequently been towards the illustrious friend of his father, and the patron and protector of his own youth, the public can easily imagine the awkward sense of insignificance which even an apostate may feel in the pre-sence of a superior mind-multing ignorant questions, the friend of his father, and the patron and protector of his own youth, the public can easily imagine the awkward sense of insignificance which ieven an apostate may feel in the pre-sence of a superior mind—putting ignorant questions, the inswers to which, if taken down, must record the folly of the inquisitor. Hardened as apostacy generally renders a man, there is yet a halting-place for shame, and the small-minded Duke will carefully avoid the rebuke which his conscience must tell him he would feel in the presence of the illustrious man, his earliest friend, his most valuable protector. The Duke of WELLINGTON will, therefore, not be examined. But Sir HENBERT TAYLOR—why should he not be ex-amined? He is conversant with the duies of the Horse Guards and the Ordnance. He was the Duke of YORK'S Military Secretary, then Surveyor-General of the Ordnance, then Adjutant-General of the Army, and now, honoured by the confidence of his SOVEREIGN. If he is examined, he can give useful evidence—if he is not examined, he can give useful evidence—if he is not examined, he can give useful evidence—if he is not examined, he can respectable in proportion as it was liberated from Ministerial influence. He can recollect what the system was in 1792, and the blighting effect of giving up the patronage of the Army to be jobbed for Ministerial purposes. He can contrast the state of the Army as trans-ferred to the Whigs, with the former period; and he can explain to the KING that the plea of economy is merely a pretext, the real object being the pression of the gatron-age, by transferring the greater portion of the duies of military departments into civil hands. One effect of the system will be the usurpation of the Army. We shall be told, that our objection to this consolidation is our dislike, or that of the army, to the abolition of sincare places : this line of argument has been already adopted by the Globe—but, we ask, is the office of Master-General of usoness; and the constitution of that Board by a Committee of the House of

Session, by which it clearly appears, that whilst all ciri officers have been nearly doubled in the amount of their salaries, the military service has remained stationary—and

Session, by which it clearly appears, the mate and city salaries, the military service has remained stationary—and is the same as it was a century ago. The Globe asks, whether it is intended, by these appeals to the Army and Navy, to make those professions dissatis-cient have been given since the Whigs came into office: but whilst we deny that there are sinceures in the Army, the removal of which the country desires, we ask of our coa-temporary in reply, have not 3,000 old pensioners been deluded out of their pensions since the Whigs came into office, to the utter run of those gallant but thoughtless men, who are now rendered miserable outcasts by a Whig measure of econony? Let us also ask, whether the practice to which we allude has not been put a stop to, in consequence of the animadversions of the Press? Is it not intended to deprive the old soldier of KLMAIN-HAM HOSPITAL, in Ireland, as a refuge for old age—and of the Hiberina School, for the orphan children of soldiers who have died in the service of their country? Has not the Press—and we are proud to know that we first began the attack—by calling public attention to the fact that, by a warrant of March, 1833, the soldier's pension was to be sizpence a-day after twenty-one years' service, if the requested bis discharge, instead of tempence a-day, as it stood by the warrant of IS30, caused the War Office so far to rescind or suspend that iniquitous warrant as to make it inoperairier upon all men enlisted previous to March, 1833. As a measure of economy, let the Duke of RICHMONS consolidate his friend and colleague's office of Paymaster of the Forces, and place it under the Secretary at War—let all unnecessary offices, civil or military, be abolished—let all unnecessary offices, civil or military, be abolishe we do, that the real meaning of all these innovations is to put the patronage of the Army and the Ordnance in the hands of Ministers, we call upon those who, by their past experience and present station. can arrest this mis-chievous plot, to do so, by explaining to our excellent MONARCH that the plea of economy is only a pretext.

THE Corporation of London have discovered that the vote by ballot is the most iniquitous system in the world, and, after having returned a Mr. GROUT. or GROTE. or some such person, as one of the Representatives of the City, merely because he pledged himself to vote through thick and thin for "election by ballot," they have abolished, almost unanimously, the horrid scheme in all the elections over which they have an immediate controul—" Really this is the perfection of absurdity."

is the perfection of abstraty." WE are extremely happy to congratulate our readers upon the re-erection or re-establishment of the clock at St. James's Palace—it has got promotion—it is now on the garret floor: Mr. BUXTON says, of course, because it will be always "a 'ticking." The real reason for its having been so exalted we take to be, because, in its former position it annoyed the ladies who have apartments in the Palace, and who did not like to have their "quarters" disturbed by the striking of the quarters on the bell; the noise too so constantly in their ears, affected them with a sort of "Tick doloureur." The appearance of the dial where it is, is much more imposing—the effect of the clock itself will be "striking," and when any man in the neighbourhood looks out of his vindow to see the hour, he will be sure to find it "high time" to get up.

In the mean time—we are not now speaking chronome-tricaly—the clock at the Horse Guards is rendered perfectly useless by the abstraction of the indexes: All thought we, as we vainly sorght to find out the hour, two more hands discharged—the Adjutant General and the Quarter-Master-General of the dial-plate are gone—little did we think what the history of that was. It seems that about six years ago, when Cupid was Secre-ture at Way at Ways and the secret secret at the secret secre

It seems that about six years ago, when Cupid was Secre-tary at War-at War indeed, with everybody in the depart-ment—he was one day too late for a division, because there was a difference between the true time and the Horse Guards' clock. The next day the man in charge of the clock was desired to wind up his accounts and refire: in vain he pro-tested—in vain produced all sorts of testimonials—out he went, and a most ingenious and highly accomplished watch-maker (known to Cupid most particularly by that cele-brated French watch, which is still looked upon by the now " lack-lustre eye of a lovely and never-to-be-mentioned individual) was sent for by the indignant Secretary to set the whole affair to rights. whole affair to rights.

whole affair to rights. Up the ladder skips the watch-maker, he examines the clock, declares for an entire Reform—for which he was quite prepared to bring in the bill. The old clock is removed, and a new one has taken its place, and MONSIEUR receives from the Board of Works—they say £600. After a few years things change. Cupid is no longer Se-cretary at War—he is succeeded in that office by a mercan-tile gentleman from the City—they are proverbially punctual, and regularly pull out their ponderous watches to compare them with the clocks on all the public buildings which they pass. One or two of these trials convinced Mr. ELLICE that the Horse Guards' clock went wrong. Again is MONSIEUR sent for—again goes up the ladder—again pro-nounces the clock. make another clock.

Before he did so, the artist appeals to the Board which Before he did so, the artist appears to the yrags, from the mercantile gentleman who orders, to know whether he is to put up the clock or not ?—Oh ! say the Board of Works, put up the clock, if you please, but look to the Secretary for remuneration; ;—and so, as we are told, the affair stands—that the clock does, everybody knows.

THE satisfaction of Lord PALMERSTON—the self-satis-faction—and who ever enjoyed that feeling so much as the respectable Cupid himself?—must be unquestionable and un-qualified when he finds how powerfully his policy has acted upon the free and happy kingdom of Belgium, under the dominion of the liberal LEOPOLD (the man with the "mens conscia recti.") Lest Cupid's torch—his rushlight—should be hidden under a bushel, and so smothered, we beg to call public notice to the numerous profs of the felicity which he has provided for his protegres; let them be read, and care-fully considered as proofs not only of Lord PALMER-TON's wisdom, but of the advantages derivable from the ad-vancement of the system generally; the cause of them is the separation of Belgium from Holland, and the poorty wretchedness, and misery which have fallen upon the people are the results of that admirable speculation, in support of THE satisfaction of Lord PALMERSTON-the self-satiswhich we leagued ourselves with revolutionized France, and now, by way of conclusion to the whole affair, refuse to remunerate the Dutch merchants for the losses sustained in equence of our memorable embargo. How long are such things to last?

WE think we have put up another Greyling. Is not Sir EORGE GREY-nephew to the head of the Tribe of For-me-going to the West Indies in some official capacity ?--for only active the set of the set o GEORGE GREY We only ask.

We only ask. We have always thought, and in Bull we have often said, that the preservation of the excellence of the English breeds of horses is of the first importance to this country. It has frequently been our misfortune to have had to notice the deterioration of almost every kind of English horse, except perhaps the racer-deterioration consequent from the ex-portation into foreign countries of such vast numbers of our best horses, particularly marces, and the importation into for foreign horses, not from Arabia or Barbary, which would do good, as it has done before, but from Flan-ders and Normandy—" Reform" horses we shall call them, because, like that measure itself, of, at once, spoliation and imposture, they are nominally cheap and good, but really dear and 'is beastly." We have had so often to speak of this deterioration, that it gives us heart-felt pleasure to see, even in any glimmering signs, a better and more patriotic spirit, patronage, encouragement, and conduct, upon a subject nationally of such great consequence, whether as regards peace or war. There was a time when the rank of an Englishman might peace or war.

nationally of such great consequence, whether as regares peace or war. There was a time when the rank of an Englishman might be guessed at, at least, from his saddle-horses, or those that drew his wife's, or his own carriage, or were in his stable. For some years past the observance of this criterion would have degraded a good many great men. But we hope this ideal standard of rank—which is but a humble following of the practical election of DARIUS to the throne of Persia— is in some degree again coming into vogue. There cannot be anything more mean or shabby in appearance, than a coronetted grandee, or his groom, or carriage, mounted upon, or drawn by, "poor rips" which a "Jarrey" would be ashamed to "tool." Such, for instance, as those "wretched and over-worked slaves" (which look as pitiable Lord BROUGHAM, in the Exchequer !) inhumanly yoked, in spite of "Emancipation"— "The black, the white, the fair, the brown"—

JOHN BULL: monly ponderous "Mountaineer," Lord Baron BUOUGHAM and VAUX, C., brother of Mr. JAMES BROUGHAM, his Lordship's ultra-montane godfather. It gives us particular pleasure that the first evidence we shall adduce in support of our argument, that exertions are beginning to be generally made to correct the degeneration that has taken place, and to prevent its occurrence for the future, is the conduct of His MAJESTY-whose magnificent carriage horses (two or three of them, we believe, are from the late stud of Mr. LONG WELLESLEY) have attracted the attention and admiration of all who have seen them. They are Gregs-but it is His MAJESTY's two-footed " tribe" of GREYs that are now so unpopular everywhere. The article is from the Morning Post, and is this:-" The HAMFTON COURT STUD.-Since last year there have been roomising this Miscetty intention to encrease, by degrees, the number of mares considerably." In Scotland, that munificent and exemplary young no bleman, the Duke of BUCCLEUCH, has been liberally endea-vouring to promote encouragement and improvement in the breeding of horses; and Lord LUCH on dother Noblemen have contributed their support to his Grace's efforts. The rich pastures and parks of Ireland, long famous for race-horses, and park of ruleand, long famous for race-horses, and parks of Ireland, long famous for mace-horses, and parks of Ireland, long famous for mace-horses, and park that Sister Island also ; and " In reaving and training the steed."

" In rearing and training the steed."

few parts of the world in affording facilities to the breeder, "In rearing and training the steed." A similar emulation actuates that Sister Island also; and superinduced, as it there is, by an almost certainty that capital thus expended will return an encreased interest, con-siderable sums are being so employed. Shropshire, always remarkable for the goodness and beauty of its horses, and whence, next to Yorkshire, and perhaps Leicestershire, Lincolnshire, and Cumberland, the best horses come, is "well up" in this " county contest." Lord FORESTER, ever active in behalf of anything that can conduce to the advancement of equity—which is now well known to have " gone to grass," since Lord BROUGHAM wit took a flying leap" into the Court of Chancery—is using all his influence and advice, and bestowing his patronage for the improvement of the breed in the neighbourhood of his hunt. The following is from the Salopian Journal:----" Harapha was sold last werk under the hammer to Mr. WHT caver, of Moseley Court, at 330 quiteas. This county is indebted to Lord FORESTER, ever (attive in whole), to hunters, the property of farmers, &c.; his Lordship's object, in all probability, being to induce the Shrophire farmers to atteed to the breeding and rearing of first rate bunters, for which the county in as long been celebrated. The price obtained for Harapha (Ured in the county) may oprate as a further inducement, and particularly as there is a great demand for instrate harces for the origin as well as the house markets. Harapha is the third descent only from Niss, bred by the late Mr. Proor, of Chetwynd Pack, and Indel in 1723" Whatever has in any way reference to the Duke of WEL-LINGTON, and the more so, if to his Grace at Waterloo, must be interesting to every one whose heart is English. We make, therefore, no apology for inserting, from The Gardener's Magazine, the next paragraph; indeed, for its appearance here we have a second reason, which we shall subjoin :-------------------------

The charger Magazine, the next paragraph ; indeed, for its appearance here we have a second reason, which we shall subjoin — "The charger which the Duke rode at Waterloo is kept in a pad-dock at Strathfieldays, adjoining a small flower parden, from which the late Duchess used frequently to feed him with bread from her town hands. During the battle the Duke was on this horse fifteen hours without once dismonating, and it has never been ridden since that day. It is a small chesnut horse, slightly made, and, asit was quite a colt at the time of the battle, it is wonderful how its strench was equal to the excessive fatigue it must have undergone. There is a proverb in some parts of England that 'a chesnut horse is al-ways a good one,' and that it will always do more work than any horse of the same size of any other colour; and this horse seems to furnish an illustration of the truth." Part of this passage might supply a motive, or motives, for an idea entertained (we happen to know) by the late Licutenant-Colonel GRESWOLDE, of the Enniskillen Dra-goons, one of the most promising officers of his standing, and perhaps the best regimental disciplinarian of his day; and who,asMajor to the gallant and distinguished corps we have named, rendered it one of the best, if not the best, horsed (and appointed) of all the cavalry regiments in the service—a high merit, of which his premature and lamented death so son after the attained the Liquenant-Colonely, deprived him of enjoying the credit and gratification, as commanding offieer, exceptior a very short time. When stationed with the Ennis-killens at Ipswich, he observed in that part of the county the agiilty and speed with which the clean-legged, hardy, and enduring cart-horses (heir superiority we have noticed in Bull upon former occasions) are chesnuts; the proverbial hardiness of which colour in mapy parts of England, the above extract mentions, and was affirmed by the indefa-tigableness of which dolour in mapy parts of England, he above extract mentions, and was ally-glorious, renowned, and immortal battle-field of Wa-terioo. Whether Colonel GRESWOLDE had any such instigation we do not know; but, independently of the asserted pro-verbial hardiness of the chesnut colour (in all breeds), and the acknowledged hardiness of this Suffolk breed, whenever they have been used (which are chesnuts), we are sure the whole Army would consider "the Wellington or Waterloo Chesnuts" an honourable and complimentary, as well as useful regimential adnomen, for which "the Queen's Bays," "the Societ Greys," &c., form a precedent. We throw out this hint as being, at the present time, well deserving of the consideration of those whom the economy of the Army more properly concerns—because, since the amatory old Premier, Lord GREY, has entrusted the Foreign Department to Cupid, "nov'd and fetter'd in the links of Love," and to whom the business of the interior, the duties of the Home Office, are so much more granme and congenial, we should not in the least be surprised if the Noble Viscount, with his bow, and quiver, and arrows all lying carelessly around him, should awake from his pleasures and his slumbers— " in silent grove.—in lonely bower,— spoil our climax, or corollary, were we to be silent about dogs—which animals, we find (from our brave comrade, the Post, the variety of whose "news" exceeds that of any of its contemporaries), are experiencing all the care and atten-tion that they used, and all that the most skilful, ardent, and tion that they used, and all that the most skilful, ardent, and keen sportsmen can desire:— "Mr. Lawe Fox's greybounds, at Bramham-park, in Yorkshire, are said to be as valuable, and to be bred and trained with as much care and expense, as those of his uncle, the late Lord Rivers." So-biped or quadruped, it is just the same—all greys cost a great deal! Mr. LANE FOX's dogs are, we trust, neither so numerous nor so ravenous as the grey dogs the country finds "so valuable, and trains with so much care and expense." If they are, Bramham-park and all Mr. FOX's large estates in Yorkshire will be clean gone before Christmas eve, ucar as it is.

expense." If they are, Bramham-park and all Mr. Fox's large estates in Yorkshire will be clean gone before Christmas eve, uear as it is. Absorbed in matters of sport, we had almost forgotten a matter of seriousness, to a nation like ourselres, "exquisite in their eating." We have seen in the country papers, that that remarkably good breed of sheep, the "Ducal Norfolks," are becoming scarce. These sheep are the best in England. They are very fine in fleece; their flesh is rich, savoury, and piquant. Get a true Norfolk "saddle" from your butcher: the superiority of the mutton will surprise you; if previously unacquainted with it; if an epieure, it will put you into cestacies. Their appearance being somewat nearly as grand and graceful as deer, they are most ornamental to parks, and best adapted for the purposes of the painter; and they are said to be "fence-breakers," on account of their length of leg. This is not so: a good shepherd and dog will "keep" them in any moderate-sized enclosure. The objection, besides being an exaggerated one, is strange for these times, when Ministers of State don't keep within bounds, how can you expect sheep? Such is our opinion; but, upon this point, we defer, and refer to Viscount MELBOURNER, whose family name, at the moment, does not occur to us. THE Marquess of Sutgo proceeds immediately to Jamaica

THE Marquess of SLIGO proceeds immediately to Jamaica as Governor. The Earl of MUGRAVE, on his return to England, will succeed the Duke of DEVONSHIRE as Lord Chamberlain of the Household.

WE regret to state that the number of incendiary fires-is daily encreasing, and that the crime is becoming of fre-quent occurrence in the neighbourhood of the metropolis. Besides a vast number of couflagrations in different parts of the kingdom, farms at Staines, Willesdeu, and even Cam-berwell, have been, during the last week, fired, and in a great measure destroyed.

The following brief outline of Bishop WARBURTON's argument in fayour of Church Establishments cannot be too widely circulated at a period when the enemies of the Church are making every exertion to effect its separation from the State.

This great writer contends that no form of Government is perfect in the great with contents that the cause, I. Civil laws can have no further efficacythan to restrain men from open transgression.

2. The influence of civil laws cannot in all cases be extended thus far. It cannot, when the severe prohibition of one irregularity threatens the bringing on a greater; and this will always be the case when the irregularity is owing to the violence of the sensual passions.

3. The very attention of civil laws to their principal object occasions a further inefficacy in their operations. To understand this, we must consider that the care of the state is for the whole under which individuals are considered but in the second place, as accessories only to the whole; the consequence of which is, that, for the sake of the body's welfare, some individuals are often left neglected. Now the care of religion is for particulars, and a whole has but a second place in its concern. 4. There was a further inefficacy in human laws. The legislator, in inquiring into the mutual duties of citizens, arising from their equality of condition found those duties to be of two kinds. The first he catilled the duties of perfect obligation, because civil laws could readily and commodiously, and were of necessity required to enforce their observance. The other he called the duties of imperfect obligation; not that morality doth not as strongly exact them, but because civil laws could not conveniently provide for the observance of them. Of this latter kind are charity, hospitality, gratitude, love 5. The two great sanctions of law and civil regiment are reward and punishment. These are generally called the two hinges on which Government turns. Yet, from the original con-struction and nature of civil society, it neither had nor could enforce the sanction of reward. The reason is, because no society can ever find a fund sufficiently for that purpose, without raising it on the people as a tax, to pay it back to them as a reward. But as it is evident that the joint sanctions of rewards and purishment are but just sufficient to secure the tolerable observance of right, it follows that, as Belgian only can supply the sanction of rewards, which society wants, and hath not, religion is absolutely necessary to civil Government.

More Novelties .- The Lord Chancellon's Secretary has addressed a letter to the Trustees of various Public Charities, in which arcsscu a retter to the ratioses of various rubic charters in while he states his Lordship's desire to be informed whether they will be disposed to further, so far as lies in their power, a plan for the con-solidation of the funds of all Public Charities throughout the kingdom, and the appropriation of them to the purpose of "national educa-tion." We have not space to comment at present upon this extration." We have not space to comment at present upon this extra-ordinary scheme; and if we had space we should scarcely venture to write upon it till we should have partly subdued the indignation which its first announcement excites. A little while ago we should at once have rejected the story as too ludicrous a hoax, or too wicked a calumny. But we have learned by lamentable experience that nothing is so prodigiously profigate, or so portentiously absurd, but that it may be recommended by the Reform Ministers, and sanc-tioned by the Reformed Parliament.—Morning Post.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.—The draft is printed of a Bill intended to be brought under the consideration of Parliament in the forthto be brought under the consideration of Parliament in the forth-coming Session, and which, if passed into a law, will make it impe-rative that every kind of corn, grain, pulee, seed, meal, and flour, shall be sold by weight throughout the United Kingdom, and the weight so employed shall be the pound avoirdupoles, or any multi-tude of a pound avoirdupoles, ascretianed and established by the Act passed in the 50th year of George IV., intituled, "An Act for ascer-taining and establishing uniformity of weights and measures." The draft of the Bill also contains provisions, that corn returns are to be given of the sale of all corn exceeding a certain weight, to be decided upon in committee, and inspectors may call for the production of such memorandum, which must be produced under a penalty;

Inquisitions may be held by Magistrates at Quarter Sessions, for ascertaining rents payable in grain or malt, &c. in England, the oath of twelve substantial freeholders, and the sheriff-depute of each county may summon juries for the same object in Scotland.

The Worcester Paper says :-- " Good wheat has not been lower for many years than it is at this moment. Last Saturday's report of sales in our market gives the average at 48s, 94d, per quarter. That such a price as this cannot co-exist with the present rate of rents, is so obvious, that it is useless to enter into arguments to prove the fact. The interests of landlord and tenant are bound up together: if the after is too highly rented, the former will ultimately feel the effects in the deterioration of his property. 'Live and let live' is as politic a maxim as it is an honest one. It is a little singular that at a moment when corn is at such low prices, some public writers are employing their pens to show the baneful influence of the Corn Laws Admitting that the free admission of foreign grain would make corn cheaper, are we sure that that would be a benefit? The effect might be to increase the sale of our manufactures among foreigners considerably. But it is worth considering, whether the country would really be benefited by diminishing the income of our own landed oprietors--which of course is the inevitable consequence of any ure which lowers the price of grain. What class sustains th retail trade of the country? Chiefly the land owners and land occupiers. They are the tradesman's best customers; and we believe no one will deny that the home trade is more profitable to the manufacturer than the foreign. If, then, the means of the tradesman's and manufacturer's best customers are lessened, it follows that they cannot lay so much out with them. Will the increased foreign trade counterbalance this defalcation? Will the workmen be as well employed as before ? Will the profits resulting from foreign trade be spent as beneficially to the country, as the profits obtained from land, the expenditure of which gives activity to trade in every corner of the kingdom ?—Besides the consideration of profit and loss, there is another important question, is it desirable to depress the landed interest in the political scale?—for that must be another result of freely admitting foreign grain.

A WORTHY EXAMPLE.-Soon after the Duke of NEWCASTLE had completed his purchase of the Hafod Estate, he was informed the small pox was raging amongst the poor, and that no medical centle man resided within seven miles of his mansion. The Duke immediately requested a very respectible medical gentlemans to Aberyst-with to attend the sick and suffering poor twice a week at the expense of his Grace, and directed that every poor person who wished it, should be vaccinated, and that advice should be given. and proper medicines dispensed from the same source, and that this assistance should by no means be confined to his Grace's tenants, but extended to all the indigent poor indiscriminately; and he also ordered two rooms to be fitted up contiguous to Halod, for the con-venience of the medical gentleman and his patients. The same Nobleman has also directed his Steward to employ all the poor labourers in draining, and other improvements, at from 15d. to 18d. per diem.

The Brighton Gazette says-The civil war is carried on in Spain with savage ferocity. One of the QUEEN's Generals, CASTAGNOS, has issued a Proclamation which it is impossible to read without horror. These are some of its provisions :-Any individual who may conceal ammunition, accoutrements, money, or other effects, belonging to insurgents, shall be shot. The house of any person who may have fired upon the QUEEN'S troops shall be burnt down. If it was not the owner of the house that fired, the house and all it contains shall be confiscated, and the celinquent, if arrested shall be shot. Every peasant taken in arms, and forming one of an assemblage of less than bo men, at a quarter of a league from the Royal road, shall be considered a brigand, and shot. • • • Every village that shall, with out opposition, suffer the insurgents to make recruits from it, shall be punished with a heavy contribution. All the property of ab-sentees shall be confiscated. • • • All women who by word or deed shall favour the rebellion shall be condemned to close confinement for from two months to two years in the hospitals or houses of correction, according to the degree of their offences.

Well may the Bourdeaux journalist call this a " brutal" proclamation

As for Portugal, we recommend the following to the attention o the admirers of Don PEDRO: "Don PEDRO's Government has inspired greater alarm than that of the 'Usurper;' many of the Constitutionthemselves have declared against it; and about 20,000 people have fled from the capital to the provinces to protect then from its violence. In the mean time venality and robbery are alleged to be generally practised by the agents of authority, from the highest to the lowest. The volunteers are worn out and dispirited, and the regular military force seems unable to achieve any thing."-Times Saturday.

And this "graphic picture," as the Standard properly terms it, is to be found in a Pedroite journal! Had it appeared in the Post, or the Albion, or John Bull, or the Standard itself, we should have been told, of course, that it was calumny : as it is, we hope the admirers of the Liberal Government of Portugal will be satisfied of its truth.

At the dinner given to Dr. LUSHINGTON by his constituents, the electors of the Tower Hamlets, on the 11th inst., the Learned Gen-tleman in the course of his speech on returning thanks observed "that he was attached to the present Ministers because he had fought side by side with them in the cause of reform, retrenchment, civil and religious liberty, and in the cause of humanity and freedom. was attached to them because they intended to go further because they intended to effect a reform in the legal jurisprudence because they were determined to take measures to extinguish Tithes -because they were determined to effect a complete radical reform in the Church."

It appears that a lady in the State of Connecticut has been guilty of the atrocious crimes of teaching and boarding persons of colour from other States. For the first of these offences she was tried by a How other States. For the first of these offences she was near y a jury of her countrymen, and after an absence of twenty or thirty minutes was found guilty! The Judge's charge is not the least remarkable feature in this transaction. His Honour declares that slaves are only recognised by the State, " as the basis of representa-tion and taxation." He further inquires, Are the free people of colour citizene? and the further inquires and the country of the count colour citizens ? and he answers, " is the basis of representa-colour citizens ? and he answers, " It is the opinion of this court that they are not."

DUTIFUL WIDOW.-The clerk of a large parish not five miles from Bridgenorth, Salop, perceiving a female crossing the church yard in a widow's garb, with a watering can and a bundle, had the curiosity to follow here where the same follow her, and he discovered her to be Mrs. ..., whose husband had not long been interred. The following conversion took place:-"Ah! Mrs., what are you going to do with your watering can ?" "A hi Mas. —, what are you going to do with your watering can?" "Why, Mr. P —, I have begged a few hay-seeds, which I have in my bundle, and am going to sow them upon my poor husband's "The elerk replied: "You have no occasion to do that, as the grass isons graw upon busband, who now lies here, made me promise husband's Gauge busband, who now lies here, made me promise hum of his dealth bed I would agreer marry again till the grass have now. an his death bed I would never marry again till the grass had grown

A melancholy accident occurrd a few days ago at Maeelemystin, Montgomeryshire, the sporting scat of Lord Viscount CLIVE. His Lordship and a party of friends had been out shooting, and the gamekreper laid down his loaded gun on the table; a person touched the percussion lock, and the contents entered the groin of the gardener. Lord CLIVE, with his characteristic humanity and kindness, mounted a horse and rode off for a surgeon; but the man died before assistance could be procured.

The Corsican Committee for raising a monument to the memory of Narouzon in Ajaccio, his native city, have requested Marshal the Duke de Tazviso, Grand Chancellor of the Legion of Honour, to form another Committee at Paris, and take upon himself the office of President. The Marshal immediately laid the application before the KING, who not only authorised the formation of this Central Com-mittee, but further sanctioned its object by desiring that his name might be placed at the head of the subscribers.—Frenck Paper.

Birdol, Dec. 17th, 1833. Sir.-We have heard much of the baborence of patronaux enter-tained by the present Ministers; much of their love of liberty; of their desire to meliorate the law, so that it may more surely project innocence and punish guilt. We have heard too of their regard for the interest of trade. The Orders in Council which were passed on the 30 to form a judgment of the sincerity of all these high professions. Will the interests of the trade to China be advanced by the impo-sition of a duty of 2s, the ton upon all expents and imports, a duty which will amount to more than three-quarters per cent. upon the optial of the merchant, and produce a sum of about 36.0001. year: Is the China trade, commenced under circumstances of neuril membarrassment, in the late of a stock of from sity to minety influence of pounds of exin the handsof the East India Com-musulude? It is allowed the Board of Trade calculated the eventual of the merchant, and produce a sum of about 36.0001. year: Is the China trade, commenced under circumstances of musulude? It is allowed the swame to the Board of Trade calculated the evented of the superimedent's Establishment at from 27,0001. to 30,0001, and the tax imposed will raise 58.0001. The merchane of our goods. It is a charge of unexpected max-nitude, for the President of the Board of Trade calculated the evenne of the Superimedent's Establishment at from 27,001. to 30,0001, and the tax imposed will raise 58.0001. The merchan 39,0001. We have been told that Lord Narran is to be the Chief Superin-Profist of merchants, to be employed? In the payment of het sharies and in maintaing the table of officers to he appointed by the should become the olject of Ministerial Iavour. He is a narval is the during that is alregenual, we are to be the Chief Superin-rethent at Canton. It is very

in-law of Lord GRev, who is a Bishop there. Be its origin what it real liberty. Four months have elapsed since the passing of the China Bill, and the fruit of four months' deliberation upon the best mode of currying that measure into effect is to be seen in these Orders in Council, which give an enormous increase to the patronage of the Ministers, impose a new, heavy, and very unexpected burthen upon the China trade, deprive all British subjects at Canton of personal security, by the institution of an arbitrary Court, and yet do not give to the Superintendents the power of making in all future time such regulations for the Government of British subjects at Canton as circumstances may require. The only power which is benef-cial, which it is necessary that they should posses, is practically not given to them. It is not given to therm, not from any weak unwil-lingness to bestow discretionary authority, but because those who framed the Orders in Council, blundering Bacuotas the super-cargoes have exercised their power, that they have utterly failed in effecting the object they had in view, that of giving to the Superin-cargoes have exercised their power, that they have utterly failed in effecting the object they had in view, that of giving to the Superi-cargoes. STOCK EXCHANCE.—SATURDAY EVENING. The Consol Market until yesterday exhibited the greatest apathy; but in consequence of an idea prevailing that the Bank has advanced to two leading capitalists a sum of two millions on Stock, there was marked improvement, and this amoring the Market opened with great animation: the closing price for the Account was S94 4. Bank Stock is very firm at 211 212. Long Annutices have been at 16 15-16 17 this afternoon. India Bonds and Exchequer Bills are both heavy; the former are 2022 and the latter 41 43. The Northern Bonds have been higher, in consequence of the ad-banish 73: Spanish Stock is firm at 231 4, and Brazilian is 661 67. TO THE FEMALES OF GREAT BRITAIN. I am well aware that I am about to venture upon very delicate ground, and to subject myself, perhaps, to your displeasure. We can bear even severe animadversions upon our conduct, and upon can bear even severe animadversions upon our conduct, and upon our opinions individually, and express no resentment towards the offender; but he who dares to attack what fashion advocates must prepare himself for obloquy, contempt, and reproach. But the bane and antiducte are both before me. If fashion be the low most to be apprehended, the good sense, the compassionate feelings, and the native delicacy of my countrywomen are a strong hold, in the which, whilst I can hope to shelter myself. I shall enter the lists not only without fear, but undaunted and confident.

The aim of the present intrusion upon you is to draw your attention to the subject of Fancy Fairs, the inexpediency and the impro-priety of which it shall be my humble but earnest endeavour to nourtray.

That these fairs have been originally undertaken and patronized from the best (eelings and with the purest intentions can admit of no doubt; but to intend good, and to effect it, are widely different. It is the province of a virtuous heart to prompt schemes of benevolence, and in so doing it is apt to regard only the object in view: it is the and in so doing it is apt to regard only the object in view it is the privilege of the understanding to mature and correct such schemes by a comprehensive survey of their tendency and effects on the whole. Had this innovation been of rare occurrence it would, per-haps have been unadvisable to notice it; for opposition is often the very existence of a novel practice. To such an extent, however, have these fairs been carried, that they have become a serious evil. Not only empirical without the survey of the other or the survey of the series of Not only our principal cities, but our towns, and even our villagee have to boast of them, and almost any charitable purpose is deemed a sufficient excuse for promoting them. True it is that sums of money have been raised in this manner which could not probably have been raised by any other, and which have exceeded all expect-ation; but to assist one class of unfortunate beings, has not another, equally deserving, been injured? There are numbers of people whose entire subsistence depends upon the sale of such articles as are here entire subsistence depends upon the sale of such articles as are here gratuitously supplied and sold; numbers whose constant labour is yet barely sufficient to furnish them with the necessaries of life; num-bers who, hiding their poverty from the public eye, endeavour with a laudable spirit of independence, to eat the bread alone of their own earning; uumbers also, unsuspected by many with whom they mix or once have known, who, having moved in respectable circles, and "looked on better days," have the resource alone left them of employing the elegancies of former cultivated taste either to procure daily sustenance or to preserve a station in society which birth and education entitle them to hold, but which their slender means render precarious and often untenable, all of whom are neces means render precarious and often untenable, all of whom are neces-sarily affected in a very considerable degree by an intrusion in a path which was hitherto considered exclusively their own; and thus unob-trusive and just labours, a delicate and commendable exertion of ta-lent, have been deprived of the fruit of days of toil and nights of watch-ful invention. The tear has indeed been wiped from the eye of one sufferer, but rivers of tears from others have been the consequence. Smiles have been awakened in one quarter, but the slow and deso-lating anguish of menaced want has wrung the heart of many who "to beg are ashamed," though willing and often proud to labour. Charity hath vaunted herself in the immense sums which she has thus acquired, while poverty has usurped the place of comfort in many a humble home, and rendered cheerless the hearth which otherwise might have glowed bright and invigorating.

Surely there is no charity equal to that which encourages industry, and especially in those classes where pecuniary assistance cannot be tendered without violence to the feelings, and where, in conse-quence, many of the more sterling virtues find a secure asylum. No persons, in fact, are more valuable in a community than these; un-heard, unnoticed, and often diaregarded, their very silence is their interview. praise, and the secret working of their worth solidity to the Constiin your benevolence, and without restricting the course of your neard, unnoticed, and oiten disregarded, their very silence is their praise, and the secret working of their worth solidity to the Consti-tution. Ah ! slight them not, wherever they may be found ; be wise in your benevolence, and without restricting the course of your charity, or relaxing in your exercitons, let its waters flow in their proper channels, that all may be benefited and enriched. True good-ness of heart, like the necessity which calls it forth, is inventive : invention the subject consideration, and you will readily discover means to reconcile opposing duite and desires, and to avoid the dancer of your best deeds being evil epoken of. But it these fance fairs are injurious to others, they are not less so on the "olden manners," it is perhaps not too much to say that the integrand propriety. If this be the case, and an honeat appeal to each heart is sufficient to prove the truth of the assertion, then is the prac-tion the "olden manners," it is perinessions are so generally on the right side, that they ought never to be disregarded, and in most cases may be most securely adopted. Whatever also may be seen frequently is seen without interest, and olten, without respect. Station and birth have lost much of their value in the eyes of them ultitude abstract-edly; the proper separation of the superior, from the inferior grades of life, has, however, preserved are verence for their persons indivi-distinction also will soon ccase to exist, and the assumed dealers in wrea. At he ends of charity, however, in reality the propelling cause, of an approving conscience and a generous gratification of having phedotheness of the event on the less creatin treading in the relation of the event in the best situation to judge; but is it consistent with the correct feelings of wain environed by those who having dome good? The enquiry can be answered only by those who having the correct the dives of novely, or of pleasure, best and indivision plead themselves in the best situation to judge; but is it consistent with

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, DECEMBER 29. THEIR MAJESTIES are in good health at Brighton. The season of Christmas was not observed by any particular galeties at the Pavilion, where the parties have been confined to the residents and the Royal suite.

fined to the residents and the Royal suite. THE foreign news of the week is, in fact, no news at all. Spain and Portugal remain as per last; and, until M. de TALLEYRAND gets to work with Lord PALMERSTON, the Haris of Russia and Turkey will continue in statu quo. The spirit of the KING OF THE FRENCH is incompre-hensibly childish, and the heroes of the glorious three days are at so low a discount that Old LAPAYETTE got but 39 votes out of 299, for President of the Chamber. The distress in Belgium is great and grievous—the unpopularity of the Deputy KING, universal—while Holland, firm to her purpose and inflexible in her independence, has completed all her financial engagements for the year in the most satisfactory manner. Meanwhile active preparations are making for war in our dock-yards, and while everything wears a face of ap-proaching hostility, every means are enforced to reduce the strength and elliciency of our army! So, we end the old year—what another may produce no man can guess, and God only knows. year-what anoth GOD only knows.

For some weeks past, we have expressed our high opinion of the powerful writing of the Morning Post, in the discus-sion of legal questions, and we have availed ourselves and our readers of its ability, upon scveral occasions of the kind. This talent, which we have observed with so much plea-sure, it appears, as might naturally have been expected, some other persons have fell; and the able legal disserta-tions of the Post have been—not replied to (that would have been difficult)—but "blustered at," with the usual in-gredients of "sweltering renom" and bamboozling, in equal quantities, by a writer in the Times, whose innocent and harmless, though "rough-shod" language has been ani-pargraph of the Times exactly as it is quoted in the Standard:— "It is said that the violent abuse"—[Oh! think of the Times

"It is said that the violent abuse"-[Oh! think of the Times talking of 'violent abuse !']-" of the LORD CHANCELLOR, which Taiking of 'violent abuse';)— of the Lond CHANCELLOR, which appears in a morning print, proceeds from the pens of two briefless barristers, who, negro-fashion, write regularly under the influence of the scourge, administered by the practised hand of a veteran whipper in. Instead, however, of a surgeon to watch the stripes, and see how much whip the patient scribblers can bear, an eminent law authority superintends the operation, to prescibe the precise limit between moral and legal malice. The result is what might be expected from such a quartette—impotent rage, and pointiess elander, covering their wretched atterers with scorn and contempt, while he whom they assail, safe in the pre-eminent excellence of his

minder, covering their vertical utters with seort and cancery—expectially one short and rather monsyltalic, but scharacter, and in dat universal estem which shares follows and beam more than the formation of the motion of the

Of the conduct of the individual, now Lord BROUGHAM, during the whole of his management of "the QUEEN's case," we will not speak. Personal bias—pre-expressed opinions might be supposed to influence our judgment, of the merits of her principal adviser, general as well as legal ; because, from the beginning to the end, we took so decided and so strong a part upon that question—a part which we have since had the gratification of seeing ultimately approved by all people, of all parties, whose approval is worth our consideration. But—the entire kingdom, beguiled for the moment, was, unnecessarily, thrown into a primary stage of convulsion : Queen CAROLINE fell. the dregs of the conduct of that contumelious and contumacious, though weak and erring woman, were submitted to the most common gaze; and her life was the sacrifice of the utter exhibition of her cha-racter—forced upon those who otherwise would have spared Of the conduct of the individual, now Lord BROUGHAN

the Royal Family, is now "Diroctinal and 'AUL, and Lord High Chancellor of England! We will pass over his repeated abuse of, we believe, all the Royal Family, from GFORGE the Third, and all the other deceased members of the Blood Royal, to the youngest male descendant, of full age, now living—one very illustri-ous personage, the Duke of SUSSEX, alone excepted. We will pass over that shopkeeper characteristic detraction from the merit of superiors, the sure sign of natural littleness of mind, the almost constant attendant of lowness of origin ; we will pass over his interested abuse of Lord ELDON, in the House of Commons, in reviews, in pamphlets, in newspapers— lis abuse of (the late) Lord GIFFORD—his abuse of Lord LYNDHURST—in short, of every one who personally, pro-fessionally, or politically, and politichly, stood in the way of his ambition. We will pass over another shopkeeper attri-bute, equally distinctive of a mean disposition—his unbounded and unfounded praise of himself in his Parliamentary speeches, in pamphlets of or upon those speeches, in reviews reviewing and unfounded praise of himself in his Parliamentary speeches, in pamphlets of or upon those speeches, in reviews reviewing those pamphlets, and in papers again reviewing those reviews; we will pass over his intricate, and, as it has proved, success-ful system of self-puffing; we will pass over his support of the CANNIG Administration, Mr. CANNIG being (still) opposed to almost every measure Mr. BROUGHAM had advocated; we will pass over his extraordinary want of judgment, displayed, as counsel for the defendant, in the case of THORDIKE v. HERVEY, in the Common Pleas, before the late Chief Justice, now Lord WYNFORD—in which trial the eloquence of Serjeant (now Baron) VAUGHAN rose as superior and triumphant to the oratory of Mr. (now Lord) BROUGHAM, as the legal skill of Serjeants VAUGHAM and WILDE surpassed and overcame the un-lawyer-like and unhandsome indiscretion of the defence soon (now Mr. Justice ALDERSON)—want of judgment that havyer-like and unmandsome indiscretion of the defence adopted by Mr.BROUGHAM (now Chancellor) and Mr.A.DER-son (now Mr. Justice ALDERSON)—want of judgment that "aggravated" the damages (against their client, the de-fendant) which they were employed and fee'd to "mitigate!" We will pass over the famous "Seven Hours' Speech," that ''wal of his "Mountaineer". Lordship's monstrous sleep on the north road—one being the longest speech, the other the longest sleep, of human nature upon record. We will pass over that's Speech" (about law reform), though much tempted not to do so, by a reference to our files of the Morning Post, where we find its poor grammar, false logic, bad law, its spleen, contradictions, repetitions, ignorance, and tautology, cut up, root and branch, in the number of that Journal for the 21st February, 1825, [Did that " proceed from the pensof two briefless barristers," &c.?] In aword, we will pass over all, or nearly all, he said or did before that extraordi-mary legislative and judicial epoch when, all at once, and to the wonderment of the spectators, he was changed into Chancellor, as it were in a pantomime, and by the wand of harlequin; and even then we shall have enough to do, and

Chancellor, as it were in a panformine, and by the wand of harlequin; and even then we shall have enough to do, and more than we have room for. It is Lordship's bigb-born mild amenity of manner, his calm patrician polish of address on the Woolsack and in Chancery—especially one short and rather monosylla¹ic, but very sweet and nice, panegyric paid by him, in the Honse of Lords, to the first Counsel in his Court—are so well known that there is, fortuneatoring, conserving address care of the or-as "cap" (even without the outs) is an untoward word in application to "blunderings,"-we will say another jewel in his law cornert. Then, there is that Court of all Courts, the New Bank-Then, there is that Court of all Courts, the New Bank-ruptcy Court-created by his Lordship to relieve himself from a very considerable portion of his labours; --his Lord-ship taking care at the same time that his safary remains ship taking care at the same time that his satary remains, unreduced, and that his pension is encreased, while the duties of his office, which entitle him to this (unreduced) satary and this (encreased) pension, are diminished. Of this Court we will quote the correct description and appropriate com-mendation of the Albion :--

Some of the officers of the Bankrupt Court lately waited upon Lord BROUGHAM, to represent that the amount of business there is o small as not to furnish sufficient to defruy the expenses he establishment. The Noble Lord's remark, in reply to this of the estublishment. of the estationsminent. I the Noble Lord's remark, in reply to this statement was laconic and gentlemanly—' It is owing to all those damned attorneys!'—' No, my Lord,' observed the Deputation. "it is not owing to the attorneys, but to the merchant for doing what they themselves would willingly do for nothing, that they rather prefer a deed of composition, however unsatisfactory or de-fective, to making the debtor a bankrupt; and the consequence is that the Judges are not supplied with business enough to occupy their time.' Then, quoth the CHANCELLOR, 'they shall go the circuit, and assist the Commissioners of the Insolvent Court in their vocircuit. cation.'-The new Court seems to mark well !"

make to the "Law Offices of the Crown." Contrast the selection of the Law Officers of the Crown, under the Duke of WELLINGTON'S Administration, and under that of "Lord BROUGHAM"-for, as Lord BROUGHAM got pos-session of the Seals and Woolsack by force and violence, and in spite of Lord GREY, Lord GREY of course has been let to say little about the legal appointments under his own Minis-try. Sir JAMES SCARLETT and Sir EDWARD SUGDEN, beyond all doubt the first and most successful practising Counsel of the day, one in the King's Bench, the other in Chancery, were respectively the Attorney and Solicitor General, under the Government of the Duke of WELLING-TON ("the soldier"). Sir THOMAS DENMAN, who com-menced his career as Attorney-General by the failure of his prosecution of Mr. COBBETT, and who was said to be twitted in the middle ot that career by so snall a person as Lord JOHN RUSSELL, about the Russian-Belgic Loan job, as being "too poor a lawyer to give a good opinion, and too weak a debater to defend a bad one," and who, with eccen-tric regard to consistency, concluded his career as he had commenced it—with a failure—the complete destruction (oddly enough, by Sir JAMES SCARLETT), the shattering to atoms, of his, Sir THOMAS DENMAN'S, the Attorney-General's prosecution of the Bristol Magistrates—he and Sir WIL-LIAM HORNE, who, as Law Officer of the Crown, has; certainly, never been a "busybody".—were the first chosen Law Officers of Lord BROUGHAM (the lawyer) t But this is not all, upon part of this part of Lord. chosen Law Officers of Lord BROUGHAM (the lawyer) ! But this is not all, upon part of this part of Lord BROUGHAM'S "good character." Sir THOMAS DEX-MAN, who apostrophized the Royal Female Client, whose innocence, dearest innocence, whose sexual innocence he was retained and paid to assist and defend-he who addressed his own client, so accused—he who addressed her—"GO! AND SIN NO MORE!" He is now the great Long Cause Instance imocence, derest innocence, whose sexual innocence he was retained and paid to assist and defend—he who addressed his own client, so accused—he who addressed her—" 60! AND SIN NO MORE !!" He is now the great LOAD CHEF JUSTICE, "Who has but lately come to Court, and knows Physic, and magie, and a world of stare !!" —appointed by Lord BROUGHAM, who had again and again, previously and publicly. fervently and voluntarily declared that, in the event of the deccase of the then Lord Chief Justice, the late Lord TENTERDEN, one man (Sir JAMFS SCARLETT), of all the practising Barristers of the King's Bench, would, by the unanimous concurrence of the whole English Bar, be deemed the most fit person to pre-side over that Court. So said he, who is now Lord Chancellor BROUGHAM. It was true and just; yet having said it—having said it in the face of the office by himself, and, according to his own showing, so con-sidered (of all the practising Barristers of the Court) by the whole profession ; he overlooks Sir JAMES SCARLETT, and appoints another practising Barrister of the Court, Sir THOMAS DENMAN, whom nobody ever said was fit at all whom nobody ever even dreamt of as the successor of Lord TENTERDEN, and whose appointment, as soon as it was rumoured possible, was greeted by the Times with—what we think " the unkindest cut of all?—dreadful forebodings of the mischiefs and miscrise to ensue from having an "GNORANT JUDGE" at the head of the law—the Times kept silence as to the head of equily! When we say that this appointment is held to be an injury to the profession and the country, we but we will not say that it was the indigence of any bit of pique towards one acknowledged to be, incompa-rably and unlimitedly, Lord BROUGHAM's master in legal knowledge. Neither do we believe one single syllable of the somewhat facctions story, prevalent at the time in the Courts, that—as in the Chancellor's own Court-" Full in is sey, his stored stores!" —he was determined that the Lord Chief Justice should have a simitar daily enjoym

pected ?--Sooner "Seek roses in December, ice in June !" Let it not be supposed that Tories are blind to legal acquirements in Whigs, and in particular in the late Queen's counsel. Who denies the extensive and sound legal learn-ing of the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas-Sir NicHolds TINDAL? He was one of her Majesty's Counsel.

December 250 denies the legal talent (except when benighted in the entan-glements of the Russian-Belgic Loan affair) of Dr. LUSH-INGTON? He was another of the late Queen's lawyers. And, in this article, we have spoken in praise of the legal tact of Serjeant WILDE, another, again, of her MAJESTY'S Counsel. Who denied the legal ability of Sir SANUEL ROMILLY? The late QUEEN employed him too, we believe. Ministerial adherents have said, that if the judicial blun-derings we have only glanced at. had been made by Tories (which is not likely), instead of Whigs, that the Papers which now expose these errors, would have extenuated and pal-liated them; and, we will add, the papers that now gloss over these " errors in judgment," would have exaggerated them. What then? This signifies nothing. Legal mis-takes on the part of a Judge, are judicial blunders, whether exposed by the Post, the Guardian, the Standard, and the Albion, or sheltered by the Times, the Chronicle, the Convier, and the Globe—or vice versā.

dexposed by the Post, the Guardian, the Standard, and the Albion, or sheltered by the Times, the Chronicle, the Courier, and the Globe—or vice versá. In conclusion—we beg our able colleague, the Standard (in reference to a remark towards the end of its article), to look at the admirable and exemplary manner in which Lord LYNDHURST is conducting the Sittings in the Exchequer, as well as the Common Law Sittings there— being in fact, to use the odious cant of the day, emphali-cally a "working" Judge :--to remember, that even Lord GREY never thought Lord BROUGHAM fit to be Chancellor, but intended him only for his Attorney-General;—that Lord BROUGHAM himself, conscious, as from his innate modesty no doubt he is, of his unfitness for the Chancellorship, is con-templating the separation of the legislative, from the judi-cial duties of the office, and his own relinquishment of the latter;—also, that le will observe the facts, merely narrated some portion of his remarks,' proceeded from the remains of a feeling, which, upon inspection of the files of his own paper, he will see from the City Articles in the Nos. for 3d and the of Sept. 1830, were then very strong in his mind. We write, as we hope to be taken, in good part, knowing how firksome and difficult we ourselves found it, so far to forget the circumstances of the fatal measure, as to regulate our zeal, and subside into discretion, even when further opposition was unavailable. opposition was unavailable.

We find, to our extreme surprise, the following paragraph in Wednesday's Standard: — "At the end of the present month the Marquess CAMDEX, as Teller of the Exchemer, through his Deputy, Fraxets Gone, Exq. pays over to the public service the emoluments of his lucrative office for the present year, atter deducting the expenses of his clerks, Sc. The Noble Marquess's noble conduct has no more to do with Mr.

CREEVER and his motion than it has with the Pope. On the 12th of February, 1817, Lord CASTLEECAGE announced to the House of Commons that the Marquess had resigned all the employments and profits of his Tellership, retaining only the regulated salary of 2,5001.. and that he had only waited the meeting of Parliament to make this known, inasmuch as he felt that there were vested rights in the office, and he did not know what effect his surrender of those rights might have upon other persons in similar situations. For this noble sectifice the thanks of Parliament were voted to the Marquess and by the abandonment of the profits of an office bestowed upon him in consideration of the eminent services of his Lordship's father, the country has received at his Lordship's hands a sum very nearly amounting to 200,0007.

We beg call the attention of our readers to a letter in another column, on the subject of what are called "FAKCY Fains." The indelicacy of young ladies exposing them-selves to the public gave for money, paid at the doors of a public room, thus putting themselves on a level with the commonest exhibitors at a theatre, or a still less intellectual glaring impropriety; but that, as it merely concerns them-elves, and their fathers and mothers who permit them to be thus tricked out for the amusement of a moch, and allow them for the trumpery which they exhibit, is quite a secondary consideration when compared with the serious injury which the neighbourhood of such Tom-fooleries. A sthe case stands, it is as much matter of oppression as of indelicacy. "Charity vanueth not itself"-Benevice loves privacy—the truly pious "Do good by stealth, and blush to find it fame." How different from the tawdry array of dressed-up ladies, aping the shopkeeper, whose interests they are destroying, thus runing an industrious class of persons under a morbid sort of sentimentality, which, after all, resolves itself into this :--that the younger part of the performers like the fun and excitement of the exhibition, and the older ones prefer buying their pennyworth of gauze and their shilling's-worth of buying their pennyworth of gauge and their shilling's-worth of spangles, and making it into something that will sell for a guinea at a bazaar, to subscribing half a sovereign in cash to the charity for which they affect to be so deeply interested.

ADMIRAL SARTORIUS and Sir JOHN MILLEY DOYLE have settled their dispute anicably. The Admiral having declared to Sir JOHN MILLEY DOYLE that he intended no personal affront to him in his arrest at Vigo, the General has, in his turn, expressed his regret at having written the letter which he sent to him in reference to that transaction.

 THE Archbishop of DUBLIN has either placed himself, or has been placed by others, in a most extraordinary position. We certainly had established in our minds a pretty strong opinion of the peculiar merits and qualifications of Dr. WHATELY before the event to which it becomes our duty to call the attention of our readers, had occurred; but we had not permitted ourselves to expect anything quite so outrageous and unjustifiable as the conduct which is attributed to—Heaven save the mark—His GRACE !!!
 We extract the account of the circumstances which occurred from the Dublin Evening Mail!—
 "Doctor Dorue, under the alphabetical disguise of J. K. L., was the first professing Christian who in our day publicly lauded, as a meritorious deed the sacrifucious destruction of the saced of the calous prest who wrested the Holy Scriptures from the Very dath graap of an expiring inner—who deprived the departing soil of its relance, its consolation, and its hope; and who with his own handa, and reckless of all consequences, committed with contumery, the Revealed Word to the flames ?—A mitre at the least.
 "Decirous not to trust ourselves even with the narration of the facts as they have been communicated to us, and authenticated by documents, we prefer laying the following correspondence before our readers.
 "The first is a letter from Mr. JAMES WAKER, a resident in the neighbourhood of Shinrone, where the circumstance stated occurred; and in adressed to his Grace the Archbishop of DUBLIN, and is as follows :—

sill the deference due to the ecclesiastical rank and station, as well as to the political position and influence of the distinguished personage, to whom it is addressed. Mr. WALKER, the writer, with a humility perhaps overstrained, but we understand from his habits and man-ners, by no means affected or assumed, describes himself as a 'plain farmer', but the fact is, he is a person of considerable annual pro-perty, realized by his own industry, and with the best possible cha-racter, and he has an habitual distinction to obtrusively thrusuing himself beyond that grade in society in which he commenced his honest and respectable career in life. "'P.S.-He should not send double letters' UNRECESARITY to one on in Parliament." "The whole double postage was one shilling and fourpence I We really cannot bring ourselvers to believe that this Dr. WHATELY can have made himself so pre-eminently absurd as to have written this most ungentlemanly, unpastor-like, and impertinent letter. The idea of the Archbishop of DUBLIN insultingly writing to a correspondent who has addressed him upon a most important topic connected with the religion of the country, and, without alluding to the sub-ject matter of his communication, telling him that he should have "igter a reference to some one known to the person he writes to."-What !--an honest, independent, pious, loyal country gentleman, whose indignation is roused by the blas-phemous proceedings of a desperate Papist, and who reports to the highest episcopal authority in the land the infamy which he has seen committed, in a letter dated from his own house-give a reference-to whom ?--for what ?--to-some great personage, one of Dr. WHATELY's equals !-But to think that this exalted Prelate should, in addition to this insult, which he offers to a man who, if it were not for the power of the Protestat Church, would be Dr. WHATELY's superior in every respect, as he is at present in all, except one, permit the ghost of one slilling and fourpence to rise up in judgment against his correspondent! Did his Grace the Most Reverend Archbishop expect that the letter should' be post-loaid? If the thing is true, it is absolutely disgusting. We cannot yet believe it, and we still hope to see a direct contradiction of the story under his Grace's hand, which, if his Grace gives a respectable reference to somebody who knows him, we shall be inclined to believe, and, believing, rejoice at. THEATRICALS.

It is impossible for us to shut our eyes to the total difference in the appearance of the present Christmas from that of any other Christmas within our memory. It is true, that in the great houses of our great men, the festivities of the season have been maintained in all their wonted splendour, and that charity and benevolence have sanctified the celebration. But in London, although Thursday exhi-bited to the sight, droves of drunken operatives recling about the streets, in company with females not much more sober than them-selves, the old English evidences of Christmas-time were wanting. In the Play-houses alone was the Christmas of Cockayne seasonably In the Play-nouses alone was the Christmas of Cotarine transmission celebrated, by the production of those constitutional indications of hilarious, absurdity, Pantomimes. In the enjoyment of those, hundreds of little children, and thousands of "children of a larger growth," rejoiced exceedingly; and we feel it our duty to take a cursory review of the various performances, collated from the notes of one of the first living critics of pantomimes. Begin we with Drury-Lane-which, as being performed in, by His

MAJESTY'S SERVENIS--who, when they step over the way to act at Covent garden, immediately lose that character-has the prece-dence-ber, data where is the motley hero, where are the "shreds and patches," the black face, and the magic wand; where the secient pantaloon, the grinning clown, and the angelic red and white columbine, with her wap waist and race horse ancles? Not here-no-here we have St. George and the Dragon, or the Seven Cham-piens of Christendom; St. George, the tutelar Saintof England, being enacted by Monsieur Ducnow. Nothing can be more splendid. On the first night it was much too long; but when curtailed, as it most probably has been by this time, it will afford to the admirers of horses, rebras, care, bannere, hances, spere, armour, fighting, music, and dancing, a most satisfactory treat; the variety of colours in the final group was such that the stage had the appearance of a hange kaliedecope. of a huge kaliedescope

Colours in the nual group was such that the stage has the appearance of a huge kaliedescope. If spectacle bedesired, here it is in all its gorgeousness. The dialogue and poetry are of secondary consideration in such a case. For a piece where hores are the principal performers, the Mews has done wonders, and saddled as they are, we have no doubt of their drawing for a considerable space of time. REYNOLDS, in his "Life and Times," says that in the seasons of 1810 and 1811, one hundred thousand pounds were taken at the doors of Covent Garden. The whole additional sum over the usual annual receipts was entirely produced by the introduction of cavalry on the stage. The first forty-one nights of Bive Beard, with the horses, produced twenty-one thousand pounds-To be sure, that was in war time, and when the country was taxed up to the chin; and, above all, it was before a Reform Bill had destroyed trade, overthrown commerce, and depo-malated the nation of half the aristocrarey by whom the great mess of Reform Bill had destroyed trade, overthrown commerce, and depo-pulated the nation of half the aristocrasy by whom the great mass of play-genes exist. Yet even in these days we have seen, during the present season, that, on the nights when Mr. MAGRADY has been presenting to the thin air at Drury-Lane, the chandleiters and do-minos have attracted crowds to Covent-Garden.—So much for the legitimate drama minos have attracted crowds to Covent Garden.-So much for the legitimate drama. At Covent Garden, we have Mother Hubbard and her Dog-but endly encumbered by mythological and imaginary personagee. Capaid has no business with old Mrs. H., nor has Venus any business with the old lady's dog-a part performed, we must say, in the most admirable manner, by an aspiring Thespian of the name of Mrcarn-sow; the character was well supported throughout-not a particle of puppyism was exhibited in the delineation of Mrs. Hubbard's faith-fal companion-and when the highly-gifted actor concluded the part, we only wondered to find that he was not whistled for, in order to come forward and make his bow. The Diorama, illustrative of Captain, Ros's proceedings "round about the Pole," is beautifully painted, and no doubt extremely like the reality: the ceremony of planting the British flag is admirably potrayed, but we regret to say has produced, in many instances, a delusion upon the infant mind which may eventually prove very serious to the rising generation. "That is the Pole, my dear," said a most respectable gentleman to his cldes son. "don't you see Cap-tain Ross with the flag. He is going to plant it there." "Yee, Pa," said the interesting Eugenes, "I sce-he has got the flag upon it now. I thought the Pole was much bigger than that."

At the Adelphi, we have See-Saw, Margery Daw, and she, like Mrs At the Adelphi, we have See Saw, Margery Daw, and she, like Mrs. H. at Covent-Garden, is somewhat overlaid by fairies and persons of that description. For fairies they are very pretty ones, we admit—but they soon give place to the real bustle of an old-school Harlequin farce—tricks, tumbles, changes, kicks, and knocks down are the order of the day. The explosion of the gin-shop is clever as well as comical,—the trick of the cat beats any trick of the dog at the Gar-den, and creates a surprise in the audience of a most laughable mature. The fire is capital; indeed, without making invidious comparisons, we must say we think See-Saw is one of the beat comparisons, we must say we think See Saw is one of the best things of the kind we ever saw, or are likely to see. At the Victoria-alter (Shakgeare's) Jane Shore, was produced A. B. C., or the Earl of Warwick and the Dan Cow; manufactured by that veteran caterer for public amusement, Mr. THOMAS DIDDNX, to whose pen, in other days, the town has been greatly indebted for pleasure and entertainment. The present piece gives plentiful evi-dence that hisspirit and talent are asfresh as ever-it is capital good fun, and presensits rival on this side of the water hard for pre-emi-nence; the Dun Cow, as Mr. Buxrox said, "is admirably dun," and the absurd pas de daws of the two monumental lamp-posts at the end of Bridge-street, Blackfriars, convulsed the house with laughter. end of Bridge-street, Blackfriars, convulsed the house with laughter. That Miss Rosten is an uncommonly nice person—the "greatest and gravest" amongst us would not hesitate to slip himself into a patch-work pair of pantaloons to carry off such a Columbine as that—as Marmsws's old song used to say— My Lord on the woolsack His coachman would pull back, To get a look full smack A ther pretty face. Taken as a piece, A.B.C. is better connected than any of its con-temporaries, and the public, we are sure, will not be D.E.F. to our preise of its merits. At the Olympic. Persons and Andromeda, travestied, formed the end of Bridge-street, Blackfriars, convulsed the house with laughter

At the Olympic, Perseus and Andromeda, travestied, formed the At the Olympic, Persens and Anaromeua, travestico, formed the subject of amusement, and afforded infinite delight to a crowded audience, amidst which might be perceived many scions of the aris-toeracy. The Tottenham-street Theatre, now called the "Fitzroy," pro-duced some novelties, which were most flatteringly received by an overflowing audience; and the "White Surrey." we are told, was also crammed. Upon these subjects we must defer our observations

And training. Open these subjects we made users our observations for the present. At a Private Theatre in the country, after a deep Tragedy, a new Harlequinade was enacted by amateurs, called Gaffer Grey, or the Twise of Fortune. We have been furnished with a bill and a book of

Area on point we have been commonly for the opening chorus; Act 1.—Scrate 1.—Goffer Grey's Cabinet-maker's Workshop—he is surrounded by a great many relations at work—Fortune, blind, is seated in a car, as if ascending from the stage; and Cupid, blinder something. They rise as the curtain rises, and the mortal characters sing the following

CHORUS. TUNE-" We are all noddin.

Сновия. And they are ALL grabbing, grab, grab, grabbing: They are all grabbing, at our House at hame.

The solo parts would occupy too much room, as they consist of wenty-seven verses, sung by the respective branches of the Gaffer family, each ending with the chorus, by all the performers.

THE INISH BENCH .- The following changes are spoken of :present Attorney-General, Mr. BLACKBURN, is to become one of the Puisne Judges of Common Pleas; Mr. CRAMPTON, the Solicitor-General, taking his place, and Sergeant PERRIN, prime diciplinarian of corporate abuses, being made Solicitor-General; Mr. RICHARDS and Mr. BALL, both eminent equity practitioners, are mentioned as candi dates for the vacant sergeantcy, should the other changes be effected. The latter Gentleman is a Roman Catholic of moderate politics.-Liverpool Journal.

To show the increasing influence of Trades' Unions in the metro To show the increasing innuence of Irace Omons in the metro-polis, we can state as a fact that no less than eight hundred and seventy journeymen tailors were enrolled in one day last week, at a public-house at the west end of the town, formerly a "house of call" to the same trade. The subscription is one shilling per month, and er is sworn to secrecy. The professed object is the increase of wages.

The Brussels Papers inform us that the King has acknowledged Donna MARIA as Queen of Portugal, an event which we must be excused for saying appears to us of the smallest possible importance. The Chambers are uniformly the referees of Government in all departments. The army for 1833 is fixed at 110,000 men, and the contingent of the year at 12,000.

A ROLAND FOR AN OLIVER .- Mr. O'CONNELL having called one of the defendants in a late trial " a multifications scourge to his country." Mr. LITTON, King's Counsel, who was on the other side, said, in allusion to Mr. O'CONNELL's speech, " his unfortunate client was described as a multifarious scourge, as the very pest of society. If they could find a man who lived but in troubled waters, whose element was discord, whose constant employment was setting man against his fellow-creature; if they could in their searches happen to set their eye upon such an individual, an individual whose trade was agitation, to him let them apply the term, not to his client. Let that man be branded as the multifarious scourge of this unfortunate country, and let every man anxious for the promotion of peace and of social harmony set his face against him."

At a meeting in Dublin for the Repeal of the Union a Mr. O'KEEFF, in seconding a Resolution, gave the following extraordinary specimen of repeal eloquence :—" The woes of the country were deplorable, and yet, notwithstanding their suffering, they could compare Dublin to Rome; for Rome possessed the greatest orator of his day, and Dublin might boast of the greatest orator of the present age.-(Cheers.)-Rome had Cicero; Dublin the Liberator of Ireland.-(Hear.)-Cicero had his Hortensius; O'Connell his Sheil.-(Cheers., -Cicero had his Cato; O'Connell his Steele.-(Cheers.)-Cicero boasted of having saved Rome by his peaceful toga; O'Connell to Ireland crowned with the laurels of victory gained in returned neace.—(Hear.)"

Another melancholy event has taken place off Boulogne. Norwegian ship was driven on shore on the 21st, during a heavy gale from the north west. The unhappy crew (twelve in number) were seen by 6,000 spectators, during two hours, clinging to the howsprit, the sea running or dashing over them every moment, till at length the rising tide overwhelmed the vessel (which had been from a quarter of an hour after she had struck), and hurled the unfortunate crew into a watery grave.

THE NEW FACTORY BILL .- We understand that serious cons nuences are already beginning to be felt from the operation of that abortion in legislation, the Factory Regulation Bill. Its oppressive character has set the manufacturers, particularly of the north, in an uproar, both masters and men; and as the former have given notice. that, from the working of this precious measure, they will be obliged and commotion is threatened in return. Happily there is an easy and commotion is intractice in return. Unputy where is an easy remedy for the danger. Government, we are told, is under these circumstances preparing to charge roughlshod through the act, and hang its enactments by the neck. Well may the people cry out, Heaven protect us from our friends !"

A great sensation had been caused at Hayti by the arrival of the French Government brig Le Cuirussier, despatched by Louis Phi-LIPPE, to demand of the President BoyER the payment of the twenty millions indemnity. It was understood that the French Government had stated that, if the money was not forthcoming, an expedition would be sent against the island.

SHEERNESS .- There is great bustling in the Dockyard, and much more expected. Several large ships are fitting out for sea, and others are in commission. The Admiral's tender is constantly employed between Sheerness and the Tower of London, in conveying seamen from London to the former place, for the service of the Jasseur and other ships, and it is confidently reported that the artificers will in a few days be ordered to work six days in the week; all classes in the naval department are kept very strictly to their duties. Ten shipwrights' apprentices are to be immediately entered. who are to be sons of shipwrights, and instructed by their respective fathers .- Maidstone Gazette.

The following will perhaps be considered quite as good as the above—it occurred within one hundred miles of the ancient horough of Leicester:—"Gentlemen," said an auctioneer, addresing the bargain-hunters by whom the sale-room was crammed—" the next lot is a very fine-toned violin,"—"A violin, Sir!" exclamed his clerk, in surprise—" You must have made some mistake, Sir,—the next lot is the fiddle !"-This is a fact.

A MIS-FIT .- An announcement with which the overseer of Ciren-

Information was instantly sent to Bow street of the robbery, and an officer sent in pursuit of the offender.

THE HORRID EFFECTS OF NEORO SLAVERY .- In one of the early THE HORRID EFFECTS OF ILEARD DEATER. -In One of the early debates in the reformed House of Commons on the slave emancipa-tion question some of our readers may perhaps remember the outpourings of the Lord Viscount Howrek's indignation against the outpourings of the Lord Viscount Howrer's indignation against the proprietors and managers of a particular estate in Demerara, whose conduct towards the "unhappy blacks" was described, in the stereotyped phrases of the Anti-Slavery Association, as diabolical, cruel, &c. &c. &c. ; and that such conduct would effectually destroy the negro population of this estate in particular. The arrival of the Indian Chief, Captain WILLIAMS, from Demerara, has supplied us with an excellent commentary on his Lordship's harangue, in the shape of an order from one of the ill-used, and therefore unhappy, slaves belonging to the very estate that was the theme of his Lordship's discourse. The order is in the hand-writing

there of his Lordship's discourse. The order is in the hand-writing of the slave, which we copy verbatim et literatim :-"MENORANDUM FOR CATTAIN WILLIAMS.

"P.S. A blue dress coat for my brother, to be a size larger."

This order was given by a slave who is neither a driver nor a manager; one who is employed exclusively in out-of-door work on the plantation. The funds to purchase these articles were supplied by an order on the agent of the estate. The pattern gold earring and pendant, together with the paper which we have described, may both be seen by any person who will take the trouble of calling on the publisher of the Liverpool Standard, in whose possession they are. We have only to add that we have great pleasure in exhibiting this irrefragable proof of the cruel and inhuman treatment of West India slaves .- Liverpool Standard.

amendment to the effect " that the meeting had no reason to believe that there is any disposition on the part of the Government to pro-pose any illegal or unconstitutional alteration," was not even se-conded. A meeting of the Clergy of the Deanery of Cirencester, was held on Tuesday last at the King's Head. Cirencester, for the purpose of considering what measures should be deemed necessary, by the immediate diminution and proposed discontinuance of the Parlia-mentary grants hitherto extended in aid of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. The meeting was attended by most of the Ciergy of the Deanery, and it was determined, " that a district Committee he formed in aid of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, consisting of the Clergy of the said Deanery, and of such of the Laity as might be disposed to contribute their pecuniary support in the shape of donations or annual subscriptions; and that, on the recommendation of the Parent Society, donations and annual subscriptions to the amount of the said Deanery, and bilings and six-pence, be solicited." Many subscriptions and donations were immediately received; and it was agreed that a full statement of the peculiar circumstances of the society should be circulated in the neighbourhood, with a view that is claims should be more extensively made known, and its designe more effectually supported. Some excitement has prevailed at the East India House for the last two days, in consequence of a reported deficiency in the Savings' Bank Fund belonging to that Establishment, to the amount, it is said, of 30001...50001., and even 70001. It is certain that the door of the Savings' Bank Office has been padlocked. Cobbett, in his Register of yesterday, asserts, that a plot has been formed for his destruction; and he states, that since the 1st of July last, almost his sole occupation has been to defeat the scheme, and to blow the conspirators to atoms. Part of the scheme, he says, is to spread a report that he is not the real author of many of the writings he has put forth under his name, and that he has been indebted to his children for a great portion of the articles which have gained him his celebrity. gained him his celebrity.
