GOVERNOR APPOINTS THREE NEW REGENTS

On Fri., April 21, Gov. George W. Bush nominated three Texans to serve on the TWU board of regents; all are residents of the Denton/Dallas/Fort Worth area. Their terms will expire on Feb. 1, 2001.

■ Kay Williams Goodman -- Goodman, a TWU alumna, is a retired educator and rancher from Sanger. She currently serves on the board of the TWU National Alumnae Association. Goodman worked as an education resource teacher in the Plano Independent School District, where she designed and implemented the school district's first alternative education program. She has received many professional and civic awards, including Plano High School Teacher of the Year in 1982, Plano Civic Volunteer of the Year Award in 1984 and the Association for Retarded Citizens "Extra Mile Award" in 1986. In 1988, the city of Plano designated "Kay Goodman Day" to honor her for her assistance in founding nine human service agencies. Goodman replaces Kris Anne Vogelpohl of Galveston, whose term expired.

■ Dr. Ronald F. Garvey -- Garvey, a Dallas physician, currently serves on the board of directors of the TWU Foundation and the Zale Lipshy University Hospital. He has served as president and chief executive officer of Zale Lipshy Hospital, as an instructor in surgery at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas and as the Dallas Cowboys' team physician. A former surgeon and instructor of surgery, Garvey is a graduate of Harvard University, the University of Buffalo School of Medicine and the University of Dallas Graduate School of Management. He replaces James B. McCurry of Dallas, whose term expired.

■ Richard D. Hayes -- Hayes, a resident of Denton, is the managing shareholder with the law firm of Hayes, Coffey and Berry, P.C. As chief of the firm's litigation section, Hayes specializes in the areas of business, banking and governmental law. He also has served as a guest lecturer in real estate at TWU and as an assistant criminal district attorney for the Bexar County District Attorney's office. Hayes earned his undergraduate degree from Texas Christian University, his master's degree in business from Texas A&M University and his law degree from St. Mary's School of Law. He replaces Don C. Reynolds of Fort Worth, whose term expired.

All three appointments require Senate confirmation; hearings are scheduled on Wed., April 26, in Austin.

TWU HONORS EXCELLENCE IN TEACHING, SERVICE, DEDICATION

During Honors Convocation on April 21, faculty, staff and students were honored for their achievements and service to TWU. Names and information about the recipients are listed on the following pages.

Faculty Awards

Four faculty members received the university's highest awards for excellence in teaching, scholarship and service. Honored were Dr. Bettye Myers (kinesiology) with the Cornaro Award, which is given to a senior faculty member; and Drs. Janice Killian (performing arts, music); Harry Meeuwsen (kinesiology); and Frank Thomas (family sciences), all of whom received the Mary Mason Lyon Award for outstanding junior faculty.

■ Since joining the TWU faculty in 1961, Myers has presented a model of excellence in many diverse roles. She has been an advocate of interdisciplinary courses and learning experiences, a leader in demonstrating the value of applying classroom theory in improving the quality of life of the community at large; a pioneer in promoting and empowering university-community collaboration and optimal use of resources; and a mentor and adviser to scores of students, faculty, alumni and community residents.

An abbreviated list of her professional and civic accomplishments includes: founding president and first speaker of the TWU Faculty Senate; parliamentarian of the Texas Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance; president of the Denton County United Way Board of Directors and member of the selection committee for the national president of United Way; past president of the Denton Independent School District board of trustees; president-elect of the TWU National Alumnae Association; president of the American Heart Association of Denton County; and co-chair of the board of directors of the Vision for Denton 2000 project.

Her nomination for the Cornaro Award was supported by every faculty member in the department of kinesiology. Also included were endorsements from more than 35 of Bettye's colleagues, former students and community associates. Their expressions of respect, admiration and affection for the woman who profoundly influenced their lives and their careers were singularly eloquent.

■ Killian joined the TWU faculty in 1990, after a successful 15-year career as a public school music teacher. In addition to teaching classes at the undergraduate and graduate levels, Killian also has directed the TWU Choraliers and the University Chorus.

The author of more than 20 refereed research publications, Killian serves on the editorial review board of the Journal of Research in Music Education. She also is chair of the music education division of the Federation of North Texas Area Universities, and state chair and faculty adviser to the college student section of the Texas Music Educators Association/Texas Music Educators Conference.

■ Since joining the TWU faculty in 1988, Meeuwsen has become known for his outstanding teaching and research, his concern for his students' academic progress and his willingness to go the extra mile to ensure their success. In his motor learning/motor control laboratory, Meeuwsen has conducted a series of studies designed to provide insight into the decision-making variables that affect performance in older adults. He has presented his research at state, national and international meetings and published in national and international professional journals.

His service contributions include establishing the TWU Conservation and Recycling Committee, the annual College of Health Sciences Student Research Conference and the North Texas Motor Behavior Conference. He also serves as the departmental graduate coordinator and is a member of the TWU Faculty Senate.

■ Thomas' students have consistently given him high marks for his teaching since he joined the faculty in 1989. Despite the amount of time and energy he devotes to teaching and to his students, he also has been a prolific author and scholarly presenter, with more than 50 juried or invited presentations to his credit. He also serves as a reviewer and is on the editorial boards of some of the most prestigious publications in his field, including the American Journal of Family Therapy and the Journal of Family Psychotherapy.

In addition to his teaching, writing and scholarly presentations, Dr. Thomas also planned and directed the Texas Association for Marriage and Family Therapy annual conference for nine years, and was executive director of the association for three years. He also has been nominated for an executive position with the American Association of Marriage and Family Therapy.

Staff Awards

Three TWU staff members were honored for their dedication and exemplary service to the university: Joyce Parmentier, an academic adviser in the Academic Advising Center, who received the TWU Excellence Award; Vicki Byrd, environmental safety officer for the university; and Jewel Frizzell, who retired in February from her position as head custodian at Guinn Hall, both of whom received Outstanding Staff Achievement Awards.

■ In her nomination, Joyce Parmentier was characterized as "truly epitomizing the Texas Woman's University experience." Parmentier moved to Denton to work on a graduate degree in music therapy and began working part-time as a secretary in the Academic Advising Center in 1987. Her position eventually became full time and, after completing her graduate degree at TWU in 1990, Joyce was promoted to academic adviser. Her co-workers describe Joyce as "indispensable...the type of person who goes about her day creating a secure and affirming environment for the students at Texas Woman's University. Joyce builds relationships with people, not just obligatory encounters."

■ Environmental safety officer Vicki Byrd is also an alumna of Texas Woman's University. Byrd offers safety training for students, faculty and staff, including personal safety, fire prevention, bad weather precautions, defensive driving, first aid and CPR training, and basic car maintenance. "I have never known a student turned staff member and alumna who is more serious about meeting obligations and responsibilities, who is more honorable in professing and adhering to ethics and values, and who is more well-rounded in all roles required of a TWU community member."

■ Before retiring in February after 15 years at TWU, Jewel Frizzell displayed a dedication to her job and to the university that included a three-year period when she took no sick leave. As lead custodian at Guinn Hall, Jewel supervised the housekeeping staff responsible for cleaning and maintaining rooms used in the guest housing and summer conference programs. One co-worker paid tribute to Jewel: "She wears many caps: mother, housekeeper, employee and friend. No matter what she does, she is always cheerful, dependable, friendly, warm and caring. I shall miss her and I wish her well, but I am glad there was a "jewel" like Jewel in my life."

Outstanding Senior and Graduate Students; Leman Award

Honored as outstanding seniors were: Desiree Jansen of Tulsa, Okla.; Teri Kite of Denton; Jill Marek-Hughes of Seabrook, Texas; and Peggy Williams of Mesquite. Honored as

outstanding graduate students were: Kathleen Deyo of Houston, Martha Hess of Denton and Deborah Schmidt of Kailua, Hawaii, as outstanding master's students; and Donna Bachand of Plano and Dana Drewlinger of Denton as outstanding doctoral students.

Also honored as the recipient of the 1995 Pauline Bishop Leman Award was Rene West of Fort Worth. The Leman Award is given to the graduating senior who has made an outstanding artistic contribution to the university.

■ Jansen, a dietetics and institutional administration major with a 3.9 grade point average, will graduate in May. She also is a member and captain of the three-time TWU Pioneers gymnastics national championship team. Jansen has been listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges and on the National Dean's List, and for the past three years she has been named a Scholastic All-American by the National Association of Gymnastics Coaches for Women. A member of Golden Key National Honor Society, Desiree also is a member of the Student Dietetic Association. Her community involvement includes volunteering at the Heritage Oaks Senior Center.

■ Kite, a communication sciences major with a 4.0 grade point average, will graduate in May. As a returning student at TWU, Teri has pursued her degree while working full time as a senior network analyst and media management supervisor at Frito-Lay. Named to the TWU dean's list every semester since enrolling at TWU, Teri also volunteers at the Deaf Action Center in Dallas. At Frito-Lay, she has worked with the United Way and Adopt-a-School programs, and organized blood drives and a holiday gift drive for the Downtown Dallas Family Shelter. Teri plans to enter the master's program in deaf education in the fall and, ultimately, to become a teacher working with the deaf and hard of hearing.

■ Marek-Hughes, a nursing major at the TWU Houston Center with a 3.6 grade point average, will graduate in May. Listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, she also was nominated by the faculty for the Duchin and Fondren awards for clinical excellence in 1994. The winner of a TWU academic excellence award in 1993-94, Jill is a member of Alpha Chi and Phi Eta Sigma honor societies. She also is the president of TWU's Houston chapter of the Texas Nursing Students Association. Her community involvement includes working as a counselor at a camp for children with sickle cell anemia and as a volunteer with the Leukemia Society's Bike-a-Thon and the Shriner's Hospital carnival.

■ Williams, a nursing major at the TWU Dallas Center with a 3.8 grade point average, will graduate in May. Listed in Who's Who Among Students at American Universities and Colleges and on the TWU dean's list, she also is a member of Golden Key National Honor Society. As the current president of the Dallas Center chapter of the Texas Nursing Students Association, Peggy has organized several fundraising events for the organization. She also volunteers for the American Red Cross, and serves as vice president of her children's parent-teacher association.

■ Deyo, a master's student majoring in physical therapy at the TWU Houston Center with a 4.0 grade point average, will graduate in August. A respected therapist, instructor and researcher, she received the 1994 Outstanding Clinical Instructor Award from the Texas Consortium for Physical Therapy Education. She also was nominated for the 1993 Mary McMillan Award for outstanding graduate student.

Her community involvement includes working with Habitat for Humanity, the Loaves and Fishes food kitchen and Project Angel Tree.

■ Hess, a master's student majoring in dance with a 3.9 grade point average, will graduate in May. She is listed in Who's Who Among Students at American Universities and Colleges and on the National Dean's List.

In 1994, Martha organized a dance program for the community of Jamestown, N.D., as part of a National Endowment for the Arts pilot project. During her seven-week internship, Martha conducted dance and creative movement workshops for mentally and physically challenged children and adults, and developed a company of five teenagers to present her choreography. In 1994 and 1995, her choreography was chosen to represent TWU at the South Central American College Dance Festival.

■ Schmidt, a master's student majoring in nursing with a 3.7 grade point average, will graduate in August. Currently, she is a clinical nurse specialist in genetic counseling at the Queen's Medical Center in Honolulu, Hawaii, the largest medical facility in the Pacific Basin. As the only advanced practice nurse with a knowledge base in genetics at Queen's, she has established a prenatal screening and genetic counseling program and has begun a genetics education program for the nursing staff.

Deborah is a member of the Association of Woman's Health and Neonatal Nurses, the American Society of Human Genetics, the International Society of Nurses in Genetics and the Texas Genetics Society.

■ Bachand, a doctoral student majoring in nursing with a 4.0 grade point average, will graduate in May. Listed in Who's Who Among Students at American Universities and Colleges, she is a member of Sigma Theta Tau International honor society. She also received a Phi Kappa Phi certificate for scholastic achievement in 1993.

Her lengthy list of professional presentations and publications reflect her clinical experience and research on life quality in cancer patients and her background and interest in oncology. Her expertise and scholarship have been recognized with two awards from the Oncology Nursing Society.

■ Drewlinger, a doctoral student majoring in biomechanics with a grade point average of 3.9, will graduate in August. While working on her degree, Dana distinguished herself as the staff support person for TWU's reaccreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and the reaccreditation of the School of Physical Therapy by the American Physical Therapy Association.

She is spending the semester in a full-time teaching position at Northern Michigan University while completing her dissertation.

■ West, a photography major with a 3.9 grade point average, graduated in the fall and is now working on her master degree in fine arts at TWU. She is listed in Who's Who Among Students at American Colleges and Universities and on the National Dean's List.

The winner of an outstanding art student award from the Dallas Women's Caucus for Art, West also is a member of Phi Kappa Phi. Her work has appeared in more than 19 exhibits since 1991, including a juried exhibit at the 1995 Society for Photographic Education national meeting.

NAA ANNOUNCES DISTINGUISHED ALUMNAE AWARDS

Four graduates of TWU were honored as Distinguished Alumnae during homecoming activities on April 22: Rubye Williams Jones of Plano, senior executive officer of operations for the YWCA of Metropolitan Dallas; Mary Ann Odom of Kansas City, Mo., international fashion director for Hallmark Cards Inc.; Dr. Beth C. Vaughan-Wrobel of Fayetteville, Ark., professor and associate dean for academic programs at the University of Arkansas for Medical Services College of Nursing; and Sheila Whitaker-Kellagher of Dallas, president and chief executive officer of Trucare Health Systems.

■ Jones, who holds bachelor's ('69), master's ('72) and doctoral degrees ('77) in sociology from TWU, has been the chief operations officer of the YWCA since 1984.

Her long list of community activities includes serving as vice president of the board of directors of the East Dallas Health Coalition; vice president of finance and treasurer of the board of directors of the Women's Council of Dallas County; and vice president of the board of directors of the Dallas County Community Action Committee. Jones also is a noted workshop presenter on topics ranging from parenting strategies and issues affecting the African-American family to gender and sex roles and women in the workplace.

■ Odom, a 1959 graduate of TWU with a bachelor's degree in interior design, has spent 35 years at Hallmark Cards, rising to the top ranks of one of the largest creative staffs in the world.

After beginning her career at Hallmark in the lettering department, Odom eventually became a stylist, considered the pinnacle of creative achievement at the company. In 1985, she moved to the Licensing Division and formed the department responsible for linking Hallmark in ventures with other companies to produce dinnerware, paper products, fabrics and related items. Odom was named head of Hallmark's international division in 1990, and was responsible for introducing the company's products into markets around the world. Currently, she is developing a product line in cooperation with the Vatican museum. Odom also is involved in community activities and organizations, including the Kansas City Museum, the Kansas City Art Institute and others.

■ Vaughan-Wrobel, who holds bachelor's ('65) and master's ('72) degrees in nursing from TWU, is well-known in her profession for designing a curriculum for physical assessments by nurses and for developing graduate nursing education for clinical nurse specialists. She has been on the faculty of the University of Arkansas College of Nursing since 1985.

Named the Nurse of the Year by the Arkansas Nurses Association in 1992, she also has been listed in the World Who's Who of Women, Who's Who of American Women and Who's Who in American Nursing. Vaughan-Wrobel is a former president of both Sigma Theta Tau International nursing honor society and District Nine of the Arkansas Nurses' Association. She is a member of the Council of Nurse Researchers of the American Nurses' Association, the National League for Nursing and Kappa Delta Pi honor society.

■ Whitaker-Kellagher, who graduated cum laude from TWU in 1981 with a bachelor's degree in physical therapy, founded Trucare Health Systems in 1987. Trucare provides physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech pathology services to hospitals, long-term care facilities, certified rehabilitation units and private outpatient clinics around the country.

She is a member of the American Physical Therapy Association, the Texas Physical Therapy Association, the National Association for Female Executives, the Texas Home Health Association and others. She also is a member of the TWU National Alumnae Association and a five-time president of its physical therapy component. A member of the TWU board of regents since 1994, Whitaker-Kellagher also received an award for outstanding service to the School of Physical Therapy in 1992.

FACULTY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM SET IN AUGUST

A TWU faculty development fair -- currently called "Renewal '95" -- will provide all TWU faculty (both full time and part time) with an opportunity to attend a number of sessions in areas that will enhance their teaching and activities on campus. The program will be held in August (possibly Aug. 22), and faculty members are urged to register in May and make plans to attend.

"Essentially, the university will set aside a day, with lunch and coffee, for a series of sessions on a wide variety of topics," said Dr. Harral Landry (history and government), a member of the executive planning committee for this event. "We will offer three general 'tracks': technical skills, professional enhancement and career enrichment. You can choose any mix (of sessions) or match any pattern you like." Interdisciplinary topics or "how to's" for new faculty may be added.

Sessions topics (which may change) for each track include:

- Technical skills -- beginning or intermediate computers (Macintosh, WordPerfect or Microsoft Windows); access ramps to the information highway; library information retrieval systems; multimedia teaching aids.

- Professional enhancement -- inducements for faculty to audit or enroll in courses; professional travel; meeting alumni; faculty and income taxes; faculty and TWU as "Weekend U"; introducing the TWU film library; Excellence-in-Teaching mentoring support group; and

- Career enrichment -- media service center check-out; the grant application process; accessing E-mail, Venus and videoconferencing; the grant-writing mentoring support group; the peer review process.

To request more information or to register, call Landry at ext. 2133 or contact Dr. Wilkes Berry (academic affairs) at ext. 3350.

BRADSHAW DAY ACTIVITIES PLANNED

The TWU School of Library and Information Studies will present the 1995 Bradshaw visiting scholar, Cerise Oberman, as keynote speaker for the school's annual Bradshaw lecture on Thurs., May 4. The lecture, which is free and open to the public and the campus community, will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Blagg-Huey Library lecture hall. Oberman will discuss "Library Instruction: Concepts and Pedagogy in an Electronic Age." For more information, call ext. 2602.

In addition to her presentation, Oberman will return to the campus July 24-28 to conduct a seminar on the same topic from July 24-28. She previously taught "Active Learning Approaches for User Education" at TWU in 1991.

Oberman, who is director of libraries at the State University of New York at Plattsburgh, previously was assistant professor and head of reference at the College of Charleston, and associate professor and public services planning officer for the university libraries central administration at the University of Minnesota. She earned her bachelor's degree from SUNY at New Paltz and her master's degree in librarianship from Emory University.

The Bradshaw visiting scholar has written five books, including Theories of Bibliographic Instruction: Designs for Teaching with Katina Strauch, as well as many articles, essays and book chapters. She has published and presented widely on conceptual approaches and active learning in bibliographic instruction. She currently manages a SUNY-wide library project titled "Toward a Collaborative Information Environment." Oberman received the American Library Association's ACRL Miriam Dudley Bibliographic Instruction Librarian Award in 1994 and ALA's Shirley Olofson Memorial Award in 1977. She has received grants from the National Science Foundation, the University of Minnesota, the Council on Library Resources and the SUNY office of educational technology.

Each year the endowment for the Bradshaw visiting scholar, named in honor of Lillian Moore Bradshaw, enables TWU to bring an outstanding library professional or library educator to present the Bradshaw lecture and to be in residence to conduct a seminar. Bradshaw, who served as president of the ALA in 1971, earned her bachelor's degree from Western Maryland College and her master's degree in library science from Drexel University, where she was honored with the degree of Doctor of Letters. Described as energetic, intelligent and astute, Bradshaw was a leader in her field and believed that strong libraries are essential for everyone's education and growth.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

TWU deans, directors and chairs are invited to attend a one-day professional development program on Mon., Aug. 14, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., SC 207-208, with a scheduled break from noon to 1:30 p.m. The seminar will feature guest speaker Marilyn Schoeman Dow.

"The seminar is intended to provide professional development to strengthen our ability to work cooperatively, to foster team building, to promote communication and to enhance our cohesiveness," said Judy Hildebrandt (Student Center). "In addition, we will use a developmental approach to increase our creative thinking skills in order to identify and solve problems."

Dow, an internationally known speaker and creativity consultant, is based in Seattle, Wash., where she owns a publishing firm. She has offered seminars, keynote speeches and consultations for corporations, institutions and associations across the country. Dow's clients include Westin Hotels, the International Personnel Management Association, Rockwell International, the Puget Sound Business Journal, Women in Communications International, IBM, Boeing and many others.

For more information or registration, call Hildebrandt at ext. 3641.

COURSE FEES SURVEY RESULTS REPORTED

The TWU Faculty Senate's budget and planning committee has completed a university-wide survey about course fees, which are generated by credit hour production and must be used for items directly related to courses taught.

Dr. Ronald Fannin (Faculty Senate) announced the survey results and explained that they are "presented from the viewpoint of faculty, chairs, program directors, assistant deans and deans." The results of the survey describe the ways in which requests for course fees are initiated; the ways in which decisions on requested course fees are made; the ways in which course fees are allocated; items for which course fees have been requested; and items for which course fees have been paid.

The following list represents items for which faculty have received course fees: 40 percent for books, 6 percent for computers, 27 percent for equipment (not computers), 51 percent for media (video and audio tapes), 19 percent for software, 10 percent for speakers, 12 percent for student teaching/graduate assistants, 46 percent for supplies, 18 percent for test kits, 13 percent for transparencies, 10 percent for travel and 20 percent for duplicating, plus other monies for tutors.

"Faculty members who feel that more information would be useful as they consider course fees for the future should contact their faculty senator for all results," said Fannin. For details, call the Faculty Senate office at ext. 3393.

APPLICATIONS FOR TWU AMBASSADORS SOUGHT

The office of student development at TWU will accept applications through May 12 from students who are interested in becoming President's Ambassadors. The ambassadors serve as representatives of the university and the president at various functions throughout the year. "Members of this organization represent the highest standards of the university, and they work actively to advance the purposes of TWU," said Monica Mendez-Grant (student development).

Interested applicants must meet the following requirements:

- must be currently enrolled at TWU;
- must have attended TWU for at least one year;
- must be classified as a sophomore, junior, senior or graduate student;
- must have a cumulative grade point average of 2.5 or above on a 4.0 scale;
- must never have been on disciplinary or academic probation;
- must be able to communicate effectively;
- must be well groomed;
- must be willing to attend a seminar on the role and responsibilities of President's Ambassadors, as well as selected meetings and workshops throughout the year;
- must be able to participate in various activities as called upon during the year.

Students who would like to apply can pick up the necessary forms in the office of student life, SC 206, and return them no later than May 12. For details, call Mendez-Grant at ext. 3626.

UPDATE ON TWU PEOPLE

Dr. Kathleen Millay (communication sciences and disorders) presented a seminar on "Hearing Changes with Age" at the Lost Chord Club April 6.

Dr. James Galloway (library) recently completed one and one-half years of service on the Texas Library Association's program committee for the 1995 conference in Dallas April 4-8. During the conference, he served as co-chair of three contributed papers sessions and was discussant for the session titled "Exploring Historical Networks and Their Importance to Our Communities," which featured Jane Clements Monday and Patricia Smith Prather. Galloway also spoke as a panel member on "It's Your Serve! Redefining Reference Service."

Dr. Carol Surles (president's office) has been appointed as an ex-officio member of the Denton Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

Dr. Janice LaPointe-Crump (performing arts, dance) and students in her instructional practices in dance class taught a two-day program for Ryan High School sophomore English students on March 27 and 28 in Denton. Titled "Literature Alive," the program involved high school students in the identification and analysis of how authors incorporate direct and indirect references to movement qualities and dance in helping readers visualize and personalize a story's narrative. "The program encouraged students to respond kinesthetically, kinetically and emotionally to activate the images and metaphors built into the description of characters," said LaPointe-Crump. Students read The Great Gatsby by F. Scott Fitzgerald for the two-day program, which was coordinated by Lucille Guess, director of the sophomore literature group at Ryan.

Congratulations to Teresa Sparlin-Yzaguirre (Student Center) and Chavel Yzaguirre on the birth of their first child, Hunner Jake, April 3. Hunner weighed 8 lbs., 4 oz. and was 21 inches long.

Dr. Dorice Narins and Dr. Nancy DiMarco (nutrition and food sciences) attended a conference on nutrition and physical activity, which focused on optimizing performance and well being. The conference was held recently in Atlanta, Ga. Narins' presentation, titled "Effects of weight cycling on body composition and anthropometric measurements in competitive female athletes" was co-authored by Dr. Annette Colby (TWU, 1994), DiMarco, Dr. Charlotte Sanborn (kinesiology) and David Marshall (also kinesiology). DiMarco's presentation, titled "The effect of calcium source and exercise on rat bone as measured by dual energy x-ray absorptiometry and fractal analysis" was co-authored by Cathy Jones and Surekha Mathur (both doctoral students), and Maria Ferreira (TWU, 1994).

Narins and DiMarco attended the annual meeting of the American Institute of Nutrition. DiMarco again presented "The effect of calcium source and exercise on rat bone as measured by dual energy x-ray absorptiometry and fractal analysis" with co-authors Jones and Mathur. Narins presented a paper titled "Anthropometric measurements of very-low-birth-weight infants 6-8 weeks after birth," which was co-authored by TWU doctoral student Lakshmi Venkateswaran and Wendy Hall (TWU, 1994). Her second presentation, "Use of knee height and calf length to estimate crown-heel-length in very-low-birth-weight infants" also was co-authored by Hall.

Dr. Lloyd Kinnison and Dr. Linda Sluder (both from early childhood and special education) have published a manuscript titled "Prenatal Drug Exposure: Implications for Teachers of Young Children" published in the spring 1995 edition of Day Care and Early Education.

Drs. Maria Murphy, Carol Ireton-Jones, Bettina Hilman, Mary Anne Gorman and George Liepa (nutrition and food sciences) recently published an article on "Resting Energy Expenditures Measured by Indirect Calorimetry are Higher in Preadolescent Children with Cystic Fibrosis than Expenditures Calculated from Prediction Equations" in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association. Murphy, Ireton-Jones, Hilman and Gorman are former doctoral students.

Liepa also has published two papers in his native language, Latvian. One was printed in the Latvian Journal of Health (Sveiks and Vesels) and the other appeared in the Latvian Journal of Medicine (Latvijas Arsts). Both pieces focused on the role that Aspartame plays in the treatment of diabetes. Liepa co-authored both papers with Dr. Harriet Butchko after they completed an "education and outreach" trip to Latvia last summer, which was funded by the department of marketing at Iowa State University.

Dr. Nicki Cohen (performing arts, music) and Dr. Jean Ford (communication sciences and disorders) recently delivered a presentation titled "Collaborative Music Therapy and Speech Language Pathology Strategies for the Adult Neurogenic Population" during the Southwestern Regional Conference of the National Association for Music Therapy. Cohen participated in a panel discussion during a town hall meeting at the same conference. She recently served as an adjudicator at a competition for the local chapter of the National Association of Teachers of Singing.
