TWU HONORED FOR CONTRIBUTION TO CLOSING THE GAPS

The Greater Dallas Chamber recently recognized Texas Woman's University's contribution to the statewide Closing the Gaps campaign.

TWU was honored for its high school Go Centers, which offer information and financial aid and application assistance for students to encourage greater participation in higher education. In addition, current TWU students serve as mentors to potential college applicants.

"Through our partnership with TWU and the College for Texans Campaign, we have provided many area students with the information they need to pursue college careers," said Becky Lewellen, manager of education for the Greater Dallas Chamber. "The Chamber advocates the importance of a strong education system and is committed to providing students with the access they need to pursue higher education goals."

"TWU is strongly committed to our partnerships with area high schools, businesses and the Chamber of Commerce," said Dr. Richard Nicholas, TWU vice president for student life. "These partnerships have the potential to increase the college-going rates necessary to meet the Closing the Gaps goals."

During the 2004-2005 academic year, TWU operated four Go Centers at Moisés E. Molina High School in Dallas, and Denton, Little Elm and Valley View high schools. For the 2005-2006 school year, TWU plans to add Go Centers to Coppell High School and Carter-Riverside High School in Fort Worth.

The Closing the Gaps campaign is a Texas initiative aimed at increasing higher education enrollment by 500,000 students by 2015. The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, the Texas Business and Education Coalition, the Greater Dallas Chamber and school districts and higher education institutions are working together to increase the percentage of high school graduates attending college in Texas.

TWU AWARDED FIRST GENERATION COLLEGE STUDENT GRANT

Texas Woman's University has been awarded $50,000 from the First Generation College Student (FGCS) Grant Program, allowing TWU to continue providing assistance to first-generation college students for the 2005-2006 academic year.

“Beginning with the initial grant in spring 2004, TWU has offered scholarships to nearly 100 first-generation college students,” said Dr. Richard Nicholas, TWU vice president for student life. “These scholarship participants also conduct workshops in area high schools for potential first-generation college students and their parents. The program is able to support current first-generation university students, as well as assist future first-generation students in high school in their pursuit of higher education.”

Established in 2003, the FGCS program is a result of funding from the U.S. Department of Labor to the Texas Workforce Commission, the Texas Education Agency and the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board. The program's goal is to increase the participation and success of first-generation college students.

TWU PROFESSOR, STUDENTS TO PROVIDE AID TO SRI LANKA

A Texas Woman's University professor and four of her graduate students are part of a team heading for Sri Lanka on Tuesday, July 12, to help train Sri Lankan medical personnel and social workers in counseling victims suffering from post traumatic stress disorder following last December's tsunami.

Dr. Merry Evenson (family sciences) said the group will spend two weeks in Sri Lanka, teaching trainees skills in helping others deal with grief, as well as critical stress management and how to move on with their lives in a healthy way. A special emphasis will be placed on play therapy.

“We hope to enable them to provide continuing counseling services to tsunami victims in need after we are gone,” Evenson said. She also hopes to gather data for a research project on survivors of trauma.

Evenson was contacted by a former student, Janet Perrera, now a counselor in the Dallas Independent School District, who asked for her help in training counselors in Sri Lanka. The short time frame left no opportunity for the project to qualify for class credit, and each member of the TWU group was required to raise approximately $2,500 to cover expenses. The group is working with Children's Emergency Relief International, the overseas arm of Baptist Child & Family Services, a human service organization based in San Antonio.

TWU CHAPTER WINS THIRD CONSECUTIVE TCEC AWARD

The Texas Woman's University Student Council for Exceptional Children was named Outstanding Chapter by the Texas Council for Exceptional Children (TCEC) at its annual conference June 16-18 in Houston. It is the third consecutive year the TWU chapter has won the award.

"The students took real pride in it," said Dr. Lloyd Kinnison (teacher education). He and Dr. Carol Thomas (teacher education) serve as co-chairs of the TWU chapter.

Criteria for the award include participation in community activities as well as attendance at the conference.

Activities conducted by the TWU chapter have included raising $1,200 through a bake sale to provide books for students at Denton's Tomas Rivera Elementary School; conducting a school supply drive for Rivera and Newton Rayzor elementary schools; collecting food for the Denton Food Bank; and providing food for a local family at Christmas. The group also began sending care packages to U.S. troops in Afghanistan when Kinnison's son was stationed overseas. Though his son's troop has returned, Kinnison said, the TWU chapter continues to send packages to another unit overseas.

The Texas Council for Exceptional Children is a non-profit organization that supports the national Council for Exceptional Children in advocating for students with disabilities and/or gifts and talents and in supporting those who serve this special population.
